MARGARET MASON

Wins First Prize in the Fortnightly Civil Service Contest.

Miss Margaret Mason took first prize, a bronze medal, for the best paper in the civil service contest given under the auspices of the Legislative committee of The Fortnightly. Her paper is "The History of Civil Service Reform," and was as follows:

The History of Civil Service Reform.

Civil Service Reform in the United States started in a thoroughly practical manner in 1868, but it was not until 1883 that any law was passed correcting the evils of the "Spoils system," which had been practised up to this time. According to this system each president turned hundreds of people out of office and put in their places men of his own political party. "To the victor belongs the spoils" was indeed the cry of Jackson, for during his administration, in ten months, nearly two thousand removals were made, merely to serve the interests of the party then in power. In several instances one tenth of each employee's salary was levied for campaign purposes and failure to meet this requirement resulted in his removal from office. Every office holder was expected to neglect his official duties at election time and devote all his time to the interests of his party. Such were the conditions of the civil service before the reform.

This sudden revolt and overturning of affairs at each presidential election was a great detriment to the public welfare. The offices were held by shiftless, fraudulent and inefficient men and the results were waste, rascality and enormous losses. An eminent official has been quoted as saying: "With competent men more and better work in his office could be accomplished by fifty less clerks than he then had."

It was amidst these great difficulties that the pioneers of civil service reform began their task. Thomas Allen Jenckes of Rhode Island was the first to take up the reform in a thorough manner. In 1865 after having carefully studied the English reform movement, he introduced a bill, which, though defeated on account of its novelty, set people to thinking. The following year a committee was appointed to examine into the advantages of amending the civil services laws. In May 1868 Mr. Jenckes made a report which is considered the starting point of the reform. He stated the conditions of our own civil service and also the systems in China, Prussia, France and especially England. The President was in favor of reform, but Congress was again inactive on account of the novelty of the plan and was disinclined to take any decisive action.

A few years later, Grant appointed a board of seven to draw up a set of rules of admission to civil service. In 1871 this board gave their report. But the opposition prevented any appropriation to support the commission appointed. Grant found it impossible to live by these rules and made several unfortunate appointments.

Civil service reform was now considered most necessary and so important that it was made the platform of the different political parties. In 1872 the "Merit System" was introduced. This system demanded that an applicant for office be honest, capable and faithful to the constitution.

Hayes was elected on a platform strongly supporting reform, but he was unable to make any progress without the support of the Senate.

Garfield at the opening of his administration, found Congress still inactive and unwilling to assist him in the measures he desired. He died without bringing any change to the legal conditions of civil service. The death of Garfield at the hands of a disappointed office seeker deeply affected public opinion and did more for reform than all the efforts up to that time.

On January 16, 1883 a bill, introduced by Pendelton, a democrat, was accepted by the Senate and House of Representatives, which were controlled by Republicans. President Arthur assented to it.

This act of 1883, called the "Pendelton Act," provided for three commissioners, a chief examiner, a state board of examiners and minor officers. The commissioners were to aid the president in preparing rules to carry out the provisions of the law. The fundamental principles of this act are as follows: that entrance to the classed service shall be secured by open competitive examinations; that appointments shall be given to those obtaining the highest grade of examinations; that no drunkard shall be given an appointment; that there shall not be more than two members from the same family; that veterans shall be given preference; that there shall be a fair apportionment of Washington positions between the citizens of various states and of the District of Columbia; that as a recommendation character and residence shall be given; that there shall be a probation of six months before final appointment; that no money for a political fund shall be exacted or received.

These rules applied to the departments at Washington, the custom houses and post offices. The President was allowed to extend the rules to other parts of the service at his discretion.

In the campaign of 1884 all the political parties declared themselves in favor of the reform. Cleveland was considered the most thorough reformer and was elected by those who cared for good government. The position of the president was now a difficult one, for in carrying out the rules of the new law a general sweep followed. This caused his supporters to say that he was breaking his pledges. But Cleveland put his best into the work. He made suggestions for strengthening the rules and he also extended the rules to include the railroad mail service.

After Harrison's election one of the great political weaknesses of the new system was shown. When the civil service rules are extended to a new class of officers, the persons who are in possession of the offices are included within the protection of the law without a trial by examination. This would tempt a president to protect his party friends, and when the opposing party gains power the positions are found to be filled by their opponents. Therefore the railroad mail extension was postponed until few Democrats remained to be protected.

In 1891 an important rule was made, providing for the keeping of efficiency records to be used in making promotions. Harrison thought that it was not best to rely entirely upon examination in raising men from one class to another, for it would be difficult to get an impartial judgment and to exclude favoritism. He extended the rules over the Indian service and letter carriers, also over the navy yards, applying them for the registration of laborers. He, furthermore, forbade the employment of extra men in the navy yards sixty days before elections. This prevented a great deal of vote buying.

During Cleveland's second administration an extension was made which was called the "blanket order," as it included nearly everything in the departmental service. Several of these extensions were over the lighthouse keepers, the clerks in the pension agency and the employees of the president's office. Additional rules were made concerning the classifying of candidates, the providing for examinations, promotions and reinstatements of former consuls in preference to new appointments.

McKinley extended the classification to the Philippine administration. Roosevelt is known as the "civil service president" because he was the only president who came into office with a thorough knowledge of the needs of civil service and who has spent the greater part of his time in work upon those lines. He has extended the law over the rural free delivery, the census bureau, the Spanish War service and a large number of fourth class postmasters.

In 1909 the classification was extended to the consular service. This was a great step. Senator Root had advocated this that it might "break up an inveterate abuse like that which has made our foreign service to so great an extent, a refuge for failure in life broken-down politicians, unsuccessful business men and men who have outlived their careers."

Now we have a consular service well equipped and especially adapted to secure a growing trade for the United States.

The positions of those who are not subject to examinations is now very small, including the presidential employees, fourth class post-masters not in the competitive class, and first class offices having incomes . . . . . . to the Senate for confirmation in the field service of the United States.

The civil service system has now proved of great service in the administration of the government. Its growth has been remarkable. Great economy and efficiency and a public service improved in honesty and faithfulness has been the result. More and better work has been done by a smaller number of employees since they have been set free from political obligations. Such is the great record of only a quarter of a century.

JULY 4TH.

No Fires, No Accidents, and a Very Quiet Fourth.

The 4th was again the quietest ever witnessed in Winchester. Not an accident or a misdemeanor of any kind marred the day, and the police did not have occasion to make a single arrest. The great heat of the day, it being the hottest July 4th in the history of the Boston weather bureau, undoubtedly prevented many persons from enjoying the town's program on Manchester field during the day although the fireworks in the evening called out the largest crowd yet.

The morning sports were run off without a hitch, a big crowd braving the temperature of over one hundred and watching them. Following were the winners of the various events:

Standing broad jump. Won by Goddu—8ft. 2in. 8, 2nd J. Horne—8ft. 2in. 8, 3rd Stevenson—8ft. 2in. 5.

Running broad jump. Won by Goddu—17ft. 2in. 5, 2nd Farnsworth—16ft. 7in. 3rd Horne 16ft. 5in. 8.

Basket ball race—1st heat won by Queen 2nd McAdams, 3rd Mullen, 4th Campbell, 5th Newlands. Semi finals won by Mullen, McAdams, Newlands. Finals—Mullen 1st, McAdams 2nd, Newlands 3rd.

Potatoe race. 1st heat won by Sears, 2nd Flaherty, 3rd McIsaac, 4th J. Whitacker, 5th Goddu, 6th Ware. Semi-finals won by Flaherty, McIsaac, Goddu, Ware. Finals won by Ware, 2nd Flaherty, 3d McIsaac.

Obstacle race. 1st heat won by Dodge, 2nd Horne, 3rd McCartney, 4th McIsaac. Finals won by Dodge, 2nd McIsaac, 3rd McCartney.

50yd. dash. 1st heat won by Tarbox, 2nd Gray, 3rd Ledwidge. Finals won by Gray, 2nd Horne, 3rd Tarbox.

Potatoe race for girls. 1st heat won by Miss Murphy, 2nd M. Gray, 3rd L. Gray. Finals won by M. Gray, 2nd Murphy, 3rd Murphy.

Obstacle race for girls. Won by Miss Keedy, 2nd L. Gray, 3rd M. Gray.

The ball game in the afternoon was not quite up to what had been anticipated but Mr. LeDuc, manager of the local team, was disappointed by the nine from the battleship Rhode Island at the last minute and was forced to take on the nine from the cruiser Salem. The midshipman in charge of the Rhode Island team promised to bring the nine and agreed to play, but on Saturday telephoned that the team would play elsewhere. The Salem was supposed to have a good team, but the playing of the sailors could not approach that of the local team, which won an easy victory. Manager LeDuc, in view of the weak team sent, did not take up any collection to defray the expenses, preferring to stand the cost himself after having been disappointed in the quality of the players. Nevertheless the big crowd enjoyed the game and were in a jolly frame of mind at its close.

The fireworks in the evening were witnessed by the largest crowd yet, Manchester field being filled with spectators. The display was the best yet seen for the amount of money invested—$150, and next 4th a larger sum should be appropriated, as this part of the program is witnessed by more people and furnishes the greatest enjoyment of the day. A number of the bombs and set pieces were fired for the first time, being creations of the manufacturer of the display, Ernesto Borelli of this town, who certainly has cause to feel proud of his success. Had a larger amount of money been available the display would have included a greater number of pieces, but certainly the display was fully equal to that annually given by the town. The Italian Marine Band furnished most acceptably the music of the day, playing during the morning, afternoon and evening.

CHOIR OUTING.

Last week Thursday, the volunteer chorus choir of the Woburn Unitarian Church were entertained by Mrs. Annie S. Lewis at her home . . . . . . and Mr. E. . . . . . . Three canoes . . . . . . afternoon . . . . . . on the Aberjona and Mystic, followed by supper and a social hour. In recognition of the best records of attendance at the choir, souvenirs were given to Ruth Bishop, Horace Trull, Earle Sylvester, and Dorothy Gould.

Mrs. Edwin C. Fisher of Highland avenue has returned from Osterville on the Cape.

DAUGHTERS OF ISABELLA.

Santa Maria Court Instituted with a Large Membership.

A striking instance of the growth and development of women's activities along social and charitable lines in which individual interests are allied to promote mutual benefit and advancement was furnished Sunday afternoon when Santa Maria Court, Daughters of Isabella was formulated in Lyceum Hall with a charter roll of 50 members.

The ceremonies of initiation were conducted by Mrs. Mary Cogan, of Stoneham, district deputy and Mrs. Mary Reynolds, Grand Regent. There were present besides, sisters from Arlington and East Cambridge.

The Hall was most tastefully and artistically decorated in gold, purple and white, with emblazoned legendary banners and emblems pertaining to the order, effectively interspersed with festooning and intertwined drapings. The effect reflected much credit upon the artistic perceptions of Miss Frances O'Loughlin who supervised the arrangements assisted by Misses McNulty, Curry and Mawn.

The following officers were elected: Regent, Miss Mary Reilly; Vice Regent, Miss Frances O'Loughlin; Monitor, Miss Frances Haley, Historian, Miss Elizabeth Cullen; Organist, Miss Mabel Cotty; Sentinel, Miss Catherine Foley; Treasurer, Mrs. S. Bone; Prophetess, Miss Lillian Kane, Financial Secretary, Miss C. McNulty; Trustees, Mrs. J. Glendon, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. McCauley, Mrs. Francis Sullivan, Mrs. Annie Vayo, Miss Margaret McGuire.

When the formal ceremonies were concluded refreshments were served and a pleasing programme carried out in which the participants were Mr. Cotty, and Miss Connell in vocal numbers and Miss Kathleen Kenneally in National and Solo dances. Miss Cotty was accompanist and every number was enthusiastically applauded. There was a large number of invited guests including several members of the Knights of Columbus, with which honorable body the Daughters of Isabella will be affiliated.

HOTTEST WEATHER YET.

The excessive hot spell, starting in last Sunday morning has been the worst . . . . . . experienced. The official temperature for the five days was as follows, at 1 p.m.: Sunday 95, Monday 100, Tuesday 102, Wednesday 95, Thursday 99. This was taken at the top of the Federal building in Boston and hardly reaches the temperatures of the streets or that of Winchester, removed from the east wind which somewhat tempered Wednesday and yesterday. Common temperature about town during the noon hour on any one of the days was 110. Up to late yesterday afternoon Winchester had three heat prostrations—William Cederburg, 19 years of age, living on Swanton street, was prostrated on the common Tuesday, Joseph Eeles of Medford, Inspector for the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co., was prostrated on Grove street Wednesday and an Italian woman was prostrated on the same day at Locks Hill. Eeles was removed to his home, but the case of the woman appeared so serious that she was taken to a Boston hospital. Other prostrations occurred in many of the stores, the victims being removed to their homes without the police being notified.

Horses suffered severely, hardly a single firm which used the animals escaping having one or more affected by the heat. Many business firms were obliged to close during the week, among them being Beggs & Cobb. Promises of showers caused anticipated relief, but none fell, although on two of the days it looked as though showers were in sight.

SMITH P. BURTON.

Mr. Smith Payne Burton, aged 87 years, died at his home, No. 91 Church street, July 4th. He had been a resident of this town for the past ten years, living with his son, Hiram M.

Mr. Burton was born at Greenbush, N. Y., his parents being James and Elizabeth (Payne) Burton. He leaves two sons, Smith P., Jr., of Newton and Hiram M. of this town.

The funeral services will be held July 7th at 2 p.m. from the residence. Interment will be at Albany, N. Y.

RELIEF TO THE HOUSEKEEPER

To all the housekeepers during the hot weather, I am making a reduction on carpet cleaning rates. Electric vacuum cleaners $1.25 per day 75c per half day and 25c per hour. Hand cleaners, 75c per day, 40c per half day.

Very truly yours,
WM. HOMER COLGATE.

EDISON SERVICE INTERRUPTED MONDAY NIGHT.

Company Taking Extensive Precautions to Prevent Similar Difficulty Ever Happening Again.

Had the big duplicate underground cable services of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., which runs across Charlestown Bridge, been interrupted next Autumn instead of Monday night, the towns on the North of Boston, that use the Edison service, would have suffered practically no inconvenience. The Company, desiring always to give its patrons in every part of the territory it serves the most complete service money will buy, has been working for months to secure rights of way and extending its big cable lines around Boston into the Northern District, so that Somerville, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham, Lincoln, Lexington, Bedford, Burlington and Carlisle could have a triplicate service instead of a duplicate service. Since the beginning of the Electric Light industry any Company that gave its patrons a duplicate service was regarded as taking wonderful precautions for uninterrupted supply. The Boston Edison Company has, however, not even been content with this unusual protection, but as has been said, has been working to complete as quickly as possible a third system of distribution, which would triple the insurance of perfect service.

Just how the accident happended that interrupted service in the northern district Monday night, is not definitely known. The service was interrupted on Main street in Charlestown where two immense feeder cables are laid in conduits several feet apart underground. The very best of insulation is used on the cables, and the best type of underground insulated ducts is used, but nevertheless through some unforseen and unpreventable circumstances, these big cables became simultaneously separated.

This accident occurred at 8.15 Monday night. More than one hundred men were summoned from their homes and from their seasons of rest and refreshment, to locate the trouble and correct it as quickly as possible.

These men worked with might and main, but it takes time, though one has many hands to discover just the location of an underground cable fracture, and loosen and remove heavy pavement and substitute perfect material, so that the electric current can flow on once more. The work went on all night long, until at 8 in Tuesday morning the service in the Northern towns was restored.

The Boston Edison Co., during the stress and strain incident to this accident, had occasion to appreciate the remarkable considerate and kindly spirit with which its customers, whose service had been interrupted, regarded the situation. There were disappointments, there were interruptions of business, but as soon as inquiring customers found what the difficulty was almost without exception they extended their sympathy, and expressed their desire to co-operate in any way possible. The officers of the company are glad to find this interested and helpful spirit among their customers, and they feel that it is a fine reward for the earnest conscientious attention they have given to the interests of their patrons since the very beginning of the Company's business.

METHODIST S. S. OFFICERS.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the M. E. Sunday school was held on Thursday at the parsonage. Supper was served at 6.30 and about thirty members and friends of the Sunday school Board sat down to a bountiful repast. At 8 p. m. the members convened for the business session. A review of the year's work was given by Supt. F. G. H. Fimmore, with timely suggestions for the furthering of the work in the future. Reports were also given by the Superintendents of the primary and home departments. The pastor, Rev. C. W. Blackett, followed with a practical talk on the work of the school enforsing the labors of officers and teachers, and recommending some important changes which will interest and benefit the School. The following are the officers elected to serve until March 1912:

Superintendent, F. G. H. Fimmore
First Assistant, H. G. McMillin
Second Assistant, F. L. Crastor; Mrs. F. F. Crastor
Supt. of Beginners, Miss . N. Mason
Assistant, Miss Margaret Mason
Home Department, Rev. C. H. Mason . . .
Secretary, Fred O. Snow . . .
Treasurer, Miss Edna . . .
Librarian, Lora Mason
Chorister, J. Alfred Dover.

It was voted to close the sessions of the school through the summer months, re-opening Sunday, Sept. 3rd. Mr. and Mrs. Blackett were extended a vote of thanks for their kindness and hospitality in giving the use of the parsonage for this enjoyable occasion. The meeting then adjourned.

COMING EVENTS.

July 8, Saturday, 3.30 p. m. On Manchester Field, Winchester vs. North Woburn.

July 8, Saturday. Dance at Winchester Boat Club.

July 15, Saturday. Winchester Country Club, four ball foursomes.

RELOCATION OF TRACKS.

Editor of the Star:

So many plans and schemes for abolishing the grade crossing have been brought forward, that I cannot resist the temptation to add to the general confusion by suggesting still another plan which the contemplated purchase of the Whitney property by the town, suggested to me. As I am not an engineer, this explanation will be lacking in the technical details, but these can be readily obtained any time that the citizens feel "flush" and want to expend more of the town's money for another set of plans. My plan leaves the center as it is and moves the railroad. Commencing just north of the Wedgemere depot, have the railroad swing to the east along the east side of the playground in a gradual long curve, crossing Walnut street at the old furniture factory, through the Whitney property and Mill pond, crossing Pleasant, or now Mt. Vernon street, at the Christian Science Church then up through the ponds to the present roadbed. The sharp curve on the Woburn loop will be straightened somewhat in making the junction with the main line tracks in their new location. If the grade of the railroad is made as low as possible, the fact that the railroad is running in a hollow, will make easy the problem of grading the streets up over the tracks. An easy grade, coming from the original Mt. Vernon street, will take the street over the tracks at the Christian Science Church. Coming down Main street in front of the Unitarian Church, the grade can as will be kept high until it crosses the tracks, which will be at the easterly end of the Whitney mill. On Common street, the grade coming from Church street past the Post Office, can be kept high until after passing over the tracks near the Hustler's with an easy grade down the Parkway and to Main street, which will be higher than it is now. Build a new depot on, or move the old one to, the Whitney mill property, which will be as central as the old location. The portion of the playground taken for the railroad, can be replaced by the land on the other side which the railroad now occupies. The land now occupied by the depot, and by the tracks between the Common and the row of Houston houses can be added to our Common.

The present roadbed north of the crossing, would make a good beginning for that long talked of street from the center to the "Plains."

Thus we have the present grade crossing abolished without demolishing any buildings except the Whitney estate, which will be torn down anyway, and at an expense only of building the new railroad roadbed, building three bridges and moving the depot. The railroad will run through what was an eye sore and a bone of contention for years. Winchester will have, probably, a new depot, will have a larger Common, a larger center, with beauty unsacrificed to expediency, a road to the "Plains," almost uninterrupted business and travel while the work is in progress, and the streets left just as convenient as before.

I submit this plan to the citizens believing that it is one solution which will leave the beauty of the town unimpaired and not be of prohibitive cost.

A GAME OF FUN.

Nines composed of members of the Royal Arcanum and Odd Fellows gave spectators one of the best fun-making games perhaps ever seen on Manchester Field, during the forenoon of the Fourth. The heat was terrific, and because of this and the fact that the Arcanumites were making the Odd Fellows appear ridiculously odd, but two and one half innings were played and at the end of that period the score stood 16 to 3 in favor of the Arcanumites. But it was fun all the way through, and the cheering and yells could be heard almost in the centre of the town.

The lineup was:

Arcanum: Fred Dutch, Louis Smith, Ernest Perry, Harrison Hatch, Peter M. . . . . Arnold, . . . Lovell, ... of . . .

Odd Fellows: E. H. Haggett, Geo. Bowring, Theo. Harley, C. . Arnold, John Mead, Dave Mahe . . ., Ed. Hudson, J. A. Hersey and R. W. Dover.

SATURDAY'S GAME.

Winchester will play No. Woburn on Manchester Field this Saturday afternoon at 3.30. The Woburn team is one of the strongest in this section and a good game is looked forward to.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator has just been informed relative to a most efficious remedy for sleeplessness. It is one of the simplest remedies The Spectator has heard of for a considerable period. It consists of nothing more than the eating of a raw onion sandwich just before retiring. A sandwich cure which The Spectator once tried with remarkable success was the buttering thickly two thin slices of bread, and sprinkling them with cayenne pepper. This, The Spectator believes is less disagreeable than the first mentioned remedy.

One of our clergymen tells The Spectator the story of a little boy who was asked what the Sunday school text was and who answered, "Many are cold, but few are frozen."

The Spectator knows a man who is on the "outs" with several of his fellowmen and every time he goes up and down the town he makes a special effort to avoid those men. In The Spectator's opinion such a man is in a bad way and he thinks it would be well for him to look himself over for crazy bumps.

Formerly The Spectator didn't pay a great deal of attention to flies, but since hearing so much about flies having a thousand legs, and a case of typhoid on each leg, The Spectator shoos them more than he formerly did.

The fact that he knows nothing about a subject is not much of an inducement for the average citizen to keep still; indeed, it often seems to work the other way.

The Spectator knows a man who can't eat breakfast with the family was the bad end of the nightmare they had.

A gentleman informs The Spectator that the immediate vicinity of Winchester offers exceptional vacation opportunities and The Spectator is inclined to agree with him. Some of The Spectator's most enjoyable vacation jaunts have been taken within twenty five miles of Winchester.

Just as soon as the warm weather sets in some merchants curtail on their advertising, but The Spectator believes that here they make a serious mistake. People buy stuff all the year round and one of Winchester's leading business men informs The Spectator that business is just as good in July and August as it is in December and January. Hence the necessity for keeping business announcements before the public at all seasons of the year. The merchant who advertises in the STAR all the year round is the merchant who is meeting with success all along the line.

An Englishman who is visiting here in Winchester and who is in America for the first time points out to The Spectator what he calls curiosities in speech. The Spectator once visited England and he was vastly amused by the queer expressions which he heard and which passed for the best English. Some of these sayings go back to the purest writers of English, and on the other hand some of the expressions which The Spectator's English friend finds strange have the very best of authority and are simply lapses to ancient usage. Then as to dialects, England is greatly interested in what is known as Bowery English. And we Americans find a source of joy in Cockney English. The one is just as strange as the other. The question was recently raised by a culture I Winchester gentleman as to what is likely to happen to the English language in this country where so many people are mingling. For even if all learn the one tongue, the Italians cannot speak it after just the same fashion as the German. And the Frenchman will never have just the same tone that the Russian obtains. Will there then be a new tongue, or will the pronunciation of old words be gradually changed? That question cannot be answered at the present time. For while there are many races here, they all go to the public schools and they all are moulded by them. The country has few isolated sections, and travel is so large that the formation of dialects is not fast. Foreign colonies in cities are numerous, but the children make English their native tongue and the grandchildren abandon the colonies. If The Spectator were to make any prediction, it would be that the language will remain as it is, but that the influence of the Latin races will be to soften the harsher elements of the tongue and give us a speach which will be perfectly adopted finally to all the nations of the earth.

NOW WHAT DID SHE MEAN?

A correspondent sends the STAR the following

At a recent wedding a baby had shrieked without intermission, to the great annoyance of the guests, etc. As the bridal party was leaving the church a slight delay occurred. One of the guests seized the opportunity to say to the first bridesmaid: "What a nuisance babies are at a wedding!"

"Yes, indeed!" answered the bridesmaid angrily. "When I send out the invitations to my wedding I shall have printed in the corner, 'No babies expected.'"

A PRETTY LAWN PARTY.

The grounds of Mr. G. W. Benjamin No. 6 Reservoir street were the scene of a most charming and successful event on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, June 29. The occasion was the carnival in aid of the Floating Hospital, and the young people of Winchester Highlands. There were a number of attractive booths on different parts of the lawn, and numerous Japanese lanterns added to the general effect of the surroundings. Mrs. Albert McLellan and Miss Pearl McLean in empire costumes were in charge of the cake table which was prettily draped in crepe paper with a canopy of natural boughs and pink carnations. The candy booth was similarly decorated in yellow, and in attendance were two colonial dames Mrs. Samuel Twombly and Miss Helen McLean. Ices were served from a show but by Mrs. G. W. Benjamin assisted by Miss Sadie Dotten, lady ladies, and also the Misses Ieolos, Hilda Benjamin, Kathryn McLellan and Beulah Chapin. The Japanese Tea Garden was one of the most attractive spots, where Miss Rhoda Chapin assisted by Constance Park and Margaret Ray presided over the dainty arranged tables.

Hume and Gretchen, (Harold) Twombly and Ethel MacLean, were well suited to their Dutch Tulip Bed, and Rachael and Reuben, Olberta Seagrave and Wentworth Twombly at the old well were genuine tastes and general favorites with the occupants of the passing autos.

Miss Jennie Henderson of Everett as a butterfly and Madeline Robertson and Dorothy Benjamin as a poppy and rose added brilliant touches of color to the scene. Little Marion Twombly and Donald McLellan as little Dutchers created much admiration and emptied more than once their tiny buckets of pennies and pretzels.

The Grape Arbor was a favorite haunt for the thirsty visitors and two dusky Italians, Miss Grace Buckley and Nathan Chapin, jingled their tambourines and served delicious iced drinks. The costumes and decorations were in charge of Miss Helen M. Young a Designer and Decorator formerly with the Dennison Mfg. Co., of Boston, Mass. Miss Young wore a Greek costume of white and gold.

HOW HE LOST $5.

The only but excitement observable in the centre of the town the night before the Fourth was a hunt for a $5 bill which a young lad claimed that he had lost. It was just about the time that the electric lights went out that the commotion began. The lad had been entrusted with the money by his parents to purchase some fireworks and at about the time he had made up his mind what he was going to buy, he stuck his hand in his pocket for the bill. It was not there, neither could he find it in either of his innumerable pockets. Then the commotion began, and, it required but a few moments to acquaint the many persons about the square as to what had happened. First the boy claimed that he had lost the money on the street, then in a store. Automobiles and all public travel came to a standstill while the search was going on in the street by scores of men, women, boys, girls and kids. And to assist in the search, a policeman procured a lantern at the police station, and accompanied by the lad every foot of his previous travels was gone over inch by inch but without success. Finally the boy's sister put in an appearance. "Johnny, what is the matter?" she exclaimed. "O, sis, I lost the five dollars." "No you didn't. I've got it in my hand, You gave it to me awhile ago." A big feeling of relief became manifest by the crowd at once. The policeman took his lantern to the station, and the mending procession of automobiles started up again, and finally Johnny bought his fireworks.

SANTA MARIA COURT, D. OF I. INSTITUTED.

Santa Maria court, Daughters of Isabella, was instituted last Sunday afternoon in Lyceum Hall with a charter list of 50 members. The ceremonies of institution were in charge of Mrs. Mary E. Cogan of Stoneham, district deputy for this district. The hall was prettily decorated with purple, white and gold, the colors of the order. After the ceremonies a banquet was served to the visiting members of the order and the members of the new court. The affair was in charge of the following committees. Miss Frances O'Loughlin, Mrs. Michael Noonan and Mrs. George R. Poland, reception committees. Miss Nora O'Loughlin, Miss Edith Curry, Miss Susie M. Mann, Miss Christina McNulty and Miss Sarah Quigley, committee on decorations. Mrs. Richard Glendon, Mrs. Thomas McCauley, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, jr., Mrs. George R. PARK ACTS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I send you herewith the act relating to parks, for publication in your paper, and which you will see practically disposes of the question of erecting an engine house on the land to be acquired from the Whittier estate for park purposes.

"No building, except as provided in section eleven of chapter twenty-eight, which exceeds six hundred square feet in area upon the ground shall be erected in or upon a common or park dedicated to the use of the public without leave of the general court. The superior court shall have jurisdiction at equity, upon petition of not less than ten taxable inhabitants of the city or town in which such common or park is located, to restrain any violation of the provisions of this section."

Section 11 of Chapter 28, above referred to, reads in part:

"Land taken or held as a park by cities and towns under the provisions of this chapter shall be forever kept open and maintained as public parks." Then follow certain exemptions concerning parks in the City of Boston and in parks comprising less than one hundred acres in extent, to the effect that these restrictions shall not apply to structures for shelter, refreshment, etc.

Section 11 of Chapter 28 also provides that:

"No street or way and no steam railroad or street railway shall be laid out over any portion of such park, except in places and in the manner approved by the board of park commissioners."

The "Park Act," under which it is proposed to purchase the Whittier property, does not provide for acquiring anything but land, but the Act of 1904, chap. 413, as amended by the Act of 1905, chap. 360, enables selectmen of towns to take by right of eminent domain the whole of any estate for any public work, and authorizes the sale of any remnant which may not be needed.

ANOTHER TOWN TAKES EDISON SERVICE.

The town of Carlisle located north of Concord, is the latest of the Boston suburban towns to appreciate what the possibilities for development are when the electric service of The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston is made available. A contract covering a period of ten years has just been signed with the Boston Edison Company for an extension of the company's street lighting service into the town. This contract also authorizes the Company to extend its commercial service for lighting and for furnishing electric power.

The farthest point in Carlisle from the L Street Station of the Boston Edison Company is 23.5-10 miles. The town has an estimated area of 16 1-10 miles, with 37 miles of streets, of which it is estimated 4 2-10 miles will be covered by Edison service. Its population is 551.

It is quite a jump from kerosene to electric lighting, but the people of Carlisle are so up to date that they are already anticipating the improvement.

MEETING SUMMER'S PROBLEM

By Margaret E. Sangster.

The following, taken from the Woman's Home Companion, is reproduced herewith by request.

Summer problems annually confront us with the familiar faces of old friends. If we take them too seriously, they seem to us like ancient enemies. The heat, the mosquitoes, the swarming flies, the coming and going of servants, the laundry-work and all other sources of anxiety crowd out of our minds the beauty of garden and lawn, the delight of short excursions and the open-air freedom of the season. Shall we go somewhere across the wide ocean, back to the old homestead, into the little valley where we went to school, or shall we tarry at home by the stuff? Are our goods and chattels an embarrassment, or shall we deposit the silver in the bank and start on pilgrimage with a tree foot?

What shall we do with the house it, as a family, we wish to settle elsewhere than at home for a time? How are we to reconcile the diverging tendencies and temperaments of different members of the family? One daughter likes people and cities, hates roughing it in the woods and yearns for good clothes and gaiety. Another pines for the precise opposite. The problem of the full purse, or the scanty one, must be duly considered.

Suburbanites have learned that to make both ends meet they may give weary city-folk the chance of dwelling in their homes with all their manifold advantages during the mid summer days. Dwellers in town sublet the apartments for the season, and transient travelers thus accommodated affirm that there are worse places than the city in which to stay in July. We all meet out problems, and every summer we solve them again.

Use Business Methods.

The woman who rents her furnished house for the summer may deprecate the idea that others are sleeping in her beds, reading her books and handing her china, but it the transaction has been arranged strictly on business principles, in a majority of cases she will finally return to a house as clean as when she left it, with little injury accruing from wear and tear.

Mr. Roskelton, in conversation with David Balfour, after the latter's return from the perilous adventures into which he had been thrown when kidnapped by the nefarious chicanery of his miserly Uncle Ebenezer, uttered a memorable truth. "Now, Mr. David, they talk a great deal of charity and generosity, but, in this disputable state of life, I often think the happiest consequences seem to flow when a gentleman consults his lawyer, and takes all the law allows him."

It is chiefly sentiment which opposes itself to the purely commercial transaction of renting one's home for the summer.

Occasionally, when Jones is filled with gratitude for the goodness of God shown to her in the possession of a beautiful home, while others equally deserving are forced to live in stuffy rooms, with little air and sun, she feels that she ought to put her thankfulness to the test by installing some of these in her home while she leaves it.

A Kindness That Failed.

The kind impluse is sometimes carried out successfully, and sometimes causes a reaction of feeling leading to later hardening of the heart. For example, my friend Miriam, who paints miniatures and writes poetry, has gradually made for herself, in a cozy apartment, a home which expresses in every nook and corner the charm of her personality. One summer, she was going to Normandy for a three months' sojourn. She found among her less fortunate acquaintances two young women who were not able to leave town during the summer, and who had no anticipation of so much as a week's holiday. She said to them, "Come and live in my home while I am gone. All that I will ask o you will be to take good care of my bird and keep my plants daily watered. You may freely use everything that I have. I have engaged a woman to come in at stated intervals to do the cleaning for you, and I want you to feel, while I am gone, as it this home were your own."

When Miriam came back, her bird-cage was empty, and she was told that a prowling cat had eaten her canary; her palms were withered, and her other plants were dead, her most cherished books had been despoiled by careless usage, her china had been chipped at the edges, and the whole apartment seemed to have been tenamented by vandals.

The outgoing inmates behaved as if they had done her a favor, and she had treated them with injustice, and, altogether, her benevolent experiment proved in reality to have been a dreary failure.

My friend, Mrs. N. going with her family on a trip around the world, similarly placed her ample home, near Central Park, at the disposal of a family of gentle women, consisting of a widowed mother and three spinster daughters. These people were supposed to be the salt of the earth. Two of the daughters had been successful teachers. The house, with all it contained, was freely given them, for their occupation, for a year and a half.

When the N's at last returned, they discovered that their friends had exercised a large hospitality to kindred with troupes of reckless children. They were themselves obliged to take up their abode in a hotel while the house was renovated from attic to cellar, and at least one floor was entirely refurnished before Mrs. X could persuade herself to live in her home again.

The summer problem of what to do with the home when one leaves it for the season must be settled by the individual. Against one feature I must raise my voice.

Abandoned Men Folk.

American men are proverbially self-forgetfull and generous. A husband and father may be compelled to continue the daily grind with only a week or fortnight's holiday, but, if he be a tolerably successful business man, he will send his wife and children to Maine or the Adirondacks or Mackinac or whatever resort is the one most alluring or desirable to the people of his section.

This is a big country and there are many places extremely tempting to those who can afford a summer change of scene. The choice generally depends on the age of the children. While the children are under twelve, they go with their mother preferably to a farm-house, where they may have simply country pleasures and an excellent table. A brook to fish in, a barn with its mysterious lights and shadows, rides with the farmer on loads of hay, flowers to gather in sunny meadows, making the children ideally happy, while their mother sits and crochets on the veranda and their father sends the weekly check for the board. When he can manage it, he runs out from town on Saturday, to stay over Sunday and catch an early train to town on Monday morning. When the children become young people, they wish other enjoyments and clamor for another background, and the parents secure it for them, if they can.

In the meantime, the husband, left at home, has a weary time of it. One man whom I remember wrote to his wife that in the morning when he was dressing he could hear the flies walking on the ceiling, the house was so forlorny still. No one should be left entirely alone in a house at night. There is always the possibility of sudden illness and the danger of weakness too great to reach a telephone.

Young men obliged to peg away in the office should have a mother or sister to stay with them, to give the home feeling and the home care; and if there are no women in the family who can thus take turns in ministry an arrangement should be made by which the comfort and well being of the grown up boy will be provided for. The custom of leaving the men of the household in solitude during the summer does not commend itself as either sensible or sane.

There are countries in which it would almost seem that the man of the house is too much considered, but, in ours, he is far too often practically hooked upon as the man who pays the bills and furnishes the luxuries that have grown to be indispensable in the opinion of his wife and daughters. It it be true, as more than one observer has said to me, that American men prematurely break down under the strain of their bread winning, and that many of them do not survive their fifties, it behooves the women to whom they are dear to discover the weak point in the machinery of living and apply a remedy.

Summer Camps.

"I am sending both my boys into camps this summer," said the mother of two wide-awake and particularly restless young Americans. One of these lads was twelve and the other ten. They happen to be of opposite temperaments and were disposed to be more quarrelsome than the mother approved.

"My husband and I talked it over," she said, "and, after investigation and a great deal of thought, we decided that the boys would be better friends and comrades in the autumn if they were separated in the summer. Wilfred is going into camp in Vermont, and Dick will be sent, under the care of an old classmate of his Uncle Tom, to a camp on Long Island. In the meantime, we ourselves are planning a pleasant excursion, and I mean, so far as I can, to drop the burden of anxiety about my boys. I say 'the burden' because I seldom get rid of it unless they are asleep. Wilfred is given to what the boys call 'scraps.' He goes about with a chip on his shoulder, and is happiest when he can fight with another boy. His brother is much more tractable, and he lets Wilfred impose upon him. We think the little fellows will get more out of the summer by spending it in camp than they will with us."

The summer camp, under the care of an instructor who understands boy nature is one of the safest and best places to watch a boy can be sent. The discipline of the camp, in promptness, punctuality and adherence to a few rules, develops excellent qualities in the ordinary boy. The woodcraft, swimming, fishing and sailing, which form the most conspicuous part of camp life, are thoroughly enjoyable, and the finest feature of all is the growth in courage, self-reliance and manliness made by the boy in this healthful outdoor life.

Mrs. E. M. Ray, Miss Margaret K. Ray, Miss Marjorie and Miss Consuello Burwell and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smalley are at the latter's cottage at Harwichport for the month of July. Mrs Sanford D. Leland, formerly of this town, will occupy the cottage during the month of August.

LOST BY ONE.

The Winchester team lost the game to Medford last Saturday afternoon by one run. The errors were pretty evenly divided, but, however, with a slightly larger number to the credit of the home team. It was a game that kept the spectators on the anxious seat to the finish when the score stood nine to eight in favor of Medford. The following summary tells the story in detail:

BASE BALL.

The ball game on the afternoon of the fourth was finally played after a long wait for the opposing team, - the game started at quarter past five. It was an uninteresting, one-sided game from the beginning. Winchester scored most of its runs by the loose fielding on the part of the vistors. Whittaker pitched a good game for Winchester, allowing only two hits and one base on balls.

The features of the game were the three base hits by Whittaker and Thornton.

AN UNFORSEEN ACCIDENT.

For the first time during the many years that the Edison company has been furnishing electricity for Winchester there was a mishap Monday night and as a result the entire town was in darkness throughout the night excepting the early part of the evening. It was one of those unforseen accidents which safeguards failed to prevent and was caused by the breaking of the cable that passes through Main Street at Charlestown. To prevent just such an accident, the company has two cables, one being auxiliary. When the first cable gave way, the power was turned into the auxiliary cable, but this after a brief period went the way of the first. The cause in each instance is unexplainable. To repair these cables required a vast amount of labor, and there was no lamp until everything was in condition the next morning. To further prevent a similar accident, the company is to have a third cable, this to connect with Waltham, so that it will be impossible to have a similar breakdown hereafter.

Much inconvenience resulted to storekeepers and householders because of the mishap, it taking place at one of the worst periods of the year—the night before the Fourth, but no one regretted the accident more than did the officers of the company. As far as the streets were concerned, fortunately the bright moon gave ample light.

For One Year, the Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

Melrose claims to be a Spotless Town, Brookline a Flyless Town, but Winchester is the Banner Residential Town, both in summer and winter.

It looks as if Winchester was going to be beaten to a frazzle on the grade crossing abolition question and that the town would come out fourth best.

The Republican Convention for the nomination of candidates for State officers is to be held in Boston on October 4 next. They will be selected by direct nomination.

Mr. Winfield F. Prime will be a candidate for Representative to the Legislature this fall. He has always been a Republican and if elected would have an opinion of his own regarding legislation.

It is a wonder that somebody has not urged the application of the recall principal to the case of baseball umpires. If the bleachers had that right given them there isn't an umpire living who could stay in a game longer than ten minutes. —[Athol Chronicle

The STAR leaves on the early mail every Friday afternoon to be delivered at out-of-town addresses that afternoon or the next day. The subscription is fifty cents for three months, or two dollars a year. A request by telephone, postal or messenger, is all that is needed to start a subscription; the mailing department will take care of the rest.

Brookline, the richest town in the world, spends part of its money fighting flies and mosquitoes. The warfare goes on from June till October with no let up. The citizens are compelled to suppress the breeding places of the insects, and the town's hired men help them to do it. Kerosene is liberally used and the pests find that disagreeable. The work is worth while and it must add to the comfort of the people.

Representative Fay, West Medford, and his colleague of Medford voted against the reconsideration of the New Haven-Boston & Maine tunnel bill in the Legislature last week. Gen. Lawrence, who is not very friendly to either of these roads, appears to control the votes of these Representatives, whether the measure is for the benefit of the roads, or public, or not. His aim seems to be to get square on the Boston & Maine and New York & New Haven merger.

Sept. 26, 1911, is the date that voters of the state are admonished to keep in mind, for on that day they will take part for the first time in state-wide primaries to make direct nominations for all offices to be filled at the election a few weeks later. A good deal will depend on the way they discharge this duty. Direct nominations will be little better than the other kind unless substantially all the voters turn out to make them. Apathy is the one thing which threatens the success of the new system. There is complaint in some states using the same method that voters grow indifferent, and this of course tends to lower the standard of the nominations. It shouldn't be so in Massachusetts and certainly not at the start. As the law stands, every voter in the caucus of this fall will be enrolled according as he takes part. A voter who fails to take part in the caucus of this fall, will have to be enrolled before he can sign any nomination papers thereafter. This means take part in the caucus of September 26, if you wish to have a hand in selecting candidates

In discussing express rates by the big express companies the Natick Bulletin says: "Perhaps then there might be a decent and fair adjustment of rates and the double-charge scheme operated at present through two express companies might be eliminated. To charge twenty-five cents to transport a pound package three or four miles and double that price if the package is handled by two of the companies, as is possible in certain localities, is nothing short of barefaced robbery. We don't need a parcels post with all its uncertainties so much as we need government ownership as control of express companies.

A SPLENDID CELEBRATION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a visitor in Winchester I wish to say a word of appreciation of the remarkable private lineal display on Manchester Field on the eve of July 4th. Shower upon shower of many colored stars showered and flamed and danced in the calm atmosphere, while every now and then the resounding clatter of the exploding aerial bombs rejoiced to the uttermost the small boy, and from the enthusiasm about me, I doubt not the larger ones. Never has Boston Common displayed a finer or more original collection of set pieces, and the credit of all these is due, I understand, to an Italian resident of Winchester, who personally makes the fireworks.

The Band concert too was wonderfully good, soft sweet music was rendered at intervals all day long, and during the evening up to ten o'clock by the Boston Italian Marine Band, the selections floating out over the Boulevard to the hundred or more automobiles gathered there.

The crowd was most orderly, and there was little call for the services of the corps of policemen in attendance.

The programme for the day was in charge of Park Commissioner Charles A. Lane, and great credit is due to his energy and thoroughness in making arrangements. That I was not the only appreciative spectator was very evident from the continual tooting of auto horns and the hearty hand clapping that broke forth as the various concert numbers ended, and as one by one the beautiful illuminations appeared.

Well may the towns people of Winchester feel proud of their celebration.

An Observer from Melrose.

WHY HE OPPOSES WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Says the Rev. Dr. Blanchard, rector of Grace Church in Madison, N. J., "We are against woman's suffrage, not for academic, but for practical reasons. We are against it, not because we deny the moral superiority of woman or fail to reverence the highest and best of her sex, but because we do not believe it will be the benefit to her and to the nation which its advocates claim

The sphere of woman is greater than any ballot can give her. And now when this nation is undergoing the severest crisis in its history, when alien immigration is pouring into our country such a large body of people, we cannot afford to incur the risk of making our burdens heavier, of subjecting our land to a still greater strain. We must wait. We must let the forces of education and religion do their necessary work before we make a more hazardous experiment."

Elizabeth M. Gosse.

STATE POWER.

A good deal of our recent discussion about federal powers and state powers treats them as if they were in antagonism with each other No sane or public spirited man is jealous of federal power But what we wish to guard against is the atrophy of the local agency, the weakening of those great instrumentalities which have vitalized our communities everywhere and made self government a human relation What we wish to prevent is anything which will relieve our people from the necessity of taking care of themselves Our system of government has been great because it has put upon the states the necessity of working out their own problems and has put the people everywhere upon their mettle; has left their economic and social salvation to their own discernment and their own exertion.—Woodrow Wilson.

DEPLORES FAULT-FINDING.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the issue of "one year" H. C. has made a common "Observations," a few of them possibly pertinent most of them impertinent, but all none might bother he but unprintable. Every one of has or own prejudices to a criticism or power of fault finding One may well disagree with his comments on our morals or manners this court that sits in judgment should be sure of its own poise before it passes. Any one of his observations is a matter of taste It is none of several years he apparently uses Winchester as his bedroom, one night in the year, in order to retain his residence here, he does not have a dollar's worth of property at stake in the town; and yet, with no personal or financial interests in Winchester, he takes up a large share of the time in our town meetings, and weekly in the STAR lectures us on our duties and obligations. For my own part and there are others who are like minded I prefer to take orders from those who are better qualified to offer suggestions by reason of their occupations of industry and public spirit, and by their ability to recognize the good that does exist, whose vision is not limited to mistakes and failures only.

Nearly every one of the eleven "observations" last week shows bad taste, or is open to objection on other grounds. And there may well be a difference of opinion on some subjects. For instance, H. C. says "A citizen who has not yet registered and who had to set in the small hours of the morning that he had always heard of the laziness of Winchester meetings, but judged by this one, which was the first he had attended, it was the narrowest and most unfair he had ever seen." Per contra a recent comer, a man much interested in public affairs, who has lived in at least five states and thus is qualified to make reasonably reliable comparisons, informed me that the three sessions of this town meeting impressed him to the most favorably of anything he had ever witnessed anywhere, barring one thing. The actions and the methods and the attitude of mind of two individuals, whose names it is unnecessary to mention. It is a great pity that the effectiveness of our New England town meeting should be so seriously impaired by one or two persons who have no following or supporters, who lack not only the confidence but even the respect of their fellow citizens.

Charles F. A. Currier.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Falmouth, Mass., July 5th, 1911.

Dear Sir: Reading of weather conditions of the last few days I wonder if people generally know that within two hours ride of Boston is a place where one need never have any discomfort from heat; where we seldom notice the thermometer, but it has not reached 80 degrees this year; where most of the time there is a soft south-west breeze blowing, delightfully cooling.

The sea bathing, the temperature of which we take daily is from 68 degrees to 80 degrees, usually 75 degrees.

The breeze is so strong there is practically no annoyance from mosquitoes and up to this time not one fly.

My regret is that I did not know of this place thirty years sooner and if any young people take advantage of my experience in looking for the best place to summer I shall be glad.

I have no axe to grind. The land I own here I would not part with, but when I know so many people are putting up with heat at shore places where the land breezes bring no relief and others with cold bathing where they dread to go in and hurry to come out I think it must be they do not really believe a comfortable summer place exists.

I have passed many summers in Winchester and I could not bring myself to believe that anywhere blankets were needed in July, yet it I had not had two blankets over me every night and definitely the nights of July 2nd and 3rd I should have been cold.

We did not wake up until six o'clock July 4th and then were not disturbed by any noise. We had an early swim in water of 68 degrees and breakfast in a delightful fresh breeze out of doors as we do every morning.

Now if I had my life to live over I could economize in almost any way to be able to have some kind of a place of my own on the east shore of Buzzards Bay at Falmouth, or Bourne, or at Falmouth on Vineyard Sound. If I could only spend the weeks end there I should be sure my family was in the most comfortable and restful place to be found.

Then too, later in the season when some days are likely to be too cold the east winds here are softened by coming across the land.

Stephen S. Langley.

LIFE AND DEATH.

Life is joy, and love is power:
Death all fetters doth unbind
Strength and wisdom only flower
When we toil for all our kind
Hope is truth; the future giveth
More than present takes away.
And the soul forever liveth
Nearer God from day to day.
—J. R. Lowell.

Learning to Graft.

I've taken my graft where I've found it
I've grafted a bit in my time;
And critics all said I was a rube,
I fancied my methods were prime;
But yesterday's actions were startling [illegible]
By Riley's Wall Street gang,
I picked with the grafters while I practiced,
And I learned about grafting from men

My landlady she was a grafter,
My chauffeur looked out on a shed,
The [illegible] she stabled with the same corporation
And this was the deal as I was cheated
She gorged me with prunes and bread pudding
For this she got under my fur
By taxing me forty-six fifty,
And I learned about grafting from her

The farm hand who took my wallet
He soaked me an extra four bits,
The girl and the [illegible] boy and his man
Were there with the open faced mitts.
As I said in the start, I have grafted
By ways that were smooth, but—ahem!
Believe me, I've only been joking—
I learned about grafting from them.
—Buffalo News.

REAL ANARCHISTS.

The bleeding of politics and high finance which would perhaps better be called low stealing, is one of the most serious signs of moral breakdown in the nation, and this bleeding is responsible for nine tenths of the evils we face in America today. The most dangerous anarchist in America is the man who buys laws, who buys and coerces legislators. He is the anarchist—the dangerous anarchist, because we can't put him in jail. The race track owners, franchise seekers and privilege buyers are the anarchists.—Rabbi Wise.

Queer Looking Worms.

New Zealand, Australia, the Samoan and the Solomon islands as well as portions of the Hawaiian group are the homes of various species of worms with thick, heavy bodies and with a well defined look connecting the body with a head that is a startling reminder of that of the monkey. In the Sandwich islands they are called "mea-ta-ki," which means "creeper with a child's head." An old New Zealand legend says that at one time they were of immense proportions and threatened the extinction of all human life on the islands.

Irish Wit.

Swift scoffed at Irish "wit" in some biting lines. Nevertheless Irish wit is one of the most precious things. One soon has a surfeit of the professional funny man in England, the pawky Scot, the American humorist. The Irish peasant never disappoints, and with him it is all so naive and natural.—London Saturday Review.

Goodness and Greatness.

Goodness comes from within from feelings, thoughts and desires resulting in actions. Greatness is the consequence of bold actions, great energy, ambition, enterprise and perseverance

Jungle House-keeping.

The negro boys who in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut and the river abounds with fish. On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees, the calabash nut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, dishes and jugs for carrying water from the river, while the small ones make excellent cups. In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane for sweetening and the coconut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it. She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

Backing.

Borrowby—The scheme would be a howling success if I could secure the proper backing, and—Grimshaw—The only backing I am doing this year is out.—Puck.

MOHAMMED'S PLAN.

Mohammed made the people believe that he would call a hill to him and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled. Mohammed called the hill to come to him again and again, and when the hill stood still he was never a whit abashed, but said, "If the hill will not come to Mohammed, Mohammed will go to the hill."—Francis Bacon

THE SHOWER.

The tertuhe not spell culminated last evening in the severest thunder storm of the summer, three showers doing considerable damage about town. The rain fell in torrents, badly washing the streets, especially on the side hills. Eaton street was very badly washed out again, Mt Vernon street suffered somewhat and practically all over town the streets were more or less washed out.

The lightening was almost incessent, being very brilliant and accompanied by extremely heavy thunder. The flag pole on the common was struck, and splintered from top to bottom, the topmost being thrown to the ground some twenty feet from the base. Splinters of the pole were scattered clear to the centre and carried as far as the Episcopal Church on Church street, almost a halt mile from the common. A bolt struck the house occupied by Antonio Pilasco on Spruce street and bore a large hole in the roof extending down to the cellar. The same bolt broke the water main in front of the house, allowing the water to rush into the street in torrents.

Residents at the Highlands, seeing the reflection of the big fires in Stoneham and Wakefield, telephoned to the fire department, thinking the blaze in this town. The firemen went as far as the town line looking for any trouble from the lightening, but did not go to Stoneham. The alarm system was put out of commission by the storm.

The electric cars on the Stoneham line were out of commission owing to a north bound car running into a pile of gravel washed down Prince avenue onto the tracks. The car was derailed and not placed back onto the track until later in the evening.

The Woburn line was also out of commission for some time.

EXPERIENCE.

I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging the future but by the past.—Patrick Henry.

Pricked His Own Bubble.

This story, found in Rev. Dr. Henry H Jessup's book, "Fifty-three Years In Syria," seems to indicate that religious vagaries are as short lived in the east as elsewhere. A friend of Dr. Jessup, visiting Jerusalem, met a queer looking solitary stranger pacing the streets of the city, accosted him, and after the usual greetings remarked:

"You are an American, I infer."

"Yes, I am," replied the queer looking man.

"And what are you doing here, if I may ask?"

"Ah, yes, I'm glad you asked. You see, I've come to preach the new doctrine, that there is to be no more death. If men will only accept it, we'll abolish death, and there'll be no more dying, nor graves, nor coffins, nor funerals. We shall just live right on."

"But," said Dr. Jessup's friend, "supposing you should sicken and die, what then?"

"Oh" said the man, "that would bust the whole thing."

And it did. The poor dolthead upset the died a few months later, and with him his "new doctrine."

Couldn't Think of It.

The humorsome young painter laid aside a piece of lead pipe and, approaching the beautiful kitchen maid, said

"You look awful good to me."

"Go on; quit your kiddin'," she replied.

"But I mean what I say."

"I ain't got any time to listen to you now. Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Yes, but what's the use workin' when a fellow wants to make love to you? Say, if I make this job last so I can come back tomorrow will you have your work out of the way so we can talk things over? You're the purtiest girl I ever seen."

"If you think you can make a fool of me by such silly talk you're mistaken."

"But I mean every word I say. I want you to try to learn to love me."

"If you want to make love to me come around this evening. I'll be here."

"What! On my own time? What kind of a chump do you think I am?"—Chicago Record Herald

TROLLEY TRIPS.

For the assistance of those traveling or visiting the various points of interest in eastern Massachusetts southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island by trolley the Boston & Northern St. Ry. Co. has issued this year some very attractive and helpful literature.

One especially attractive folder is entitled "Trolley Trips." This not only has a striking cover design but is filled with half tone cuts artistically arranged showing many of the scenes and [illegible] and original individual colored maps showing many of the trips described and a large Aero View map, which offers a pretty picture of the district covered by the trolleys and gives a clear idea of the lines and the chief points along them as well. Some of the principal trips are described.

There is also another booklet called "Trolley Facts." This contains a large map in three colors and more in detail of all lines trolley and steam in eastern Massachusetts east of Worcester and in southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island. This folder also contains all the various points arranged alphabetically, telling the distance, fare and time and just what cars to take and where to change cars to reach them by trolley.

There are also a number of individual folders suggesting various trips from the principal centers.

They may be secured free of charge upon application to the local division offices of this company, or to the Free Trolley Information Bureau conducted by the Passenger Department at 309 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The current number of the Union Signal has another article by Mrs. Stevenson, Scott. President, on her trip around the world, this one dealing with Palestine and it gives an interesting side light on the needs in Orient and the present conditions of the people among whom Christ walked during his earthly pilgrimage.

The Signal as usual is full of news from the field. Indeed, its chief value for the busy woman is its bringing together the notes of the advance of the temperance cause which are very apt to drop into the waste basket of the average news editor, who has always far more "stuff" than space. There is less sensation about the opening of a rest room, the closing of a bar room, the reclamation of a drunkard, or the rescue of a white slave, than in the story of a brawl and murder in a part of the city which no respectable person is supposed to visit except on a slumming expedition. As a result the big head lines and the lurid copy invite the readers to a closer acquaintance with all the sordid details of the crime. True, by contrast it might preach a good temperance sermon but the average reader gloating over such disgusting affairs fails to see the moral because, forsooth, the parties concerned are of quite different class than the virtuous readers. Yet only too many times the woman there is always a woman, may have been of good social position or the man may have fallen from high estate. Suppose the members of the W. C. T. U. noting how many of these sensational cases are due to drink, take a new resolution to work a little harder for the triumph of temperance principles. And a very present help in the work is the weekly visit of the Union signal which brings a whiff of pure air to inspire and encourage the workers.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The quaint figure of Hiram Perkins gives "Mary Jane's Pa," its comedy, its emotion and its farce. Hiram Perkins is Mary Jane's pa himself, and just before her birth he betakes himself to fresh fields and pastures new, not returning home to the bosom of his family till after many years. During that period his wife has become a power in the Indiana town where she lives, and she has no use for Hiram except as a household drudge. He becomes cook, general servant and man of all work in the Perkins household, and the humor that arises out of his peculiar situation, his good nature and determination to make the best of everything and to atone for his folly in deserting his wife years ago gives the play a continuous comic action and dialogue that has made it extremely popular.

Mary Jane herself will be played by Henrietta McDaniel, who has been constantly associated with boy's parts at the Castle Square. The rest of the cast will include Gertrude Binley, Mabel Colcord, W. P. Carleton and the entire strength of Mr. Craig's stock company.

GOVERNMENT.

The real business of the government in this nation is not to be vindictive or destructive, but to establish justice, to deny privilege and to assure equal opportunity to rich and poor alike. As a nation we are beyond question the most extravagant people in the world. We have neither been taught to conserve our resources nor have we as yet felt the pinch of necessity which will eventually compel us to husband these resources.—Governor Dix.

DEATH NOT DEATH.

They never fall who die
In a great cause; the block may soak their gore.
Their heads may sodden in the sun, their limbs
Be strung to city gates and castle walls,
But still their spirits walk abroad, though years
Elapse and others sink as dark a doom
They but augment the deep and swelling thoughts
That overpower all others and conduct the world at last to freedom.

GOVERNMENT BY EXPERTS

Seems an Unsuccessful Method In State Affairs So Far

BOSTON TRACTION MATTERS

Hard to Frame Legislation Satisfactory to All—Republican State Convention October 4—Mayor Fitzgerald's Visit to Europe With Commerce Chamber Men

The time at which the legislature usually adjourns has come and gone but the solons at Beacon Hill are still at work. The legislators this year seem to be neither especially lazy nor especially disputatious. They say they have worked slowly largely because they have realized that there was no use in their getting all their other work done and then sitting round waiting day after day for the governor and his so-called "experts" to make their final reports as to the appropriations for the various boards, commissions and departments.

The governor has the power to transmit the appropriation bills to the house on the first day of the session so that the ways and means committee can immediately begin scrutiny of all items, which has resulted in such careful and economical administration in the past, but this year the governor has seen fit to hold up some fifty of the most important appropriation bills, aggregating over $5,000,000, until the very end of the session, thus putting the ways and means committee in the awkward situation of either delaying prorogation or passing upon the various expenditures without proper investigation.

These Are Expensive Experts

The governor has had ten or twelve "experts" at work day after day for over three months now at salaries of from $25 to $50 a day, but members say that about the only important recommendation which he has made as a result of their investigation has been that no money should be appropriated for a dairy building in the Amherst Agricultural college, and farmers are so incensed at this niggardly policy in relation to one of the great industries of the state that it begins to look as if the governor would not risk vetoing the appropriation when it is passed by the senate and house.

The bills for these "experts" must be paid sometime and members say when they are paid it will be found that Governor Foss has involved the state in an unnecessary expense of some $20,000 or $30,000 and has nothing to show for it but a much belated crop of recommendations, most of which, judging from those already in, will be either unwise or impracticable.

All the members of the legislature were anxious at first to assist the governor in all possible ways in his efforts of economy, but even the Republicans, who stood by him long after he was deserted by the Boston Democrats, are now beginning to weary of seeing him pose as an economical administrator while he is wasting thousands of dollars on "experts" and delaying prorogation week after week.

The final straw for many members was when the governor sent in a message one day saying that the legislature was wasting time in considering the question of the proper salary for a certain state official and sent in another message the next day saying that he criticized the "policy" of the fish and game commissioners in setting out certain seedlings, a "policy" which it was discovered on examination was an experiment, which had cost the commissioners $16.50.

Time and again in the last two months the ways and means committee, after careful investigation, has concluded that the report of the expert who examined a department was inaccurate, or that the governor misunderstood and misinterpreted the experts' report in making his recommendations to the legislature, and time after time the house has accepted the views of the committee without a single voice being raised in favor of the governor's suggestion.

Boston Traction Matters Interest

Luckily while the legislature is still waiting for the governor to act on the appropriation bills which he is still holding up there are several important matters which it can consider, and one of the most important is that relating to street railway transportation facilities in and around Boston. There are three important questions involved. The first is whether the lease of the property and franchises shall be ratified and extended at a rental of 7 or 7½ percent, or whether the two companies should be consolidated on the basis of proposed 7, 7½ or 8 percent stock of the Boston Elevated Railway company being issued in exchange for the common stock of the West End Street Railway company.

The second question is whether the existing leases of the Tremont street and Washington street subways shall be extended and if so on what terms and conditions. The third question is whether a new east and west subway under Boylston street, a new subway to East Boston and a new subway from Park street to the South station and thence south to Andrew square shall be built, and if so on what terms and conditions the Boston Elevated Railway company shall be allowed to use them when completed.

These three important questions were referred early in the session to the committee on street railways and metropolitan affairs sitting jointly. The committee finally reported a bill. It provided for the construction of a tunnel to Dorchester, a Boylston street subway and a new tunnel to East Boston and for leases of the same, when completed, up to 1936 at 4½ percent, and for an extension of such leases of existing subways for a further period of not more than twenty-five years at a rental of 4½ percent, and for ratification and extension for a period of fifty years of the existing lease of the property and franchises of the West End Street Railway company to the Boston Elevated Street Railway company, but at a rental of 7½ percent per annum instead of 7 percent per annum.

Some of the Republican members of the legislature, thinking that the provisions of this suggested bill did not sufficiently guard the interests of the public, urged that the extension of any leases of existing subways or any new leases of subways to be constructed should be limited to twenty-five years, and that instead of allowing a lease of the West End Street Railway company to the Boston Elevated Railway company at 7½ percent the two companies should be offered an opportunity to consolidate on the basis of 7 or 7 3-10 or even 7½ percent.

The Public Franchise league and the chamber of commerce, assisted by Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, took up the question, and Governor Foss interested himself in the matter with Senators Bennett and Tinkham and Representatives Ells, Crocker, Cushing and others. Two new bills were finally drafted and introduced by Senator Tinkham, changing the original plan by providing for consolidation of the West End and the Boston Elevated on a 7 percent basis and for an indeterminate lease of subways after a period of twenty-five years after their construction. It looked at first as if the railways had come to the conclusion that it would be for them to accept these alterations, but the stockholders' committee of the West End Street Railway company are claiming that the West End stockholders would not vote for consolidation on those terms, and it is doubtful if the time has yet come to force them to consolidate by a threat of revoking their street franchises, so the matter is still in doubt and it will take some days if not weeks before a satisfactory conclusion can be reached.

State Convention October 4

The Republican state convention will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 4, the first to be held under the statewide primaries act. The basis of representation for this convention has been fixed as one delegate for the first seventy-five votes cast for governor last fall in each ward of a city and in each town. For each succeeding 100 votes cast for governor in 1910 another delegate will be allowed each ward of a city, and each town shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

The Somerville Republican city committee opened the campaign last week at the Point of Pines with more than 500 enthusiastic Republicans present. It was an auspicious opening for the Republican canvass of 1911.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has left Boston to make a tour of Europe with the Boston chamber of commerce committee, which he proposes to meet on the other side of the water. His departure on the steamship Franconia last week was made the occasion of an improvised ovation with all the stage settings peculiar to the mayor. He had hardly got out of the sight of land, however, when Harvard college bestowed upon his mortal enemy, ex-Congressman John A. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston finance committee, which keeps a sharp eye upon Fitzgerald, one of its degrees of master of arts.

IMMIGRATION.

Let a boy come here from Germany or Russia or Britain who has all his life been permeated by the pernicious doctrine that one man is born to a right that is not his, let him learn that here all are held to be created equal and that under our Starry Flag one man's privilege is every man's right, and you need not fear that that boy will be a German or Russian or Briton any more. He is more American than the native American, who is merely born to it. A man who knows that this republic has for the first time made him a man will never trouble the liberty of the republic. He cannot help loving the republic. It must not be forgotten that a man who comes here has the ambition to rise in the world, and he has also in some way contrived to save the money to come here—two very important things as showing character.—Andrew Carnegie.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

What promises to be the biggest summer vaudeville bill ever presented in Boston is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, for besides "The Meistersingers" in "Swept By Ocean Breezes," there is a long list of favorites in the vaudeville department. One of the most important features will be Edwin Holt & Co. in one of the greatest George Ade comedies ever written, called "The Mayor and the Manicure." Ethel MacDonough, who became famous as the drummer girl of the Fadettes orchestra and later as the Divine Myrama, will be seen in an entirely new specialty in which she will introduce drumming, songs, and some novel bathing effects. Especially engaged for this week is Bert Fitzgibbon, the singing monologuist. Other features will be Patty & Desparado, the wonderful up-side down men of Ringling Brothers; and Rembrandt, a cartoonist who introduces something new.

The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

XVIII.—Long Life In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association.

Our care should not be so much to live long as to live well.—Seneca.

A WISE man said: "There appears to exist a greater desire to live long than to live well. Measure by man's desires, he cannot live long enough; measure by his good deeds, and he has not lived long enough; measure by his evil deeds, and he has lived too long."

Mere length of days as measured by the calendar is but a poor thing to write about. The "filling" that goes into those days is the real measure of life.

To encourage a selfish and punctilious regard for the attainment of a phenomenal span of life is not in keeping with the higher ideal of philosophy or science.

Life Is a Trust Fund.

In considering this problem we should bear in mind, however, that life is something that we hold in trust. At least that is the dictum of the best thought that has come to us through the ages. We have no right to handle this trust fund with careless spendthrift indifference; neither may we hoard it with such miserly care that it shall earn no interest in good deeds and human achievement. Society condemns the suicide in the same degree that it lauds the patriot or the hero who gives up his life in a good cause.

But some people lack a sense of proportion. The degree of their sacrifice is out of all proportion to the cause in which it is offered up and the possible evasion of higher responsibility, and the reflex injury to others is often unrealized.

Barring the emergencies of war and accident, there are few circumstances that warrant the deliberate forfeiture of life or persistent neglect of health.

It is better that the worker, whether humble breadwinner or lofty statesman, should be spared to work long and under proper restraint and poise than that his life should be burned up prematurely in feverish and often misdirected effort.

The first step, therefore, in planning for long life in the higher meaning of the term is to acquire a sense of proportion.

What Is Old Age?

Cazalis said, "A man is as old as his arteries." True enough, but far from being a definition of old age. To define old age we must first define life.

Herbert Spencer tried to define life and succeeded admirably in some respects, but there is nothing in his definition that explains why the human clock runs down in less than a century instead of running for several centuries.

Preparing For Old Age.

Preparation should begin in youth. One original observer, Charles Sedgewick Minot, has advanced the seeming paradox that we grow old faster in infancy than in old age; that cell change is far slower in the sixth decade of life than in the first six months of babyhood. In a certain physiological sense this is true.

The hardened arteries at forty may be the result of poor feeding, lack of physical training, improper breathing habits and deficient oxygenation during childhood. Give the child a fair start in the race. This is far better than to devise drugs and potions for the relief of the maladies of maturity and old age.

The Effects of Life Strain.

It is true that long life is often a matter of the quality of one's "tubing." The diseases that are responsible for the larger part of the death rate after middle life are of the degenerative class, involving the heart, blood vessels and kidneys. Indeed, where one of the conditions exists the others usually are present to a greater or lesser degree.

These conditions may be due to nerve strain affecting the heart and arteries or to the circulation in the blood of poisonous principles, the products of indigestion and insufficient combustion. In fact, these troubles are usually the result of intemperance in eating, drinking, working or playing.

Degenerative Diseases.

A most commendable and enthusiastic campaign is being waged against tuberculosis and other infectious diseases, but deaths from heart disease, kidney trouble, paralysis, etc., excite no comment and are taken as a matter of course. The death rate from tuberculosis has been reduced about 50 per cent in the past thirty years, while during that same period the death rate in the United States registration area from diseases of heart, blood vessels and kidneys has increased 105 per cent.

This is a nut to crack for well meaning people who shut their eyes to all that is unpleasant and sinister in our civilization and hug the thought that the world is necessarily growing better every day.

The mean duration of life has undoubtedly greatly increased in the past century, but the increase is due to the lowering of the death rate among young people. After middle life there has been a decided increase in the death rate. At least the evidence available in this country warrants this belief. No such increase is shown by British statistics until the age of sixty-five is reached.

The "high cost of living" may be a factor in that the struggle for existence is harder and involves more strain. I am inclined to the belief, however, that too much prosperity is a much more potent cause of the high mortality at the advanced ages.

The amount of food that is wasted in the average American family is appalling, and this surplus of nutrition, combined with the strenuous life and intemperate habits fostered by our rapidly developing and complex civilization, may well account for the regrettable increase in the mortality from degenerative diseases.

Principles of Prevention.

As I have already suggested, a good start in childhood thrice arms a man against these degenerative affections. But the strongest constitution in maturity may yield to abuse, and the time is coming when the man who throws away the splendid asset of sound health will be looked upon as a social enemy. Since the degenerative affections that lead to premature old age are the result of intemperance, using the term in its broadest sense, temperance, also used in its widest significance, is the keynote of prevention.

Importance of Exercise.

As middle life approaches and there is a slowing down of the vital activities a disinclination for exercise often develops. This is to a certain extent normal. The man of forty who attempts to keep up with football, baseball or even tennis is taking heavy chances. The strain on heart and arteries may lead to chronic changes more than counterbalancing the benefit from exercise. But with the abandonment of active sports and with neglect to exercise there is often an increase in the amount of food and stimulants taken, and with increasing business care or social activities the "furnace becomes clogged."

It is important, therefore, to preserve a proper balance in these things. Slow down in the matter of strenuous competitive exercise, but get enough exercise to burn up your food and prevent the accumulation of fat and food poisons.

Slow down in the matter of diet and do not let the pleasures of the table tempt you to gradually increased indulgence in rich food as the more active pleasures of life are relinquished.

Golf, billiards, hill climbing, hunting, fishing, are all beneficial forms of exercise which may be indulged far into old age.

Alcohol In Old Age.

It used to be thought that wine was a good stimulant in old age, but the wisest physicians now pronounce against this view. There is no sound physiological reason why alcohol should be beneficial in old age, and in clinical practice it is found to be injurious. How the feeble tissues of the aged can be benefited by a cell poison like alcohol it is difficult to conceive.

Value of Bathing.

Regular bathing, preferably the cool shower or plunge, by keeping up a good skin action relieves the heart and kidneys of extra work and favors the maintenance of a normal tension in the blood vessels.

Danger of Constipation.

Metchnikoff believes that the absorption of toxic matter from the large intestines is an important influence in causing old age. He suggests the use of sour milk or a preparation of the bacilli which cause milk to become sour to combat the microbes that infest the large intestines.

Some painstaking experiments have been made along this line, but the results thus far are negative.

However, buttermilk and other sour milk preparations are healthful and may be tried, especially where there is constipation or intestinal fermentation. All natural means should be tried to prevent constipation by avoidance of concentrated meat diet and by the use of fruit, spinach or other green vegetables, water between meals, exercise of abdominal muscles, etc.

Golden Text: The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. Isa. liii. 6.

(1.) Verse 13—Who was the "servant" of whom Isaiah speaks?

(2.) What is it to be a servant of God, and how does Jesus fulfil such a position?

(3.) In how many respects is Jesus "exalted, extolled," and "very high?"

(4.) Verses 14-15—Notwithstanding the Old Testament prophecies concerning the suffering Messiah was there a single person who was not "astonished" at his crucifixion?

(5.) Why were all the people of God including his apostles "astonished," and disappointed, at the crucifixion of Jesus?

(6.) What has Jesus "sprinkled" the nations with?

(7.) What proportion of the kings or the presidents of the nations look to and honor Jesus as the Saviour of the world?

(8.) Verses liii. 1—How many to-day believe this "report" of the suffering son of God?

(9.) Why have so many refused to believe this "report?"

(10.) What relation do those whom God has delivered from their sins and their sorrowful fears, bear to this "report?"

(11.) Verses 2-3—What would have been the result to God's cause, if the world's redeemer had belonged to a kingly home instead of a carpenter's?

(12.) What would have been the difference in the results if Jesus had been a great general, a legislator, or merchant prince?

(13.) What class of men have despised and rejected Jesus?

(14.) Did God want Jesus to be "a man of sorrows?"

(15.) Verses 4-9—How has Jesus borne our griefs and sorrows?

(16.) Did God plan to have the Jews reject Jesus and to crucify him? Give your reasons.

(17.) Could Jesus have borne our griefs and saved our souls if the Jews had accepted him?

(18.) When the prophet says "We did esteem him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted," were the Jews or others right or wrong in so thinking?

(19.) Was God at any time angry with Jesus, or did he ever punish him?

(20.) In what way did Jesus bear all the cruel insults and the physical suffering inflicted on him by the Jews, for our sakes?

(21.) Suppose the Jews had yielded their hearts to the loving invitation of Jesus and had espoused His cause as His Apostles did, what would have been the probable result upon the salvation of the world? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(22.) Why did the Jews bring about the crucifixion of Jesus?

(23.) Verses 10-12—What are some of the personal blessings which come to us through the death of Jesus?

(24.) What are some of the national blessings which we enjoy through the death of Jesus?

CONTENTMENT.

Some have too much, yet still do crave
I little have and seek no more
They are but poor though much they have,
And I am rich with little store.
They poor, I rich; they beg, I give
They lack, I have; they pine, I live.

LIVING IN SOCIETY.

To live on the top of a pillar, to withdraw into the desert or to live in a community, all this can be provisory, necessary to men. But as definite forms it is evident error and unreason. To live a pure and holy life on a pillar or in a community is impossible, because the man is deprived of a half of life, communion with the world. To live always thus one must deceive oneself. It is evident, indeed, that just as it is impossible in the current of an [illegible] river to separate a little [illegible] of pure water by some chemical process, so it is impossible to live alone or in a society with some as saints in a whole world which lives in violence for money. Ground and cattle must be bought or rented. Relations must be entered into with the exterior, the non-Christian world. We cannot liberate ourselves from it, and we ought not to, except that in general we ought to abstain from those things which we need not do. We only deceive ourselves. The whole work of a disciple of Christ consists in establishing the most Christian relation with this world.—Count Tolstoy.

DELAY DENIES

It is of the utmost importance that a nation have a correct standard by which to weigh the character of its rulers. But above all if we be just men we shall go forward in the name of truth and right, bearing this in mind that when a case is proved and the hour come, justice delayed is justice denied.—W. E. Gladstone.

HEAD AND HEART.

No true manhood can be trained by a merely intellectual process. You cannot train men by the intellect alone; you must train them by the heart, and this shows the fundamental mistake which is being made by some modern teachers. You can never train a church out of the head. You may have a church so called, and you may open halls and bring to them the most scientific men in Europe, and you may lecture on all scientific topics, yet you can never make a church out of the head. You must take hold of manhood by the heart if you would train it into strength and dignity and usefulness.—Joseph Parker.

During the terrible hot weather we have been going through this week, expressions of sympathy for out-door laborers, the horses, dogs, etc., have been heard on all sides, but we have failed to hear of any consideration for the ice men. Called upon by having their duties increased more than three fold these men have been working during the entire time with practically but little time to sleep, trying the best they could to keep refrigerators filled with ice. Never before have they gone through such an experience, and they hope never again to cope with such a long hot spell.

WHAT ARE THE BOY SCOUTS ?

Thousands of Boys all Over Country Being Enrolled.

The Mothers' Association of Winchester has pledged itself to do all in its power to start the Boy Scout Movement here in our town this coming fall, and ask all who are interested in boys to read the information given in this article regarding the organization. We trust that you all will become so interested that you will be ready to co-operate with the Association and make the movement a perfect success and so fill a great want that is felt not only by the growing boys of Winchester but by boys all over the world.

The Boy Scouts is an organization, the purpose of which is character-building for boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen. It is an effort to get boys to appreciate the things about them, and to train them in self-reliance, manhood and good citizenship. It is Peace-Scouting that these boys engage in, living as much as possible out of doors; camping, hiking and learning the secret of the woods and fields. The movement is not military, but the military virtue of discipline, obedience, neatness and order are scout virtues. Endurance, self-reliance, self control and an effort to help someone else are scout objectives. Every activity that lends itself to these aims is good Scout-craft.

The Origin of the Boy Scouts

The Boy Scout Movement in its present form was started in England by General Sir Robert Baden-Powell. He was impressed with the fact that 26 per cent. of the boys of England were growing up without any knowledge of useful occupations, and wanted to do something that would help the boys to become a useful citizen. He emphatically stated that his intention was not the making of soldiers. In his work, General Baden-Powell has touched boy life in all its interests and broadened a boy's outlook by the widest sort of activities. The Movement is touching a large number of countries.

The Scout idea has sprung up spontaneously all over America. In Canadian cities the Boy Scouts are in the thousands. In the United States, towns and cities are being swept by the idea. Gangs of boys are to be seen on every hand doing their best at Scout-craft, "doing a good turn every day to some one," and getting 'em out of it. Prominent business men and our leading educators are behind the movement and popular organization that needs no equipment is filling a big gap in the recreational education of the boyhood of America. Great as has been the success of the Boy Scouts in England, America with its vast stretches of territory, woods and streams, furnished a promise for a greater.

The Aim of the Boy Scouts

The aim of the Boy Scouts is to supplement the various existing educational agencies, and to promote the ability in boys to do things for themselves and others. The method is summed up in the term Scout-craft, and is a combination of observation, deduction and handiness—or the ability to do things. Scout-craft consists of First Aid, Life Saving, Tracking, Signaling, Cycling, Nature Study, Seamanship, Camp-craft, Wood craft, Chivalry, Patriotism and other instruction. This is accomplished in games and team play, and is pleasure, not work, to the boy. The only equipment it needs is the out-of-doors, a group of boys and a leader.

The Scout's Oath

"Before he becomes a Scout a boy must take the Scout's oath, thus:

On my honor I promise that I will do my best.

1 To do my duty to God and my country.

2 To help other people at all times.

3 To obey the Scout Laws.

The Scout's Salute and Sign

When taking this oath, the Scout will stand, holding his right hand raised level with his shoulder, palm to the front, thumb resting on the nail of the little finger, and the other three fingers upright.

When the hand is raised shoulder high it is called The Halt Salute.

The three fingers held up (like the three points of the Scout's badge) remind him of his three promises in the Scout's oath.

The Three Classes of Scouts—Tenderfoot

A boy on joining the Boy Scouts must pass a test in the following points before taking the oath

Know the Scout laws and signs, and salute.

He then takes the Scout's oath, and is enrolled as a Tenderfoot, and is entitled to wear the buttonhole badge.

Second Class Scout

Before being awarded the second-class Scout's badge a Tender-foot must pass the following tests.

1 Have at least one month's service as a Tenderfoot.

2 Elementary first aid and bandaging.

3 Signaling, elementary knowledge of semaphore or Morse alphabet.

4 Track half a mile in twenty-five minutes; or, if in a town, describe satisfactorily the contents of one store window out of four, observed for one minute each.

6 Lay and light a fire, using not more than two matches.

7 Cook a quarter of a pound of meat and two potatoes without cooking utensils other than the Camping Outfit.

8 Have at least one dollar in a savings bank.

First Class Scout

Before being awarded first class scout's badge a scout must pass the following tests, in addition to the tests laid down for second-class scouts:

1 Swim fifty yards. (N B.—This may be omitted where the doctor certifies that bathing is dangerous to the boy's health, in which case he must run a mile in eight minutes, or perform some equivalent selected by the scoutmaster.)

2 Must have two dollars at least in the savings bank.

3 Signal. Send and receive a message either in semaphore or Morse, sixteen letters per minute.

4 Go on foot, or row a boat, alone to a point seven miles away and return again; or it conveyed by any vehicle or animal, go to a distance of fifteen miles and back, and write a short report on it. It is preferable that he should take two days over it.

5 Describe or show the proper means for saving life in case of two of the following accidents (allotted by the examiners): Fire, drowning, runaway carriage, sewer gas, ice breaking, or han lage an injured patient, or revive apparently drowned person.

6 Cook satisfactorily two out of the following dishes, as may be directed: Eggs, bacon, hunter's stew; or skin and cook a rabbit, or pluck and cook a bird. Also make Hard Tack out of half a pound of flour, or a twist baked on a thick stick.

8 Use an axe for telling or trimming light timber; or as an alternative, produce an article of carpentry or joining or metal work, made by himself satisfactorily.

9 Judge distance, size, number and height within 25 per cent of error.

10 Bring a Tenderfoot trained by himself in the points required for a Tenderfoot.

The Scout Law

1 A Scout's honor is to be trusted.

If a scout were to break his honor by telling a lie, or by not carrying out an order exactly, when trusted on his honor to do so, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge, and never to wear it again. He may also be directed to cease to be a scout.

2 A scout is loyal to his parents, his leaders, his country and to all others to whom loyalty is due.

3 A scout's duty is to be useful and to help others. He must be prepared at any time to save life or to help injured persons. And he must try his best to do a good turn to somebody every day.

4 A scout is a friend to all, and a brother to every other scout.

5 A scout is courteous. That is he is polite to all, but especially to women and children and old people and invalids, cripples, etc. And he must not take any reward for being helpful or courteous.

6 A scout is a friend to animals. He should save them as far as possible from pain, and should not kill any animal unnecessarily.

7 A scout obeys orders of his parents, patrol leaders or scoutmaster. This is discipline.

8 A scout smiles and whistles under all circumstances. When he gets an order he should obey it cheerily and readily, not in a slow, hangdog sort of way. Scouts never grumble at hardships, nor whine at each other.

9 A scout is thrifty, that is, he saves every penny he can and puts it into the bank, so that he may have money to keep himself when out of work, and thus not make himself a burden to others; or that he may have money to give away to others when they need it.

The Scout Master

The Scout Master is the adult leader of a Troop. A Troop consists of three or more Patrols. The Scout Master may begin with one Patrol. He must have a deep interest in boys, be genuine in his own life, have the ability to lead and command the boy's respect and obedience and possess some knowledge of a boy's ways. He need not be an expert on scouteraft. The good Scout Master will discover experts for various activities. Applications for Scout Masters' certificates may be made to the Headquarters, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

AN IMPOSITION.

Dust on Washington Street Has Become a Nuisance.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to sound a protest by the residents of Washington street against their treatment by the powers that be, in the matter of dust laying this year. We have put up with an intolerable nuisance all through this spring and summer until now patience has ceased to be a virtue. A year ago we submitted to what was supposed to be a necessary evil while the street was being rebuilt, and sidewalks regraded and concreted, and of course we put up with the dust and were treated once in awhile with the greatful sight of a watering cart meandering slowly up and down the street. We also consoled ourselves with the thought, that at last after several seasons of sewer building, relaying of tracks, water mains and gas pipes, we had a street to be proud of. But not so. This spring along came someone with a new scheme to be tested, so they gave the street or a small part of it a coat of tar and covered the tar with a coat of gravel and stones to be ground up by the steam roller. We were told this would obviate the necessity of watering the street for a year or more, that when the tar came to the surface we would have a good hard road bed. In the meantime the teams, cars and automobiles have continued to grind up the gravel and the dust has continued to fly obliging people to close their windows and during the present hot weather it has certainly been a nuisance to the health and happiness not only of the abuttors but to every one walking or riding over the street. While I am writing the town teams are again covering the tar with gravel or sand to be ground up and blown over the premises and into the lungs of the people which proves conclusively that the scheme is a failure, and that the street needs a good coat of oil, or better still this hot weather a good watering at least twice a day. There is a standpipe for water near Westley street, but no water cart has been near it since about May 1st.

There is no question but something should be done at once to remedy the evil. Other parts of the town are frequently watered and here is one of the principal thoroughfares entirely neglected simply to gratify some whim of some theorist as to a tar road. In the meantime the people suffer, but are getting tired of the imposition.

PARTICULAR WHERE HE WAS TO SLEEP.

Martin Hooper of Montvale picked out a pretty warm day when he filled up with liquor Tuesday. And he started on the job pretty early in the morning as he was taken in charge by the police before the middle of the forenoon. When Hooper was passing Dr. Ordway's house on Main street he was evidently overcome by a feeling of weariness, and thinking that the Doctor's house offered an asylum for the weary, without bothering to ask questions of the inmates, he entered and started on his way to a bedroom where he might lie down and have a comfortable snooze. But his plans were frustrated, for instead of a comfortable bed in the Doctor's house, he had to put up with the best that the lockup at the station afforded, which was far different from what he had anticipated. The fellow was not long in the house when he was discovered and the police notified, and when the officers got him he was in pretty bad shape. After having the greater part of Tuesday and all the following night in which to sober off, he was taken to court Wednesday morning and was sent away for two months.

Miss Mary Kellogg announces two dancing classes for children beginning the middle of October. The class for beginners, both boys and girls, will be instructed in Deportment, Rythm and simple dances. The other class will be for girls from the ages of ten to fifteen who will be taught the modern Expressive Dances. Simple Grecian costumes will be worn for this work. Miss Kellogg will spend the month of August in the Catskill Mountains studying under Mrs. Mary Perry King of New York City.

While Winchester has had much sickness from the heat, yet there have been no fatalities.

The town will soon have to consider the problem of rebuilding Church street. There are many cradle holes that are pretty near being dangerous to automobile travel.

The STAR Office force in common with the rest of humanity has been suffering from the heat.

Miss Agnes Supple of Cochituate, Mass., is visiting Mrs. P. T. Walsh of Highland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Fay are guests at the Long Island House, Long Island, New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Price Wilson, daughter Nancy and Miss Grace Hatch are spending two weeks at Quaker Point, West Bath, Maine.

Miss Almena Cogswell in company with friends from Roxbury and Somerville sailed on the steamer "Prince George" for Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, on Tuesday. She intends spending the remainder of July and the month of August in the Cornwallis Valley.

Mrs. John Abbott is spending the summer months at her country home, Sanford Farm, Bethel, Vermont.

The family of Rev. Charles L. White, D. D., of the American Baptist Home Mission Society of New York City sailed for Germany Saturday, July 8. Mrs. White and her five daughters are to spend about fourteen months abroad in order that the children may devote their time to the study of German and French. Upon their return the two eldest daughters are to enter Vassar College which they are now certificated, having been graduated from one of the Brooklyn High Schools June 26. Dr. White did not accompany his family. Later in the summer he is expected to spend some time with his sisters on Forest street and in the early winter to join his family in Germany for a brief visit.

The alarm from box 33 Wednesday afternoon was for a fire on the outside of the cupola of the large barn on the farm occupied by H. N. Bryer on Washington street near the foot of Lebanon, known as the Richardson estate. The firemen quickly extinguished the blaze. How it started in such an out-of-the-way place is a mystery. The barn was well filled with hay and had the fire got a good start it would have been extremely difficult to save it.

Antonio Padlino of North Woburn was complained of for fast riding on a motor cycle at the centre Thursday, and in court he was fined $15.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Smith leave next week for Fortune's Rock, Biddeford, Maine, where they will remain until after Labor Day.

As the engineer of a freight train from Boston was approaching Wedgemere shortly after 12 o'clock Wednesday night he saw a fire in a large haystack near the Bacon Mill. He stopped his train at the switch tower and notified the towerman who telephoned to the central fire station, when the usual brush fire alarm was sounded. The hose wagon was dispatched to the scene and while on the way the central house was telephoned that the fire had been put out. Fireman Libby who had responded to the alarm and was at the station, mounted his bicycle and intercepted the wagon before it had reached the scene.

Mrs. Edward L. Burwell and her mother, Son Longworth and daughters Amelia and Virginia are at Harwichport, for a short sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Henry McMillan are the happy parents of a daughter, born July 5th.

Mr. Alexander Hendrickson of Boston and Miss Mildred Davis of 24 Swanton street, this town, were united in marriage at Boston last Sunday by Rev. Edward P. Fuller of that city.

Marriage intentions have been issued by the Town Clerk to Herbert Thomas West of 75 Washington street and Miss Gretchen Hiegin of 142 Highland avenue; also to George Russell Nowell of 627 Main street and Miss Delia Drombley of 3 Fletcher street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Theodore Guething announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence, to Mr. Ralph Crosby Herrick, Dartmouth, '07.

A FRESH AIR LIFE.

Hot Weather Develops Usefulness of Cellars.

The desire for a fresh air life and for all the benefits of days and nights spent out of doors has led to the perfection of piazzas and sleeping porches.

It remained for a sizzling spell of weather like that of the last few days to develope the usefulness of our cellars as a place to flee to for relief from almost unendurable heat.

How the simple act of consigning a few empty bottles to the ash can led to hours of comfort in this great heat, happened in this way. A member of a Winchester family in making a trip to the cellar to dispose of some rubbish in the ash can, found the cool air down there so refreshing, one after another of the family was called to come to share this new found blessing. From this, comfortable chairs followed, there a table, books newspapers and sewing and finally the usual Fourth of July dinner of salmon and green peas (to say nothing of ice cream and cake) was served "below" the yachtsmen would say.

Even the background of wood pile and packing boxes did not detract from the luxury of a dinner in cool air and the dainty little table with its spotless white cloth and glass and silver, incongruous as it seemed in such surroundings was most attractive to a family with appetites freshened by the relief from heat and discomfort which had been experienced on the piazzas with the thermometer registering 104 degrees in the shade.

This cellar proved a refuge for several days even turning into a sitting room at night with reading lamp and more books and papers added to the days equipment.

That many people for the first time realized the value of their cellars in such unusual heat has been reported from various places. This experience of one family will help others if another period of great heat should be repeated this summer, to prepare a clean, fresh corner of this space "below the stairs" to be turned into an impromptu living room when the thermometer takes another record flight.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

At this season of extreme heat the evil effects of indulgence in alcoholic drinks is especially demonstrable, the very large majority of all prostrations from the heat being among the habitual users of intoxicants although the intemperate use of ice water is often used as the scapegoat. Intemperance in eating is also responsible but it the habitual liquor drinkers were eliminated the list of fatalities would be far shorter, so much so that in the list of "Don'ts" for the hot weather, most doctors put drinking of spirituous liquors at the very top. In a time when Old Sol is so extremely intemperate it behooves mere mortals to beware of excess in all things.

Another lesson of the hot weather for W. C. T. U. people is the opportunities for real charity given by the Flower Mission work. Week after week the visitors carry the little messengers of joy and where the need is greatest help in other ways. In some cities an ice fund is a feature of the work, to supply the needs of those who suffer for what is the commonest luxury of those more fortunate. The over supply from the vegetable garden is no less acceptable than the flowers and even a small quantity will be gratefully received. Winchester's work is in charge of Mrs. J. C. Adams, 22 Dix street, and anything sent to her by Friday will be forwarded for the Saturday distribution. If you have been uncomfortable during the recent hot weather, how do you think the people in the city in the little old tenements have been? If you have been comfortable, surely from your over abundance you can spare something for those less fortunate.

If your imagination is not vivid enough to loosen the strings of your purse, just go into one of the city's side streets on a hot day and see for yourself. And then unless you are very hard-hearted you will be constrained to give something—money, if you have nothing else.

Perhaps you would like to assist at the Saturday morning distribution at 114 Beacon street. Helpers are always needed and the labors are not arduous, for the most part making up the flowers into bouquets. It is not necessary to be a member of the W. C. T. U., for even a believer in its chief tenets, to have a share in this gracious ministry. Suppose you lend a hand.

SATURDAY'S GAME.

Manager LeDuc has arranged a game for Saturday afternoon at 3:30 with the St. Paul's of Cambridge. This team is considered to be very swift and consequently an interesting game is looked for. The local team has been putting up good games thus far this season, and Manager LeDuc hopes to continue the present high standard up to the close.

COMING EVENTS.

July 15, Saturday. Winchester Country Club, four ball foursomes.

July 15, Saturday, 3:30 p. m. Winchester vs. St. Paul's of Cambridge.

July 15, Saturday, 3:30 p. m. Concert on Manchester Field by the Woburn Brass Band.

OBJECT TO NOISE.

It is reported that an injunction has been served on the stone company at the Winchester Highlands-Woburn line, because of the disturbance from blasting. This company employs a large force of men and has been getting out crushed stone for the past two years. A spur track running from the main line of the Boston & Maine connects with an elevator at the quarry and great quantities of the stone is shipped to various places for use on streets and for other purposes. The greater part of the quarry is in Woburn and comprises the large hill or small mountain to the north of the Highland station.

In this connection it may be stated that the nearest stone quarries to Boston this side of the Hub are those at the Highlands and at Twombly's ledge on the West Side and this fact makes them of much importance and value to the owners. Concrete construction calls for large quantities of crushed stone and as this form of building is only in its infancy, the prospects are that these quarries will be kept busy for many years to come.

No doubt both of these companies will find some way to lessen the noise that is now objected to by some of the inhabitants.

A MYSTERY.

Early Wednesday morning Chief of Police McIntosh received a telephone message from the Hill district that two coats and hats had been found on Hutchinson road by Mr. John C. Hood, a milkman, who resides close by. With Officer Hargrove the Chief hurried over to the place with visions of perhaps a tragedy or an accident. Arriving on the scene were the two coats and the two hats lying in the middle of the road, and it may be added aside, three empty beer bottles. Thinking that the owners had wandered into the woods careful search was made, but without result. Mr. Hood heard no unusual noise during the night, but an inspection of the road revealed wheel marks that looked as if a team had been backed up to the roadside. Beyond this the whole thing appears to be a mystery as to why the men should have left their wearing apparel behind them.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator wonders how many people know there is one thing which, if well adhered to, entitles a wife or mother sister or paid housekeeper, to a goodly amount of credit from the masculine members of the household and from others to whom the matters is of importance, and that is the prompt serving of meals. Some of the Marthas of the world surely have troubles of their own, and one would not willingly add a mite to their burden, but The Spectator has it on no less an authority than that of President Hadley of Yale that "the compounding of healthful and palatable foods should rank with other important laboratory work." And so it seems worth while to go a step farther when possible, and let the measure of praise and credit overflow because of the promptness of serving. There is not a particle of doubt that many a day, if worries, responsibilities and multiplicity of details were carefully portioned off, in the office, the shop or the home, the shoulders of the housewife would be found weighted down rather heavier than those of the people working in what we call the sterner ways, but perhaps it evens up the year round. At any rate, hers the duty of preparing and superintending the preparation of meals—and to her family comes the intense satisfaction that wait upon promptness.

The Spectator is sorry for a woman whose ways are ways of slowness and procrastination, who somehow cannot encompass "the management of the intricate details of a household." If The Spectator may again draw upon President Hadley, who is late with breakfast later at the mid-noon hour, and still later when dinner is announced. It is disheartening to come in from the work of the day and find the table still unspread, preparation postponed to the very tag end of possibility, and it takes the song out of the home-coming to anticipate only a weary wait. So often we read it, and so well we know it that it is an old story to say that the woman at the head of a household, in a small way, holds within her hands the destiny, the atmosphere of the home; and while home comfort does not rest on the single foundation of well-established clock work for meal hours, it is one of the conspicuous stones. It is not a serious lapse if a person's time is his own, but few indeed can consult fancy for the length of the dinner hour or the time of arrival in the morning, and so to the multitudes the loss of minutes counts. Promptness means a little more of ease and of leeway at home—and it there is an element of appreciation in the air it means masculine thanks for emancipation from weariness waiting.

But there is another side The Spectator wants to allude to. He knows women who have had their patience sadly tried, their sweetness frayed and worn by delay, purely avoidable. A woman sees the dinner upon which she has put her dettest touches grow sodden and unpalatable with the passing of every minute, and knows right well, from long experience, that somewhere in town is a familiar figure coating away in a spirit of mingled friendliness and forgetfulness. It it is disheartening to find the table unspread when everything should be in readiness, it is not a whit less dismaying to have everything beautifully prepared at the stroke of the hour—and then wait until patience ebbs away with the minutes, and even the modest little flowers that grace the table droop their heads in sympathy. Women—most of them—are reasonable and recognize that business cannot always be conducted upon the minute, and necessary delays are bowed to as to the inevitable. The smile does not wear away, the dinner is kept as inviting as may be and even the flowers nod in approval. But it is those awful delays that have no shadows of excuse just to finish a story or even a bit of work that might wait far better than the dinner. They make one of the little things responsible for the advent of "the first gray hair" long before its proper time, and tend to the suspicion that consideration and thought for the home worker are not abounding.

A gentleman who has recently returned from a visit to Germany informs The Spectator that a person making application as driver of a motor vehicle in Germany must present his birth certificate, an unmounted photograph of himself, a doctor's certificate as to his physical condition, especially with reference to his sight and hearing and evidence that he has finished a course with some person or at some institution officially qualified to teach the driving of motor vehicles.

According to a prominent educator the bad boy is not bad at all, but his obliquity is the result of a failure to guide him aright. In other words, the boy's nature has not been understood. When it is remembered that some of the most hopeless youths Massachusetts has raised are some in the ministry and some in the Legislature, The Spectator feels there is some corroboration of the view of the educator in question. But there are teachers in the public schools of this fair town of Winchester whose experience with that factor—the bad boy—leads them to make distinctions that are not in the psychologist's cult and which includes a strong belief in the doctrine of original depravity. It will be difficult to convince such teachers that the most pressing need is not an exorcist to drive out "cussedness." The bad boy—and by this term The Spectator means, of course the lad who refuses to conform to those conditions society has adjudged proper for its protection—wouldn't be nearly so troublesome were it not that he often has foolish parents. This same boy brings all sorts of tales home from school and with youthful ingenuity deplorably twists them to his own advantage in setting forth his grievance. Without considering this penchant of youth, some silly mother or obtuse father will forthwith make a protest to the teacher with the result that the boy is encouraged in his wrong doing. Every parent in Winchester and elsewhere if he is wise, will impress upon the mind of his child, whether boy or girl, that the first lesson to be learned in school is obedience to constituted authority. Some restrictions must be made for the proper liberty of all the pupils, and when the boy becomes refractory, the father and mother should have the good sense to turn down the blubbering plea of their son that he has been unjustly treated. In many ways the baneful influence of misplaced sympathy for the boy is shown. It not only keeps him at war with his teacher and therefor prevents progress in his studies, but makes him very much dissatisfied with his career at school, so that he chops out when he has only a mere smattering of knowledge and downs himself to the mediocre class for life. There are some sundy and successful men herein Winchester who now recall with much satisfaction that their fathers would brook no disobedience of school rules and would not listen to tales of alleged injustice.

VACATION SCHOOL.

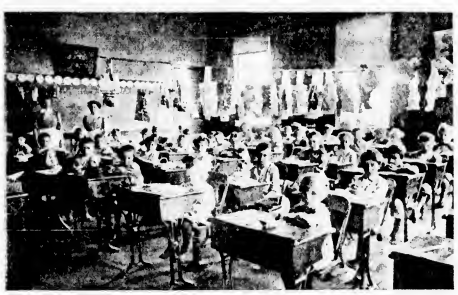

The vacation school, now open in the Chapin School building, is doing a vast amount of good for the children during the hot weather we have been experiencing. It keeps the children from the streets, interests an instructs them and makes them happy and contented. But for this school the young folks, would, many of them, find the long vacation tedious and irksome, and furthermore it relieves the tired mother of their care for at least part of the day.

The playgrounds are found to be an excellent auxiliary, affording as they do, amusement and pleasure to the older boys and girls. So, altogether the young folks of Winchester are well provided for during the warm weather.

The accompanying pictures of the school were taken last summer, and show how the little tots are looked after.

WORK BEGINS ON B. & M. CAR SHOPS.

Work has begun upon the site of the proposed Boston & Maine car shops at North Billerica. Work began Monday clearing the ground of bushes and undergrowth and a force of men and teams is employed and the work is being pushed rapidly.

The plans from the recent survey of the ground were completed a short time ago, and within a few days it is expected that excavations for the shops will begin.

The shops which will employ 4,000 or 5,000 men were sought by a number of towns and sites in various locations, Woburn, Wilmington and Tewksbury, were considered, each town feeling confident at one time of securing the site, but eventually one was selected in the angle between the main line of the Boston & Maine and the Billerica branch on the eastern side of the main line.

It is thought that the arrest was mainly for the purpose of clearing up the case as bystanders claim that Radcliffe was not in any way negligent.

According to a Boston daily, numerous petitions have been put in circulation in Melrose, Stoneham, Medford, Malden and Winchester asking that the Metropolitan Park Commission open Spot Pond to fishermen between 3 and 8.30 o'clock a. m., on week days in August and September. During the 12 years that the pond has been in charge of the state authorities fishing has been prohibited and so rapidly have the fish multiplied that steps were considered last summer for a removal of them. As boating is also not allowed, the petitioners ask that they may be allowed to fish from the shore. We have heard of no such petition being circulated in Winchester.

LIGHTS ON CARRIAGES.

The law directing that horse-drawn vehicles shall carry lights in all localities except cities, or places where lamps are placed in distances of 500 feet, has gone into effect. There was some opposition from directions where it should have been least expected, for the farmer on a narrow and lonely road will no longer fear the crash of an auto, which was liable to occur when riding in an unlighted carriage. Since the advent of the auto and the propensity for joy riding which seems to beset by a class of youthful and reckless chauffeurs, the danger of driving an unlighted carriage on a country road in the night is not to be despised. It may take some time to hit out all the carriages with suitable lights, but when it is accomplished every owner of a carriage will say that the law is a good one and should be obeyed without objection.

MAKING A SOLDIER

There are men physically and morally brave. There are men physically brave and morally cowards. There are men physical cowards and morally brave. This is a story of one who belonged to neither of these classes.

Willie Huggins was a delicate child. He shrank from firecrackers on the Fourth of July, and a sharp report close to his ear always made him start. He grew up to be just such a man as he had been a child—timid, shy, reserved.

When Willie Huggins was twenty—he was still called Willie instead of Will—he fell desperately in love with Helena Gunter. He was captivated by Helena's flashing dark eyes and regular features, of a commonplace type. It is true, but the kind likely to attract a very young fellow with plenty of imagination to make them appear beautiful. He wooed Helena by some very delicate compliments in verse. They had no effect upon her. One of his schoolmates, Mary Crane, with whom he had always been friends, was Willie's confidant in the matter. Mary advised him either to let Helena alone or woo her in a more practical way, since she would not know the difference between poetic fervor and doggerel. About that time war broke out, and Willie was given to understand that Helena would not bestow her favor on any but a soldier.

Willie did not wish to be a soldier, but he wanted Helena, so he enlisted. His friend Mary told him that it was well enough for him to serve his country, but to take up arms for Helena Gunter or any other girl was, to say the least, unwise. This remark impressed him, and he resolved that he would do his duty on principle as well as for love.

When Willie heard that the enemy was intrenched twenty miles away and the command was going to dislodge it he felt into a violent tremble. During the march he recovered somewhat, and when the men began to deploy for an attack he experienced a mild excitement which he mistook for bravery. The illusion was dispelled when bullets began to cut the twigs above his head, singing their spiteful little songs. His legs, over which he had no control, turned him around and were carrying him in the opposite direction when he ran up against the point of a sword in the hands of an officer and was forced to turn about and face the enemy.

Willie had gone to the war for love and had decided to be brave from a sense of duty as well. Neither of these availed to induce bravery. In vain he fixed his mind on Helena; in vain he thought of his duty to his country. His legs still took him in the wrong direction.

The fights in which Willie was at first engaged were unimportant affairs and soon ended. If he was so frightened in a skirmish, what would be his condition in a battle? He began to dread the terrible disgrace that he was sure was in store for him more than the battle itself. When it came he nerved himself to go through it without flinching. He did better than before because he had become a veteran, though there was the same cowardly heart. His regiment was drawn up behind a hill, the men resting on their arms in reserve. They could not see the enemy, but shells coming over the hill were dropping among them. Then they were advanced into an open plain. Willie felt somewhat relieved. He found he did not dread an enemy he could see so much as one he could not see.

The men were ordered to lie down and fire from behind a low breastwork. A bullet came along and grazed his elbow, hurting him. He felt a momentary desire to hit the man who sent it. Then his hat was knocked off. He began to be irritated. By this time he had suffered so much from fear that he had lost some of the dread of being killed.

The next time he got was on the shoulder, and it made him very angry. A soldier beside him gave a groan and rolled over on his back. Willie began to bolt. A man crawled out of a hole a dozen yards in advance, got up on his feet, tottered a short distance back toward cover and was knocked down by a fragment of a shell. Willie felt that he would like to head a regiment and take the battery that fired that shell. The wounded man was lying in an exposed position, and Willie, heedless of the terrific fire, got up, went out to the man and dragged him back to cover. A shout went up along the line of those who saw the act. Willie, unconscious that such a coward as himself had done anything remarkable, did not suppose they were cheering him for an act of bravery.

All the officers of his company having been killed in the battle, Willie was made captain. Having found it so hard to take himself into action, he dreaded attempting to lead others. Strangely enough, the responsibility caused him to forget his danger, and he made a very good officer. He rose to be major, which office he was promoted to just before the close of the war.

When he got home he found that Helena Gunter had married a ladies' tailor. Mary Crane had heard of the major's final success as a soldier, and, though she had believed there was sufficient pride in him not to disgrace himself, she was somewhat surprised and much gratified at the result. Meeting Helena, he was surprised at her commonplace appearance. He was as much surprised that he had not, instead, fallen in love with Mary, who had always had a secret fancy for him, but he made up for lost time by an early proposal.

The Unexpected

An Army Officer Meets With a Surprise.

By THEODORE BARTON.

©opyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Hawkins," said a captain in the United States army in San Francisco to a brother officer, "you and I are of the same height and weight. Let me have a suit of your undress uniform."

"Certainly. May I ask what you propose doing with it?"

"Yes, wear it. Listen, old man, and I'll tell you a secret."

"Proceed. If the secret is worth the uniform it's a go."

"Nearly ten years ago, when I was a beardless boy at West Point, I had a flirtation with a girl."

"You mean you had several dozen flirtations with several dozen girls."

"Yes, but one of them has turned out to be the real thing. We've never met since, but we corresponded. I have never forgotten her, and she writes that she's never forgotten me. To make a long story short, she has agreed to marry me."

"What's that to do with my uniform?"

"I'm coming to that. Marian—Marian Singleton is her name—is to come to me at the Philippines to be married. I've written her that I have been ordered out there and must report at my station at once. No time to be married here. She is to go out to join me on the ship I sail in today, but doesn't know that I will be aboard. What I am aiming at is to win her over again. She will never recognize in the bearded man of thirty the smooth faced cadet of twenty. She knows that I'm in the infantry, and, what I want your suit with its artillery facings for is to complete the deception."

"I see—what you are after is to win your fiancee from yourself."

"Or anew."

"Well, Morris, all I have to say is that, judging from my experience with women, I expect you'll succeed."

"But don't you see that in either case I win?"

"Oh, I don't care whether Captain or Cadet Morris is to be the lucky man!"

"You've no romance in you, Hawkins. For my part I don't consider marriage without the spice of romance in it anything more than a business contract."

"Take care that you don't have so much romance that you'll lose the girl."

"Nonsense! A woman is a woman, to be won, held or taken away until she is a wife. Then she becomes amenable to what we call honor and not before. Marian Singleton was the most desperate flirt who ever tackled the corps of cadets. She mowed us down as with a Gatling gun. But I believe she is a good woman. I'll draw her halo her old habit. She'll flirt with me, but she'll tell me that her hand is promised and she will not marry me, or at least without her fiance's release. Don't you see what a delicious situation it will be for me to release her so that she can marry me?"

"Oh, don't bother me with your love games. What do they all end in for us army men anyway? Lugging half a dozen children from post to post, to have a ranking bachelor officer turn us out of our quarters when he takes a fancy to do so. Here's your uniform. I think it will fit you exactly. All I ask in return for it is that you shall write me us to whether Cadet or Captain Morris wins the girl."

"I'll do it. What's more, I'll keep a diary noting down how the affair progresses and send it to you when the matter is decided."

In the time required for a trip to the Philippines and return Captain Hawkins received a fat envelope, the main points of which are contained in the following synopsis:

Sept. 5.

Sailed this afternoon. Didn't recognize Marian till I got the purser to point her out to me. She is changed from a giddy girl of eighteen to a dignified woman of twenty-seven. Still, I can see in her traces of those faculties so attractive to men with which she bowled us all down at West Point. She seems to be under the care of a gentleman about forty years old, who is starting on a tour of the world.

Sept. 7.

Have concluded to consider myself a corps of observation for awhile. Marian spends a lot of time on deck with Merton, the gentleman who appears to have her under his care. He is a very smooth cut man, and a lady who knows him tells me that he is very intelligent. He seems also to have plenty of money. Marian, I am quite sure, is at least flirting with him, and there may be something deeper in her intentions. It doesn't seem to matter whether I am in the infantry or the artillery so far as she is concerned. I don't appear to cut any figure in the matter at all.

Sept. 9.

Have been introduced to Marian as Captain Withers. She received me as she receives every one—cordially—but there was not the slightest sign of recognition. I would have been more likely to recognize her than she to recognize me, since I have a bushy beard and am pretending to be in a different corps from what she expects. I passed half an hour with her on deck this afternoon, she telling about the delightful visits she made at West Point when a girl. I listened, hoping she would mention my name, but she made no reference to me whatever.

Sept. 12.

I am all broken up at the way things are going. Marian is evidently setting her cap for Merton. It's singular that a woman attractive enough to catch most any one will go for years without marrying, then take a sea voyage and become engaged. Marian doesn't scruple to throw those bewitching glances at the old fool before any one. She certainly doesn't refrain from doing so when I am about. This affair has turned out very differently from what I expected. I supposed there would be two lieutenants in the field—Cadet and Captain Morris. There is but one—a "cit," and his name is Merton.

Sept. 13.

Marian has today encouraged me to be friendly. Her inclinations are decidedly with the army, and we chatted all the morning about army people. She said that she would like to make me her confidant in order that she might ask my advice as to a point of honor as it would be considered among army people. I urged her to do so, promising that I would advise her to the best of my ability, but he said the matter was a very delicate one and she couldn't bring herself to speak of it except to a very intimate friend.

Sept. 14.

The ax has fallen, and my head has rolled into the basket. This afternoon Marian made me her confidant and asked my advice. She told me of her affair with me when I was a cadet; said that she had met no one since that she liked so well till she met Merton. She confessed that she was going out to marry me, but she had changed her mind and would like to accept Merton and go around the world with him on a wedding trip. The point of honor referred to was whether this change of front would be considered dishonorable in the army. If it would she preferred to stand by her old love. I told her that it would be incumbent upon her to state the case to her fiance frankly and that no officer of the army could fail to release her without being condemned by his fellows. When she asked me whether she would be blamed for such a course by her army friends and acquaintances I told her that if she proceeded as I had indicated her fiance would exonerate her and that would render her blameless.

Sept. 15.

I wish I had taken Hawkins' advice and let this matter alone. Marian and I could have been married in San Francisco, and then Marian would not have met this baldheaded old coot that she has fallen in love with. He's fully ten years her senior and nothing but a "cit." I've intended to win her from a boy, and this old duffer has won her from me, a man just entering on his prime. If the fool killer is aboard he'll surely take me. Besides losing my girl, I'll be the laughing-stock of the whole army. (Hawkins, nota bene. If you give me away I'll murder you. No one but you knows my part in this affair, and unless you tell I'll be considered by some an injured man. If you do tell I'll be regarded a fool by all.)

Sept. 17.

Had a talk with Marian today as to what course she had better pursue on arrival. She gave up her fiance's name at last—my name. I told her that it was quite possible that on arrival Captain Morris might not be able to meet her. I also advised her to go to Colonel B's, as she has arranged, and meet Morris there, telling him the whole story at once without keeping him waiting.

In Port.

Colonel and Mrs. B. came aboard to meet Marian. I was obliged to confine myself to my stateroom to prevent giving the whole thing away. I saw them through the porthole coming and going. Marian went ashore with them. She looked as happy as if she hadn't changed lovers between shores. I should think she would dread the meeting that's to come off with me, at which she is to tell me that I must make way for another, and that after her making a long voyage to marry me. Merton didn't go ashore with the party. I suppose she feared she might meet me unawares and preferred to have him out of the way till the scene with me is all over with.

I wonder how she'll look when she learns that the man she has traveled with, whom she has made her confidant and who has advised her as to the standard of army honor is the man she has gone back on. By Jove, what a climax for a play! Only I'd rather take the part of the other fellow. I shall be as magnanimous as possible—not blame her in the least, but, of course, I may let it be known how deeply I am wounded.

In Quarters.

Nothing has happened as intended or expected. I have been nerving myself for one climax, and there has been another. I waited till all the army people had gone ashore, then sneaked ashore myself, feeling ashamed of the part I had been playing and dreading the meeting at which I was to get the grand bounce. During the afternoon a note came from Marian saying that she was at Colonel B's and would be ready to receive me at 6. Mrs. B invited me to dine at 7.

I deferred my visit till 6:30 and wished I could omit it entirely. Marian received me standing and as soon as she saw me rushed forward and threw herself into my arms.

"Stupid," she exclaimed, "to attempt to impose on a woman by so thin an artifice! I knew you the moment I saw you."

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the postoffice at Winchester as second-class matter.

For One Year, the Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

We don't regret that we are spending the summer in Winchester.

The official date for the opening of the Panama Canal is 1915, but Colonel Goethals states that at the latest, ships will be passing through the canal in October, 1913.

If subscribers for the STAR will send to this office changes of addresses while on their summer outings, we will gladly forward the paper at no extra charge, be the time long or short.

Reports from Iowa say, eggs are selling there at 10 cents a dozen, but we shall probably have to pay 50 cents a dozen next December for those same eggs. Great are the possibilities of cold storage.

Thomas Carlisle wrote more than two decades ago a little truism which needs repeating occasionally: "Rest," he said is a fine medicine. "Let your stomachs rest, ye dyspeptics; let your brain rest, ye wearied and worried men of business."

The flag pole on the common should be replaced by the Selectmen, even if the expense causes a deficiency. The citizens will gladly make good at the March meeting and find no fault if "Incidentals" has been overdrawn. It will, however, cost in the neighborhood of $500 to replace what the lightning did in the fraction of a second.

"The good roads of Winchester and Reading," says the Winchester STAR, "emphasize the report of motorists of the wretched condition of Main street, Stoneham.' It is some distinction to be classed with Winchester in the matter of good highways. With what the town can afford to spend on this department the result certainly seems good.—[Reading Chronicle.

There should be a town ordinance for the regulation of teams on the public streets. As it is now horses can be fed on the main streets unwatched, wagons left on busy thoroughfares, and teams for indefinite periods. The Chief of Police and the Selectmen are powerless to take any action whatever because there is no ordinance under which they can act. Winchester is no longer a country village, where such things cause no inconvenience, but a large town with a crowded centre where the streets are becoming too narrow. And besides the streets are littered and made untidy by feeding horses, while unhitched wagons do not improve the general appearance of the streets or add to the safety of public travel.

Russell A. Wood of Cambridge, who has announced himself as a candidate for Secretary of State, has sent out a circular the contents of which in the main is a tirade against the present Secretary of State and the leading Republicans of the party including Senator Crane. Mr. Wood in taking this course has made a mistake, as the time for floating into office on the wave of such tactics has gone by Secretary of State Langtry during the short time that he has occupied his present office has more than made good and he will be returned in the fall. Mr. Wood appears to be sore over some imaginary trouble, and is showing his feelings in a lamentable manner.

WINCHESTER BEATS OLD RIVAL, 4-2.

North Woburn and Winchester, the two old rivals, met in a game on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon and more than 2000 people who were on hand were treated to one of the best played and most interesting games that has been seen on the field in a long time, Winchester winning 4 to 2. The game was clean and fast ball all through. There were no sensational plays, the only features being the passing of James Doherty every time he came to the bat, a test double play by Callahan and T. Doherty, and the snappy base running of Badger.

Both teams made their scores in one inning, North Woburn getting two runs in the first, and Winchester beating out four in the SIXTH. Both pitchers did good work, young Wittaker holding the North Woburn's down to only four safe hits.

SUFFRAGE DELUSION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Should the suffrage delusion ever become a living reality, those who will suffer most will not be its instigators, but its helpless tools,—the Working Women.

When the political boss becomes, a factor in the working woman's existence she will be powerless to help herself. To the proposition "You must vote thus, or you lose that which gives you bread and butter," there can, in the long run, be but one reply. The woman wage earner is adapted to be the prey of the political boss as is no other portion of humanity. Often she speaks English imperfectly, if at all. All dangers and injustices pale into insignificance when compared with those into which suffrage would thrust her.

The militant suffragette, the sentimental philanthropist, and the would-be reformer would do well to look below the surface and try to see what is the substance of the thing they are trying to force on society under the name of "Votes for Women."

Elizabeth M. Gosse.

MRS. MARY J. SMITH.

At her home on Cutting street Mary J. Smith, wife of John W. Smith, passed away on Wednesday morning after a lingering illness, at the age of seventy-four years. Mrs. Smith was a true friend and a loving mother and passed her life in helping those in trouble.

She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. J. A. MacMaster of Burlington, Vermont, and Mrs. W. E. Moreland of this town. A host of friends will mourn her loss.

The burial will be at Wildwood Cemetery this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Parker of the Unitarian Church, Woburn.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Unquestionably the biggest event in vaudeville in recent years is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in "The Meistersinger all-star Minstrels," which will be put on in the style for which Mr. Keith has become famous, with the greatest organization of soloists, minstrels, endmen and musicians, that has ever been brought together. In the "Meistersingers," who have been for weeks the leading feature at B. F. Keith's, there is the greatest combination of male voices that has ever been in a minstrel circle, and the endmen will number four, whose names are known the width and breadth of the land. They will be George Thatcher, of Thatcher, Primose & West's Minstrels, the famous Lew Benedict, Hughie Dougherty, the great Philadelphia minstrel, and John Healy, who has been specially engaged from Al Fields' Western Minstrels, for this occasion. The interlocutor will be Harry W. Morse, late of Cohan's & Harris and Lew Dockstaders Minstrels. There will be over fifty people on the stage, the biggest circle ever shown. The boys and girls of the present generation, who have never seen a real old style minstrel show should be brought to see these famous artists and company of great singers. Outside of the minstrels, there will be a typical B. F. Keith programme of all-star vaudeville.

DIRECT NOMINATION LAW.

For the information of persons not acquainted with the provisions of the new District Nomination Law, we give the following extract: Nomination papers must be submitted to the election commissioners in Boston and to the registrars of voters in other cities and towns for certification of signers August 26. Direct joint primaries in all cities and towns in the Commonwealth Sept. 26. All nomination papers must be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth on or before Tuesday, August 29. Candidates for ward and town committees and for delegates to the state convention may all be nominated on one nomination paper. Candidates for election to the state committees are nominated in the same manner as candidates for Senator. The number of delegates is fixed as now, by the state committee, and the number of ward and town committee members by the city or town committee, and the respective committees must notify the Secretary of State on or before August 1, of the number fixed. Nomination papers shall state the name of the candidate, his residence, with the street and number, if any, the office for which he is nominated, the political party which he represents, and the paper may state, in not more than eight words, the occupation of the candidate, the public offices which he has held, or that he is a candidate for renomination, provided he is at the time an incumbent of the office for which he seeks renomination for another term, but not otherwise. Each paper must be signed as under the old law—with the surname and Christian name of the voter and the initial of every other name which he may have, and shall state his present residence and his residence on April 1. Republican nomination papers must be signed by Republicans only, and Democratic papers by Democrats. The paper shall state that the signers are members of the party represented by the candidate and are entitled to vote in caucuses or primaries of that party. Every voter may sign as many nomination papers for each office to be filled as there are persons to be nominated for that office and no more. All nomination papers must be submitted to the registrars of voters if, the city or town in which the signers appear to be voters, and in the city of Boston to the election commissioners, on or before 5 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, August 26. Number of signatures required on governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor or attorney general must be at least 1000 voters, and they must be divided up not less than 250 to each of four different counties. Two hundred and fifty signatures the maximum requirement for all their candidates, not running through the state-at-large. This includes councillors, senators, representatives, and this year, registers of deeds, clerks of courts and county commissioners. The law, of course, takes in all county officers and congressmen, but no other officers than those mentioned are to be filled at the next election and this is not a congressional year. All of these candidates will not require 250 names. That, as has been said, is the maximum requirement. For all offices other than those to be filled by all the voters of the Commonwealth the requirement is five signatures of voters for each ward or town in the district or county, but in no case more than 250. Bear in mind that the requirement is for a "a number equal in the aggregate to five voters for each ward or town"—not five "in" each ward or town. Thus a candidate for representative whose district takes in six towns must get 30 signatures, but he may get them all in one town. The required number simply must equal five to each ward and town in the district. The polls must be kept open on primary day during such hours, not less than nine in cities or two in towns, as may be designated by the election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen or city council in other cities and the selectmen in towns. No ballots shall be counted until the polls are closed.

OBJECT OF LIFE.

I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the heaven that smiles above me
And waits my spirit, too;
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance
And the good that I can do.
—George Linnaeus Banks.

Getting an Autograph.

A Munich boy of fourteen, who had seen and admired many of Rudolf von Seltz's paintings, was anxious to secure the painter's autograph, but did not know how to go about it. After much thought he wrote a letter, stating that he had sent a case of wine to the professor's address, and wanted to know whether it had been received. Thinking the matter of sufficient importance the painter did not write, but called at the address given, and the boy's mother, and the fraud soon became apparent. The boy was thoroughly scolded, and next day received this autograph note:

It often happens here on earth
That little rogues to great ones grow.
Some autographs for which you're trying
Can be procured without much lying

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Children In the Moon.

Harken, child, unto a story:
For the moon is in the sky,
And across her shield of silver
See two tiny cloudlets fly

Watch them closely, mark them sharply,
As across the light they pass.
Seem they not to have the figures
Of a little lad and lass?

See, my child, across their shoulders
Lies a little pole and to
Yonder specs is just the bucket,
Swinging softly to and fro!

It is said these little children,
Many and many a summer night,
To a little well far northward
Wandered in the still moonlight.

To the wayside well they trotted,
Filled their little buckets there;
And the moonman, looking downward,
Saw how beautiful they were.

Never is the bucket empty,
Never are the children old;
Ever when the moon is shining
We the children may behold.

What city is called the "Mound City?" St. Louis.

What city is known as the city of "Magnificent Distances?" Washington.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Conveyances.

This is a good game and is both amusing and instructive if played with intelligence, as the players must remember much that they have heard and read about foreign countries.

One player begins by saying that he is about to start on a journey. He is asked whether he will go by land or sea, to which quarter of the globe, will he go—north, south, east or west—and what conveyance will he use.

After he has answered all these questions the others must guess where he is going. If he goes to mountainous regions he must name a conveyance suitable to the country—mountain railway, armebairs carried by porters, mules for riding, and so on; in other countries sledges, stilts, camels, elephants, junks, gondolas, railways, omnibuses, bicycles, balloons, etc. The one guessing the country becomes the traveler.

A School For Dogs.

There has been opened in Paris a school where pet dogs are taught politeness. The schoolroom is furnished with chairs, tables and rugs in order that the pupils may have suitable surroundings. The dogs are trained to welcome visitors by jumping up cordially, wagging the tail and giving a low bark of pleasure. When the caller is about to leave a dog goes to the door with him, and bows farewell by bending the head gracefully. The dogs are taught also that they must pick up gloves or handkerchief, or anything else which a visitor may drop, and return it to its owner. And such pupil is trained to walk with "proud and prancing step" when he goes out walking with his mistress.

Game of Shopping.

The leader says: "I went shopping this morning and everything I bought began with C for any letter desired: From the druggist I bought 1pointa at a child, who must immediately respond with some article bought of a druggist beginning with the letter C—as cologne), from the baker I bought cookies or cake may be the answer), from the grocer I bought —. And so the lists continue until some child fails to answer at once, when he must take the place of the leader and continue the game, choosing any letter desired.

The Deepest Well.

The deepest well in the world is probably the one at Sperenberg, Germany, some twenty miles from Berlin, sunk for the purpose of obtaining rock salt brine. A bore hole of sixteen inches diameter was carried down to the depth of 280 feet, where the salt bed began. After a further descent of 680 feet the bore was reduced to thirteen inches diameter and then continued till the extraordinary depth of 4,119 feet was reached.—New York American.

History of Postage Stamps.

The adhesive stamp, as used in the transmission of mail matter, was first made, experimentally, by James Chalmers of Dundee, Scotland, in the year 1834. The stamp began to be used in Great Britain in 1840, in Switzerland in 1843 and in the same year in Brazil. The United States did not adopt the postage stamp until 1847, although a tentative use was made of it by the New York postoffice in 1845.

CUPID'S LOSSES

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd
At cards for kisses. Cupid paid.
The stakes his quiver, bow and arrows, his mother's doves and team of sparrows.
Loses them too. Then down he throws
The coral of his lip, the rose Growing on's cheek (but none knows how)
With these, the crystal of his brow, and then the dimple on his chin—
All these did my Campaspe win
At last he set her both his eyes;
She won, and Cupid blind did rise
O love, has she done this to thee?
What shall, alas, become of me?
—John Lyly

Was Too Suspicious.

An Albanian youth named Brahimovitch, who is a stranger to the customs of civilization, arrived in Belgrade recently and shot a new acquaintance immediately after an introduction, having mistaken an attempt to shake hands for an attempt to snatch the weapons in his belt.

Natural Inference.

A New York newspaper chronicles the arrival in that city of an American boy who speaks no English. It is inferred that the little chap converses habitually in the baseball dialect.

A sewing cabinet spacious enough to hold everything a seamstress may need in her work, yet which folds up like a screen and can be carried by handles has been invented by a Missourian.

Trunk Coverings of Sealskin.

The skin of the common harbor or marble seal is still used to some extent in Norway for trunk coverings. This seal is also found on the coasts of the United States, especially on the Pacific side.

New Arizona Industry.

Residents of Arizona have discovered that cactus needles or thorns are admirable for use as graphophone reproducing points and a big export trade is anticipated.

Time to Die.

"When is the best time to die?" gravely asks a contemporary. "Just before you try to introduce an old friend to an acquaintance and can't remember his name.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Several of the distinguished speakers at the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, recently held in Boston, were secured by the Boston Equal Suffrage Association for Good Government, to speak at a meeting held in Jacob Sleeper Hall in the Boston University, on June 14. A large audience was present. Among these speakers were Mr. Louis Brandeis and Jane Addams. As is well known, they both speak from the largest practical experience in public affairs, and hold the highest place in popular esteem among workers for the common weal. Mr. Brandeis said: "It is just a quarter of a century since I first expressed in public my views on Woman Suffrage. Then I opposed it. Today I advocate it. That change in opinion is the result of my own experience in the various movements with which I have been connected, in which we have tried to solve the social, economic and political problems that have presented themselves from time to time. As years have passed, I have been more and more impressed with the difficulty and complexity of those problems, and also with the power of society to solve them; but I am convinced that for then solution we must look to the many not to the few. We need all the people, women as well as men. In the democracy which is to solve them, we must not have a part of society but the whole.

The insight that women have shown into problems which men did not and perhaps could not understand, has convinced me not only that women should have the ballot, but that we need them to have it. This is especially the case because these problems will have to be solved largely through collective action in which legislature is necessary."

Miss Addams spoke with her usual clearness and efficiency, bringing out the handicap that workers experience in being deprived of the readiest means for accomplishing their purpose through much needed legislation. Her speech was illuminating, as it always is.

GROWING TREES.

It is very discouraging to think of reforesting all the land that ought to have forests in the United States. It is a task that does not address itself to Americans, because when we project something one day we wish to see it well developed the next morning. It is a task that appeals rather to the thorough German, or to the patient Frenchman, for he is patient in the country, but we have got to come to a knowledge of the fact that we are growing to be an old country, with the responsibilities of an old country, and that we have got to nbide nature's time in doing the things that we ought to do if we seek the nid of nature in restoring that which we have extravagantly wasted. —President Taft.

Exact Thomas.

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the English naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort, in many ways, was noted for his exactness. Mr. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selborne," gives an amusing illustration.

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report, "Please, sir, Eye been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great fool," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."

Impressed Her.

"You will never be able to make me believe that he is a liar.

"I wonder why?"

"I believe that he once told her she was beautiful."—Houston Post.

SNAPSHOTS AT CELEBRITIES

Ray Bowerman, Acting Governor of Oregon.

Rather a peculiar chain of circumstances that placed Ray Bowerman in the executive chair of the state of Oregon. His elevation came about in this way: Governor Chamberlain, a Democrat, was elected four years ago. Subsequently he was chosen United States senator and took his seat in January, 1909. The constitution of Oregon provides, there being no lieutenant governor, that the secretary of state shall become chief executive in the event of a vacancy, the next in the line of succession being the president of the senate.

On the retirement of Mr. Chamberlain Secretary of State Frank W. Benson became governor, but a few months ago his health failed, and Mr. Bowerman, who was president of the senate, became acting governor. Recently he was indorsed at a conference of the Republican party for governor, but his candidacy is subject to ratification at the primaries.

Mr. Bowerman began his career as a farm hand, following that vocation until he had accumulated enough money to pay his way through Williamette university. He took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty. It is possible that after the next election he will be the real governor instead of only acting in that capacity.

Mayor Dahlman of Omaha.

James Charles Dahlman, ex-cowboy, twice elected mayor of Omaha, who won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination at the recent primaries, has been a picturesque figure in politics for many years. Formerly he was a warm supporter of William J. Bryan, but they have drifted apart on the liquor question. Mr. Bryan is an advocate of county option in dealing with the liquor traffic, while Mayor Dahlman favors local option and made his fight on that issue.

A native of Texas, Mr. Dahlman in his youth herded cattle on the ranges of his native state. In 1876, when he was twenty, he removed to Nebraska, finally settling at Chadron. He was twice mayor of Chadron and served four terms as sheriff of Dawes county. In 1898 he became a citizen of Omaha. Eight years later he was chosen mayor and re-elected at the expiration of his three year term. He entered national politics as a delegate to the convention of 1892 which nominated Grover Cleveland. Four years later he helped nominate Mr. Bryan. He became a member of the national Democratic committee in 1900 and in 1908 was appointed to the executive committee. From 1896 to 1900 Mr. Dahlman was chairman of the Democratic state committee and carried Nebraska at each election for the Democratic party.

Selma Lagerlof's Masterpiece.

As a girl of nine living on a farm Selma Lagerlof, the Swedish writer, aspired to be an author, and for many years she filled every scrap of paper she could lay her hands on with verse and prose, with plays and romances. When she wasn't writing she sat and wished for success. When she was two and twenty she traveled up to Stockholm to prepare to become a teacher and wrote no more. Later on the story commenced to take shape part by part, the nature of the hero came to her, and her masterpiece, "The Story of Gosta Berling," was under way. It was published when she was thirty-two. But the first editor to whom it went in novelette form rejected it.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"My Friend from India" has always proved irresistible, and its production at the Castle Square next week is certain to be welcomed. Its plot is brief and simple as well as comical and laughable. In New York lives a wealthy pork packer from Kansas City, and like many others he has social ambitions that they wish, but find hard work to gratify. By chance the son of the family comes across a little man who looks like an East Indian, and he is instructed to play the role of a strong and wise theosopinst and be dragged about as a celebrity. Then come the complications and the rapid progress of the plot through them. Droll dialogue and funny episodes—best of all the mirror scene which inevitably sets the audience in a roar of laughter—keep the fun going till the curtain falls.

The cast selected by Mr. Craig will do full justice to the play. The title character will be played by Daniel Meek and with all the other favorite Castle Square players assisting there can be no doubt as to the warmth of its reception. It will be given for one week only.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRESS

Gov. Foss Says State Printing Costs Too Much Money

CONGRESS DISTRICTS ARE UP

Governor's Experts Charged With Gross Inaccuracies — Democratic State Convention For October 5

Governor Foss is still endeavoring to create a system of government by experts. His reports from these gentlemen on various state departments are still coming in, although the time is long past when the legislature should have completed its work, and the individual members thereof gone home. Late last week he sent in a report declaring that the state printing was costing too much money. These experts claim that if smaller volumes were printed the cost of printing and binding would be less. Also that the work cost more than it should. It is doubtful if any one will deny the first statement; however, the various departments believe they are condensing their reports as much as possible and still make them intelligible and that the expense of this work cannot very well be lessened. The experts recommend that some person familiar with printing be employed by the state to co-operate with the authors of the reports, point out reasonable economies and supervise the state publications.

It is one of the functions of the office of the secretary of state to prepare and have printed the acts and resolves of the legislature and also the Blue Book, which contains, in addition to the acts and resolves, the messages of the governor. As Governor Foss has already sent in at least seventy special messages he might have cut the cost of printing by a considerable sum if he had curtailed his work in that direction.

Congressional Redistricting Is On

An order is before the legislature for the appointment by the presiding officers of the two branches of a joint special committee of eight senators and fourteen members of the house to sit through the summer recess and redistrict the state into congressional districts.

Next year is congressional year and before the present members of congress can make plans for renomination they will have to know the bounds of their district. If a special committee should sit during the summer it could report early in the next year, and the bill reported could be acted upon very early in the session.

The Democrats have selected Thursday, Oct. 5, as the date of their state convention, which is to be held in Boston. The date was set by the state committee last week, when some of the members endeavored to have the committee name a state ticket to be supported at the primaries. This endeavor was unsuccessful and unless such action is taken by the committee at some future date, the Democrats of the state will be free to nominate their own ticket in their own way.

Experts Seem Not to Be Expert

The committee on ways and means showed up the character of the reports of the governor's experts at a hearing last week in a spectacular manner. The experts were J. P. Byers of New Jersey and Frederick H. Mills of New York. The report in question was one criticising the state board of charities for its conduct of the charitable institutions of the state. Hon. Leontine Lincoln of Fall River, chairman of the state board of charity, stated that the report of the experts was full of inaccuracies and that in one instance they had made a mistake of $70,000 in their figures. The message of the governor on the report of these experts cut down appropriations of the state board from $887,000 to $814,119.

The charge was made that the report of these experts was grossly inaccurate in the case of the adult poor, where they gave an expenditure of $330,000, when the actual amount was $259,265. Dr. F. J. Lewis corroborated the statement of Mr. Lincoln. It was also brought out that the governor himself signed the warrants for the expenditure of money for state charities, notwithstanding his statement in the message that there is no safeguard against the expenditure of money for these purposes.

Standing of Democratic Progressives

The Democrats who form the Democratic Progressives are anxious to have their party go on record at next spring's election. Progressive Democrats will be forced at last fall to help the Democratic candidate for governor, Eugene N. Foss. As a matter of fact, it did not get a very wide start in the campaign. However, it might have served as a life raft for the Democratic party if the breach between Foss, Hamlin and Vahey had not been sufficiently patched up for Mr. Foss to run as the regular Democratic candidate.

Now, however, unless it can be killed it may prove to be an element of danger to the Democratic party. Consequently, energetic efforts have been made to prove that while the Progressive Democratic party cast enough votes last fall to become a legitimate political party, the effort is being made now to prove that there is no such party. Secretary of the Commonwealth Albert P. Langtry rules that the Democratic Progressive party is still in existence and he proposes to issue nomination papers to the adherents of that party who may wish to use them. The Democratic Progressive party leaders say they will ask for an injunction to prevent the secretary from issuing such papers, notwithstanding the fact that the Democratic party has for many years denounced government by injunction from every stump in this fair land.

Boston's Fireworks Exhibit

For many years the city of Boston mhas treated its citizens to a display of fireworks on the evening of July 4. This year it advertised to do the same as on previous occasions. The display was given on the Boston side of the Charles river basin and it was so bad and there have been so many complaints from citizens regarding it that Acting Mayor Collins and the mayor's secretary have investigated the matter and concluded that the city was not given full value. Therefore, it has decided that the bill will not be paid, at least until the return of Mayor Fitzgerald from Europe. The display of fireworks last year was extremely poor, and as a matter of fact these exhibitions have not been what they should be for several years. The arrangements with the company which gave the exhibit seem to have been made by Mayor Fitzgerald, as were those of last year.

There some people in Boston who are worried for fear that an effort is about to be made to recall Mayor Fitzgerald. The matter which leads to this belief was a communication sent out by Acting Mayor Collins saying that the practice of paying overtime must be minimized. It was pointed out that this communication came shortly after Mayor Fitzgerald's departure for Europe and after a conference between Acting Mayor Collins and Chairman John A. Sullivan of the finance commission. The friends of the mayor are reported to be much concerned regarding this action. Why they should be, however, plain citizens fail to understand, especially if the overtime dodge for passing money to political friends is being overworked as is generally alleged. At any rate, the mayor's friends are expecting trouble and say they are ready at any moment to cable him that he must return at once and look out for his political fences. The significance of the move is said to lie in the fact that it is the first time an acting mayor has ever attempted to change a mayor's policy during his absence, and that for this reason it may bode trouble to the mayor.

Ex-Congressman Sullivan, as head of the finance committee, has made many efforts to have the municipal administration of Boston conducted in an honest, economical and broad-minded manner. The mayor has never taken kindly to the appointment of Mr. Sullivan to this post nor to his efforts in behalf of civic decency; consequently he has taken occasion many times to try to prejudice the public against Mr. Sullivan.

JUDGMENT.

It is a tremendous responsibility for any human being to say to another that that other is morally wrong. This implies a right of final judgment which is not only unauthorized, but presumptuous in the last degree.—Joh E. Hedges.

PLODDING WINS.

All that I have accomplished or expect or hope to accomplish has been and will be by that plodding, patient, persevering process of accretion which builds the ant heap particle by particle, thought by thought, fact by fact. If I was ever actuated by ambition its highest and warmest aspiration reached no further than the hope to set before the young men of any country an example in employing those invaluable fragments of time called "odd moments."—Elihu Burritt.

REAL SERVICE.

And he gave it for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before would deserve better of mankind and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together.—Swift.

HONESTY.

An honest soul is like a ship at sea
That sleeps at anchor on the ocean's calm,
But when it rages and the wind blows high
She cuts her way with sails with majesty.
—Beaumont and Fletcher.

The man who pauses on his honesty
Wants little of the villain.
—Martyn.

The more honesty a man has the less he affects the air of a saint.—Lavater

All other knowledge is hurtful to him
Who has not honesty and good nature.
—Montaigne.

Heaven that made me honest made me more
Than ever king did when he made a lord.
—Rowe.

EDUCATION NEEDED.

Slavery is but half abolished, emancipation is but half completed, while millions of freemen with votes in their hands are left without education. Justice to them, the welfare of the states in which they live, the safety of the whole republic, the dignity of the elective franchise—all alike demand that the still remaining bonds of ignorance shall be unloosed and broken and the minds as well as the bodies of the emancipated go free.—Robert C. Winthrop.

IDEA OF FREEDOM.

There is what I call the American idea. This idea demands, as the proximate organization thereof a democracy, that is, a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people; of course a government of the principles of eternal justice, the unchanging law of God. For shortness' sake I will call it the idea of freedom.—Theodore Parker.

The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

Mortgagee's Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in certain mortgage given by Charles E. Dyer to William P. Holcombe, dated March 27, 1907, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 3,30, page 99, for breach of the condition of said mortgage deed, will be sold at public auction on the premises described in said mortgage deed on all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz —

A certain parcel of land situated in Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being lot numbered Nineteen (19) Fairmount Street on a plan of land in Winchester belonging to Elizabeth A. D. Parsons, G. F. Hartshorn, C. E., and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, August 28, 1882, Plan Book 75, Plan 50, and bounded as follows:

Southwesterly by said Fairmount Street one hundred 100 feet; northwesterly by land now of late of one Robinson one hundred ninety-seven and six-tenths, 197.6 feet; northeasterly by parts of lots numbered eighteen and seventeen (17) on said plan one hundred 100 feet; northeasterly by lots numbered twenty (20) and twenty-one (21) on said plan one hundred seventy-nine and ninety-six one-hundredth (179.96) feet; containing 18,261 square feet, more or less.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, tax sales, or other municipal liens, if any.

Two hundred dollars will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale, further terms to be then and there made known.

Her Auto Ride

The Best Laid Plans Go Awry.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association.

Annabelle Dayton in her smart little motorcar paused at the summit of the hill and drew a sharp breath of appreciation. A line of distant blue indicated the sea. In the foreground were green clad slopes running down to snowy beaches. The roofs of the village pointed up among the trees, and a church spire gleamed like fire. There were white sails beyond and the black drift of smoke from a passing steamer.

"This is lots better than going to Aunt Edith's poky mu-hode," sighed Annabelle mutinously. "Just fancy spending this glorious afternoon in a lighted drawing room listening to the great Alvan Eldred, 'master of the violin,' and being disillusioned by long hair, greasy coat collar and a pervading presence of garlic!" Annabelle's dainty nose sniffed scornfully at her imaginary portrait of the great violinist of whom her aunt had raved for weeks.

"I'm going down, down to the very edge of the sea."

As the machine sped downward Annabelle was suddenly conscious that something was wrong. The brakes did not respond to her frantic pressure, the levers grated harshly without effect, and there was an unfamiliar grunting sound from beneath her feet.

She had been down this same hill many times before, slowly, cautiously. She knew that from the foot of the hill the street ran down to the water's edge, ending at the broad dock where the boats landed.

Nothing could stop her speed unless—the color left her cheeks as she realized the almost certain death that confronted her. Her lips set in a straight line, and her eyes shone steadily. If one had to meet death at the close of a lovely August day when—why, one might as well meet it bravely.

Faster she went, her eyes, dark with dread, fixed on a wide opening on the right. Flanked by stone pillars. It seemed to mark the entrance to some estate. The few pedestrians turned and watched her flight with disapproval; a constable held up a warning hand; a wagon scuttled into the sidewalk to avoid her coming.

Annabelle turned the steering wheel and a gush of relief fluttered from her lips as the machine responded, but there was no lessening of the mad speed. Wildly it tore through the open gateway, ground into the hard packed earth of the drive, skidded along a muddy spot under the trees, left the drive and pounded along soft green turf, miraculously avoiding tree trunks, making straight for the large brown house set in the midst of the grounds.

Another twist of the wheel and the house seemed to glide past. Before her was a distant blur of gorgeous color—a flower garden in the midst of which was a summer house. To the left was a turfy bank. Her head dropped on her hands that clutched the wheel, and she closed her eyes and prayed.

There was a low shout beside her; the machine jolted under additional weight; a pair of strong hands gripped the wheel from hers; there was the pressure of brakes; the motor slowed suddenly, bumped into some obstruction and then bounded back to a standstill.

"It's all over now," said a kindly voice.

Annabelle opened her eyes and looked fearfully forth on the summer house still creaking from the force of encounter, on the crushed flowers she had mowed down and lastly into the countenance of a man who sat beside her in the car.

It was then that Annabelle realized that she was holding the stranger in a frantic embrace, her hands tightly clasped about his neck, her fair head perilously near his broad shoulder.

"I beg your pardon!" Annabelle's face turned to deepest rose as she hastily withdrew from him, but her hair had caught in a button of his coat, holding it firmly by one long golden strand.

"Just a moment. There—I don't want to hurt you. It's off now." He spoke in a matter of fact tone as if he was in the habit of ensnaring lovely maidens with coat buttons every day of his life. "I'm afraid you are pretty well shaken up with your ride. You had a narrow escape." He had alighted and helped Annabelle to the ground.

She leaned weakly against the summer house. "You must have saved my life. Did you—did you really leap on the step as I passed?" She was beginning to realize what had happened.

He nodded carelessly. "It was easy enough. You see, one gets practice in that sort of thing chasing the street cars." Then, observing her with concern in his gray eyes, he went on: "Come and sit down in the summer house. You must be pretty well knocked under with the strain. After you have had a cordial perhaps you may feel able to tell how it happened that you invaded my flower garden."

He smiled pleasantly down on her as he led the way into the rose covered arbor and drew forward a deep wicker chair for this unexpected guest, who sank into it with a little sigh of relief. "I will send my housekeeper, Mrs. Larrup, to you; she may be of assistance."

Annabelle had time to rearrange her tumbled hair, blushing at the recollection of its episode with the coat button, before her host returned, tray in hand.

"Mrs. Larrup has disappeared, and it seems to be the maid's half holiday, so you must be satisfied with my humble services. Here are currant wine and some biscuits and a bottle of eau de cologne. Isn't that what ladies use when they are upset?" He placed the tray handily at her elbow.

"Thanks to you, I wasn't upset," returned Annabelle merrily. She sniffed at the cut glass bottle more in gratitude for his thoughtfulness than because she needed its pungent aroma. "Thank you. I am afraid I've made you lots of trouble and ruined your garden. I hope you will allow me to have it put in order again." She sipped the wine he poured for her and looked up at him from her dark blue eyes, frankly boyish in their direct glance.

"Really, you've given old Jackson something to do. He's been eating his head off lately and grumbling because I wouldn't let him dig up some of the beds and set out other plants. There he is now among the hollyhocks. See the grin on his face? He's tickled to death over it."

The man leaned against the doorpost and looked out into the garden, where an old negro was hobbling among the torn beds, a broad smile about his toothless lips.

"I say, Jackson, please ask Pierre to come here and get this car out into the drive." He turned to Annabelle, and his glance lingered long on her face, sweetly serious in the pale green light of the arbor. "I think my man can put your car right. There seems to be nothing serious the matter with it—probably some small matter of adjustment."

While the chauffeur tinkered over the car Annabelle related the story of her ride. She omitted nothing, not even the fact that she had deliberately run away from her aunt's musicale and the great violinist nor her terror at the last when her car sped down the hill.

The man listened without interruption. He smiled when she mentioned Alvan Eldred, and he winced when she described the terrible ride down the hill. When she had finished he told her that he had been sitting in the arbor and had seen her approach across the turf—had raced to meet her. It was nothing at all.

"So you did not want to see Alvan Eldred," he said a little later. "Have you ever heard him play?"

"Once," admitted Annabelle, "and it was so heavenly it made me cry. There was a big crowd, and I couldn't see him, and I didn't want to. I know what they look like, and I am always disillusioned after I see them, some are so—so grubby, you know. This time he played an old thing, the intermezzo from 'Cavalleria,' you know, and I've wanted to hear it again just as he played it, only"—

"You're afraid of the garlic and the greasy coat collar, eh?" He was smiling down at her in the friendliest sort of way.

"I know you think I'm horrid about it and not a bit artistic, but"— "I don't like garlic myself," he confessed cheerfully. "As for questionable coat collars—right. Nevertheless, I'm afraid you do Eldred an injustice. He's an American, you know."

"You see how narrow and prejudiced and silly I am," said Annabelle, rising and moving toward the door. "I never even knew that. I thought he was a Pole—or something. It is growing late, and your man seems to have fixed my car."

"I'm going with you—with your permission—to see that you reach home safely. Pierre can follow with my car and bring me home. You have told me your name, but I have not yet introduced myself. Wait a moment, please; do not turn your head."

With a slight bow he left her standing in the doorway, her back to the interior of the arbor. He passed inside, and she heard a slight rattle, a whining twang as a string tightened, and then the strains of the intermezzo trembled on the air—played as only a master could play it—as Alvan Eldred had never played it before.

Annabelle stood spellbound, her blue eyes like stars, her red lips parted, wave after wave of rose color flushing her stained face. Before he had finished she had turned and was facing him, inspiring him to greater effort, and there passed between them at the moment a great understanding.

When he had finished Annabelle pressed her hands against her eyes. "I feel as if I had always been asleep—as though I had just awakened," she said softly.

He made no reply. Quietly he put away the violin which had wrought this wonderful thing for him, and silently they entered the little car which had brought Annabelle so strangely into the garden.

At home he smiled down at her. "I may come again?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Garlic? Long hair?" His hand brushed his cropped head.

"I don't mind, really," blushed Annabelle, with starry eyes.

His tone of banter changed to one of tender gravity. To Annabelle it sounded like the deeper notes of his violin. "You ran away from me, and yet we met after all. Are you glad? I am." Without waiting for answer he jumped into his waiting car and with a last backward look was gone.

Annabelle smiled mysteriously as he vanished in a cloud of dust. "And I'm glad, too—glad, glad!" Then with a swift, graceful movement she bent down and kissed the steering wheel of the little automobile.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Press Bible Question Club.

(Copyright 1910 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

July 16th, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Golden Text—Cease to do evil; learn to do well. Isa. 1.16,17.

(1.) Verse 1, 2—Whose son was Manasseh and what was the character of his father?

(2.) When the son of a good father becomes a bad man how do you account for it?

(3.) To what extent may good parents be assured that their children will also be good?

(4.) What scriptural or philosophic at ground is there for the belief that children may be so trained that they will certainly be Christians?

(5.) Upon which depends most the character of children, the father or the mother?

(6.) Verses 3-5—In what particular respect did Manasseh sin against God?

(7.) That land was rife with idolatry, and God made strict laws against it; why did he do so?

(8.) What were in those days the grave evils of idolatry?

(9.) What parallel to-day, among Christian people, are equivalent to idolatry?

(10.) What are the results of practicing idolatrous habits?

(11.) Verses 6,7—What is meant by enchantments, familiar spirits and wizards?

(12.) Why does the Bible forbid use of all such evil things as mentioned in verse six?

(13.) How do you class palmistry, looking into the tea-cup for signs, thirteen sitting at the table, unlucky Friday and similar "signs?"

(14.) How do you estimate a witch or a wizard that is a bad person supposed to have the power of exercising, mentally, an evil influence upon another?

(15.) What is your estimate of those that have "familiar spirits," persons who claim to communicate with the spirits of the dead?

(16.) Verse 8—How long did God say that the Israelites should possess the land of Canaan, and on what conditions?

(17.) Which of God's promises if any, are absolute or unconditioned?

(18.) Verses 9-10—When good people become degenerate, are they or not generally worse than those who have always been bad?

(19.) How did God probably speak to Manasseh and his people, and how does God speak to sinners to day?

(20.) Verse 11—God is here said to have brought the army of the king of Assyria to war with Israel, and to take Manasseh prisoner as a result of his sin. Does God in these days punish sin in any such material way?

(21.) Verses 12-20—What is the general effect of punishment upon sinners?

(22.) Why did not Manasseh know that the Lord was God before his punishment and repentance?

(23.) God freely forgave Manasseh the moment he repented; does He always act in the same way with sinners?

(24.) Were all the effects of Manasseh's sins blotted out, as well as the sins themselves? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

LIVING THOUGHTS.

Make yourself nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet knows, for none of us has been taught in early youth, what fairy palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts, proof against adversity, bright fancies, satisfied memories, noble histories, faithful sayings, treasure houses of precious and restful thoughts which care cannot disturb nor pain make gloomy nor poverty take away from us—houses built without hands for our souls to live in.—Ruskin

It looks as if we would have to go "short" on ice cream for a while, because of the scarcity of cream, brought about by the warm weather.

What a blessed relief it would have been to the boys and girls if there had been a swimming pool on Manchester Field during the past two weeks. It may come sometime, however, when the waterways work is undertaken. Then, too, bathing may again be permitted in Mystic Lake, which was prohibited last summer because of the foul water that emptied into it from the Aberjona river.

Mr. John H. McCarthy, one of the permanent men at the central fire station who was kicked by one of the fire horses last week sustaining several broken ribs, is improving as rapidly as could be expected. The horse which kicked him is of a kindly and gentle disposition and the only cause that can be assigned was the excessive heat.

The two swell cart horses got mixed up Tuesday forenoon while standing on Wilson street. One of the horses was much annoyed by a fly and in attempting to "swat" it got tangled up on the harness and in attempting to extricate itself from the predicament was thrown to the street. In order to get the animal onto its feet it was necessary to move the heavy cart back, which was accomplished with the help of neighbors after a bit of hard work. The second horse started to run away, but the heat and the fact that he was badly tangled in the harness evidently brought about the conclusion that the effort was not worth while.

MONEY EVERYWHERE.

A Shower of Bills Greets Station Agent Chase.

Station Agent Chase of the Highlands station received quite a surprise Monday afternoon at 1.00 o'clock while he was watching a northbound express train dash by the station. Without the slightest warning he saw the air filled with Uncle Sam's greenbacks, there was a shower of them, and they appeared to come from the swiftly moving train. On picking up a five dollar bill, there was no mistaking its genuineness and he at once became busy, and did not stop until he had in his possession $12 and a long flat wallet. He said that his eyes grew weary and his back ached looking for the money, and all night long he was dreaming of $s. Later word was received from Lowell of the loss and that a man would come for the money later, which he did.

It seems that a young couple were on their way to the country to pass their honeymoon. As the train was approaching the Highlands the newly made groom decided to go forward into the smoking car and as he was passing from one car to another a gust of wind caused him hastily to throw up his hands to prevent his straw hat blowing away. As he did so he struck his wallet which was in his inside pocket and knocked it out and off the train. Then the flap blew open and out came the shower of bills which were scattered in all directions, and it was this money floating through the air that almost threw Mr Chase into a fit. Originally there was $58 in the wallet and a baggage check. In all $42 was recovered, and the young couple will have to curtail their honeymoon to the extent of the loss of $16, unless his father or some kind friends come to their assistance. However, they were lucky to get so large a dividend, for in all probability some of the bills fell upon the running gear of the train and were carried a long distance while some may have been ground up by the wheels.

THE WINCHESTER HIGHLANDS A. C.

Taking everything into consideration, it might well be said that the Winchester Highlands Athletic Club baseball team had a very successful season. It is true, they won but six games and lost six, yet most of the latter were made so through hard luck in the closing innings. Two games were lost in the eleventh inning, one to Winchester High School and the other to the Belmont A. A. of Everett.

Captain Edward Murphy was a great asset to the club, not only pitching superbly in most of the games, but also set the pace to all others in batting. His final average was .415. Manager Gilbert Robinson played a steady game at third base and in the outfield, and was also a strong "sticker." McEwen caught fairly well in the few games he engaged in, but was decidedly weak in batting. Park on first base played a fine game and was also a reliable batter. W. Robinson at second base and shortstop played an erratic game, both in the field and at bat, showing at times flashes of brilliancy, and then again just the opposite. K. Eldredge fielded poorly at short stop and in the outfield, but obtained a high rank in the batting averages. Blank, although weak in batting, put up some fine fielding games. About the middle of the season, however, he was injured through a collision during practice and was unable to play during the remainder of the season. Penahgan who caught in the West Medford game, showed up well both in the field and behind the bat. Belville in the outfield, although playing too few games to judge his fielding ability was, however, well up in batting. Twombly who played shortstop in the West Medford game, showed his ability in both the field and at the bat. Benet, in the outfield, although he played six games, had no chance for showing his worth. His batting until the last of the season was weak. McElhiney played a consistent game both in the outfield and at the bat. Burwell fielded well in center field but was weak in batting until the last of the season. R. Eldredge was the faithful score keeper who enabled the putting of same into print. Fogg played several good games but to few to get a good insight into his ability. Joyce who played the Everett game got in a single. Coach Roland Davies assisted materially in driving away the "jinx" when it appeared.

The batting and fielding averages will appear later.

BASE BALL.

Winchester will play the Bay Views of South Boston on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon at 3.30. This is considered the crack team of South Boston, and Manager LeDuc in securing them for a game has laid out some hard work for the local boys.

On June 17, in a ten inning game, they defeated the local team 4 to 3.

GOING AT A MERRY CLIP.

Local Base Ball Team Going at a Merry Clip.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our Winchester Base Ball Team is now going at a Merry Clip. It is needless to say that much of the credit for the classy article of ball played is due to Mr. George LeDuc, manager, who by the long periods of instruction that he has given the team has developed one of the best amateur nines in this state. He started the season with the same team that represented the town last year, but although this team was good enough to play the ones brought here last year, about one third of them showed that they were not fast enough to cope with the very strong teams now being played. So three or four new men were secured and now Winchester is being represented by a team that is as good as the best. Each member of the team has been given a natty uniform, so that aside from being one of the best playing teams they are also one of the neatest teams in this vicinity. Besides that spent for uniforms the management has also expended much money for new bases, shoes, new covering for the grand-stand, masks, bats, etc. While I could write much in praise of the team lack of space in your estimable paper makes briefness a necessity. Suffice it to say that each gentleman of the team is a star in his respective position and the conduct of each one is most exemplary. Now just a word about the gathering that witness these games. By far the greater majority are loyal, dyed-in-the-wool fans. But there is that other miserable little element, the knockers and sore-heads that go about and make life miserable for those who wish to see a good game and not to listen to a dialogue, or argument, or whatever you would call it, about the merits of this year's team compared with last years, what a rotten player that fellow is, the punk manager, etc. You must have heard him. We all have. We have insects and pests but the worst insect, the most dreaded pest in the ball field is the knocker, the sore-head.

A Fan.

GRADE CROSSING COMMITTEE

At the last session of the special town meeting in June, a committee consisting of Lewis Parkhurst, Preston Pond and Arthur H Russell was appointed from the floor to select a committee of five to consider all the plans that had been presented for the elimination of the grade crossing and also any additional plans, and report at the next town meeting. The committee selected is as follows

Maurice F. Brown,
Robert Cot,
Charles F. Dutch,
Vincent Farnsworth,
Frank S. Snyder.

A special town meeting will be held in the early fall when these gentlemen will undoubtedly make their report.

They will have many plans to consider, nearly all of them having some good features, and to a great extent it will devolve on the committee to pick out these good features and decide on a plan that will meet with the approval of the town. The Boston & Maine Railroad will, no doubt, suggest a method, as it is understood that a Board created for this purpose will carefully look the ground over and report. This Board and the committee should get together and decide on some scheme that will be agreeable to the inhabitants and the railroad.

NOWELL—DROMBLEY.

Mr. George R. Nowell and Miss Delia Drombley were united in marriage by Rev. Father Rogers at the parochial residence last evening.

The groom was attended by his brother, William Nowell, as best man and Miss Florence Nowell, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Miss Margaret Bennett of Woburn made a very pretty flower girl.

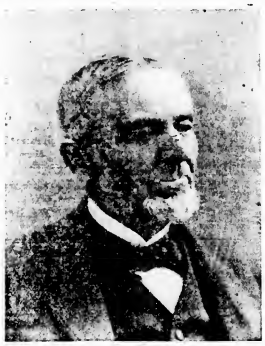

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, 67 Main street, where the young couple were congratulated by hosts of young friends.

Following the reception dainty refreshments were served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Nowell started on a wedding trip.

CHARGES UNFOUNDED.

The grand jury investigation of the "county ring" and "Lowell pit" charges of which the people of Middlesex county heard so much during election time, was concluded Tuesday and in a report covering 55 type written pages the investigators report that all the charges alleging corruption, graft, malfeasance, waste and extravagance were unfounded.

On the charges of "waste and extravagance" "graft contracts" and "corruptly using office for political purposes," the county commissioners were given a clean bill of health and the grand jury said: "We wish to congratulate the county of Middlesex on the character of its public servants. Their integrity has not been assailed. We are satisfied that the business affairs of the county are well managed."

MARSHALL SYMMES
Oldest Man in Winchester Passes Away.

MARSHALL SYMMES.

The Oldest Man in Winchester Passes Away.

Mr. Marshall Symmes, the oldest man in Winchester and a direct descendant of Rev. Zachariah Symmes, one of the earliest settlers in this section, passed away at his home, Symmes Corner, early Wednesday morning. He was in his 93d year, and up to last September had been in the enjoyment of fairly good health. Since then he had been gradually failing, but was not compelled to take to his bed until a few weeks ago.

At the time of his death he owned a part of the land of the original Zachariah Symmes grant, this land being situated across the street from where he lived, and since 1634 has been farmed continuously. The deceased had perhaps the largest farm in this vicinity, comprising as it does 123 acres, and now in all probability it will be disposed of as the land has become too valuable for farming purposes.

Up to the time he was 85 years of age he was a man of much vigor, giving close attention to his extensive farm, and riding horseback over hill and across land of the toughest description. He took a deep interest in the affairs of Winchester almost up to the time of his death, and his activites assisted materially in the beautiful Winchester of today. His wife died six years ago.

Marshall Symmes was born in Medford now Winchester, October 27, 1818, his parents being Marshall and Lephe Stowell Symmes. He was of the seventh generation from Zachariah Symmes, who came to America in 1634. Mr. Symmes learned the trade of blacksmith, in which he was engaged for twenty years. Since 1866 he has been a market gardener. He has held a number of important offices in town, having been a member of the School Committee in 1852, Assessor in 1853 and 1856, Superintendent of Streets in 1863. He was a member of the Unitarian Church. He married Miss Abbie Stowell of Worcester, June 17, 1845, and leaves five children, Frederick M., Mrs. J. W. Russell, Anna E., Samuel S., and Mrs. Alfred S. Hall of Revere.

During the funeral services this afternoon, the flag on all school buildings will be half mast.

NOT ON THE BEAR SIDE.

The following was taken from an exchange, but we do not vouch for its accuracy:

Thomas W. Lawson, Boston financier, who has been spending his vacation "somewhere" in the West, has been discovered. He was located by a bear—an ordinary black bear at that, and not of the stock market species.

Mr. Lawson has been living on the ranch of an old friend, Thomas Sharp, in Oregon, near Prineville. The trout fishing has been good and Mr. Lawson was wont to hike about 12 miles up certain streams daily.

Last Saturday he went away, after telling Mrs. Sharp of the trout he would bring home for Sunday dinner. When darkness was an hour away and Mr. Lawson was late to dinner, Sharp started after him. After a walk of three miles he heard a faint "Hello!" and recognized Mr. Lawson's voice.

In a few minutes he reached the banks of Willow creek and saw a sight, one that would be worth good money to see. Out on the end of a log suspended over the water sat Mr. Lawson, astride. His face was red, his hat minus, one shoe gone, the other in his right hand, poised ready to be thrown. On the bank sat a bear—a big black fellow—slowly devouring trout Mr. Lawson had thrown to him, evidently to induce him to leave.

Mr. Lawson said he had been a prisoner five hours.

Miss Margaret Doherty underwent an operation at the Carney Hospital Monday.

NOW THEN BOYS!

Prizes Offered to Winchester Ball Players.

The boys of the Winchester Base Ball Club have been putting up an excellent game this season and their work is being much appreciated by all who enjoy a good snappy clean game. To encourage the members for the entertainment they are furnishing the stay-at-homes, Mr. H. B. Winn, the local merchant, will present to the member of the club who, at the close of the season, holds the highest batting average, having played in at least 10 games, a coat sweater of the best possible quality. Sweater on exhibition at Winn's Gents' Store, 2 Mt. Vernon street.

Mr. John F. O'Connor, the druggist, has offered a box of cigars to the member making the largest number of runs during the season. The only condition being that the member must have played ten games or more during the season.

The STAR will present $5.00 to the player who has the best batting average under above conditions as regarding number of games.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

July 17, 1911.

Regular meeting at 7.30 p. m. Entire board present.

Mr. Stephen Thompson appeared before the board in regard to the surface drainage at the corner of Wildwood and Fletcher streets. It was voted that the Town Engineer confer with Mr. Thompson and view the location.

Mr. John McNally of Winchester place complained of the nuisance created on the town land in the rear of his property. Matter referred to Supt. of Streets.

Mr. Locke of the Arlington Gas Light Co., came before the board with the proposal that the company intended to lay a new iron main on Church street before that street is to be rebuilt.

Mr. Robinson of the New England Telephone Co., was also in attendance and stated that the company did not contemplate any underground work on Church street within the next five years.

Mr. Ogden asked for permission to blast out the surface of the roadway near Symmes corner, to enable him to build a granolithic sidewalk. Permission granted subject to his giving a bond holding the town harmless during such work.

Voted to authorize the Treasurer to borrow $50,000 in anticipation of taxes.

Mr. Brigham was present regarding repairs which he felt should be made on the surface drain on Myrtle street. Referred to Town Engineer.

Mr. Thomas O'Loughlin complained of the damage being done the trees on his property by the electric wires which pass through them. Clerk instructed to notify the corporations having interests at that point.

Voted to build a drain on Mt. Vernon street also to improve Stevens street roadway near Mt. Vernon street.

Received from H. W. Briggs and others of Calumet road a check for $9.86 on account of oiling on said street.

Letter from Dr. C. J. Ayl resigning as one of the Fire Engineers. Resignation accepted.

Messrs. Parker & Lane submitted bid for coal for Town Hall. Referred to sub committee.

Order passed that Mr. Pond confer with Mr. Joslin, Town Counsel, relative to new flag pole on the common.

Voted, that granolithic sidewalk be built on Everett avenue, southerly side) from Bacon street to a point nearly opposite Sheffield West in accordance with plans of Town Engineer.

Warrants drawn for $1295.43 and $1750.20.

Adjourned at 11.30 p. m.

William J. Daly,
Clerk Pro Tem.

TRADERS' DAY.

The annual Traders' Day will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 2. Mr. Gene B. Farrow has made arrangements to have the outing at Bass Point, which seems to be the popular resort for the majority of the traders. All the stores in town will be closed during the day, and while all traders will not go to Bass Punt, every one will be pretty certain to go to some summer resort.

The usual games will be arranged for, and if the weather should not prove to be storming a delightful time is anticipated.

The following will close for the day:

GENEROUS OFFER.

Mr. Thomas W. Lawson has offered to the Visiting Nurse Association for a cottage hospital either the Tyler house or the house formerly occupied by Mr. Hurd for the term of five years. These estates are both close together on the Main street near the top of Black Horse hill. The only stipulation made by Mr. Lawson is that the Association pay the taxes. The Hurd house is not well arranged for a hospital, while much money would have to be expended on the Tyler house for repairs, etc. No action has yet been taken on accepting Mr. Lawson's offer and there probably will not be until fall when the officers return from their vacations.

The matter of taking the Reynold's estate on Washington street, owned by Mr. Philip Blank, has not made much progress, and it looks as if the parties may not be able to come together on questions that have arisen.

BANDA ROSSA.

The second concert will be given on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon at 3.30, and will be by D'Avino's Boston Banda Rossa. This band furnished the music here on July Fourth, and its excellent playing was much commented upon.

The long continued dry weather is having its effect on lawns and gardens of all kinds, and unless a change comes vegetables will be pretty dear the coming fall and winter. The pea crop was a failure.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator read with much interest in one of the exchanges reaching his desk this week that "a man is not a sweet potato." While this no doubt can be proven by the food experts yet The Spectator is painfully aware that certain men have been called in the privacy of their own homes "cabbage heads" and "pumpkins." Occasionally The Spectator hears of men who are classified as "dead beats." To carry the vegetable allegory further some men are addicted to "spanking" and others of them are partial to eggs as well as "kale." However, while The Spectator is unable to testify as to their saccharine qualities there are men here in Winchester or elsewhere who are "pretty small potatoes."

The Spectator wonders how many are aware of the fact that the waste paper which the town collects from the houses is worth $7 a ton. This figure is considered low by some shippers of waste papers as the more money than this, but this is a conservative estimate, and might represent the average price for the year which the varying methods of the year are considered. It surely cannot cost much more to bale this paper than it would to destroy it, and the cost to Winchester is $7 per ton. There is none to much waste paper in this country at the present time, enormous though the quantity is. The box board factories make frequent importations from foreign lands, the domestic supply not being large enough to supply the demand made upon it. Thus the price is liable to be held up to a good figure for some time to come. If the town collects waste paper from its residents it ought to be business like enough to secure some gain from it to offset the expense. It can do so by following The Spectator's suggestion. A ton of paper can be baled about as cheaply as it can be burned, and the difference in gain is represented by $7 versus nothing, but a pile of ashes.

The Spectator has had his attention called to the large number of people who use the railroad tracks as a public way. Every day dozens of men and women too, pass up and down the tracks in Winchester. During the last 10 years 7996 persons have been killed and 7585 have been injured while walking upon the tracks of a single railroad system, the Pennsylvania. Four years ago that railroad began a campaign of education, in which state and municipal authorities joined, and yet the fatalities still continue to be about two a day, over the 11,255 miles of track. This year trespassers are being prosecuted with more vigor than ever. Other roads would probably not make much better showings. Men and boys are killed in large numbers because they will take the railroad tracks as the shortest cut home. To be caught trespassing means a fine. And yet generally a man will not be caught. It will do no harm, he thinks to take the risk. To be caught by a train means death. But it is only now and then a man argues that anyone is caught. The risk does not amount to much. There are a great many people who are in an awful hurry. And they do not care to keep to the highway. And just so long as this is so, just so long as people are not concerned about tool hardiness, men will continue to be killed, and "no trespassing" signs will do little good.

A learned legal gentleman informs The Spectator that the growing prevalence of marital separation as scribable to the high cost of living and the increasing ability and opportunity of woman to give her own subsistence. Carried to its final analysis the ultimate result of the correctness of this theory will be the total disappearance of the marriage relation.

The pastor of a large church which The Spectator once attended maintained that mankind of the present day are not descendants of Adam and Eve but the product of evolution proceeding from the ape. To most people such a theory is repugnant, but really examples are occasionally encountered which seem to substantiate it.

There is none so colored blind in Winchester or in any other place that would mistake a bright green five dollar bill for a red rag.

Some persons believe absence of something to worry about to be ominous.

A little flattery now and then is relished by most modest people.

Information reaches The Spectator's desk to the effect that a man in a nearby community committed suicide because he had told a lie. The Spectator is inclined to believe that it was because the lie got him into a lot of trouble.

The trouble is that those who set themselves up as critics of the newspaper lose sight of the fact that, as in many other things, people's tastes as to the character of the news they want differ. It is just as essential that the workers on the press should take cognizance of this as it is that the merchant should carry a large variety of goods in his stock in order to satisfy the varying fancies of his patrons. One of the essential functions of The STAR, for instance, is to be a recorder of events of Winchester, to chronicle substantially, everything that happens here in town that is likely to be of interest to the public it serves or any portion of it. The field, therefore, that The STAR covers, is a broad one.

The Spectator knows a four year-old miss. Often in her excitement she makes very odd remarks. For instance, the other day she cried out, "Oh mother, the cat's dead mother kitten all curdled up in the corner."

A mother had taken her son to task for his very persistent habit of wanting some thing to eat in the nighttime. "I never do," she said. "Well, I don't care to eat anything in the night either," was the reply, "only for the sugar in the water."

Do you know the color of your own eyes? Few can tell correctly without stopping to think. A teacher in one of our public schools was aware of this fact, and to test the knowledge of her pupils tried a little experiment. After correcting the papers of one of the classes, she said, "Those with blue eyes may come forward and get their papers." About a third of the class responded. "Now those with brown eyes," she said. All but one came forward. "Why didn't you come with the rest?" she asked of the one remaining. "Cause I didn't know what color it was going with," was the reply, "one of my eyes is blue and the other is brown."

A lady in lifting on her diamond earring to fasten the loosened setting discovered the stone and it slipped down her throat. The diamond was a very valuable one. It is to be hoped that even the well-to-do will regard as so costly a pinch.

A WELL PLAYED GAME.

In a well played game on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon the Winchesters took the last St. Paul's team of Cambridge into camp to the tune of 5 to 1, the visitors scoring one in their half of the ninth with two out.

The Winchester runs came hard, they scoring 1 in the second and third, 2 in the fourth and 1 in the fifth. But they played with the steadiness and confidence that wins.

They are playing a fast, snappy game in the field, and are also hitting the ball hard, and they look good to give the best teams in the state a hard battle to beat them.

Young Whittaker has proved a stumbling block to all the four teams he has faced and has certainly made good in fast company. This boy looks good to make his mark in the baseball world.

The features of the game for the visitors was a catch of a foul fly by McDonald for which he ran clear to the swings.

For the home team a fast play by Murray and Doherty in the first, catching a man at third, and the base running of Thornton and Murray, both going from first to third on bunts.

MUST PAY FOR THE SERVICE.

Political Editor:—I am sending you the letter which I have addressed to Republicans in the towns and cities of the state. I realize fully that I may be asking too much to expect that you print it in full. I hope you will publish as much of it as possible, since I know of no other way to get my case before the public in general. If you possibly could publish it all, I should appreciate the kindness very much. If your paper is crowded at the time you receive this copy, I should rather wait over an issue or two if I could have more room. I have no right to ask for editorial endorsement, but I do hope you will give me a good start in your news columns.

Very sincerely,

The above is but one of many requests which have reached The STAR, asking that someone's candidacy be boomed. Just why a newspaper should be expected to render such a service, free of charge, no one can explain, and the STAR must respectfully decline, for it is political advertising, pure and simple, and will be charged for at the regular advertising rates.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The upper and lower Mystic lakes and the Aberjona river have a grayish white hue during the past week, believed to be caused by vegetation in the water. The condition is what is commonly known as "the lake in bloom." The oil from the boulevard and the streets bordering the lakes and the solution of arsenate of lead spray used on the trees and foliage on the shores to kill the gypsy and brown tail moth caterpillars is also believed to have something to do with the unusual coloring of the waters. The lakes assumed the same condition about this time last year after a prolonged dry period.

A black spaniel dog belonging to Mr. Patrick Sullivan of Spruce street, showed signs of the rabbies Monday night, and caused considerable alarm to the family. The dog was out doors trying to get into the house, and was acting very peculiar, so much so that one of the inmates becoming curious opened the door a little, but on observing that he was frothing at the mouth quickly shut the door. He was quarantined in the yard and later showing no signs of improvement, Officer O'Connell was called and requested to shoot him, this being deemed advisable for the safety of the public and the family.

AUTO WENT DOWN HILL.

Last week Thursday evening a touring car which was going up the main street met with a mishap that long will be remembering to workmen who were engaged in tearing up the hill. The car was coming down when it became unmanageable and about two hundred feet down the hill it struck a telephone pole. Breaking the pole off close to the ground and continuing on its way it finally ran against the electric pole on Washington street at the foot of the hill. Here it came to a standstill. The occupants decided not to again attempt to go up the hill and leaving their car started down the hill and later took a trolley car to their home but after having gone but a short distance the car overtook them and they concluded the remainder of the journey on foot.

The machine was operated by Mr. Frank Lally of Dorchester and besides him contained a gentleman and two ladies. The occupants were very much frightened, and relief was expressed when the trouble was over. The occupants were on their way to visit a family near the top of the hill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Never in the history of vaudeville has there been such wide spread interest aroused over an attraction as that which has been shown over "The Meistersingers' All-Star Minstrels" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. In fact, this wonderful company of fifty has proved a revelation not only in vaudeville but in the minstrel history of America. There has certainly never been a chorus to equal the fifty male voices that are singing the old Southern songs and the modern minstrel numbers, while "The Meistersingers" themselves are being heard to better advantage than at any time during their engagement.

It will be worth while for parents to bring their children to see this form of amusement that was so popular in America for many years at its highest development, and see the men whose names have been so long identified with it. As last week, Mr. Keith has provided an exceptionally strong bill outside of the minstrel circle. It will include Trovato, the wonderful Filipino violinist; Meneteseel whose appearance brings a novelty in the way of invisible writings never before seen in Boston; Nett & Starr, musical comedians; Cullison & Villa Co.; Dutt & Walsh and the Toleen Sisters.

REMOVING DEAD TREES.

Notwithstanding the numerous insect pests that have harrassed the shade trees of New England during the last few years, experience has proved that it often costs less to keep the tree alive than it does to cut it down when it is dead. Medford, Cambridge, Somerville and other places know that the removal of dead trees is an expensive and delicate undertaking, especially on streets where there are large numbers of electric wires or heavy travel.

In one of the nearby suburbs a monster elm was killed by the elm leaf beetles and leopard moths, and its removal cost the city $12.

AUTOCRATIC GOVERNOR

But Legislature Insisted on Its Constitutional Rights

WARM TIMES ON BEACON HILL

Undermanned Fire Department Disturbs Boston—Mayor Fitzgerald May Be Recalled—District Attorney Pelletier Criticised—Governor Foss a Candidate

The legislature failed to finish its work last week, and postponed prorogation till this week. It would seem to be practically impossible for prorogation, so long as the governor was sending in from one to six messages a day to the great and general court on which he demanded legislation. In order to legislate there must be time to consider the subject matter upon which such legislation is based. It seemed to the members of the great and general court as if the governor wished to suggest legislation and have it acted upon at once without consideration by the two branches of the legislature. It has not been customary in Massachusetts to enact legislation in that manner. The executive department has orally attended to its own affairs and left the legislature free to do it the right right as is provided by the constitution of the commonwealth.

The governor has stated several times that he would approve the legislature when it had done what he demanded of it and that this might not be before the first of August. If there is any blame to be attached to so long a session of the legislature, members insist that it belongs entirely to the executive. The members have acted under their oaths to serve the commonwealth faithfully and honestly to the best of their individual ability. They realize that usually serving with the governor rather than with the legislature, nevertheless, they do what they know to be the best they can do to serve the state and that had they enacted all the legislation demanded by the governor they would have been faithless to their oaths and to the best interests of the commonwealth. It is a significant fact that 35 democratic members of the legislature are almost a unit against the Democratic governor. Quite frequently the few supporters the governor had were Republicans. Members claim that this fact must condemn the conduct of the governor. It might have been left to the voters. If he were in the right he should have some party support.

Boston is greatly disturbed over a special understanding that its fire department is undermanned. This matter was brought to the attention of Mayor Fitzgerald a number of times before he left for Europe to join a chamber of commerce committee traveling on the continent. At a recent fire in the Dorchester district, however, the charge was proved conclusively that a great wave of indignation has swept over the entire city. The newspapers have called on Acting Mayor Collins to remedy the situation by the appointment of a number of new men and though it has been alleged that the acting mayor has no authority to make appointments in the absence of the mayor, nevertheless, he evidently thinks that his authority is ample and that his duty is plain, for he has announced his intention of asking the city council to make a transfer of funds to pay for fifty new firemen. By so doing the acting mayor intentionally or unintentionally has put the mayor "in a hole," and this and other matters have caused a sharp revival of the talk heard some time ago regarding an attempt to recall the mayor next January. It looks now as if the effort would be made although from present indications it would be very difficult to accomplish, for Mayor Fitzgerald always has such a plausible method of campaigning and appeals openly and covertly to such diverse elements. It is possible, of course, that those who are back of the movement may have evidence which they believe would successfully appeal to the voters, but on the surface there are apparently no new scandals like the ones that disgraced his first administration.

In the meantime, it is a significant fact that District Attorney Pelletier, for whose nomination the mayor was largely responsible, has not pressed the so-called coal graft case in which the manager of the Niver Coal company was under indictment for furnishing to the city of Boston an inferior grade of coal to that specified in the contract during Mayor Fitzgerald's first term. There was a general belief that the evidence was sufficient but the district attorney accepts that under the facts which exist in the case he does not think he could secure a conviction and that for that reason he ought not to put the county to the expense of a trial. One of the newspapers editorially characterizes this action of the district attorney as "Pelletier's default."

There is no doubt now that Governor Foss will be a candidate for renomination as [illegible] the sufficient signatures to enable him to run has been taken out in his behalf by his friends. In fact, there never has been any doubt in the minds of the politicians that he intended to try for a second term. It is well-known that he has been led to believe that if re-elected governor in a Republican state he would be a formidable candidate in the Democratic national convention for nomination to the vice presidency. Those who know something about national politics, however, smile at the notion of a New England man being selected for a second place on a national ticket for the reason that national conventions generally, as a matter of shrewd politics, nominate candidates from the largest states or from states where the voters are somewhat in doubt as to whether they prefer the reasonable protection offered to manufacturing industries by the Republicans or the cut-throat competition from other countries offered to our industries by the free trade Democrats.

Governor Foss did not reappoint Chairman Warren of the state civil service board at the meeting of the executive council last week, although all the reform organizations have been strongly in favor of his reappointment, so Mr. Warren is now a holdover official. Last week the governor told a newspaper man that he should reappoint Mr. Warren if some better man was not recommended to him, and though Sherwin L. Cook, a former Republican of Boston who has now announced himself as a Democrat and most of the Democratic leaders in Boston to whom Governor Foss owes his election have asked the governor to appoint a Boston man and throw down Warren, it is doubtful if what they say in the matter will have any influence.

Republican members of the legislature have organized for the fall campaign. A committee of eleven members has been authorized to secure the better co-operation of Republican workers with their state committee in the coming campaign. This committee will consist of the chairman and secretaries of the senatorial delegations in the forty districts in the commonwealth. An executive committee of ten members will be chosen from the full committee of eleven to co-operate directly with the state committee. This is regarded by Republican leaders as a step in the right direction and one that ought to secure greater harmony in the party and a greater adherence to party principles than has been manifested in the past.

Senator Roger S. Hoar of Concord has decided to close his service in the senate with the end of the present session. He has been considerably in the limelight since his name was presented as a Democrat a month or two ago for Democratic nomination for governor, partly by reason of the fact that he represents a Democratic district and partly by the fact that he was the youngest member of the senate. It is understood that Representative McCarthy of Medford is to be the Democratic candidate for election in his place.

Too Much For Him.

Voltaire could not speak much English. The reason why he refused to study the language is this: It was drilled into him that "plaque" was pronounced "plak," which he thought very pretty and acceptable. But right on top of it he was introduced to "ague," which his teacher said must be called "a-gue." Finding it impossible to reconcile the difference, he went off into a philosophical tantrum and dropped the studs.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Comforters.

A bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, in poor health, took a carriage drive with his family in midsummer among the White mountains. They stayed over Sunday at Bethlehem, N. H., and as he felt somewhat fatigued the bishop remained in his room at the hotel during the early part of the Sabbath, his good wife staying with him to administer to his wants. But their bright little girl, Thelma, about six years old, was allowed to attend the service at a neighboring church, with instructions to remember the text for the edification of her parents. In due time the little girl came back.

"Well, my dear," said her mother, with a kind smile, "did you remember the text?"

"Oh, yes, mamma," replied the little girl, with great confidence. "It was an easy one. It was 'Don't be scared and you'll have a quilt.'"

"Why, you must have made an odd mistake, dear," exclaimed her mother. "There isn't any such text as that in the Bible."

"That was the text, though, mamma," replied Thelma in a very positive manner. "I've kept saying it to myself so as not to forget it."

There was so much controversy and so many conjectures over this remarkable text that the bishop finally went to see the clergyman who preached at the neighboring church, related the story and asked concerning the text. It was:

"Fear not; ye will have a comforter."

Longevity.

"Paw, doesn't the good book say that wicked men shall not live out half their days?"

"It says something to that effect, I believe, Tommy. Why?"

"Well, there's old Hunks. He's already seventy-five and doesn't show any signs of dyin'. Either he ain't so awfully wicked or else he was built to live about 200 years."—Chicago Tribune.

Giving It Away.

Mr. Jones—And what's that, Tommy? Tommy idesirous of pleasing his naturalist uncle by giving him an opportunity to display his learning—Don't know, uncle.

Mr Jones—Ah, well, that is the larval state of a lepidopterous insect, possibly even of Argynnis aphrodite.

Tommy—Great Scott! I thought it was a caterpillar.—Sketch.

Another Viewpoint.

Singleton—Single blessedness beats matrimony every time.

Wedderly—Oh, I don't know. Matrimony has its advantages.

Singleton—You'll have to show me.

Wedderly—Well, for example, a bachelor has to pay to attend lectures, while a married man gets his at home for nothing.—Chicago News.

Frank Criticism.

The colored lady was undecided in regard to the pose that would display her beauty to advantage.

"I think a profile would be best," suggested the photographer.

Lack of Material.

Hilda—Well, there's one thing I can say—I never made a cloak of my religion.

Bertha—No, dear; there's not enough of it for that. Might be enough, perhaps, to make you a pocket handkerchief.—Stray Stories.

A Compliment?

"I wonder what the teacher meant about the singing of my two daughters?"

"What did he say?"

"He said that Maude's voice was good, but Maud's was better still."—Catholic News.

Drawing Distinctions.

"Who is your favorite author?" asked Maud.

"What do you mean," rejoined Maymie, "the one whose pieces I like to read or the one whose picture looks cutest in the advertisement?"—Washington Star.

The Sarcastic Victim.

The Cynic—Good! I know it was in me. Now, for goodness sake, don't talk to it or it will crawl back again!—Catholic Standard and Times.

Too Big an Ambition.

"He's a fine poet, isn't he?"

"Yes, but he's trying to accomplish too much with his verse."

"What is he trying to do?"

"To sell it."—Cleveland Leader.

Fluent.

"Pa, what's a fluent speaker?"

"One of the kind you are glad to hear because the things he says never cause you to change your opinion."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Natural Propensity.

"Billy Bangs is such a nice, breezy sort of fellow."

"Yes; I suppose that is why he finds it so easy to raise the wind."—Baltimore American.

Just a Nod In Passing.

Murrayhill—They say fortune raps on every man's door at some time.

Broadway—Well, she hasn't so much as called me up on the telephone!—Smart Set.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

For One Year, the Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

By a majority Reading has voted against spending $30,000 for establishment of a gas distributing plant.

The present Legislature does not take a great deal of stock in a business Governor. This indifference on their part to his suggestions, has not, however, injured Governor Foss in the estimation of the voters a great deal.

A few years ago waste barrels were placed about town, but they have disappeared. There is nothing that accomplished so much good and at such little expense. They save the streets from becoming littered with paper and refuse.

The Legislature has asked the railroad commissioners to consider the advisability of prohibiting rail road corporations from charging more than half fare for passengers not furnished a seat. This would only result in further crowding o the cars to save the half fare.

The present Legislature ha entered upon the seventh month of its service. No session of any previous Legislature has ever extended beyond July 27, and that one in 1883, known as the "Butler year." The present will doubtless be remembered as the "Foss year."

The new grade crossing committee is composed of gentlemen who have not been prominent at town meetings, and, so far as known, have not expressed a preference for any particular method of abolition. Therefore an unbiased report will be expected. They will go over the situation thoroughly!

It begins to look as if Dr. Wiley, head of the bureau of chemistry at Washington, and father of the pure food law, would at last be forced out of office by the food adulterators assisted by Attorney General Wickersham. It is to be hoped that President Taft will not make the same mistake in heeding Wickersham's advice that he did in the Ballinger case when Pinchot and Glavis were forced out of office, and later vindicated by the discharge of Ballinger. The President should now reinstate these men.

"There is no room in the United States for a pessimist or an idler," says Champ Clark. "Any man who misses two general elections should be disfranchised. Our forbears did not fight so we could sit at home. They wanted us to have our say at election. That's what the scrap was about. If I had one prayer that I was sure to be answered, it would be that every citizen should acquire sufficient education to read his own ballot and cast it as American citizens should. Hoodlums run nine-tenths of our elections and the hoodlum who goes out and votes is a better citizen than the man who fails to cast his ballot. It is the duty of every Christian citizen to take a hand in politics."

Operators Held to Account.

In France the operators of aeroplanes are held responsible for damage done to persons or property when coming to the earth. In two cases such operators have been found guilty of homicide and punished, although the punishment was not as great as that for other forms of the same crime.

A REPLY TO PROFESSOR CURRIER.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Being on a vacation at the time and not remembering what I wrote for the issue of June 9th, I did not reply to the learned Professor's temperate letter of the 7th inst. in re Observations of three weeks ago, but as I have never known him to speak on or seem to care much about what was said either in The STAR or in town meeting regarding anything excepting school questions, I knew I must have said something about his chosen field that riled even his placid mind and on my return last Saturday sure enough I found it, for I had said we voted to issue the school bonds in 1903 illegally and then when they could not be sold because of it, we attempted to get them by with a substitute bill which Governor Bates vetoed in a scathing message the truth of which statement the Professor will not attempt to deny.

I have voted at every election in Winchester for thirty-five years and have attended all town meetings during that time and was born in the town fifty-six years ago. I hardly think I will ask the Professor's advice upon what I shall or shall not say on public questions, although it is quite possible he considers the school question a private one. It is common knowledge now that sufficient pressure will keep anything out of the columns of the press and that applies to all of the Boston papers and nearly all others throughout the country including locals of course, but I rather think it will take much more than his voice and pen aided and abetted by all of those upon whose toes I may have trod to stop my voice in town meeting. Publicity is what is needed, whether about illegal bond issues or assessing or subterfuge park acts or anything else, it not, why not?

Meet me on the floor of the old town meeting Professor where you ought not to be afraid to meet one who you say has, "no following, no supporters, no confidence and no respect to his fellow citizens." I shall be there.

So far as the columns in The STAR are concerned I have been there as Echoes and Observations for fifteen years and perhaps that is long enough.

Yours, truly
John H. Carter.

TREE TRUNK CANNON.

Wonderful Wooden Hide Wound Guns of the Antilles.

The mention of wooden guns suggests a company of boy soldiers commanded by a captain who wears a tin sword. The revolutionary soldiers of Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic, however, have from time to time made cannon from trees and applied them to practical purposes. In the Antilles there grows a peculiar tree with a wild ass grain, so tenacious of fiber that to split it by ordinary means is almost an impossibility.

When wanted for artillery purposes the tree is felled, a section some five feet in length and one foot in diameter is selected and cut, the bark is removed, and uneven places on the surface are dressed down.

The embryo cannon is then placed on rude trusses and a bore burned in it, a process that serves further still to harden the wood. While the bore is being burned green oxhides are cut into long strips by beginning in the center and working toward the outer edge as one would peel an apple.

When all is in readiness one end of this rawhide band, which is about three inches in width, is spiked to the wooden cannon near the breech. A lever or bar is attached to the butt. Two or three negroes grasp the arms of the bar and slowly turn the hollowed log on its supports. The band of green hide is kept under a strain, and in this way the core of the cannon is wound with one of the toughest materials, wire excepted, in the world.

The first layer of hide is tightly wound to the muzzle of the growing gun and back toward the breech again until a number of layers have thus been wound on and the promising piece of artillery has grown several inches in diameter.

It is then placed in a draft of dry, hot air and allowed to harden. When the hardening and curing process is complete the persevering inhabitants have a really serviceable weapon.

One of these homemade wood and rawhide cannon used during the last Cuban insurrection is said to have withstood 104 charges of powder before becoming useless. The projectiles for it were made of scrap iron, broken stone and fire hardened clay balls.—St. Louis Republic.

OBEDIENCE.

Obedience is the grandest thing in the world to begin with. I do not think the time will ever come when we shall not have something to do, because we are told to do it, without knowing why. • • • The one essential of chivalry was obedience.—George Macdonald.

Politeness.

True politeness is that which when a man is lying to you and you know he is lying impels you to listen to him as though you believed him and impels him to go on lying as though he believes you believe him.—Chicago Post.

TAP DAY AT YALE.

What It Means to the Juniors Who Have "Made Good."

The three great senior societies of Yale—Skull and Bones, Scroll and Key and Wolf's Head—choose on tap day fifteen members each from the junior class, the fifteen members of the outgoing senior class making the choice. Each senior is allotted his man of the juniors and must find him in the crowd at the tree and tap him on the shoulder and give him the order to go to his room. Pale word by his sponsor, he obeys, and what happens at the room no one but the men of the society knows. With shining face the lad comes back later and is slapped on the shoulder and told, "Good work, old man," cordially and with a heartily by every friend and acquaintance—by lads who have "made" every honor possible, by lads who have "made" nothing, just as heartily, for that is the spirit of Yale.

Only juniors room in Durfee hall. On tap day no outsider is lucky who has a friend there, for a window is a proscenium box for the play—the play which is a tragedy to all but forty five of the three hundred and odd juniors. The windows of every story of the graystone facade are crowded with a deeply interested audience. Grizzled heads of old graduates mix with downy hats of women. Every one is watching every detail, every arrival. In front of the hall are a drive and room for perhaps a dozen carriages next the fence—the famous fence of Yale—which rails the campus round. Just inside it, at the northeast corner, rises the tree. People stand up in the carriages, women and men. The fence is loaded with people, often standing, too, to see that tree.

All over the campus surges a crowd—students of the other classes, seniors who last year stood in the compact gathering at the tree and left it sore hearted, not having been "taken;" sophomores who will stand there next year, who already are hoping for and dreading their tap day; little freshmen, each one sure that he at least will be of the elect, and again the iron gray heads, the interested faces of old Yale men, and the gay spring hats like bouquets of flowers.

It is perhaps the most critical single day of the four years' course at the university. It shows to the world whether or no a boy, after three years of college life, has in the eyes of the student body "made good." It is a crucial test, a heartrending test for a boy of twenty years.—Mary R. S. Andrews in Scribner's Magazine.

They Were All "Pills."

One of the fashionable east side churches recently witnessed a funny incident at a choir rehearsal. They were preparing for the following Sunday morning a beautiful selection, the first words of which were, "I am a pilgrim." It so happened that the music divided the word "pilgrim" and made a pause after the syllable. The effect was most amusing. The soprano sang in a high key "I am a pil" and then stopped. The tenor acknowledged that he was a "pil," and when the bass came thundering in with a like declaration, "I am a pil," it was too much for the gravity of the singers, and they roared. No amount of practice could get them past the fatal pause without an outburst, and the piece had to be given up.—Musical World.

Clever Dwarfs.

Richard Gibson and his wife, who flourished in the seventeenth century, were a remarkable pair of dwarfs, quite apart from their inches, which combined barely made up seven feet. Both were clever painters of miniatures, and Gibson was drawing master to the daughters of James II. At their wedding, which was arranged by Henrietta Maria, Charles I. gave the bride away, the queen placed a valuable diamond ring on her finger, and Edmund Waller, the court poet, wrote a poem in honor of the occasion. Gibson was seventy-four when he passed away, while his widow died at the advanced age of eighty-nine years.

Madagascar's Two Climates.

The island of Madagascar has two distinct climates, two classes of natives and two classes of fauna and flora. The island is about the size of France. Along the coast it is tropical and malarious, and the natives are darker than in the interior. The interior is a high tableland and mountainous. There the climate is cooler and the natives smaller and lighter in color than on the coast. But in the interior they are more intelligent, and they rule the island.

Obliging.

Excited Author (rushing behind the scenes)—Why are you cutting out the second and third acts of my play? Manager—I am not cutting anything out. I'm merely varying the order of the acts. Several influential persons in the audience have asked me if it would not be possible to have the hero die in the next act.—Chicago Tribune.

Philosophy.

Learn to be pleased with everything—with wealth, so far as it makes us of benefit to others; with poverty, for not having much to care for, and with obscurity, for being uncriticised.—Plutarch.

Her Own Introduction.

"When did you first become acquainted with your wife?"

"The first time I disagreed with her after we were married."—Puck.

There's beggary in the love that can be reckoned.—Shakespeare.

SUBMARINE SHIPS

Life Aboard These War Craft Is a Sequence of Discomforts.

TORTURE FOR THE NOVICE.

Between Choking For Air and Suffocating From the Fumes of Gasoline the Agony Is Excruciating—Added Terrors When Caught In a Storm.

Submarine boats have been developed to the point where they can cover on their own power a radius of 800 miles in effective fighting trim. In storm and calm the submarines are capable of navigating the seas with credit to their inventors and constructors. With a fleet of these vessels stationed in the vicinity of any of our large coast cities it would be difficult for battleships to get within effective striking distance.

The first impressions received on descending into the hold of a submarine are those of discomfort and suffocation. The accommodations for a crew of thirteen seem about right for half a dozen. One is in too close proximity to whirring machinery, too, to enjoy the sensation.

On all sides are arranged electrical devices and machinery to operate the craft and the torpedoes. A thin shell of steel separates the visitor from the torpedoes, and the outside water is so close that one can almost feel its moisture.

When under way on the surface the submarine hums and trembles. The fumes of gasoline are almost suffocating. There is no escaping from them. Some of the men contract what is called "gasoline heart." If under water too long the fumes make one sick and dizzy.

A novice cannot remain in a submarine under water for any great length of time without suffering excruciating torture. In time, however, one gets used to it, and a trip may be one of enjoyment.

But it is when the submarine dives that the most unpleasant symptoms come. There are ten compressed air tanks supplied, and these furnish sufficient air to keep the crew alive a good many hours.

But did you ever live on compressed air? If not it will be a new sensation, especially if you are fifty feet below the surface of the water. There is a tingling sensation all over the body, a pounding of the eardrums and possibly a sense of nausea.

As the air is antoantically regulated from the compressed air tanks one gets his share of the oxygen, but sometimes the supply may vary. It certainly does in different parts of the ship. One may be choking for lack of good air in one part and be exhilarated by a too abundant supply in another.

Sometimes when the engines are running to charge the batteries the fumes of the gasoline become so strong that men are rendered unconscious. They must be taken up on deck then to get a whiff of fresh air.

For this reason the batteries are only charged when above the water. But in time of war it might be necessary to charge them while running below. Then, indeed, the man aboard the submarine might envy the aerial navigator flying above the sea with his abundance of fresh air to breathe.

Cooking under water is a pretty uncertain and disagreeable work. The only appliance for this purpose is a small electric heater. This is just about big enough to heat water to make a cup of coffee and nothing else. The crew have their food cooked aboard the tender.

The submarine is built on the principle of economizing space in everything. There is no room for anything except the actual necessities. Every inch of space is given over to machinery. This is everywhere compact and efficient, but multiplied so often that one wonders what it is all for.

There is machinery for running the boat, for guiding it under water, for controlling it when it dives, for compressing the air tanks, for operating the torpedoes and even for regulating the power of vision above and below water.

When caught in a storm in a submarine life is really not worth living. It consists of a series of intense struggles to prevent death by being battered against steel walls or to keep from becoming involved in whirring wheels and dynamos. If you survive the ordeal you conclude that it is not necessary to wait for war to find hades. It is with you all the time.—Harper's Weekly.

Quicker.

"How are you makin' out?" asked one Pullman porter.

"Well, I used to think I was doin' pretty good," replied the other, "but after seein' a train held up by a road agent the other day I feel a good deal like throwin' this old whiskbroom away and gettin' a revolver."—Washington Star.

Modern Children.

"How old are you, Elsie?"

"Nine years."

"And you, Erna?"

"I am twelve."

"Really twelve? You are wonderfully well preserved!"—Fliegende Blatter.

Glad He Left.

Actor—There was a thunder of applause when I left the stage. Bored Friend—Sorry you right; You shouldn't stay on so long!

PUBLICITY.

Anything that will promote the confidence of the investing public is a good thing for business institutions. I know of no other one thing which would tend more in this direction than for the corporations to deal frankly and fairly with their stockholders by revealing their actual financial and physical conditions. Shareholders have an unquestioned right to know how the company in which their money is invested is being conducted and how the business stands. There was a time, not long ago, when officers and directors of corporations treated such organizations almost as their personal property. That day has passed.—Secretary Mac-Veagh.

Before and After.

When a girl is engaged to a man she believes him when he tells her he would love to have her walk on him with her tiny feet; after she is married to him she would be satisfied to have him willing to put her rubbers on her without acting as if it were killing him.

Classification of Diamonds.

The diamond called a brilliant has 58 facets. A rose diamond is faceted only on the top; it has a flat bottom.

Unequal Mixed Races.

The Bible is already sold in Canada in 90 different tongues, but 17 other races are now asking that editions be printed in their languages. The British Foreign Bible society has published the Scriptures in 421 different tongues, but it seems 17 more must be made to meet the needs of Canada's heterogeneous population.

They Knew—the Little Scars!

With reference to Mrs. Sarcroth Wright's opinion that, from a hygienic point of view, smoking is an evil, it is interesting to note that children have always shown a successful instinct in this respect.

Is situated in beautiful old Billerica Center, about six miles from Lowell and nearly twenty miles north from Boston. One of the trolley routes from Boston is through the historic towns of Lexington and Bedford.

An old-fashioned House with all modern improvements. Large, airy sleeping rooms with the best of beds, nice bath, hot and cold water, electric lights and hot water heat. Broad piazza, beautiful lawn. Bungalows and tents. Boating and canoeing near by. Rooms quiet, comfortable and homelike. The table we try to have the best with fresh vegetables, berries, milk, cream, chickens and eggs from our own farm.

The elevation of the district, the pure spring water, and hygienic conditions make it an attractive and healthful location. Open all the year.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A farcical play such as "On the Quiet" is especially adapted to summer entertainment at the Castle Square, and it will be Mr. Craig's offering next week.

It was in this play that Willie Collier made no little sensation several seasons ago, and it was written by Augustus Thomas, one of the best known and most popular of American playwrights. Mr. Thomas has no little skill at the construction of plot and the creation of character, and with "Alabama," "The Watching Hour" and a dozen other plays has amused hundreds of thousands of theatre goers.

The plot of "On the Quiet" deals with the rough course of the true love of a reckless young New Yorker and a girl whose ambitious brother wants her to marry a Russian. The action begins promisingly in the conservatory of a billionaire's mansion, proceeds with merry comedy in the parlor of a New Haven hotel, and is completed on board a yacht stuck in the mud in Long Island Sound. It will therefore be seen that "On the Quiet" lacks not for diversity of scene and character, and no little of its amusement comes from that as well as from its bright and witty dialogue.

Mr. Craig for his production of "On the Quiet" will furnish it with an exceptionally effective cast, the leading roles being acted by Gertrude Bailey, Mabel Colcord, William F. Carleton, Frederick Murray and Donald Meek.

Dirt and Disease.

Dirt is the "perfect culture" of all disease and of all that delights in disease. There the microbes of all plagues live and move and have their being undisturbed by the broom or the mop, unafraid of the smell of soap, and never awakened from their rest by the light from any lamp of knowledge that constitutes the science of modern times.

Need of Good Companions.

We went one or two companions of intelligence, ability and sense, to wear out the with; persons by whom we can measure ourselves and who shall hold us fast to good sense and virtue.—Emerson.

Conscience and Custom.

The laws of conscience, which we pretend to be derived from nature, proceed from custom.—Montaigne.

LAND COURT.

To Mary E. Stadley, Annie M. Cutting and Thomas S. Sparr of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court by Donald G. May and Dora M. Nickers of said Winchester, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded Northerly by Grove Street four hundred ten and 50-100 (410.50) feet; Easterly by land now or formerly of Mary E. Studley two hundred ninety and 76-100 (290.76) feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of Annie M. Cutting three hundred sixty-five and 95-100 (365.95) feet; Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Thomas S. Sparr one hundred nineteen and 50-100 (119.50) feet; and Westerly by said Sparr land one hundred sixty one and 21-100 (160.21) feet. Estimated to contain 106,177 square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of August A. D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the prayer of said petition, should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THOMSON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of July in the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

CLARENCE U. SMITH, Recorder.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Nearly every paper and magazine has something in it about the Maine campaign. Only a few weeks remain until the question will be submitted to the arbitrament of the polls. If the women of Maine had the ballot the issue would not be doubtful. Granting the worst that is said of the larger cities, it is a valuable asset of a state that thousands of children in the rural communities have grown to manhood and womanhood without coming in contact with the open saloon and have not even thought that a bar is a necessity of a well regulated community. And it is a well established fact that few people begin to drink after attaining their majority. The impressionable years are the early ones.

In some sections of the country the Unions are very active during the summer season and the county fairs, picnics and Chautauquas are great fields for the propaganda of temperance truths. Just here there seems to be little to do, but it has been suggested that each member may be able to do something in that line by speaking a word in season to those whom they meet, either at home or while on vacation. Have you studied up the subject of the substitutes for alcohol for emergency remedies? Can you tell your neighbor who is near heat prostration why a dose of brandy may be the last straw? If you are a housekeeper do you know how to make cooling drinks quite as palatable as those with a "stick" in them? Have you tried to plan menus that will satisfy without stimulating a desire for liquid refreshments that are not moonless? "There are more ways than one," St. Augustine says, "of sacrificing to the rebel angels." Are you quite sure you are not sacrificing to them under the guise of some apparently innocent action? It is good time to take account of stock.

LOOK AT YOUR APPLES.

The hail storm which we had in Winchester, Tuesday afternoon, June 20, will show its effect quite perceptibly on our local apples, especially those which were of good size and exposed to the north and west sides of the trees.

When the hail stone first strikes the apple it makes a little dent equal to about one quarter the size of the stone and of a depth equal to one third the diameter. This indentation gradually turns the skin russet red and hardens the pulp beneath which turns brown and corky. Sometimes the skin breaks open after a week or so making very unattractive fruit. Buyers of fruit for foreign markets always reject hail marked apples. Look at your apples and see if you can find the marks.

REAL JAVA COFFEE.

You May Get a Cup Almost Any Place Except in Java.

It seems strange that in the far east, where tea and coffee come from, it is very difficult for the traveler in nearly all places in India, the Straits Settlements and elsewhere in the orient to procure a cup of really good tea or coffee. This, says Sir Frederic S. Isham, the novelist, although seemingly paradoxical, is only on a par with conditions in so many of our little American hamlets and villages where good butter, rich cream and good chickens for the residents are practically unobtainable, all of them having been "sent to town."

In Calcutta I heard an American in the best hotel there say to the waiter: "If this," indicating the contents of a cup before him, "is tea, bring me coffee. If it is coffee, bring me tea." And the waiter (an Eurasian, who had no sense of humor, took away the drink and phlegmatically brought something else—equally bad, no doubt.

So after India, Burma and the Malay peninsula we waited with bated breath for the coffee of Java. "Java coffee!" The excellence of it was a childhood tradition. The coffee "mother used to make" was compounded of real Java. In Java surely we should find a nectar of the gods. What did we discover? An extract of coffee served in little cesters! It would have made the gods ill. Another illusion gone!

Don't go to Java for real Java coffee. You may find it in Ypsilanti, Mich., or Paris, O., but you won't unearth it in Java—not for money.

Not to Be Judged by Size.

An interesting and somewhat curious fact is that some of the finest men of genius have had moderate sized heads. Shelley, the poet, was tall, but had a small head, and some of the small men imbued with the divine spark had large heads, apparently proving that the size of the head has little to do with the quality of the brains.

Beside the Guillotine

A Break In the Grim Machine Made a Great Difference.

By HERMAN WINFIELD.

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association.

Truth is so much stranger than fiction that perhaps it is better to state that the main incident of this story actually happened just as it is recorded.

The French revolution had reached that stage commonly designated the reign of terror. Every day the doors of the conciergerie prison opened to let out a number of human beings, not to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," as was enunciated shortly before by the American colonists in their Declaration of Independence, but to suffer death on the guillotine. At first the victims were confined to those who stood for tyranny. The king, the queen, the nobility, royalty and its supporters lost their heads. Then the different factions that had brought about the revolution began to fight for power, and the Conservatives were guillotined by the Radicals. After this whoever desired to get rid of one he wished to remove had but to inform upon him as an enemy to France, and the accused would join the "innumerable caravan" passing under the yoke of the guillotine to his long home.

It was not always an enemy that was to be got rid of. Sometimes it was a friend. That friend might possess something that his death would fall into the hands of the informer.

There lived in Paris at that time a young couple, Henri and Marie Chateaubrun, who were devoted to each other. Henri when the struggle against oppression began took a deep interest in it, advocating the reforms that were proposed. He and a friend of his, Antoine Boyer, became somewhat prominent as leaders in that quarter of the city in which they lived. Boyer, who was a bachelor, came often to the Chateaubruns to consult with his friend upon the course to be adopted by them in public affairs. Marie Chateaubrun took a lively interest in the early efforts of the revolutionists to make France a constitutional monarchy and was usually present at the conferences of her husband and his friend.

During these meetings Boyer conceived a passion for Marie Chateaubrun. For a time he struggled against it, not even acknowledging to himself that he loved his friend's wife. But the time came when he knew that life for him was not worth living without her.

As the revolution progressed the two friends and coworkers found themselves on different paths. Chateaubrun continued a Conservative, while Boyer joined the ranks of the bloodthirsty Jacobins. The latter did not give up his visits to the Chateaubruns. Indeed, he was not able to keep away from the young wife of his friend. Since neither she nor her husband suspected his love he was always welcome.

And now, the revolution having swept beyond the conservatives, those who had hoped for beneficent results to France, who had worked for the beginning of a better regime, found themselves in the position of enemies to their country. In attempting to stay the flow of blood they incurred the enmity of those who were shedding it. Then it was that Mme. Chateaubrun began to fear for the safety of her husband. She urged him to retire from any further participation in public affairs, to go to a small estate he owned in the country. But, dangerous as it was to continue a contest with the leaders of the mob, Chateaubrun was too much of a man to cease to defend what he considered the best interests of his country.

Fierier and hotter grew the mob, requiring of their leaders more and larger drafts of blood. Mme. Chateaubrun begged her husband to leave Paris. He sent for his friend Boyer, now one of the Jacobin leaders, and asked him what he had better do. Boyer said he would take the matter under advisement and let him know his conclusions.

The day after this interview there was a knock at Chateaubrun's door, and when it was opened a party of soldiers entered and informed Chateaubrun that he was under arrest by order of the convention. In spite of his clinging wife he was dragged away and lodged in the conciergerie.

He demanded all arrested persons made the demand to know the charge brought against him. He received no reply till he was brought up for the semblance of a trial he was given, then was informed that he was accused of conspiring with others to bring the Duke of Brunswick across the border and establish him as king. Chateaubrun knew that there was not a word of truth in the charge, but its very absurdity told him that it was a pretext rather than an accusation, and he lost hope at once.

There were twenty-one persons tried at the same time with Chateaubrun and convicted on various pretexts. They were all sentenced to be executed on the guillotine on the same day. All were imprisoned in the conciergerie, which was the depot of supplies, so to speak, for the terrible engine of death. The day before the execution Mme. Chateaubrun went to Boyer and begged him to save her husband. He told her that to show favor to one convicted by the mob's tribunal would be to endanger his own head. She was astonished that he considered the risk in the case of his old friend, but Boyer maintained resolutely that he dare not interfere. From Boyer the wife went to the conciergerie to tell her husband of the failure of her mission and to bid him goodby. She was taken from the prison and carried home in a swoon.

The next morning a number of carts were backed up to the door of the conciergerie, and a soldier in the prison called the names of twenty-one men who were to go forth to execution. Among them was Henri Chateaubrun. They all walked out to the carts, some of them dragging themselves, some erect, all of them showing in their pale and haggard features the mark of death. Standing in the carts, they were driven toward the Seine and crossed it by a bridge entering the Place de la Revolution, since called the Place de la Concorde. There stood the guillotine with persons to work it ready to lop off twenty-one heads, and there stood a crowd, kept back by soldiers, to witness the gruesome sight. The carts stopped beside the machine, and the victims descended from the carts.

And now began a work that even an implement so well adapted to the purpose found it difficult to perform. Each one of the prisoners, hatless and with his hands tied behind his back, in turn stepped up to it, was laid upon it, strapped to it; the knife fell, his head rolled into the basket, and his body was removed to make room for the next victim. Fifteen of the twenty-one had been executed when the guillotine refused to work. Whether the knife got wedged in the grooves or whether the machinery that raised the ax or that which detached it after it had been raised got out of order doesn't matter. Something had gone wrong, and those in charge of the executions were unable to fix it.

The proceedings were stopped, and a messenger was sent for mechanics to put the guillotine in order. This required time. Waiting is not conducive to discipline. The soldiers who were there to keep the crowd back grew lax, and by the time workmen had arrived people had elbowed their way close upon the remaining six men standing in line waiting for the repairs on the machine that was to make corpses of them.

This was repeated so often and was disobeyed so often that at last very little attention was paid to it. Chateaubrun presently found himself in the first line of spectators. Then, instead of being in the line next the guillotine, he found himself in the second. In the pushing that continued he was wedged back into the third line and at last was at the back of the crowd that was there to see his head cut off.

There was something radically wrong with the guillotine. The men fixing it hammered and pulled and pushed and screwed and unscrewed. Meanwhile the day was ended, and it was growing dark. Chateaubrun, considering the sight of his execution not worth so long a wait, quietly walked away.

The Place de la Concorde is at the beginning of the Champs d'Elysees. Chateaubrun, every moment expecting to be missed, concealing as well as he could his tied hands, his heart beating wildly, passed into the Champs d'Elysees eager to run, but forcing himself to walk leisurely. There he made his way out of it in the shadow of the trees. Finally, when he had gone far enough from the scene of his intended execution, meeting a man coming toward him, he said:

"M'sieur, a friend of mine just now, who is a great wag, tied my hands behind my back and ran away with my hat. Kindly unloosen me."

"Certainly, m'sieur; it will give me great pleasure to do so."

Thanking the man who had relieved him of the last mark of being an intended guillotine victim, Chateaubrun went into a side street and was lost. The guillotine was fixed, but there were twenty instead of twenty-one persons executed.

No word of Chateaubrun's escape reached his wife during the day of execution, nor the next, nor the next. Indeed, it is questionable if his absence from the number of the condemned was noticed by the authorities. Mme. Chateaubrun was in the condition of one stunned. Boyer called to see her and found her heartbroken. She told him she wished to die. He begged her to live for his sake, confessing the love he had long felt for her. She was too paralyzed mentally and physically to even consider what he said. Not till some time afterward did she realize that he might have had her husband put out of his way.

But within a short time a woman stopped at Mme. Chateaubrun's home and told her that her husband was alive in the Netherlands and desired her to come to him. He had not dared write her, fearing to implicate her as a correspondent with an exile. Without waiting even to make sure of her address to his, she sent for the piece of her husband's cuffle, and in a few days he who was supposed to have gone to his long home and the wife who had mourned him were clasped in each other's arms.

Chateaubrun never had any evidence that his old friend had betrayed him except that his wife told him that Boyer had declared his love for her. He believed then that Boyer had caused his downfall. But he never met Boyer again. Subsequent changes placed the Jacobin under another faction, and Boyer met his death by the guillotine he had intended for Chateaubrun.

REGULAR MEETING
First Monday Evening of Each Month, 7 to 9.
If a holiday the following evening

"Thousands are hacking at the branches to one who is striking at the root." Whenever an ordinary mortgage is placed on the home it is hacking at the branches. When the mortgage is to the Winchester Co-operative Bank it is striking at the root; it is bound to be paid. Whenever you adopt the ordinary method of saving you are hacking at the branches, and it becomes a special effort. When you adopt the Winchester Co-operative Bank method, you strike at the root; it is regular and systematic.

A new series of shares is issued at the regular monthly meetings in May and November.

Booklet describing the operation of the Bank will be mailed on request and explanation in greater detail to those calling at this office.

Address all communications to the Bank and not to Individuals.

INTENTIONS.

Ever judge of men by their professions, for, though the bright moment of promising is but a moment, and cannot be prolonged, yet if sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness, why, trust it and know the men by it, I say, not by his performance, which is half the world's work, interfere as the world needs must with its accidents and circumstances. The profession was poesy in the man's own. I judge people by what they might be, not are nor will be.—Robert Browning.

MERCY.

The quality of mercy is not strained.
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is twice blessed
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes.

AGITATION.

Agitation is the method that plants the school by the side of the locked box. Agitation prevents rebellion keeps the peace and coerces peoples. Every stop she gives a signal for peace. Muskets and the sword are of no use. Agitation is the strongest force of the brain.—Wendell Phillips.

IN OURSELVES.

Not in the clamor of the crowded street,
Not in the shouts and plaudits of the throng
But in ourselves, are triumph and defeat.

The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy to cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

The Five Senses Game.

When your friends come to see you, plan the game of "senses." As hearing is the first named of the senses, test their hearing first.

Give each guest a slip of paper and a pencil and ask him to write down the sounds he hears. Arrange to have some one outside to blow a horn, rattle two sticks together, sound a piano, violin, pound a tin can, etc. This will cause much fun.

To test their "seeing" put ten small articles on the table while the guests shut their eyes. Then with open eyes they are to take one short look and from memory write down the things they saw.

For "tasting" they must with closed eyes taste apple, bread, butter, sugar, salt and cinnamon nothing unpleasants, and write down the various foods.

Test in the same way their "smelling" qualities, placing for an instant under their noses flowers, perfumes, eggs with spices, green vegetables, etc.

The sense of "touch" can be made funny by offering them a glove filled with ice, a banana, an orange, gelatin, etc.

For all these tests except "seeing" eyes must be kept shut until the tests are put out of sight.

The one who has the most correct answers should receive a prize.

Things to Forget.

Forget the faults of other people.

Forget your enemies and remember your friends.

Forget all gossip as soon as you hear it.

Forget doubts and fears and remember hopes and faiths.

Forget your own failures and remember your successes.

Forget the pin pricks, slights and trivial offenses incident to all life.

Forget to do any one an injury, but remember to do every one a kindness.

Forget the evil people of history and remember the good ones who have made the world better.

Forget all bitterness, cynicism, misanthropy and remember kindness, philanthropy and helpfulness.

Forget whatever unpleasantness you have read, seen or heard and remember purity, chastity, goodness.

Forget the pains you may have suffered and remember the health and painlessness you have enjoyed for years.

Forget the darker aspect of nature, save in so far as to avoid perils, and remember the harvests and the sunshine.

Forget blasphemous and vulgar words and remember the clean and splendid words of our noble English language.

Freaks Among Goldfishes.

That monstrosities among certain kinds of fishes may be produced by violently shaking recently fertilized ova is well known among fish culturists. In a paper published in the proceedings of the Academy of Natural Sciences Professor Ryder holds the belief that it is in this manner that the orientals accomplish the production of double tailed forms of fishes.

They would thus get some complete double monsters, some with two heads and a single tail, and some with double tails. Those having double tails only would be likely to survive, and these, being selected and bred, would in all probability have the tendency to reproduce this freak, and by judicious selection it is quite possible that the variation would become fixed.

Saved by His Dog.

Many years ago a Thames waterman was sleeping in his boat near Hammersmith when, just as the tide was turning and the water began to ebb, the boat broke from its moorings and drifted away. It was carried along so silently by the tide that the man was not roused, but slept on while the boat was caught under the bows of a barge and began to fill with water. But fortunately the man had his dog with him in the boat and the faithful animal saw the danger which threatened its sleeping master. It began to tug at the collar of his coat and gently scratched his face. By these means it succeeded in waking him and the man was able to save the boat and escape from drowning.

Fair Play Is a Jewel.

A sailor from a man-of-war was standing one day in Pembroke dock yard watching two men dragging a crosscut saw through an oak log. The saw was rather blunt, the wood was tough, and there they sat opposite each other pushing and pulling away. Jack looked on, thinking over the matter awhile. At length he made up his mind that the men were pulling to see who could get the saw. As the one man was little and the other a big, strong fellow, Jack decided to see fair play. He then gave the big one a box on the ear, pulled the saw out of the log and gave it to the little one, saying, "Now run, my boy, for fear the big fellow may run after you and take it away from you."

A Japanese Ship Launch.

When a ship is launched in Japan a big cage is hung from the bow with twenty or more birds in it.

Just as the prow cuts the water the side of the cage is thrown open, and the birds fly out and flutter around the ship as she takes the water.

The Japanese say that this is a sign that the ship will sail as freely as the birds fly.

The Specter Bird

A Story of Modern Shanghai.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

Ling To Fey's gorgeous junk moved slowly up the Huangpo river, the steersman skilfully guiding his unwieldy craft in and out of the shipping. In the luxurious cabin of the pleasure craft two Americans were dining with the most powerful mandarin in northwest China. Ling To Fey, a massive bulk of flesh, was gorgeous in blue brocade.

The attorney knew it required a delicate approach of the crafty and superstitious oriental, but after many weeks of shrewdness he had brought together the two principals in the transaction. The evening on the junk was the result.

"I leave you your excellency," said Burnett, "to proceed to close this matter now. All that remains is for you to sign this agreement and give Mr. Ponsonby a receipt for his check, which covers one half of the agreed amount. The remainder will be paid to you at the expiration of your term of office, when the matter may be made public."

"Quite true," murmured Ling To Fey in his slow English words. "I shall be pleased to discuss the matter when my secretary appears. Meanwhile we will enjoy the entertainment."

He clapped his hands, and a moment later wide casements were thrown open, revealing the flower boat alongside keeping pace with the junk's leisurely progress. The lanterns in the cabin were extinguished, and the three men gathered about the window to witness the spectacle.

Burnett's eyes seemed to pierce the darkness beyond the lighted boat. His compelling glance seemed to demand reassurance from something that should be near at hand, and a vague anxiety crept into his watching face as no sign appeared.

His eyes finally wandered to the massive head of the mandarin behind whom he stood. The glowing ruby in the white velvet cap seemed to pulsate with some strange emotion.

After awhile the mandarin clapped his hands, and the singsong boat dropped astern and was seen no more.

As the windows were closed and lights flared forth Ponsonby drew out his watch. "The hour grows late, excellency. We wish to return to Shanghai before midnight," he drawled.

The mandarin smiled blandly. His voice was smooth as silk. "I regret that my villainous secretary has been left behind in Shanghai. I have dispatched a sampan for him, and in the meantime we will anchor until he appears. The matter must wait until the rascal joins us."

The two Americans exchanged quick glances. The lawyer spoke first.

"If that is the case we will defer the settlement of this matter."

"We will await the coming of the secretary," purred the mandarin softly.

"It will avoid future unpleasantness"—began Burnett with some heat, when something happened that closed his lips into a rigid line.

Out of the night beyond the closed windows, so loud that it seemed almost at his elbow, there came a blood freezing scream, followed by a splash, a choking gurgle and then dead silence.

"What was that?" Burnett asked sharply.

The mandarin shrugged his fat shoulders, and for the first time his eyes fully opened, and the hatred in their depths startled the foreigners. "A killing a small matter," he sneered.

The cry in the night as they passed through the houseboat city merely served to strengthen their belief that up here, now beyond the confines of the native city, they were quite at the mercy of the mandarin.

Instinctively Burnett's hand sought his hip pocket and came away empty! His muttered exclamation prompted Ponsonby to feel for his own weapon, with the same result. Some time since their arrival on board they had been relieved of their revolvers.

Ling To Fey's yellow hand touched a gong beside him and the curtains parted to admit the recreant secretary, who doubtless had been within ten feet of his master during the entire voyage.

The mandarin uttered a few words in Chinese and the secretary moved swiftly to the heavy draperies that covered the walls of the cabin and lifted them one by one, revealing rows of armed servants in grim outline against the carved background.

When the Americans had counted thirty in all the last curtain dropped free in the hand of the secretary.

"A holdup for sure?" murmured Ponsonby, drawing a small leather covered book from his pocket. From among the leaves of cigarette wrappers he drew a tiny folded slip of paper, tore it in two and passed half to his companion.

"Smoke your last cigarette, Burnett," he said significantly, offering his tobacco pouch.

Burnett smiled sardonically as he deftly rolled a cigarette and watched Ponsonby do the same. Then as he touched a match to his smoke his glance caught the malevolent gaze of the mandarin.

Ling To Fey uttered a few sharp orders and the secretary motioned the foreigners away from their stand behind the table. Reluctantly they stepped aside, careful that their backs should be against a shuttered uncurtained window.

The secretary opened a wide panel in the bulkhead, disclosing a cantilevered table on which was a gilded and inlaid chair. On either side of the chair stood two of the mandarin's retainers, splendid in purple and silver and bearing a tall staff tipped with red feathers.

A low lacquered table was placed before the dais and spread with a cloth of golden tissue. Then the mandarin slowly arose and mounted into the chair of state.

"Sons of dogs," began the mandarin politely, "because I am a merciful ruler I shall give you an opportunity to die respectfully that your wretched souls may be afforded some solace while you taste the bitter tortures of the nether world. I will grind only permit you to drink a cup of poison instead of having your heads cut off as you deserve!"

Ponsonby bounced forward and removed his half consumed cigarette from between his smiling lips.

"Then the deal is off?" he queried.

The mandarin frowned thoughtfully. "I do not understand your meaning," he said at last.

The millionaire explained. Burnett, his head back pressed against the window, felt the shutter give beneath his weight. A little rush of cool air came in the opening, and with it came a distant sound that awoke every sense.

Ling To Fey was speaking: "The only deal that will be consummated between us tonight is that you will place the documents that have been drawn up, together with Mr. Ponsonby's check on the Shanghai bank, on the table before me."

"And after that?" queried Ponsonby.

"After that you may quaff the poisoned cup," answered the mandarin amiably.

Burnett over at the window had managed to slip his handkerchief through the crack at his back and wedge one corner so that it fluttered out into the night. Then he came forward and stood beside his companion.

Ling To Fey's face was inflexible in its cruelty. "Place the check on the table!" he commanded.

In unison the two Americans flung the remnants of their cigarettes on the low table. "There's what's left of it," said Burnett grimly.

Before the mandarin could command the servants to kill Burnett's hand shot up in the air with a gesture.

"Excellency, listen! The cry of the specter bird!" he shouted.

The mandarin seemed to shrivel in size as he bent forward, one fat hand raised to his ear, his face pallid with fear. The servants had paused as if frozen in their tracks, with their jet eyes fixed in terror, arms unlifted, menacing destruction to the two men at the window.

Then out of the night there came a strange, unearthly cry.

When its last echo had died away Burnett spoke in a solemn voice, though his keen eyes sparkled hopefully.

"Let all beware who hear the voice of the specter bird! Let them cease what they are doing, make peace with enemies, lest they die a dreadful death! Listen, excellency! It may come again!"

Then all at once it did come again in the very cabin of the junk, and at the sound Ling To Fey's huge bulk lifted up in the air with an unearthly cry of terror and fell lifeless and twitching on the floor before his dais, dead from very fright.

Through the doorway there streamed a file of American marines headed by an officer, who leaped forward at the outstretched hands of his fellow countrymen at the window.

"Just in time, eh?" he beamed as they voiced their thanks. "Good thing you pressed us into service as a bodyguard, eh, Burnett? The Grayling has sneaked along in your wake for hours. When the junk was wedged into this creek we became suspicious that some dirty work was up and scouted. One by one we caught the fellows on deck and put them into the dispatch boat. Then one of the boys saw your handkerchief at the window, and we worked the specter bird cry on them. Does the business every time?"

"Where are we now?"

"The Grayling is towing you down the river. Another half hour and you'll be in the city."

In the early morning hours in Ponsonby's rooms at the hotel the millionaire drew from his pocket the magnificent ruby that had formed the button on Ling To Fey's official cap and handed it to the lieutenant of the Grayling.

"The cry of the specter bird saved our lives, Decker," he said, with emotion.

"Not on your life," vociferated the other; "makes me crawl when I think of scaring the old beggar to death. Wouldn't have cared a rap if it had been an open fight. Burnett's forethought in asking for escort saved the day." He tossed it to the attorney.

That is how Lieutenant Decker sent home a check that month which enabled his father to pay off the mortgage on his farm, while Burnett's wife wears as a pendant at her throat the magnificent ruby that once graced a mandarin's cap. Ponsonby does not own any coal mines in China.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Press Bible Question Club.

(Copyright 1910 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

JULY 23RD, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Josiah's Devotion to God. 2 Chron. xxxiv: 1-33.

(1.) Verse 1-2—Whose son was Josiah?

(2.) What had been the character of Amon?

(3.) Whose son was Amon?

(4.) What had probably induced the wicked reign of Amon?

(5.) Is a boy of eight years of age morally responsible to God?

(6.) Verse 3—How old was Josiah when he began to seek after God?

(7.) If Josiah when a boy had not sought and found the Lord, what effect would that have probably had upon his reign?

(8.) If a boy is not converted by the time he is sixteen years of age, what are his chances of ever being converted?

(9.) Take one hundred boys at sixteen years of age, in the same social positions, fifty of them converted and fifty not; what are the chances respectively for the worldly success of these two sets of boys?

(10.) In the training of boys there are at least three things essential to their success; health, education, and character or religion. Which should parents pay most attention to without neglecting any one, and why?

(11.) How old was Josiah when he began to take an aggressive part in the spiritual welfare of his kingdom?

(12.) Verses 4-7—Why should the rulers of the people feel responsibility for the righteousness of the nation, and see to it personally that reforms are carried out?

(13.) Which comes first in order and why, the purging of the nation from gross national sin, or the outward and public worship of God?

(14.) Why can there be no real worship of God on the part of an individual or community, if at the same time sin is being committed?

(15.) Verse 8—Which should have first claim upon our resources, our homes or the church?

(16.) If the homes of the people are well cared for, and the church is in a run down condition, how would you estimate such a people?

(17.) Verse 9—Who are the people that are in duty bound to keep up the church of God?

(18.) From whom had the money been collected to repair the Temple at Jerusalem?

(19.) Should money be solicited from outsiders to build, repair, or keep up the house of God?

(20.) Can you find any place in the Bible where they raised money for the worship of God other than by direct giving?

(21.) Where do you find in the Old or New Testament any precedent for pew renting, bazaars, concerts, lectures, tea meetings, or for any other commercial method for financing the church? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(22.) Verses 10-13—Why is it vital that the church of God should be kept in a comfortable and an attractive condition?

WORDS LIVE.

Boys flying kites haul in their white winged birds.
You can do that way when you're flying words.
"Careful with fire," is good advice we know;
"Careful with words" is ten times doubly so.
Thoughts unexpressed may sometimes fall back dead.
But God himself can't kill them when they're said.

Mr. George Morrison of Pond street is entertaining friends from Vermont.

The alarm from box 56 Wednesday noon was for a dangerous grass fire near the rear of the Twombly greenhouses on Willwood street. The grass was burning fiercely when the department arrived and more than an hour was required to extinguish it. The usual procedure with brooms had to be abandoned as the flames reached so high and burned so fast that chemicals had to be used. The Goodwin house was the only property in danger it being in the direct path of the fire.

Mr. Charles F. Dutch has sent to the Town Clerk his resignation as a member of the new grade crossing committee. The Town Clerk informed him that he could not accept his resignation as it was without his province to do so. This committee, it will be remembered, was appointed by a committee chosen for this purpose at the special meeting in June, and to its members Mr. Dutch will have to look for his release. It is however to be regretted that Mr. Dutch has decided not to serve, as his judgment would have been of benefit in deciding on a plan for the elimination of the grade crossing.

While motoring to the Adirondacks last Friday in company with his mother, Mr. N. M. Nichols who is the custodian of the public schools, met with an accident near Burlington, Vt., while driving over a narrow road. The hind wheels of the car skidded on the grass on the side of the road, which caused the rear of the machine to go over into a trench about three feet deep. The car turned over throwing them out and Mrs. Nichols received a broken knee while Mr. Nichols escaped unhurt. A few minutes after the accident an auto came along in which, fortunately, was a surgeon and the injury was attended to on the spot and afterwards Mrs. Nichols was taken to a hospital where she will remain until able to be brought home. She is seventy-two years of age.

MISLEADING AND DANGEROUS

Walnut street from the Parkway to the station is misleading to operators of automobiles during the night time, they supposing that there is an outlet at the end of the street, and not discovering their mistake until their machine lands on the tracks of the steam railroad. This has happened a number of times not only on the Walnut street side, but also on the other.

Last Thursday evening a big touring car came out of the Parkway and dashed down Walnut street toward the tracks, the operator supposing he had a clear road. The machine bumped up over the curbing at the end of the street and before it could be stopped had run onto the tracks. The occupants, ladies and gentlemen from Newton, hastily got out of the car, and men were summoned to help remove it which was done with difficulty as the machine was big and heavy. This work was accelerated because of the fact that an express train was due in five minutes.

There should be barriers and more light at these places, for it is but natural that drivers of machines should make the mistake of supposing there are outlets to the streets at these points. Some years ago there was a row of posts on the Walnut street side, but for some reason they were removed.

Rebolled Eggs.

Eggs which have been boiled and yet not used may be kept and reboiled again without becoming hard boiled. This is not generally known, but if the egg has been soft cooked it may be put into boiling water for a few minutes to warm through and served for breakfast the next day.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

Winchester to Have One on August 19th.

Winchester will be one of the 48 named by the Postmaster General as to have a postal savings bank at the local postoffice, and the date set for the opening is August 19. The announcement was received Saturday by the town's postmaster. Here we have a first class savings bank offered to us, some of our most honored and trusted citizens, that pays dividends of 4 per cent, while the government owned saving banks pay but 2½ per cent. Naturally the people will deposit their money in a bank that will give the best returns. These postal saving banks are good things in towns where there are no banks, as it gives the people a chance to put their money in a place where it is safe and also in those cities and towns where there are a large number of foreigners, who are not conversant with the safeguards that Massachusetts has thrown around its savings banks. Some of the children may buy the stamps, but even in this instance the public schools are working along this line, their savings ultimately going into the local bank.

However, the experiment will be watched with interest.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

Edward T. Harrington has sold this week for Mabelle F. French the property at No. 108 Church street, comprising 9 room Colonial house and about 17,000 sq. ft. of land. The purchaser was William E. Bottger of Brookline who will make this his residence about October 1st.

The estate No. 45 Calumet road, recently purchased through the office of Edward L. Harrington Co., by Fannie S. Hall of Brookline from George B. Whitehorne, now comprises besides the house, over one half acre of land, Mrs. Hall having purchased this week an additional amount of about 5000 sq. ft. of land on Cambridge street. George B. Whitehorne was the grantor.

J. Harris Niles has leased to Rev. W. S. Packer, formerly of No. 29 Oxford street, Winchester, the house No. 19 Yale street.

Eustace H. Brigham has leased a new house recently erected by him, on Lincoln street, to Edward J. Scott of Boston. Edward T. Harrington Co. were the brokers.

WINCHESTER MAN'S LONG CYCLE TRIP.

Wilfred C. Braman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Braman of Goodrich Hill farm, Winchester, arrived home Saturday from San Francisco, having made the trip of 3750 miles on a 7 horse power motor cycle.

He left San Francisco June 18 at 6 o'clock in the morning and his first day's run was 136 miles. He experienced the most difficulty on the second and third days in getting through the snow, and in crossing the Sierra Nevadas. On his way to Reno he suffered severely with the cold and was obliged to use the railroad snow sheds.

The trip across Nebraska and Iowa was a trying one, but from Chicago home the roads were good. The total time consumed was 32 days and the time spent in the saddle about 21 days or 210 hours.

BAPTIST SERVICES DURING AUGUST.

The preachers for the Sunday morning services at the First Baptist Church during August, when the Pastor is on his vacation, will be as follows:

Aug. 6, the Rev. Theodore L. Frost, D. D., of Manchester, Mass.

Aug. 13, the Rev. Wilbur Nelson, of Saginaw, Mich.

Aug. 20, the Rev. Joseph F. Fielden, of Winchendon, Mass.

Aug. 27, the Rev. Charles L. White, D. D., of New York.

In addition to the Sunday morning services, the Sunday school and Wednesday evening prayer meeting will be maintained as usual. The Pastor's address during August will be Wilson Cottages, Jackson, N. H.

MRS. BETSY INGERSON.

Mrs. Betsy Ingerson, widow of the late James Ingerson, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Martha Mase, at No. 11 Myrtle street, Wednesday morning. She was in her 85th year and the death was from infirmities due to her advanced age.

Mrs. Ingerson was born in Devonshire, England, and had made her home with her daughter in this town for the past 50 years. She was a member of the First Baptist Church. No immediate relatives survive her other than her daughter.

The funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon from the residence. The burial will be in Wildwood cemetery.

DEFEATED OLD RIVALS.

Winchester turned the tables on the lost Bay Views last Saturday on Manchester field making up for that defeat in a ten inning game on June 17th. It was a closely contested game from the start, each scoring an equal number of runs between scoring Whittaker and Conly Winchester scored a run in the first inning. Badger got a base on balls. O'Connor sacrificed and Whittaker's error let Badger beat the throw to second. Hitz stole third when Conly threw to second to catch him and a moment later reached home on Kenney's out to the left fielder. Bay View scored a run in the third after two were out by a base on balls to Fitzgerald and two fielding errors.

Badger walked in the first.

One in the fourth after two were out on a single by M. McCarthy and a triple by Morrisey. After that Whittaker had them at his mercy. In the sixth inning after Murphy reached second on an infield error he struck out Fitch, M. McCarthy, and Morrisey in quick order, a fine exhibition of heady pitching.

This is what Whittaker did to three Bay Views in the sixth.

In the eighth inning came the fireworks touched off by the Winchester's which won the game. Foley the first man up went out, Conly to Walsh, Doherty singled, Whittaker singled, both advanced on a wild pitch. Badger fanned. Doc. O'Connor was there with a timely single, scoring Doherty.

Doc. O'Connor waiting for a good one in the eighth.

Murray landed on the ball for a two bagger scoring Whittaker and O'Conner, with the runs veiled themselves hoarse. The Bay Views were retired in short order on their half of the ninth, Morrisey, first man up struck out, T. McCarthy singled to left, the ball taking a bad bounce by O'Connor, but Badger by nice backing up and a fine throw to Kenney cuts off M. Carthy who tried to make second on the hit. Then Whittaker wound up one of the finest games ever seen on Manchester Field by striking out Fitzgerald. Score Winchester 4, Bay View 2.

MESSENGER—STEWART.

Miss Louise Greenwood Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Stewart of 131 Highland avenue, and Ralph W. Messenger, son of Mr. James A. Messenger of 13 Maple street, Taunton, were quietly united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was private owing to the recent death of the groom's mother and was performed at three o'clock by Rev. Cyrus Richardson, acting pastor of the First Congregational Church, assisted by Rev. C. L. Hubbard. The double ring service was used. The couple were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Ellen C. Stewart.

Immediately following the ceremony a luncheon was served the wedding party, after which Mr. and Mrs. Messenger left upon their honeymoon. They will make their future home at Oak Bluffs.

EXCELLENT CONCERT.

The concert given on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon by D'Avino's Banda Rossa of Boston was, perhaps, the best that has been given on Manchester Field in a long time. The players were all trained musicians and their artistic skill was shown in every selection given. Of course their efforts were much appreciated and the applause accorded was liberal. Leader D'Avino is an excellent conductor and this fact contributed much toward the pleasures of the concert.

This same band returns for a second concert on Saturday, August 10, and lovers of artistic music should make an effort to attend.

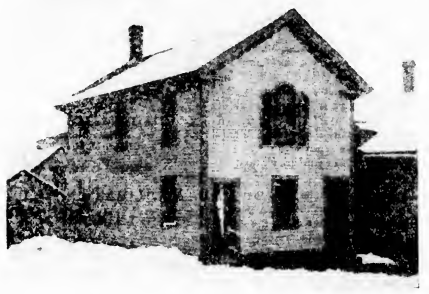

REFUSE BARRELS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wish to state that the waste paper barrels to which you referred in your issue of July 21 were placed about town by The Fortnightly. We hoped that their usefulness would become so fully demonstrated that the Selectmen would replace them at once. In fact more than a year ago we asked them to do so.

We received a very courteous reply to our request but have seen no new barrels.

A Club Member.

The above is a picture of the second engine house in Winchester. The building is at present standing on Vine street and for more than twenty years has been occupied by the water department as a repair shop and as a storage place. The basement, fitted with cells, was used as a lockup when the town had but one police officer. The building also at one time was used for town offices.

It is now proposed on the site of this old building and the Davis estate to erect the new central fire station, this being the location selected by a special committee who have given the question of the most available site considerable attention. This location was also favorably voted upon by the town at the last meeting but no money was appropriated to purchase the land or erect a building, but this may be done at the annual meeting. The house at present used by the fire department is in very bad condition being thoroughly worn out.

ODORS SUBDUED WITH CHEMICALS.

The Board of Health has been notified by the Beggs & Cobb tannery management that the firm has commenced to treat its sludge with chemicals, thus doing away with the odors so much complained of by residents in the neighborhood.

The Board has received the following letter:

July 26, 1911.

Winchester Board of Health,
Dr. Clarence J. Allen, Secretary.

Dear Sir:—Refering to your letter to us, dated June 13, 1911, we beg to say that since then we have applied chemicals to the treatment of the contents in the settling tank to which you refer, and to the refuse matter when spread over the sludge-bed. Whatever may have been the fact in the past, our present method of operating the tank and handling the sediment is such that no nuisance exists.

For your information we would add that for the sake of assuring the neighborhood against any annoyance in the future, we are to consult an expert Sanitary Engineer for the purpose of ascertaining what further or different methods of caring for and handling the matter discharged from the bed house he would advise; for it is our purpose to adopt and use approved and thoroughly effective methods in dealing with the situation. In our endeavors to this end we should be glad to receive and consider any definite suggestions which your Board may be pleased to make.

Yours very truly,
Beggs & Cobb Tanning Co.,
D. R. Beggs.

TRADERS' DAY.

As was announced in last week's STAR, Traders' Day, will be held Wednesday, August 2d, at Bass Point. The party will leave Winchester for Boston by trolley, and thence to Bass Point by boat. Mr. Gene B. Farrow has arranged the following program:

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Business Transacted by the Board Monday Evening.

[illegible] 1911

Regular meeting at 7.3[illegible] p. m. Members present, Messrs. Bancroft, Sheehan, Pontani and Daly.

Communication from Mr. C. E. Lamsworth regarding the condition of the sidewalk on Symmes road. Subject matter referred to Supt. of Streets to investigate and report.

Permission granted to the Arlington Gas Light Co. to lay mains on the following streets as petitioned for: Madison avenue, Church and Hancock streets.

The same company was further granted permits with conditions imposed, to lay mains on Highland avenue and on Oak street. All of the work on these permits to be done under the supervision of the Supt. of Streets.

Order passed that the Supt. of Streets be instructed to have improvements made on the Walnut street bridge.

The Supt. of Streets was requested to estimate the amount of tar-concrete repairs on sidewalks that may be necessary during the coming year and report at a later meeting.

The town engineer presented a report dealing with the surface drainage at corner of Wildwood and Fletcher streets as spoken of by Mr. Thompson. Report placed on file and clerk instructed to write Mr. Thompson relative thereto.

With regard to the flag pole on the Common the following vote was passed: That the Park Commission should, as soon as possible proceed to erect a flagpole on the common to replace the one recently destroyed by lightning.

In pursuance of an opinion received from Mr. Joslin, Town Counsel, a previous order of this board requiring the signatures of a majority of members of boards or commissioners on bills presented from their departments for approval, the order is hereby rescinded as to the pay roll; but in all other respects it is to be given full force and effect as adopted.

Warrants drawn for $2[illegible].63 and $1355.17.

Records of previous meeting having been approved the board adjourned at 10.3[illegible] p. m.

William J. Daly,
Clerk Pro Tem.

WANT BASE BALL GAMES.

A new ball club has been formed in the Cutter Village district. It has a very good list of players and will play any team of sixteen year old team in the town. If any team wants a game, please ask or send a postal to Fred Cyr, 11 Salem street, Winchester.

Fred Cyr is now manager of the team and Henry Crampton captain, Cyr played left field last year and is now trying for first. Crampton played second for three years.

Walsh will pitch for the team. He is now pitching for St. Mary's and is giving great ball. Dunberry is the best shortstop around Cutter Village. The best of all is Swymer, who is in perfect shape for playing and will be the catcher. Crampton and Pope are the hard hitters of the team. The line up is as follows: Swymer c, Walsh p, Cyr or Meskell 1b, Crampton 2b, Dunberry ss, Pope 3b, Meskell or Cyr lf, Flaherty cf, and Waters rf.

They are willing to play any week with a strong team.

NEW DIRECTORY.

The W. A. Greenough Co., of Boston are putting the finishing touches on a new Winchester-Woburn Directory, which is to be issued in September. For many years this firm has been publishing the Winchester Directory which has given much satisfaction. Combining Woburn with Winchester will give added value to the book. Efforts are being made to have the Directory the most useful and accurate ever issued, and it is predicted that there will be a large demand for it by the people of the town.

HEMERY FINISHES ALONE.

Hemery in a Fiat equipped with Michelin Tires was the only driver to finish within the allotted time in the Grand Prize Automobile Race July 27th. The race was run over the Circuit de Sarthe in France, and drew the largest crowd since the Wright aviation trials in 1908. The interest in the contest, the organization and the tires to a tremendous strain, adding greatly to the interest of the event as a test of endurance.

BASE BALL.

The Winchester base ball team will play a game with Swampscott A. C., on Manchester Field. This is considered to be a strong team.

The games being played by the local team this season are the best seen on the field, and have many exciting periods.

COMING EVENTS.

July 29, Saturday. On Manchester Field at 3.30, Winchester vs Swampscott A. C.

August 2, Wednesday. Traders' Day. All stores will be closed.

August 10, Thursday evening. Social and Dance in Lyceum Hall in aid of St. Mary's Building Fund.

August 26, Saturday. Garden Party on the grounds of St. Mary's rectory.

ABOUT BASE BALL.

Dear Sir:—It seems to me who am fancy free, not a fanatic; that your correspondent of last week "Fan", should not be allowed to get away with some of the peevish nonsenses with which he stultifies himself. His article "going at a merry clip" started in fairly enough, but towards the last appeared to absessed with egotism and intolerance.

It is rather generally conceeded in our day that to the rebel, the kicker, the knocker, the "insurgent," the world is mainly indebted for that uplift of humanity and that progress towards better conditions, which exemplified in our nation and era. By the same token, though in a smaller way, the standards, in music, the drama, literature, yea; even in the National game, have been raised, and how has this been brought about?—by the comatose limb like demeanor of the "loyal dyed in the wool partisan" not on your life! eliminate the critic, the knocker, that despicable" insect the "sorehead," at the behest of "Fan" and other bumptons retainers then watchout for the decadence of, and lack of interest in, both arts and sports. The Spectator at the ball game who yells "rotten" at an inexcusable error, and "line" or "great" at a meritorious play—keeping mum over an excusable mischance, is likely to be a living instance of the "recrudescence of the Ebenezer" or in other words some old warrior of the diamond who knows what a player should do with the ball, and who has held down his position on the winning nine in his day—and is really the cubs truest friend. He will impartially applaud also the good plays of the opposition nine, and he will be ready with his modest but regular donation when the cap comes around—and he would be almost as sorry as the team manager if by any mischance the contribution could be and were, limited to the "dyed in the wool fans."

"Fan" does not want "knockers and soreheads" to "fret the air" with arguments about the merits of "last years team compared with this," yet touches on the same subject himself hence does not come into court with clean hands.

The playing of this year's team is certainly a decided improvement over anything we have seen in a term of years—notably so as regards base running. Now isn't there some way by which gum-chewing can be cut out, and the boys get to strike at the first ball pitched, if it is a good one?

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

Elbert Hubbard wrote recently that not long ago he visited the far-famed Mammoth Cave down in Kentucky and was surprised to find clumps of willows and grasses grown up around its entrance. The large hotels that once entertained hundreds of guests were falling down and already most in ruins. He found only one family of farmers living near the great cave's mouth. Hubbard entered the cave and was still more astonished to find the names of thousands of people written and carved on its walls. Among them were those of Emerson, Longfellow and President Grant. The visitor at once began to wonder why it was that so many once journeyed to see the place and so few came now. He made inquiries and soon got this answer to his question. The man who advertised Mammoth Cave so extensively a few years ago died. And with the death of the advertising manager, the great cave with all its wonders dropped out of sight. There is a lesson in this for Winchester as a town and for its trades people. It is the same old story. People don't know your goods and your town unless you advertise. An enterprising man for 25 years advertised the Mammoth Cave and got thousands of people there annually. It came to rival Niagara as a resort for honeymooners. And now it is obscured by a jungle and few think about it. Why? The advertising man died.

There was a time when it was popularly supposed that woman's most effective weapon was tears; then times changed and a little more warlike age declared that there was nothing which could compare with her tongue. And these weapons are both used still, and with more or less effect. The effect of both is generally to make men flee, whether they intend good or ill to the poor victim. But in our day, all other weapons are fast giving place to the long and protruding hat pin. It came into being because a style of hat demanded it. And it has continued because there are dainty little creatures, as well as those who are best described by some other adjectives, who take a certain beautiful or malicious delight in having their own way and defying the protests of all creatures who are merely masculine. The other afternoon The Spectator boarded a Reading car at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Main streets and in taking his seat had his eyesight menaced by a long protruding hat pin. The pin protruded at least a foot and was a peril to the person or any person who entered the seat behind. Awhile ago The Spectator and a number of Winchester gentlemen entered into a learned debate on the matter, and discussed what should be done. One gentleman would have the town of Winchester solemnly declare that pins of over a certain length shall no longer be worn, another gentleman would make an appeal to our feminine rulers to be merciful and lenient; another gentleman gave the matter up in despair. In the opinion of The Spectator there is nothing more logical than a new appeal to the women for mercy, or what is more logical still a good inducement to the style makers to change the style of hats in such fashion that these pins will be unfashionable.

The story is told The Spectator of a dainty five-year old miss. Much association with grown people has given her many serious little ways which contrast strongly with her tender years. Of late she has been saving her pennies to buy a birthday present for her father and as the time draws near she has been much in doubt as to what she should get. Recently she was in a street car with her mother when an inspiration came. "I know what I'll buy father for his birthday," she said. All the passengers smiled at her eagerness and listened indulgently to hear what she might say. Looking at her mother she said, so audibly as to be embarrassing: "I'll buy him a bottle of beer."

On Mt. Vernon street a few days ago The Spectator heard a man call another a "lobster" and when The Spectator reached the editorial sanctum he consulted his dictionary to see if there was any definition of, "lobster" with a human application. He found that there was, one meaning of "lobster" being a "gullible, awkward, bungling or undesirable fellow." This meaning is supposed by most people to be a modern development of slang. However, "lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among Englishmen of Queen Elizabeth's day, and Shakespeare may have denounced his call by a "lobster" when the boy failed to attend to his duties. Some students of the world think it probably was applied first to men with red faces. As signifying a soldier the term "lobster" is as old as Cromwell's day. Lord Clarenden, historian of the Civil War in England, explains that it was applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered. Afterward British in their red uniforms were called "lobsters." Then came another development. The soldier in the red coat became a "boiled lobster," while the policeman in blue was, of course, an "unboiled" or "raw lobster." Again, "to boil a lobster" was for a man to enlist in the army and put on a red coat.

A certain man whose young son is called "nicknames" by a neighbor's youngsters says that unless the business stops he will ask for an injunction from the court. Evidently the parent in question has completely forgotten the time when he was a mischievous urchin whose exuberance of animal spirits found vent in tantalizing his playmates. Or perhaps he was one of those admirable but rare freaks of Nature described by his parents as a "good boy" and by his companions as a "sissy."

One Winchester man hopes that next fall some steps will be taken to eliminate what he terms "the idiotic high school yell." Even The Spectator is inclined to set his seal of disapproval upon the yell. The sensible people of Winchester and elsewhere, evidently regard the "barbaric yawp" as more suggestive of the wild frenzy of a band of wild Indians or escaped lunatics than of the enthusiasm of an organization of intelligent and educated young people such as High School pupils.

A leading physician informs The Spectator that a Chicago doctor has recently discovered the "gratt" germ. He says this kind of larceny is an infectious disease. If this proves to be the case the sanitariums will have to be substituted for the jail, and "grattins" will take its place alongside emotional insanity in the criminal lawyer's armamentum.

Religious instinct is the inspiration for cosmic harmony. Its usefulness to every human being lies in the faith which each one has in its truthfulness, and conversely, being an instinct, its truthfulness depends upon the perfection of the faith. That most disease is a creation of the imagination The Spectator does not doubt, and the victim who is afflicted has great power both for the suppression of the disease and for its expansion. The person who constantly dwells upon his physical derangements is increasing the power and effectiveness, and is reducing his own vitality, making himself susceptible to the germs of the disease and their development; whereas the person who, through the power of his will resolutely sets his face against physical disability strengthens the body to resist, and becomes an agreeable person for himself and a comfort to others. The true believer in Christian Science, like the true believer in any religion, has bulwarked the soul against the assaults of the material world, the sub conscious purpose of which is to confound the religious instinct by dwelling upon external facts. It's battle is hopeless unless it can shape the faith.

The Spectator knows a wise woman who quarrels with her husband because she can get something out of him to make up.

There is a janitor in Winchester who ought to make a good soldier, because he never sweeps behind a door. A good soldier, you know, never looks behind.

The Spectator has just been shown a pair of novel eyeglasses. They are called telescope eyeglasses and the short sighted person who wears them does so because he cannot wear the ordinary simply corrected glasses. The monocle combination consists of two parts united in a single frame a front objective lens or collector, and a second nearer the eye to displace the rap at the proper angle to make the correction for the degree in question. The two lenses have such relation to each other that there is no distortion, astigmatism or colored border to the image obtained.

SANDY BEACH OPEN.

Sandy beach on Mystic lake is open again for bathing and the children of Winchester and many of the neighboring places are making the most of the privilege of a dip in the water. Last year the metropolitan park commission withdrew the right to bathe there as the water was not in good condition. The place is a great treat to hundreds of boys and girls who are unable to get to the salt water, and every pleasant day the place is crowded with a happy, good-natured splashing crowd of youngsters.

In order to maintain strict discipline, a different officer is assigned to the beach each year, so that the children may not become too familiar with him. The beach this year is in charge of officer McLean. The officers are all expert swimmers, and have received courses of instruction for such emergencies as they may meet. A supply of medicines and bandages is kept on hand.

The use of the beach is restricted to boys and girls under 15, and among them are many who have become very proficient in the water. Some except-ionally good divers are seen among the older boys and girls. During the recent hot spell the age restriction was removed and adults were given the privilege of bathing during the hours when the children were not there, a boon that was greatly appreciated.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"Be polite, it costs nothing," is the motto of the 100 employees of the Norfolk & Portsmouth Tractor Company, says a North Carolina paper. It is all kinds of an asset, however. Politeness gets business for a business man while the man with the cold stare and the nickel clutch is the chief obstacle to the growth of his business. B. & N. COMBINES WITH THE OLD COLONY.

The stockholders of the Boston and Northern street railway company held a special meeting in Boston last Friday to complete the formal consolidation of that road with the Old Colony street railway company. The name of the new concern will be the Bay State street railway.

There will be little change in the officers of the new corporation, as the Boston and Northern and the Old Colony had the same officers, but there will be a slight change in the directorate, the new company having fourteen directors, each of the old companies having had seven.

Although this will make little difference in the operation of the properties, the step is important in the history of street railroads, as now all the lines from Newport, R. I., to Nashua, N. H., with the exception of the Boston Elevated, which forms the connecting link, will be under one head.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRESS

Many Matters Claim Attention of the State Solons

UNITED SHOE MACHINERY UP

Its Status Brought to Attention of General Court—Governor's Failure to Reappoint Warren Criticised—Middlesex County Officials Exonerated

The week closes with the legislature still in session. This is to be a record breaking sitting of the great and general court. In the Butler year the legislature sat until July 27. Governor Foss has broken several records and it looks as if he would compel the legislature to eclipse all previous sessions as to length. One of the chief things for late consideration has been the workingmen's compensation bill. There have been many opinions expressed by members that this measure was unconstitutional. Lawyers generally seem to take that view.

The attack of Governor Foss on the United Shoe Machinery company was not a matter of surprise to people on Beacon Hill. It has been hinted for several weeks that he intended before the session closed to call the attention of the legislature to this corporation. In his message he says that further legislation should be enacted. Accompanying the message was a letter from Attorney General Swift to the governor. Mr. Swift declared that he was unable to find in the governor's communication to him anything that permitted or enabled him to come to any conclusions, as it contained no statement of facts, or evidence, such as is necessary as a basis for legal consideration or action. The attorney general, therefore, suggested that the governor submit to him the facts and evidence upon which his conclusions were based in order that he might institute proceedings under an existing statute if the facts appeared to justify such action. In conclusion Mr. Swift said: "Manifestly, however, action or legislation based upon insufficient information and evidence would result in disaster and confusion," a result which the governor as well as himself would greatly deplore. Instead of doing as the attorney general requested Governor Foss sent the matter to the legislature.

A number of reasons have been advanced for the governor's action in presenting the matter to the legislature at all. One of these is that it was an attempt to influence the stock market and so give some one an opportunity to profit by selling the stock short. Still another explanation is the well known antagonism of Governor Foss to James J. Storrow, who is one of the largest stockholders in the United Shoe Machinery company and one of its directors. The governor's friends think he is honest in his action.

The joint committee on rules gave a hearing on this message and after careful consideration of the matter voted to report "no legislation necessary" in view of the belief that there is already sufficient law on the statute books at the present time.

The Boston Fire Department Matter

The people of Boston continue to be much stirred up over the conditions in the fire department of this city. The city council by a vote of 5 to 2 has passed an order recommended by Acting Mayor Collins providing for an increase to the fire fighting force of the city of fifty men. No sooner had this been done than friends of Mayor Fitzgerald set out to block this legislation. In this they were aided by Corporation Counsel Babson, who ruled that the acting mayor had no authority for such action, by reason of the fact that there was no emergency such as is called for by the charter of the city. Acting Mayor Collins, however, holds that there is such emergency and he has signed the order and demanded of the city clerk that it take the usual course at once. Fire Commissioner Daly, however, declines to make the additions to the department in opposition to the opinion of the corporation counsel. At the same time, City Auditor Mitchell declares that he will not pay the additional firemen if appointed contrary to the opinion of the city law officer. Consequently it is difficult to see how the order is to become operative unless the matter is taken to court and a decision reached at once. This seems to be impracticable in view of the fact that the mayor will undoubtedly return by the time a decision could be reached. Nevertheless, the incident will have more or less bearing on the attempt to recall the mayor which seems likely to be made in January.

Governor Foss and the Civil Service

There has been great disappointment expressed by friends of the civil service over the failure of Governor Foss to reappoint Chairman Charles Warren of the state civil service commission. Mr. Warren has given devoted, intelligent and energetic service to the work of the commission. He has unquestionably been one of the strongest members who ever sat on the board. However, he incurred the enmity of Mayor Fitzgerald and the two Lomasneys and they have succeeded in preventing his reappointment. The friends of civil service know that the board in the case of Mayor Fitzgerald has simply done its duty. It has refused to put the stamp of its approval upon unqualified men nominated by Mayor Fitzgerald for high and responsible positions in the city of Boston.

One of the men it rejected was the present senator, Joseph P. Lomasney, a brother of the ward 8 leader. This is the secret of the vindictive and unrelenting opposition of the Lomasneys to Mr. Warren's reappointment. To the minds of civil service reformers it is significant that Governor Foss yielded to the enemies of Mr. Warren. The new appointee, Thomas F. Hoyle, is a friend of Mayor Fitzgerald and will probably support his nominations for office.

Middlesex County Officials Exonerated

The Middlesex grand jury which has for the past six months been investigating charges of corruption, malfeasance, waste, extravagance and mismanagement on the part of various officials of that county has completely exonerated them. The charges were pressed for the most part by Democratic politicians, and well informed citizens generally have never taken any stock in them. It has been charged that they were made for political effect. Those who made the charges when called to testify confessed to the grand jury that they knew nothing personally. Those who had been active in pushing the charges when called before the grand jury declared that they were not ready and asked for time in which to prepare the case for presentation. The time was first extended to Dec. 8 when they again declared that they were not ready and were granted until January. At that time the accusing parties were again not ready and had evidently done nothing toward preparing themselves. The grand jury then voted unanimously that District Attorney Higgins proceed with the investigation at once. He objected to this on the ground that he had arranged for one of the assistant district attorneys of Suffolk county as an unprejudiced party to conduct the case but the grand jury voted unanimously that it be conducted by District Attorney Higgins himself, and he consented. One hundred and one witnesses were heard, many of them several times. After sitting thirty-three days the grand jury found nothing back of the charges and completely exonerated the officials of any corruption.

Sensational Charges Denied

A Boston newspaper which published a statement on the alleged authority of R. S. Bauer of Lynn to the effect that he had been told there were three votes in the senate available at $500 each on the Lynn track depression bill, started a commotion at the state house while it ended at the office of the district attorney for Suffolk county. Senator Tinkham called the charge to the attention of District Attorney Pelletier, who sent for the responsible parties of the newspaper in question and also for the man given as authority for the story. The man quoted as authority denied that he had ever made any such statement to anybody.

The senate has rejected the house resolve providing for extra compensation for the members of the lower branch on account of the unusual length of the session. Probably a large majority of those who have given the matter any consideration believe the members are entitled to more than the usual amount of salary owing to the extra month or more the legislature has been in session. Nevertheless, it is not regarded as good politics for the legislature to vote to increase the salary of members for 1912 or to vote extra pay for themselves this year.

BUSINESS.

A big business country must have big business, and ours is the biggest business country in the world. Business depends upon the ease and quickness with which people can mingle and trade together. To stop the growth of business organizations is to stop the growth of the country. Service is the test of theories. Shall we go backward or forward? The price of the raw materials that go into wagons and agricultural implements has increased, while the price of wagons and agricultural implements has gone down, and at the same time those wagons and agricultural implements today are guaranteed. Politicians denounce big business, but ask the farmer if he is willing to go back to the blacksmith shop for his plows, harrows, wagons and reapers.—Albert J. Beveridge.

BALLET DANCERS.

Long Training and a Ceaseless Grind of Hard Work Are Theirs.

The modern imperial ballet schools of St. Petersburg and Moscow are under government control, forming, with the theaters and dramatic schools, a department of the ministry of the court. Pupils, both male and female, are entered at the early age of ten years—seldom older. After the necessary nomination has been obtained—by no means an easy matter nowadays—a stringent examination regarding health, strength, beauty of form and natural gracefulness has to be passed before the child is finally accepted. From the time it becomes an inmate the whole of its education, secular and artistic, is taken in hand, and some years of training are necessary before it is considered ripe to appear in public.

The dancer's life is a ceaseless round of hard work. All, even great artists, when at home take regular daily lessons in addition to the daily rehearsals for the next performance which are demanded, however old and well known the ballet. Thus an average of five to six hours' dancing a day is rather the rule than the exception, popular ballerinas in demand at charity performances and artistic at homes often dancing as much as eight hours in the twenty-four.

Trained artists are kept to design in every detail of period and subject, the dresses, scenery and accessories—a task obviously requiring much imagination and much knowledge—and often as many as 150 personages appear on the stage at the same time. Even the orchestra leaders qualify especially for ballet music, having no place in the orchestra at any other time.—London World.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION.

To Catch a Glimpse of It Just Get Delirium Tremens.

The majority of us are like brutes. We believe but in the reality of things. Science, more hospitable, acknowledges the fourth dimension and with it the constant parade before our eyes of things and events ordinarily unseen. The phenomena of delirium tremens forms a case in point. The shapes which the layman believes the patient only imagines are really seen and are rendered visible through the excitation of the pineal gland, which now is the rudimentary organ of what once was psychic vision. Alcohol stimulates this gland. The drunkard in his afterups sees with it the hideousness of shapes which his own hideousness has attracted to him. For they are there, or, rather, they are here, about us in the fourth dimension, precisely as there are other shapes as gracious as these are revolting. Only ordinarily we do not see them. There are, though, those who can and do, and without being drunkards either.

Thinkers as sober as Jevons and Babbage go a bit further. They will, if you let them, tell you that whatever occurs in the privacy of a room remains photographed in it. A mere extension of this enables oculists to say that nothing has ever occurred anywhere which is not also photographed; that in the ether above us is the great picture gallery of the world.

In India, at Adyar, the chief lien of theosophy, this gallery is constantly being visited. The results, occasionally bizarre, are sometimes trivial. It has been found that Herbert Spencer was Aristotle; Gladstone, Cicero; Tennyson, Ovid.—Edgar Saltus in Forum.

Opened His Eyes to the Future.

"Dickie, I'm awfully sorry you use tobacco. I don't like it, and mamma simply loathes it. Will you stop when we are married?"

"Isn't that asking a lot, dearie?" asked Dick.

"I wouldn't care for myself," answered the girl, "but you know it makes mamma deathly sick."

"Well, then," he promised cheerfully, "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll never smoke when your mamma is with us."

She threw her arms around him. "Darling," she murmured, "that's so good of you! I was afraid you'd insist on smoking once in awhile after we were married!"—New York Globe.

The Iron Cross.

The Iron Cross, an order of knighthood, was established by Frederick William III. of Prussia in March, 1813. The order was founded in order to honor patriotic bravery in the war against France. It was revived by Emperor William I. during the Franco-Prussian war and awarded by him to his son for his great victory at Wissembourg on Aug. 4, 1870. Later on the order was bestowed most generously, some 40,000 persons being decorated between 1870 and 1872.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

Middlesex County mismanagement will now take a rest, until another lot of politicians desire the offices.

At least one official has seen good in Gov. Foss' experts. Warren F. Spalding, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison Association, defends his experts in their recent report dealing with the conduct of prison affairs.

Reading is rejoicing because the lowest tax rate for nine years has been announced. It may be a case for sorrow when the State tax is made public. However, the assessors meant well when they prematurely settled on the rate.

Senator Brown of Medford, who represents Winchester in the Legislature, said, at the formation of the Metropolitan Park Employees' Union at Stoneham, last Friday evening, that, "He was not present for political reasons." Well, Senator, it not, why not?

Grafters have brought the city of Lawrence into disgrace, and the fact that they are getting their just deserts in the court, will lessen the disgrace to the city but little. Voting for honest men or a commission form of government is the only remedy in such cases.

Next year's legislators will receive $1,000 as their salary, instead of $750 which heretofore has been the limit. Wonder if they will hereafter do better work, be more prompt at the sessions and treat the people more considerately in opening hearings at advertised times.

Will Winchester really benefit from the $9,000,000 voted by the Legislature for the improvement of Boston harbor? Winchester will be called upon, however, to pay its proportionate share of this expense which legitimately belongs to Boston. It is folly to expect that it will add one cent to our valuation.

Track depression in Lynn to eliminate the grade crossings, meets with Legislative approval, even after more than a million dollars had been spent for an elevated structure. Tracks in the air have had their day—ugliness, noise and dirt being responsible for the change. We trust that such a scheme will not be inflicted upon Winchester.

In Washington and from various points about the country says the Stoneham Independent, evidence is fast accumulating of the steadily increasing popularity of President Taft. The people of this country believe Taft to be a fair man, a just man, an honest administrator of our public affairs, an able executive, a friend of peace, a lover of justice, patient but persistent, diplomatic but determined, and they want him for a second term.

When we saw the members of the Board of Selectmen in company with the County Commissioners viewing Cambridge street near Church street last week, the thought came to us, do the people as a whole appreciate what the Selectmen are doing for them. Here is an unpaid Board composed of active and busy men giving unstintedly of their time for the public good. The town has other unpaid Boards that are doing the same thing, yet many people find it easier to criticise than to give praise. In our opinion we know of no town that is better governed than Winchester and where civic duty is more lived up to by its prominent men. At times there may seem to be cause for criticism, but let us also remember that the members of these unpaid Boards are constantly striving and working for the best interests of Winchester in the way that seems best to them.

EMBARRASSING THE TOWN COUNSEL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Ever since our grade crossing hearings started before the special commission, five years ago, our town counsel has had to face alone not only the ablest railroad attorney in Massachusetts today and an equally able street railway attorney and the Attorney General, but then well equipped officers behind them, and on top of that we have not only given him no other counsel to assist him but have repeatedly taken action in town meeting that has embarrassed him. Last year we voted that the petition might be dismissed and after that all considered action was laughed out of court, we voted this year to appoint another committee after the town counsel had stated to the meeting that Mr. McIlen and Mr. Byrnes had agreed to come out in two or three weeks, look the situation over and say just what the New Haven would do. Naturally the first question they will ask will be: What do the citizens of Winchester want? How can the town counsel answer it with a committee still on the job? Every move we have made in this matter has been unfortunate, even the motion at the last town meeting to leave it in the hands of the Selectmen and town counsel was defeated by a tie vote, which the Moderator could not see his way clear to break and the town clerk would not. If the objections of the town would take hold of this most important matter it would be solved intelligently, but apparently they are tired of it and prefer to plunge into much greater expenditures before settling this one although it is a question of life and limb. What is the matter with us?

John H. Carter.

THEATER SEATS.

Very Annoying Indeed It Was Before They Were Numbered.

People who nowadays book their seats beforehand for the play cannot conceive of the discomfort of other days, an instance of which is given by John Fyvie in "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era."

"One of Charles Matthews' newspaper cuttings," he says, "contains a letter from a disgusted playgoer dated January, 1736, protesting against this custom of 'permitting a footman to sit for an act or two of a play next to a woman of the first quality by way of securing a place for his absent master.'

"The indecency of the practice is said to be aggravated by the usual choice of the dirtiest servant of the family for this duty, 'for the men of parade and figure are to prance before the ladys's chair with actred dambeaux or hang like a rope of onions behind her coach.'

"As a remedy for this nuisance the writer of this letter made the revolutionary suggestion that the sittings in the boxes should be numbered, a plan which does not seem to have occurred to any one previously and which was not adopted till long afterward."
—London Gentlewoman.

Women in Tibet.

Concerning the manners of Tibetans a traveler writes: "The male part of the Anado population is fond of meeting together for frivolous conversation on all suitable and unsuitable occasions. The most the men do is to go hunting and robbing. The domestic work, such as tending the cattle, collecting fuel, drawing water and, in short, everything, falls on the women. While the wife is working incessantly all day long the husband grows weary with idleness and does not go to her assistance unless she is physically incapable of doing any work at all. On horseback the women are as dexterous as the men. To catch any horse she likes out of the troop, lay her hand on its mane and quickly spring on to the back of the bareback steed and ride off in any direction she wishes is an ordinary feat for any young Anado woman."—Chicago News.

BULLIED THE CLUB

A London Duelist Who Forced His Way Into Brooks's.

VETOED HIS OWN REJECTION.

After Having Been Balloted For and Unanimously Blackballed He Made Every Member Deny His Vote and Then Declared Himself Elected.

It was a witty bishop who once defined a club as a place "where women cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." Another amusing definition was that given by George Augustus Sala. "A club," said he, "is a weapon used by savages to keep the white woman at a distance." Nowadays, however, as Ralph Nevill remarks in his book, "London Clubs," things are different. "Within the last twenty five years or so the spirit of London club life has entirely changed. The old fo-fashioned clubman, whose whole life was bound up with one or other of these institutions, is now practically extinct."

Perhaps the most striking story which Mr. Nevill tells regarding Brooks' club is that concerning the famous duelist, George Robert Fitzgerald, who was executed for murder in 1786. No first class London club would admit him. His name does not appear in the club list, though he must in a sort of way be regarded as having belonged to the club. He was, however, in it only once, though it was his boast that he had been unanimously chosen a member.

Owing to Fitzgerald's well known dueling propensities no first class London club would admit him. Nevertheless he got Admiral Keith Stewart, who knew that he must fight Fitzgerald or comply, to propose him for Brooks'.

Accordingly the duelist went with the admiral on the day of the election to the clubhouse and waited downstairs while the ballot was in progress.

The result, a foregone conclusion, was unfavorable to the candidate, not even one white ball being among the black, the admiral having been among the first to deposit his. Mr. Brooks eventually went to tell Fitzgerald, who was waiting in the hall, that there was one black ball and that therefore his candidature had failed.

Thrusting aside Brooks, who protested that nonmembers might not enter the clubrooms, Fitzgerald flew up stairs and entered the room. Walking up to the Brobdee, he thus addressed the whole assembly:

"So, my dear admiral, Mr. Brooks informs me that I have been elected three times."

"You have been balloted for, Mr. Fitzgerald, but I am sorry to say you have not been chosen," said Stewart.

"Well, then," replied the duelist, "did you blackball me?"

"My good sir," answered the admiral, "how could you suppose such a thing?"

"Oh, I supposed no such thing, my dear fellow. I only want to know who it was that dropped the black ball in by accident, as it were."

Fitzgerald now went up to each individual member and put the same question to all in turn. "Did you blackball me, sir?" until he made the round of the whole club, and in each case he received a reply similar to that of the admiral.

When he had finished his investigations he thus addressed the whole body: "You see, gentlemen, that as none of you have blackballed me I must be elected. It is Mr. Brooks who has made the mistake."

After this nothing more was said by the members, who determined to ignore the presence of their dangerous visitor, who drank three bottles of champagne in enforced silence, for no one would answer him when he spoke.

When he had gone it was agreed "that half a dozen stout constables should be in waiting the next evening to bear him off to the watch house if he attempted again to intrude, but Mr. Fitzgerald, aware probably of the reception he might get, never did."

Apropos of blackballing, Mr. Nevill mentions the greatest instance of blackballing probably ever known, which took place some years ago at a ladies' club, where one candidate received three more black balls than the number of members present—a case of excessive zeal indeed!

The practical joker is naturally not unknown in the most solemn of clubs, and "some irrepressible jokers have paid for their love of fun by having to resign their membership. One of them, whose escapades were notorious in London twenty years ago, sitting half asleep in a certain bohemian club, became annoyed at a very red headed waiter who kept buzzing about his chair. The sight of the fiery locks was eventually too much for this wild spirit, and, darting up and seizing the man, he emptied a bottle of black ink over his head before he could escape. The result, of course, was expulsion from the club, besides which very substantial compensation was rightly paid to the waiter."

Sauce.

"The impudence of that young brother of mine!" exclaimed Mrs. Nagger. "He just told me I was no chicken when I married you."

"Well," replied her unsympathetic husband, "that's true enough. You weren't a chicken, were you?"

"No; I was a goose."—Philadelphia Press.

No wise man ever wished to be younger.—Swift.

GERMAN LATCHKEYS.

Big Enough to Be Used as Weapons of Attack or Defense.

Locksmithing in Germany is today as important a trade as plumbing, blacksmithing or the vocation of the barber, says our consul at Hanover in a recent report. The first lock and key were introduced into Prussia in the fourteenth century and caused a considerable sensation at the palace of the elector of Brandenburg. He found that by those devices he could drawer with the guard at his private doors and thus materially reduce his household expenses. Since that day the schlosser, or locksmith, has been an essential factor in German life.

The present German house key could be used as a weapon of attack and defense, besides serving its original purpose. It weighs on an average about one-eighth of a pound, and as each person entitled to carry a house and corridor key has nearly a quarter of a pound of soft iron in his pocket it is conservatively estimated that the amount of iron in circulation in Germany in the pockets of the men and in the hand bags of women amounts to 2,875 tons, besides an additional 2,500 tons for the keys to the interior of German homes. Thus something over 5,000 tons of iron are put into keys of a size to be found nowhere in America. However large the house or numerous the apartments, the outer door is locked promptly at 10 o'clock, and as the German spends many of his evenings out every person carries at least one of these massive keys to effect an entrance.

ANSWERED THE SIGNAL.

The King Sent the Reply, and the Captain Kicked Himself.

Rear Admiral Sir Colin Keppel was given the command of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert by King Edward, and on one occasion when the late king was on board his majesty thought he would like to steer the yacht for a little way.

Admiral Keppel took him to the wheel, and, having ascertained the proper course to steer, his majesty tried to keep the yacht in it, with rather poor success.

The vessel was being escorted by a squadron of cruisers, and the captain of one of these vessels, noticing the wobbly course of the Victoria and Albert, thought he would "rag" Admiral Keppel on his bad steering.

He signaled a sarcastic inquiry as to the erratic course of the yacht, and King Edward, seeing the string of flags go up, inquired their meaning.

Admiral Keppel went all the colors of the rainbow and tried to escape the question, but the king insisted. When at last he understood the meaning of the signal his majesty went off into peals of laughter, and after he had recovered a little he ordered a reply to be signaled.

A few minutes later the captain of the cruiser read this message: "Pray accept apologies, but am a bit out of practice.—Edward."

Then the captain retired to his cabin and kicked himself.—Pearson's Weekly.

Cares and Swords In Porto Rico.

Of all people perhaps none are more fond of canes or more skilled in their use than our fellow citizens of Porto Rico. The walking stick in that island would seem to mark social distinctions among men as fans do among women. Every Spaniard has a cane, the well to do own several, and the gilded youth often have a small arsenal of walking sticks. The term "arsenal" is used advisedly, as the Porto Ricans, like the Spaniards, have quite a fondness for sword canes and dagger canes, and they make these with remarkable skill. The blades of the finer specimens come from famous smiths in Toledo and other Spanish cities and are forged from the finest steel. Some are damascened, and others are inlaid with silver and gold; some have worked upon them the name of the owner and others the name of a patron saint.—Philadelphia Record.

All In Good Time.

"He'll arrive," he said, "if you'll give him time. He is like Dr. Thirdly.

"Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into appropriate heads one Sunday morning when a member of the congregation shouted irascibly:

"'Meat, man! Give us meat!'

"'Well,' said Dr. Thirdly promptly, 'hold on, then, till I'm done carving.'" —Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A Steady Watch.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gloonip at dinner, looking down at her watch, but speaking to Mr. Gloonip on the other side of the table, "my watch hasn't varied a second in a week."

"Remarkable!" said Mr. Gloonip. "How did you get it to vary so little?"

"I broke the mainspring."

Latest Idea in Hope

A cot... has patents covering a rope m... of several strands of paper covered with galvanized steel wire. The rope thus produced is strong, tough and flexible, suitable for clothes lines and such uses. It is claimed that a rope of this kind will withstand the action of the weather 50 per cent. longer than cotton.

The Oil Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "oil bird," or guacharo. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A Word of Wrath.

The word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition the speaker would stand a fair chance of being hurled overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."—London Chronicle.

FLEETS A MENACE.

There is not a ruler or statesman in the world today who desires war, but while every nation builds its fleets every one of these fleets becomes a menace to other nations because they can easily be converted into instruments of destruction.—Andrew Carnegie.

WAYSIDE FARM.

Is situated in beautiful old Billerica Center, about six miles from Lowell and nearly twenty miles north from Boston. One of the Trolley routes from Boston is through the historic towns of Lexington and Bedford.

An old-fashioned home with all modern improvements. Large, airy sleeping rooms, with hot, cold, salt water bath, but not cold water, electric lights and hot water heat. Broad piazza, beautiful lawn. Bungalows and tents. Boating and canoeing near by. House quiet, comfortable and homelike. Our table we try to have the best—with fresh vegetables, berries, milk, cream, chickens and eggs from our own farm.

The elevation of the district, the pure spring water, and hygienic conditions make it an attractive and healthful location. Open all the year.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

The last meeting of the Winchester Equal Suffrage League was made a delightful lawn party by invitation of its President Miss Elder at her beautiful home on Myopia Hill. The day was cool and sparkling and called out a gathering of about fifty. The usual business was done. Reports from committees showed that much valuable work had been accomplished through the year. The chairman of the membership committee announced that the League has more than trebled during the year and now numbered a hundred. The business meeting was followed by addresses by Mr. Arthur M. Holcombe and Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald. The former took for his theme the time-worn statement—it cannot be dignified as an argument—that "Woman's place is at home." Dealing in an interesting and thoughtful way what home really is, namely, the spiritual and intellectual union of two souls who, together, are equally concerned about everything that will make not only their own home, but every home, a centre for the development of what will most help in the general uplift—where responsibility for work for the common weal is equal, and showing that such work can only be economically accomplished through the use of political means.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is the able, inspiring secretary and general manager of the Mass. Woman Suffrage Association. She made an earnest, forceful and most convincing statement of the real things that can be accomplished when the destinative points of view of man and woman are brought forward and harmonized, when we become truly democratic, an address too replete with variety and helpful suggestions to be given were in the detail which it merited.

The meeting was held on the piazza which commands an extended and most attractive view of the blue Milton Hills across the lovely Mystic Lake and intervening country. The social hour in the beautiful woods behind the house was very much enjoyed.

REDUCTION IN EXPRESS CHARGES.

Orders have been received from the headquarters of the Adams express company in New York by General Agent Johnson, with headquarters in the South terminal, that on and after Aug. 1, there will be a radical change in the shipping system which promises a great reduction to shippers.

Heretofore the system of two charges prevailed when packages were transferred from one company to the other, but under the new system only one charge will be levied. For instance, if a package is expressed at Provincetown with the Adams company to a point on the Boston & Maine railroad where an American office is located, there will be but one charge, and the Adams will, by reason of its connection with the American be able to bill the package right through to Boston, where the American will forward it to its destination without loss of time.

There are, however, companies in various parts of the country who are not associated with the big express companies and the old system will have to prevail in such cases. Mr. Johnson would not state how great a reduction this innovation would bring but intimated that if the plans worked out as they expected it would probably reach 15 per cent. and the shippers will get the benefit.

MR. McCALL'S OPINION.

Of Initative, Referendum and Recall.

Congressman Samuel W. McCall delivered an address, before the Ohio State Bar Association at Cedar Point, O., recently. A feature of his speech was its attacks on the initiative, referendum and recall.

In denying the name "progressive" to those who favored these policies, Mr. McCall declared that "it would be more correct to say that the opponents of these proposals are in favor of the progressive principles of the American Constitution and that their supporters stand for reactionary policies which long ago demonstrated their lethal effect upon government."

"The typical initiative and referendum speech," the speaker continued, "presents as glowing a prospect as can be found in the most eloquent mining prospectus. It usually proceeds upon the theory that, however careless each one of us may be, however lacking in definite and close study, yet in our collective capacity we are incapable of doing wrong. One has to be very cautious in questioning the omnipotence of the people in our collective capacity. But laws are pretty apt to be the tax average of the knowledge and study shown in their preparation, whether they are passed by an assembly of 120 members or by 4,000,000 people."

"The referendum," Mr. McCall said, "would afford a ready means for the cowardly legislator to dodge instead of bravely voting against some bad but specious bill. He would dodge responsibility by voting to pass it on to the supreme court of appeals, the people. The recall of political officers would tend to make them constantly keep themselves in a plausible and easily advertised position. We should always have government by the politician and not by the statesman.

"The recall of the judiciary would subject our judges to the liability of having to argue their decisions on appeal before the people upon a proceeding to dismiss them from office in disgrace. The judge who desired to continue upon the bench would more diligently study the popular moods than the sources of the law."

BUILDING NOTES.

Plans are being drawn for the wooden dwelling to be erected for George B. Whitehorne. The structure will be 2 1-2 stories high and will cost $6,000. The owner will have the work done by the day.

Foundations are in for the 2 1-2 story house to be built for E. L. Davis on Everett avenue. The building will be of terra cotta blocks, 30x45.

The contract has been let for the erection of a two family house on Bacon street, for Charles Maxwell of 140 Highland avenue. The dwelling will be of wood and will cost $10,000.

Mr. Nickerson has arranged for the erection of a 2 story wooden dwelling house at the corner of Calumet road and Yale street, at a cost of $10,000. The work is in charge of Contractor Johnston.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The final week of Mr. Craig's third successful season begins on Monday with a revival of "A Bachelor's Honeymoon." The Castle Square Theatre will thus have been open continuously for forty-nine successive weeks and it will be closed but a short interval of time in order to make ready for the opening of the new season of 1911-1912. "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" is a lively farce in which the audience will find plenty of opportunity for laughter. It is funny from the start, and its ingenuity of plot, its witty dialogue and its amusing characters place it among the best plays of its kind. In laughter giving power it is fully the equal of "All the Comforts of Home" and "Are You a Mason?"

The cast will include Donald Meek, W. P. Carlton, Gertrude Bailey and Mabel Colcord.

The new season at the Castle Square under the direction of Mr. Craig will open the first of September, and due announcement will be made of the play selected for the purpose.

OVERLOOKED REPLY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Owing to the present debates on the question of equal suffrage, and the increasing activity of the suffragettes, it is rather interesting to note the definite decision of the Japanese Association for the Advancement of Women to refrain from taking part in the International Suffrage Congress just convened at Copenhagen. The explicit ground given for this decision is that the women of Japan are too fully occupied with the task of training the children of their nation as citizens and patriots to have time to spare for direct politics.

The suffragists seem to have overlooked this reply to their invitation to the women of Japan. But at all events it gives a fitting rebuke to their persistent division of women into two classes—the one of apathetic and downtrodden women, the other of suffragists.

THE POCKETKNIFE

Many Machines and Processes Used In Its Making.

ART IN FORGING THE BLADES.

To Become an Adept In the Delicate Work of Tempering Edge Steel Necessitates a Long Course of Training and Years of Experience.

The labor of making a pocketknife is, as usual in every industry that is carried on by the aid of a great deal of machinery, much divided. Each blade must go through six separate processes—first, forging; second, laying on the "tangs," that part which is inserted into the handle and through which the blade is riveted; third, marking or stamping with the name of the manufacturer; fourth, "chelling," or filing a depression in the neck of the blade between the sharp edge and the heavier part or "tang;" fifth, tempering; sixth, grinding.

All this applies to the two ordinary blades of a knife. Nail blades are subjected to still another process—namely, the cutting of the file, which is a department of work in itself.

Should we inspect the material room of a knife manufactory we should find heavy iron presses, which stamp out from sheets of brass or iron the metal scales and lining. The bright tips on the end of the knife, called "bolsters," are pressed out of German silver under another heavy weight, which does its work in one blow. Huge shears cut from sheets of steel, used only for this purpose, long strips that are afterward fashioned under a press into springs for the back of the knife.

The rod of steel from which the blades are made is taken from the material room to the forge. Here one end is put into a bed of hot coals, the bellows are pumped, and the end is soon red.

The skilled forger then hammers the blade into shape upon his anvil, and so accurate is his eye and so exact his hand that the blade does not deviate a hair's breadth from the little brass pattern that is before him and to which each blade must correspond exactly.

The blade is next dipped in water and becomes as hard and brittle as glass. But the edges are rough. It is nearly uniform in thickness and is a light gray in color.

Again the forger's skill is brought into play in the tempering. Laying the blades on a copper plate over the fire, he watches them as they change their hue with the degree of heat, first to straw color, then to darker straw and next to the dark purple which denotes that the proper degree of heat has been obtained. They are plunged into cold water as fast as they reach this point.

If the blades were allowed to remain longer over the fire the steel would change to a light blue and become so soft that the blades could be bent easily. This is perhaps the most important process in the manufacture.

The blades are taken next to the grinding room. The grinder must also depend upon the accuracy of his eye and the training of his hand, for as he presses the blade on the rapidly revolving stone, turning it on both sides and grinding all its edges, he practically finishes it, though afterward, in the cutler's room, a higher finish is given it.

From the "wheel room" the blades go to the cutler's room, where they find the other parts of the knife and where all the parts are put together.

Each workman here is at work upon a particular lot of knives, all of one pattern. Upon his work bench are the various parts of the knives, prepared by other hands—the center scales that separate the blades, the outer brass scales or lining, with the German silver bolsters, which have been secured to the ends by a heavy drop hammer; the wood, ivory or pearl scales, the springs and the wire rivets.

Each brass lining, with its covering, is put in a vise, and holes are drilled in it for the rivets. A brass wire is thrust through the middle of the handle toward the back. This secures the spring, and it is then broken off with nippers and headed down with a hammer. This holds the scales and springs. Another rivet through the bolster secures one blade or two blades if the knife has more than one blade hung at each end.

The several parts are now put together. The next process is "buffing" or finishing the covers of the handle, which is done on a leather wheel coated with glue and emery. The rough edges are rounded and smoothed, and then the knives are carefully examined to see if the cutler has done his work properly.

If the spring works easily and the blades close without striking the knives are sent to the blade polisher.

On a wooden wheel covered with fine leather the ordinary blades are given a polish called a "glaze finish." Finer grades of knives are given a "crocus finish"—a mirror-like surface—on a leather wheel which revolves very slowly, in order that the blades shall not become heated and lose their temper.

The knives are now taken to another room, where, on an oilstone, the keen cutting edges are "set." This done, the blades are closed and the "buffing wheel" gives the final polish to the outer side.—Philadelphia Record.

RAILWAYS IN JAPAN.

Filthy Cars and Dirty Stations In a Land of Cleanliness.

"The railway journey from Kioto to Yokohama, despite the fact that most beautiful country is traversed, is not the pleasantest of experiences," declares a writer in the Wide World. "One buys a railway ticket in Japan in installments.

"The ordinary ticket only enables one to go by a train covering the minimum distance in the maximum time, so an extra express ticket is purchased, which means that the engine moves a little more quickly toward its appointed goal.

"Next a platform ticket must be procured to enable one to board the train, and finally one has to fight one's way into a first class carriage. Why do all the passengers in Japan take their luggage into the already painfully small carriage instead of leaving it in the van? And why, again, does a nation that is a password for cleanliness the world over possess a train service so shockingly dirty in every detail?

"I've once in a weak moment looked into a station master's room at a large station, and for pure dirt it could have given points to a dust heap. In the train carriages the floors are covered with the dirt of ages, cigarette ends, orange peel, sandwich papers. At intervals a porter saunters in with a brush and leisurely sweeps all the refuse into a corner, having first carefully closed every window, so that no atom of discomfort or infection shall be lost.

"Finally he departs, leaving behind him the rubbish and an atmosphere charged with germs and angry words. Truly a Japanese porter's definition of clearing up is removing rubbish from one place to another."

A TURKEY FEAST.

General Lee Showed His Officers the Way to Enjoy It.

General Lee in the drawing room was a dignified and quiet gentleman, very kindly and gentle, especially with women and children. "On the field," says Major Ranson in Harper's Magazine, "he was the general, the commander in all essential points. But in other points he could be as sympathetic and considerate as he was at home.

"In the latter part of December a barrel was delivered at our camp marked 'General Lee and Staff.' We opened it and found it was packed full of turkeys. We sent word to General Lee, and he rode over to our camp. There was snow on the ground, and we had laid the turkeys out on a board on the snow, the biggest in the middle and the others tapering off to the smallest at each end. There were about a dozen of them.

"General Lee dismounted and joined the group gathered round the present, carrying his unsling and undrawn sword in his hand. He was told that the big turkey in the middle was his. He stood looking down at the turkeys for a moment and then said, touching the big turkey with the scabbard of his sword:

"'This, then, is my turkey? I don't know, gentlemen, what you are going to do with your turkeys, but I wish mine sent to the hospital in Petersburg so that some of the convalescents may have a good dinner.'

"He then turned on his heel and, walking to his horse, mounted and rode away. We looked at one another for a moment and then, without a word, replaced the turkeys in the barrel and sent them to the hospital."

Gilbert's Witty Comment.

Sir W. S. Gilbert's wit and humor were always ready. He was a fine raconteur and a good after dinner speaker. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, said that "staying in Gilbert's house was like living in a literary fireworks factory."

Barrington played the Captain in "Pinafore." At rehearsal one day Gilbert, who was an autocratic and magnificent stage manager, told him to cross the stage, which represented the deck of H. M. S. Pinafore, and sit on a skylight "in a pensive attitude." Barrington obeyed orders, but unfortunately the skylight had only been rigged up temporarily, and the portly Barrington crashed through it.

"That's an expensive attitude," said Gilbert in a flash.

Wanted to Convert Utopia.

When the "Utopia" was first published it occasioned a pleasant mistake. This political romance represents a perfect but visionary republic in an island supposed to have been somewhere in the Atlantic, near these western shores.

"As this was the age of discovery," says Grainger, "the learned Budaeus and others took it for genuine history and deemed it expedient to send missionaries thither to convert the people."—"Book of Queer Things."

Chattel Mortgages.

A man who gives a chattel mortgage should always examine it carefully to make sure it is not "on demand." Sharp money lenders who loan funds on chattel mortgages often try to have this clause inserted, and when it is the borrower may expect to part with his chattels at almost any moment. It is a trick by which advantage is often taken of the unwary.

On the Fence.

"Are you an optimist or a pessimist?"

"Both. I hope for the best, but I don't bet on it as a sure thing."—Exchange.

To live long it is necessary to live slowly.—Cicero.

To Mary E. Studley, Annie M. Cutting and Thomas S. Spurr of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Dudah G. Mayo and Dora M. Nickerson of said Winchester, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded Northerly Grove Street four hundred ten and 59-100 (410.59) feet; Easterly by land now or formerly of Mary E. Studley two hundred fifty and 26-100 (250.26) feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of Annie M. Cutting three hundred sixty-five and 95-100 (365.95) feet; Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Thomas S. Spurr one hundred nineteen and 50-100 (119.50) feet; and Westerly by said Spurr land one hundred sixty nine and 21-100 (169.21) feet. Estimated to contain 106,177 square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and said boundaries and lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of August A.D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the prayer of said petition, should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES HUTCHINSON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of July in the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

A Labor Day Feast

How a Laborer Tested His Social Position.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When Bob Nebbins came to L. and set himself up to join the social circle composed of young people it was a grave question whether he was to be admitted. I have never known so many diverse views about any one. Some complained that he dressed like a tinker instead of a gentleman; others complained that when he did put on fine clothes they were foppish. Some of the young men thought him clever. Most of the girls considered him a fool.

Notwithstanding that he was generally disapproved by the girls, no one of them would take the responsibility of slighting him. Miss Arietta Price, it is true, was very cool to him, but Miss Price had said openly among her girl friends that she proposed to "be somebody" in the social world and to do that she must marry a rich man. Miss Dora Laraway, who was perhaps the most independent among the girls, took up Mr. Nebbins, but it was said that she did so because she liked to be contrary. I mention these two girls because they represent the two extremes.

Just as Nebbins was acquiring a social foothold along comes Tom Kirshaw, who the year before had left L. to go into business in the city, and says that he had seen Mr. Nebbins working in overalls in a large manufacturing concern. A fuss was at once called, and many were of the opinion that no more invitations should be extended to the workman until more was learned about him. Miss Price the next time she met him cut him. Miss Laraway, with her usual contrariness, was more gracious to him than ever. The rest of us were divided. The situation was rather annoying, because Nebbins had been received within our circle, and, once admitted, it was not easy to oust him. Ed Gifford, one of our number, who prided himself on going straight at things, asked Bob if it was true that he had been a workingman. Nebbins admitted that it was. Gifford attempted to follow the matter up with other questions, but Nebbins admouished him to mind his own business.

Common sense prevailed. Those who declined to turn a cold shoulder to Nebbins because he had been a greasy mechanic carried the day, and, although he was not especially welcome among us after this, he was at least tolerated. We wondered what he lived on. He had come among us at the beginning of the summer, and it was expected that he would leave early in the autumn. Probably the fact that his stay among us was temporary contributed to our willingness to treat him considerately while he remained.

Notwithstanding the disadvantages under which Nebbins labored, he gradually made friends. I don't mean that he was in any way a popular man, even with those with whom he became most intimate. After it became known that he had been a workman this fancy of his for putting on mean clothes seemed to be explained. In other words, he was an instance of a workingman trying to be a gentleman and only half succeeding, or, rather, now and then suffering a relapse.

We young men found Nebbins much more endurable—not to say attractive—than the girls. There were a few girls who, like Miss Price, made no scruple of turning the cold shoulder to him; there were those who neither avoided nor sought him and a few who in a spirit of kindliness treated him cordially. Miss Laraway alone positively favored him. But Miss Laraway had laid out for herself a life of work and had accepted a position as teacher to enter upon her duties the following autumn. On this account probably she had less influence with us in a social point of view than any of the girls. Indeed, Dora's social position was not fixed among us. Some of the girls, though they worked with her in church duties and were familiar with her at such times, forbore to invite her to their homes. She was as refined as they and more intelligent than most of them. Indeed, there was no difference between her and them at least none that was noted to her advantage, except that when her parents had first come to L. they had neither been inclined to enter "society" nor had they the means to enable them to do so. Indeed, Dora had been taken up by a few of those "in the swim" for herself alone, and she did not seem to care whether the others accepted her or not.

Miss Price was the girl whom all her associates looked up to as one bound to achieve prominence. She was really marked for a star career. Affable to all, she knew how to draw a distinction between those of her set and others, just as a gentleman knows how to be on easy terms with his coachman without permitting that coachman to become familiar with him. She recognized a certain kind of merit in Dora Laraway and undertook to patronize her, but Dora showed no appreciation of her kindness, and it was withdrawn. Some of us thought that one reason for Miss Price's snubbing Bob Nebbins was the fact that Miss Laraway was disposed to be his friend.

Such was the situation when Labor day was coming round. Bob Nebbins sent out invitations to us all for a supper he proposed to give that day, the eve of his departure. What surprised us was that he included those who had been cool to him and even those who had cut him after he had admitted that he had worked in a factory. Even Miss Price was invited.

The next question was, What were we going to do about it? We fellows discussed the matter at the club, but men are not so particular about their social acceptances as women, and we got no further than a statement from each man either that he would go to the supper or he would do as he pleased about it. I understood that there was a good deal more discussion among the girls, some of whom—Miss Price being the prime mover—thought that they owed it to their social position to decline in a body. But they were overruled by those who did not relish the idea of giving up the supper. A third lot were independent enough to assert that they would accept even if all the others declined.

When the evening for the supper arrived—10 o'clock was the hour fixed—it was found that every one invited was present. Nebbins met us in the anteroom. What was our surprise and consternation, in some cases, to be received in overalls. Being all in full dress themselves, some considered this apparel an outrage. Duly one-third turned away and left the place. The rest chatted with one another till the door of the supper room was thrown open and we entered. Waiters stood about ready to serve the viands, and when all were seated, at a signal from the host, the covers were removed. There on each plate was a surprising feast indeed.

Each guest was served with crackers and cheese.

Nebbins began to munch his portion, while some of his guests followed his example, a few good naturedly accepting the situation, others grudgingly, while others, one by one, left the table, very red in the face, here and there muttering maledictions on the head of the man who would invite guests to such a supper. One of the guests as he passed out glared and said:

"You may intend this as a joke. It is an insult. But what is to be expected from one who attempted to rise above his station and seeks admission to the society of his betters?"

Nebbins bowed, lifted a glass and bowed imperturbably to his retiring guest, drinking his health in cold water.

The departure of this person left half a dozen men and as many girls, all of whom sat good naturedly munching crackers and cheese. When it became apparent to the host that those who remained were not disposed to uphraid him he stood up, unbuttoned his overalls, threw them off and stood before them in evening dress.

"Come," he said.

A waiter opened a door, and Nebbins led the way into an adjoining room, where stood a table with a place for each one of those remaining at the supper party. Seating themselves at the table, a real supper was served. It seemed that their host had ransacked the uttermost parts of the earth to find delicacies. As to wines, few of those present had ever drunk wines of such delicious flavor. The best, too, was in keeping with the feast he offered. Certain mannerisms that he had evidently up to this time assumed were dropped, and he appeared a plain gentleman.

"My guests," he said, "you who remain I count my friends, and so far as I am concerned you will always remain such. Those who have retired are to me a part of the great world in which I exist. You, on the contrary, are inexpressibly near to me. I owe you an explanation and will not ask you to wait for it longer.

"First of all, I am a workingman; secondly, I am a capitalist. My father and mother were both of the labor class, and I have followed in their footsteps. But I am more fortunate than most laborers in this—my father and mother worked hard and saved to give me a better education than usually falls to those of my class. All that I am is due to them. God bless them! I worked and studied at the same time. Providence favored me in a gift. I began by inventing machines to save labor and ended by inventing them to give me wealth that I might help my fellow men. I have succeeded beyond my highest hopes.

"I believe that in America labor is respectable, that there is no prejudice against it as labor and that any laborer who becomes refined can find a place among the best people of the land if he wishes to do so. To gratify a whim I came here among you. I have found that a place among the best has been open to me, but you are the best. For your inferiors I care not."

During these remarks we all looked at one another, each remembering some occasion wherein we had not been as blameless as our host had assumed. I confess, remembering certain times when Nebbins appeared at his worst I had wished I might not be seen with him, I blushed for my want of independence. Nevertheless we all felt very happy at having stood the test and doubtless rejoiced that we would be able to crow over those who had not.

Naturally we all looked to the girl who had been foremost in standing by Bob Nebbins. Noticing this, he said:

"There is one among you who has not needed to be deceived. A few days ago I told her what I have told you this evening. I have her permission to announce our engagement."

It was not necessary that he should mention Dora Laraway, for she put out a red signal immediately.

There was much disappointment among those who had left. As for Miss Price, she is still looking for a man with a fortune to start her on her career as a social leader.

PAPUAN SAVAGES

The Most Treacherous of All the South Sea Natives.

A TRIBE OF HEAD HUNTERS.

The Solomon Islanders Kill and Eat Their Enemies as an Incident of Their Weird Religious Rites—Storming a House In a Treetop.

The name Papuan is that given to the dark skinned people who inhabit the greater number of islands in the part of the Pacific ocean known as Polynesia and Melanesia and whose headquarters, as it were, are in the great island of Papua or New Guinea. Under this description come the inhabitants of the Solomon Islands.

So evil has been the reputation of the Solomon Islanders that until quite recently they were carefully avoided, and very little was known about them. They have the name of being the most treacherous of all the south sea natives, yet, considering the treatment they have received in the past at the hands of white men, this is not to be wondered at. Indeed, the wonder is that they allow any white man at all in their country. But now that they have had a chance of seeing some more favorable specimens than the dregs of humanity who formerly drifted to the south seas they are much improved, and a man who treats them fairly may, as a rule, go among them without fear.

Still, even now there is a beautiful uncertainty about the life of a south sea trader. One day he may be surrounded by cringing natives who obey his every word. But some night, if he has cheated the Papuan too grossly, there is murder in the moonlight, and the trader is never heard of more. Often, however, there seems to be no reason for the natives turning against the whites. It is simply that they object to having a trader in their midst. So they burn his goods and end by killing him.

The Solomon Islanders are as keen head hunters as the Borneans and every year, except where they are held in check by the British government, set out on head hunting raids pure and simple. Although cannibalism is still practiced in the wilder parts of the group, it is nowadays mostly a religious ceremony and not a matter of diet. The islanders do not generally kill and eat people for enjoyment, but either because their religion demands a human sacrifice or because a head is needed for some ceremony.

In Ysabel, one of the largest islands in the Solomon group, the natives build houses in the highest trees to escape from the attacks of head hunting parties, who sometimes come as far as 200 miles in their search for skulls. One of these houses was built in a tree 150 feet high. All the lower branches had been cut off, so that the stem was quite bare until the platform, some eighty feet from the ground, was reached. Access was had to the house by a rickety ladder composed of rungs lashed to a stout pole with rope of twisted cane. When an attack is expected the women and children take refuge in these houses, while the men keep watch. They warn each other of the approach of a fleet by a curious cry which once heard is never to be forgotten. These houses are substantially built, as often the inhabitants have to withstand a long siege in them. The door is made of plaited bamboo laid on a layer of bark which rests upon the platform. The walls are of bamboo, and the roof is thatched with sago palm. The particular house to which I have referred measured 30 by 15 feet, and forty persons had been known to take refuge in it if the attacking party land and the men cannot resist them successfully they, too, ascend to the tree house. A pile of large stones is always kept ready for emergencies outside the door of the platform, and these the men hurl down on their foes. Sometimes, however, the enemy construct a shelter beneath which they can work away and cut the tree down, and they have even been known to ascend the tree while the inhabitants were off their guard and set fire to the house.

Nowadays, however, head hunting is indulged in only on special occasions. Often, indeed, when a head is required the chief gives notice of the fact to the different tribes and offers a reward for one. The chiefs of the villages look around, and if in any of them there is a native who has made himself objectionable for any reason they decide that his head shall come off and the reward be earned. The victim is not told of his impending fate, but is carefully watched by a man who has been told to secure his head. He watches every movement of his victim and when a favorable opportunity presents itself quickly and remorselessly kills him, cuts off his head and carries it to the chief, who pays for it in shell money. This even happens to white men if they have made themselves unpopular. Money is paid over for the skull, which goes to join the chief's collection.—John Foster Fraser in New York Tribune.

The Finding of the Book of the Law. 2 Chron. xxxiv:14-33.

Golden Text—Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Ps. cxix:11.

(1.) Verses 14-17—What book was it they found; what did it consist of, and who was its author?

(2.) What were they doing when they found this book of Moses?

(3.) What are we generally doing when we find our richest treasures of spiritual knowledge?

(4.) How could so important a book have been lost, or mislaid?

(5.) Was this probably the only copy of the book in existence?

(6.) Verses 18-19—What effect did the reading of this book of the law have upon the king?

(7.) What part of the book would be likely to produce such grief on the part of the king? (See Deut. xxviii et seq.)

(8.) What part of this book of the law which pertains to morals, is considered operative and binding to-day?

(9.) You will observe that there are many death penalties for breaches of the moral law. Why have these been abolished by Christian people?

(10.) Did Jesus abolish any of the laws of Moses and if so which? (See Matt. v:38-44, et seq.)

(11.) Why are some laws just and equal under certain circumstances while cruel and unjust under others?

(12.) What has been the effect of reading the Bible upon national and individual character?

(13.) Verses 20-21—If these people did not have the book of the law how did they know their duty, or how to worship?

(14.) Why was it necessary for the king to inquire further of the Lord when he now had the "law" in his hands?

(15.) If more light were needed why could not the king or Hilkiah, the priest, inquire of God direct?

(16.) How did the saints of God, who lived before Moses, find out the mind of God?

(17.) Why are the penalties of moral law as unyielding and certain as are the penalties of physical law?

(18.) Verses 22-25—Why is it that there are and always have been those who are sensitive to the voice of God, when the masses of even spiritual people are dull and unconscious of it?

(19.) What is the reason for believing that all Christian people may cultivate the inward ear to discern the voice of God?

(20.) How many women of the Bible are there which excelled in spiritual power and influence?

(21.) When were these punishments inflicted upon Judah? (See 2 Chron. xxxvi:17-20.)

(22.) Verses 26-28—When a man repents of his sin does God always forgive him, and remit the penalty, or are there exceptions?

(23.) Verses 29-33—The entire nation seems to have repented at this time; did that keep them from being destroyed, and would it have prevented the final overthrow of the nation if they had not backslidden again?

(24.) This incident shows how much influence one man has who is thoroughly aroused. What practical lessons may we learn from it? (This ... questions which may be answered in writing by members of the class.)

VOL. XXXI. NO. 5. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1911. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

THE POLLUTION OF STREAMS BY MANUFACTURING WASTES.

Sentiment Which Has Seriously Affected Manufacturers.

By William S. Johnson.

Among the many changes in public sentiment which have seriously affected manufacturers within the last few years, by no means the least important to those producing liquid wastes is the change in the attitude of the public with reference to the pollution of streams not used as sources of domestic water supply. This change in sentiment has been reflected in the action of the courts and the legislatures of many states, and has already been a source of great expense to the manufacturers affected.

It was only a few years ago that the streams were considered to be great natural drains of the country, and this function of the streams was of little less importance than the furnishing of power and means of transportation. The streams for many years carried their increasing burden of filth until many of them became public nuisances, if not a menace to public health.

The first efforts to remedy this condition of the streams were directed toward preventing the discharge of unpurified domestic sewage into the streams, the primary object being the prevention of possible injury to health. Laws have been passed in many states providing that no domestic sewage shall be discharged into the streams without the approval of some public authority, and the manner in which these laws are administered practically limits the amount of sewage which may be discharged into a stream to the amount which the stream can properly dilute without causing a nuisance, the standard now being the appearance and odor of water rather than the possible effect on the health of the public.

While the regulation of the discharge of domestic sewage into streams is now almost universal, the discharge of manufacturing wastes into streams not used for water supply purposes has generally been permitted in this country without restraint, and, in fact, has been permitted even in streams from which domestic water supplies have been taken. The importance of the manufacturing interests to the welfare of the country has been recognized by both legislatures and courts, and the idea that the factories would be driven out of the community has been sufficient until recent times to prevent any action which would necessitate the purification of manufacturing wastes.

A few years ago a court in Pennsylvania held that the discharge of water from the coal mines into a stream, although it made the water for miles below unfit for domestic and for many other purposes, was not an improper use, this opinion being rendered evidently on account of the desire to protect the mines which were the most important industry in that part of the state.

The Public Welfare.

Now, however, the old principle that, because of the importance to the factories to the welfare of the community, the public should endure with patience any inconvenience or even damage to property caused by the factories no longer obtains, the public comfort and convenience are coming to be recognized more and more both in the legislatures and in the courts. This is clearly indicated by recent legislation and court decision all over the country.

Probably the most drastic legislation is the act passed by the Massachusetts Legislature in the case of the factories on the Neponset River. Under the provision of this act the Massachusetts State Board of Health is directed to prevent the entrance or discharge into the Neponset River or its tributaries at any substance which may be injurious to public health or may tend to create a public nuisance. It rigidly enforced, this law will necessitate the purification of the wastes from the paper mills, tanneries and other factories on that stream at an enormous expense, and it is interesting to note that public health is not the only consideration, but it is proposed to prevent the entrance into the stream of anything which will tend to create a public nuisance. The Legislature has recognized the right of the large population in the vicinity of the stream to have a stream which shall not be a nuisance even although the large industries on that stream may be seriously affected.

The most notable court decision relating to the pollution of a stream by manufacturing wastes is that rendered by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in the case of Percy Parker vs. The American Woolen Co. The finding in this case was to the effect that the defendant should be enjoined from discharging into the stream "any acids, soaps, combinations of soaps or of rosin, chemicals, scourings, dye stuffs, sewage or any objectionable substances whatever in quantities that noticeably or appreciably affect the purity of the waters when they reach the plaintiff's premises, or render materially less fit for domestic, drinking or other uses at that point than they are when they enter the defendant's premises." An important feature of this case is that it was thought not to be public policy to use the authorities as a way of preventing damage to private interests even to prevent a public nuisance. It is the owner of a small factory on the stream below who claims to be damaged by the pollution of the water.

An effort to bring about such a result is the case of Horace McNamara vs. Ernest W. Tutt. In this case the owner of a farm on the stream below a cotton factory obtained an injunction restraining the owner of the mill from polluting the brook by wastes from the scouring of cotton. The only use made of the water on the farm was for watering cows, and it was claimed that the discharge of the wastes into the stream did not injure the water for this purpose.

The Demand for Clean Streams.

This demand for clean streams is in fact only the modern development of the old demand for good and clean drinking water. Water no longer selected to allow that the water supplied to us will not cause acute specific disease, and that foods we eat do not contain substances injurious to the system. We demand water which is free from filth of all kinds and foods which are clean and free from foreign substances, even though they may be harmless. So it is in the case of streams, the public is beginning to demand something more than protection to health. It requires that the streams shall become, as they will if kept clean, the most attractive features of the neighborhood. It is at the same time becoming better understood that it is possible to have clean streams, even in a region devoted to manufacturing, and that the expense of securing this condition is not such as to drive the manufacturer from the district. In fact, this movement for clean streams is so widespread that the manufacturer would have difficulty in finding a location where he would feel certain that this demand will not arise either now or in the near future. It is certain that the public demand, enforced as it is already by the legislatures and the courts, and the demands of the manufacturers themselves who require clean water in the manufacturing processes, will result in the necessity of keeping out of many of our streams the most objectionable of the manufacturing wastes, and this has become one of the serious problems to be met by the manufacturer.

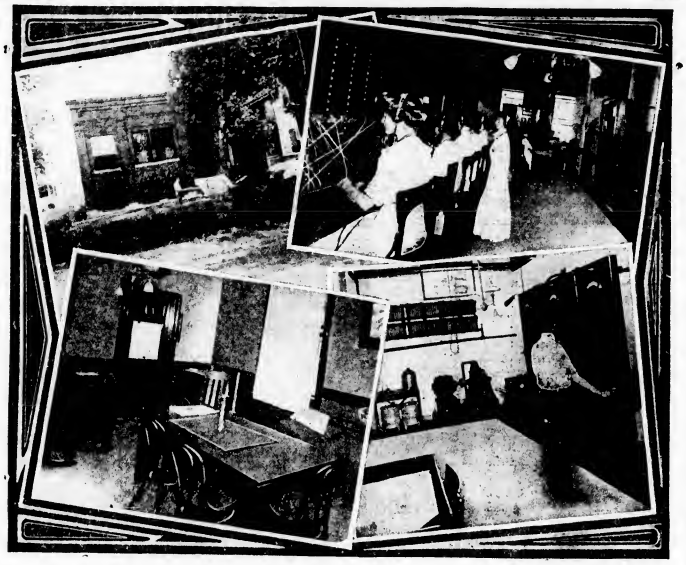

The Simplest Solution.

The simplest solution of the problem, so far as the manufacturer is concerned, is to make where possible a connection with the public sewers, transferring the problem of the disposal of the wastes to the public authorities, but this method of disposal is, in many cases, impossible and its use is, in other cases, questionable.

In England the Royal Commission on Sewage Disposal reported as follows: "We are therefore compelled upon that point to say that it does not appear to us practicable to make it compulsory generally to require manufacturers to provide works necessary for the purification of their trade effluents as well as domestic sewage, and that the local authorities should be given the right to refuse their consent to the discharge of such effluents into the sewers of sanitary authorities, except on such terms as they may think fit to impose, having regard to the circumstances of each case and to the powers and duties of the authority."

In this country the tendency is rather to prevent the discharge of any considerable quantity of untreated manufacturing wastes into the sewers and to oblige the manufacturer to construct independent works, or at least to treat the wastes so that they will not cause trouble in the sewers or at the disposal works.

The Winchester Telephone Exchange.

THE WINCHESTER EXCHANGE.

The photographic reproductions of the Winchester exchange bring to the minds of the oldest subscribers and telephone men familiar with the original exchange more forcibly perhaps than a word picture, the contrast when compared with conditions existing twenty years ago which, with all subscribers, the first exchange in town was established with a magneto board.

Passing from the magneto and No. 1 board, the latter being in full use in 1894, to the present No. 6 type with its 7500 subscribers' stations, some idea of the telephone growth in this locality can be had. This development, which is phenomenal to the average subscriber, is typical of the better class residential suburban towns.

The present board, which is the most modern equipment known to telephone science, has been designed for Winchester to six seasons with a long looks head, it being expected to cater for requirements until 1925, when it is forecasted there will be about 8,500 lines and 1,000 stations originating approximately 225,000 local calls and 125,000 incoming calls per day.

In addition to arranging for the maintenance of satisfactory service to subscribers, the Telephone Company looked as well toward the welfare of its operators by including in this exchange a spacious and comfortable rest room. —Telephone Topics.

The first person in Winchester to become a telephone subscriber was Dr. B. T. Church. This was nineteen years ago, and from that date to the present the Doctor has had a telephone in his house continuously.

ACCIDENT ON MYSTIC LAKE.

On Tuesday evening shortly before ten o'clock a canoe containing four ladies capsized on Mystic Lake in the vicinity of the Winchester Boat Club. That the occupants were not drowned was due to prompt work by John Ward, Stewart of the club, and three members of the club who were on the float and heard the cries.

The party consisted of Mrs. William E. Cummings and daughter, Miss Edith, of Elmwood avenue, Miss Edith Adams of Dix street and Miss Holman, a kindergarten teacher.

They had left the boat club earlier and were about seventy-five yards from the float when the canoe overturned. What caused the trouble could not be explained, none of the occupants knowing the exact cause. The first intimation of the accident was the calls for help. On the float were Stewart and John Ward, Lieutenant Fred M. Bates, Fred Snow and Fred C. Harrington of Somerville. One of the boys had a strong electric searchlight which he threw on the scene, aiding materially in the rescue. An empty canoe on the float was at once launched and paddled to the overturned canoe, the occupants of which were soon receiving attention.

Mr. Bates' shoes being the wrong size to assist the women with, the help of the other boys was called for and quickly given. As it was impossible to take the canoe to the boat club, Bates managed to right it and brought out a row boat, into which the women were assisted with considerable difficulty owing to their exhausted condition.

The cries had meanwhile been heard at the residences of Hon. Samuel W. McCall and A. P. Smith on Myopia Hill and the inmates of these houses hastened to the club with blankets and wraps, meeting the party as it was coming to the float. This undoubtedly did much toward averting any serious consequences to those who received the wetting, for although none were in extreme need, they were badly chilled and greatly exhausted.

After recovering their strength they were taken to their homes in carriages. It was owing to the prompt action of the boys, and to that alone, that a tragedy was averted, for had they not responded promptly the first call and rendered such efficient service in the rescue, some of the party would have undoubtedly been drowned. John Ward and Fred Bates are strong swimmers and have had considerable experience in handling canoes on the lake.

THE LATEST IMPOSITION.

Could Boston and Cambridge of a mind ever to be reconciled the idea of building a dam across the Charles river so that the badly smelling mud flats might be constantly kept covered with water. It was a wise sanitary measure, and through some means the State became interested through the appointment by the Governor of a Commission to do the work. This being completed, the cost of the undertaking, a very large sum, has been apportioned on the cities and towns in the Metropolitan district, which is a very unjust proceeding, considering that Boston and Cambridge were the beneficiaries. And while Winchester has no interest in this basin whatever, she is called upon to pay this year $3300 and probably more hereafter, until the cost of the basin is paid for, and then forever after her proportionate share of the cost of maintenance. The payment of this $3300 means an increase in the tax rate of about twenty five cents on $1000.

In a year or two Winchester will again be called upon to pay its proportionate share of the cost of improving Boston's harbor—the recent Legislature having voted $9,000,000 as a starter. Now thoughtful taxpayers are beginning to wonder when this imposition is going to cease. There is just as much reason why the district should pay for the purification of our ponds and streams, the waters of which pass through the cities to the south of us, as there is for it to assist Cambridge and Boston to get rid of a nuisance, and also improve Boston's harbor.

BASE BALL.

The local team will meet one of the strongest nines it has come up against yet tomorrow afternoon on Manchester Field when it plays the Riversides of Cambridge.

This team has only lost one game thus far this season, and has twice defeated Reading, besides other fast nines. It is said to be one of the strongest amateur teams in the state and a fast and interesting game is anticipated.

A week from tomorrow, Saturday, Aug. 12th, the Winchester nine will play the team of college boys captained by Dana Wingate. This team is known as the Rovers and will play its first game tomorrow with Middlebury. The team has men from Harvard, Amherst, Washington & Lee, Lehigh College and other institutions and comprises a very fast aggregation. Wingate was captain of last year's Exeter nine and played on the second team at Harvard this year, the rule there being that no freshman may play on the varsity team. A very interesting game is anticipated, especially attractive in view of the prominent Winchester men who will take part.

TAX RATE $17.00.

At the March meeting, at the fact many times since then the prediction was freely made that the tax rate for this year would be at least $18.00 or $18.50 and possibly more. The reason for making this prediction was the increased appropriations made this year over the previous year, which amounts to $16,295.00. So instead of this coming true, notwithstanding the increased appropriations, the tax rate will be thirty cents less than it was last year. It it was not for the unjust burden of about $3,500 imposed upon the town for building the Charles river basin, the rate would have been not by cents less than it was a year ago.

The Assessors were quick to recognize the fact that if the rate was not to become excessive, steps would have to be taken to offset the large appropriations that had been made. Winchester is a healthy and conservative but fast growing town, so that it was expected that new buildings would help out considerably, and this proved to be true, for with the increase of personal taxes of $676,850, and the increased value of land, it was found possible to make the rate even lower than last year. Next year, however, if the appropriations are to be correspondingly increased it will be found difficult to keep the rate down to where it is this year. The Assessors are to be congratulated for the splendid showing that they have made with the result that Winchester is still in the class of low rate towns.

Increased Personal	$676,850
Inc. in value of Buildings	376,725
" " " Land	324,450
Total	$1,378,025
Amt. raised by taxation 1910	$525,290.58
" " " 1911	$541,590.62
Charles River Basin	$3,300.72
Valuation of town	$31,971,875.00

AUTOMOBILE AMBULANCE.

Kelley & Hawes have recently added to their extensive equipment a fine automobile ambulance and combination coach, one of the finest vehicles of this class manufactured.

The automobile is of the limousine type. Double side doors afford easy access to the interior, which is finished entirely with leather and has ample room for the patient's bed and attendants. Electric lights, electric fans and an electric heater will provide a maximum of comfort for the patient.

The auto is of the Autocar make and is wholly enclosed from front to back, glass windshields and sides protecting the driver, while the interior may be opened to allow a free access of air by dropping the numerous windows. The cars has no horse power and is capable of high speed.

Aside from the ambulance features the automobile will accommodate eight persons, and will be used for the ordinary conveyance or parties.

In addition to this car this firm is to add one or more automobile trucks to its express equipment.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

The annual celebration by the Italian residents living in Winchester will be held on the fifteenth of August. Application was made last week to the board of Selectmen for permission to hold a parade and to use Manchester field. This has been granted.

On other years the celebration has been a distinct feature, and this year it will be held on a larger scale than ever before. The Italian band, now famous in this town, has been engaged for the entire day. On Manchester field exercises and sports, with band concerts, will be held during the day, and the usual display of fireworks will be given in the evening.

A parade will be held from Swanton street to Manchester Field. Last year the fireworks eclipsed anything ever given in Winchester, and they will, it is reported, be even more attractive this year.

The committee in charge consist of Messrs. James B. Barbato, John Fisinglio and James Gigliotti.

THE VACATION SCHOOL.

On Tuesday morning, August 1, the Vacation School once more invites the citizens of Winchester to its public Day at the Chapel school house on Swanton street, and it is to be hoped that many ladies and gentlemen will avail themselves of this opportunity to see the commendable work that is being carried on there.

The members of the Fortnightly who are on the Vacation School Committee have given both time and effort toward securing the best of teachers and assistants in order that the school should reach a high degree of excellence.

Let us take you in imagination through the various rooms and show you the work the children are accomplishing. We will first enter the sewing room where about forty girls are dressing dolls under the efficient supervision of Mrs. Walker of Cambridge and Mrs. Phillips of this town. Through the kindness of many Winchester ladies the girls have plenty of pretty material of which to make the dresses etc., for the dollies which are sold to them for the small sum of ten cents each.

Among other things made from the pieces sent to the school may be seen mitten holders, needlebooks, pinballs, emeries, pen wipers and dolls' furniture. There are also hats made from raffia and trimmed very tastefully all the work of the girls.

On entering the intermediate room the eye is greeted by all sorts of articles that the boys and girls between the ages of seven and ten have been making out of paper and pasteboard. One sees paper lanterns that imitate very nearly the real article, canoes, post card holders, calendars, and Miss Naven and her assistant, Miss Hosmer, will show with pride gloves and pin boxes, tunny little daisy dollies and many other articles all decorated with colored designs that the children themselves have originated.

We will now see how the little children in the kindergarten are amusing themselves and look at the little scenes they have made and the birds that look as though they were really living. There are other pretty things too, but in the kindergarten the children do not give so much of their time to making things but enjoy playing games, marching and singing under the able leadership of Miss Holeman of Washington, D. C., assisted by Miss Annis of this town.

Now we will go upstairs to the nursery which occupies the whole of the corridor that extends the length of the building. Here we see thirty or more little ones, mostly under four years of age, having the best time imaginable under the gentle care of Miss Cullen and her assistant, Miss Coty. Some are playing with blocks and toys, others are on rocking horses while two or three are usually fast asleep in the cribs that are at the further end of the corridor where the cooling breezes keep them comfortable. In fact the whole school house is about as cool a place as one can find even in the hottest weather, for it is situated where every stray breeze enters its doors and windows.

It is now ten o'clock and the luncheon of graham crackers and milk is brought up to the babies who hasten to seat themselves at the little tables which are standing in one part of the hall. A napkin is put before each child and they are soon eating their lunch with great relish.

Now we hear the shouts of boys and girls on the playground—the intermediate class is taking its half hour recess, having a merry time with the swings, slides, basket and playground balls and other playground equipments.

In the meantime the other classes are being seated with their luncheon after which they too take their turns on the playground, the kindergarten coming last when the nursery swings and the sandboxes are opened for their amusement.

At last the gong for dismissal is sounded and many of the older girls go to the nursery to the little ones who, were it not for the Vacation School would have been their constant care throughout the morning, then all the children go to their homes saying or shaking their "goodbyes."

All this and more we will gladly show you if you visit the Vacation School next Thursday morning, and we hope that many will embrace this time.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A Winchester lady gave her children some seeds and now they maintain a garden of their own. It's a good idea to encourage our children to have gardens. Among other things The Spectator might mention it makes a fine beginning in botany, and then if a boy or girl is to be a part of all that they see they should only see the beautiful, and where can more beauty be found than in the blooming plants? The cultivation of plants in the open fields color to the eyes and lips and makes the roses bloom in their cheeks. By keeping the children at home pleasantly occupied creates a love for the beautiful, a stronger love for the home, and may in later years prevent "roses" from blooming on the nose of these sons. Who knows?

The immediate and major purpose of town planning is to bring about an improvement of the community, from the standpoint both of convenience and beauty. The [illegible] of such a work must be a more lovely civic spirit among the residents of the town. It would not be very hard to arouse the spirit of civic enterprise among the people of Winchester. The Spectator is assured from what has already been done here that a comprehensive and well thought out town plan, picturing Winchester as it ought to appear in the future, would inspire our [illegible] with the ambition to realize the picture, and that this and more would become a powerful [illegible] in Winchester.

The other day a gentleman gave The Spectator to understand that he had much trouble in extinguishing the life spark of his pet feline. The animal was afflicted with a serious skin disease and a veterinary said it would be humane to kill the poor creature. In killing cats, so long of life, The Spectator thinks it strange that man forgets that he might start when young and make the cat smoke cigarettes.

A gentleman wants to know what has become of the old-fashioned father who made his Sunday morning shave an awesome function.

One of the things The Spectator deplores about certain good talkers is that they cannot see the good stopping places.

Every time The Spectator goes out among the people about town he is surprised to notice how much useless worrying people do. Hardly a day passes but that he does not meet some man or woman who makes it his or her business to look on the dark side of everything. People will stand in God's beautiful sunshine, clothed with radiant health, and with every reasonable need supplied.

The Spectator had occasion to enter a shoe shop a few days ago to purchase a pair of shoes. When the clerk deftly sprinkled some chalk in one of the shoes to ease the forthcoming strain The Spectator was reminded of the story of patrolman Casey who had ordered a pair of shoes at Rosenbergs. He was about to try one of them on when the clerk reached for it and sprinkled French chalk in it. When he handed it back the patrolman threw it on the floor, pulled on his own shoe and started out. The proprietor had noted the scene. "What's the matter, Mr. Casey?" he panted as he caught up with him. "Was the clerk sassy or anything?" For a moment Casey glared at him in almost speechless anger, then observed with icy dignity: "If I can't come into a place to thry on a pair av shoes widout havin' chloride av lime put in thim before hand, I'll thrade somewhere else."

Hearing a conversation between two men on the street the other evening The Spectator was interested to catch this bit of philosophy: The man who has learned that it is as easy for him to be wrong as for the other fellow has acquired valuable knowledge. There are men who would do well to paste this paragraph in their hats.

Every now and then The Spectator hears people complain of badly made cigars. A cigar dealer informs The Spectator that it is not always because a cigar is indifferently rolled that the wrapper curls up and comes off. Much oftener this comes from the cigar having been rolled by the maker's left hand and smoked from the hand of the right-handed man. All cigar makers must use both hands equally well, and economy both in time and material is the prevailing rule in tobacco factories. He tells The Spectator that when a piece of tobacco is cut for the wrapper it is cut on the bias, and rolled from left to right on the filler, and at the same time by the other hand the remaining pieces are used being necessarily rolled in the opposite way. For this reason the man who holds the cigar in his right hand gives it a few twists during the course of a smoke, rubs the wrapper the wrong way and it becomes loosened. While The Spectator does not personally use tobacco he thought this information worth while to those men who do use cigars.

Meeting an old friend at the post office The Spectator noted that he looked "down in the mouth", and The Spectator advised his friend to look on the bright side of things. Whereupon his friend wanted to know what was the bright side of a boil. That was a question The Spectator was unable to answer.

"To be like a gentleman," The Spectator heard this phrase used the other day. Now it doesn't mean what it seems to mean, for a gentleman does not do things [illegible]

[illegible] his attention [illegible] the fact that a number of householders have left for the seashore and mountains and left behind them pet cats to shift for themselves as best they may. This is unlawful and any person who intentionally deserts a cat is liable to a fine.

Every once in a while some cheerful individual remarks to the editor of The STAR: "Well, now that the paper is out, I suppose you can take it easy for three or four days." Yes, how delightful it is that the editor of a weekly has nothing to do between press days. Business runs along automatically. When paper bills come due money drops off trees with which to pay them. Subscribers vie with each other to see who can pay the furthest in advance. Advertisers [illegible] And [illegible]

ALL VEHICLES MUST CARRY LIGHTS.

Beginning last Saturday night, all vehicles on [illegible], except those propelled by hand or those carrying hay or straw, must carry lights which can be plainly seen from front and rear on all public highways and bridges except those where streets lights are maintained not more than 500 feet apart.

Representative Bliss has been working for this act for two years, and the following sections constitute the law:

Section 1—Every vehicle on wheels, whether stationary or in motion, on any public highway or bridge, shall have attached to it a light or lights, which shall be so displayed as to be visible from the front and the rear during the period from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, provided, however, that this act shall not apply to any vehicle which is designed to be propelled by hand, or any vehicle while upon any lighted street or highway where street lights are maintained at a distance of five hundred feet apart or less, or to any vehicle designed for the transportation as its principal freight, of hay or straw while loaded with such freight.

Section 2—Upon the written application and presentation of reasons therefor by the owner of a vehicle, the Massachusetts highway commission may, in writing, in such form and subject to such requirements as it may elect, and without expense to the applicant, exempt said vehicle from the provisions of this act for such period of time as said commission may elect.

Section 3—Any person who, while driving or in charge of or occupying a vehicle during the period from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, shall refuse, when requested by a police officer, to give correctly his name and address, shall be punished as provided in section six of this act.

Section 4—Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to effect the provisions of any existing statute, rule or regulation requiring lighted lamps on motor vehicles and the obligations of operators or occupants thereof.

Section 5—The driver or custodian of a vehicle shall be deemed to be the responsible party and liable to the penalty as provided in this act for a violation thereof.

Section 6—Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be subject to a fine not exceeding five dollars.

COMPULSORY INSTRUCTION IN THRIFT.

Last year the legislature passed an act, entitled "An act to provide for compulsory instruction in thrift in the public schools" (Chapter 524 Acts of 1910).

This year the legislature has passed "An act to authorize savings banks to receive deposits from school children"—Chapter 211, Acts of 1911. It is not the purpose of his act to open banks in the schools, but to encourage thrift among the pupils by having them save their pennies, which are collected by the teacher or some representative of the savings bank and deposited in the local savings bank. When the pupil has saved the minimum amount upon which the bank pays interest, a regular pass book is issued to the pupil who becomes a depositor in the savings bank.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

This curiosity [illegible] did not [illegible] cautions. The making of such calls is apt to interrupt the work of the fire department, as indicated in the following excerpt from a Newburyport paper. They also tend to congest telephone traffic and in some cases to block calls that are of an imperatively emergency nature. When there is a rush of such calls, the operator sees before her simply a mass of lights or drops. She answers as fast as she can but there is nothing on the switchboard itself to tell her that one call is for a doctor in a life or death case while another is for curiosity.

Where a business man has property located in the vicinity indicated by the fire alarm, it is proper that he should use the telephone to make inquiries regarding it. Where there is no such personal interest, however, it is highly desirable that people refrain from calling and leave the telephone lines open for the emergency use that always is a possibility of a fire.

The Newburyport Leader's article in part as follows:

"When you hear the fire alarm sound in the future, kindly refrain from calling the Central fire station or any other station to ask for information concerning the whereabouts of the fire till the apparatus has had time to get out of the station.

"Chief Huse respectfully asks persons who are in the habit of calling the station the moment that the alarm sounds to either seek some other source of information, or else wait a few minutes. The chief has deemed this request necessary on account of the many complaints received by him from those on duty at the station who claim that they are greatly handicapped by these calls.

"It is necessary for a fireman to answer the calls and that takes him away from his other duties and causes a delay. The fireman does not know but what the call may be some information concerning the fire and always hastens to the telephone booth, only to find that it is some person who wants to know where the fire is.

"When the alarm sounded yesterday morning as a result of cross wires, the telephone bell rang all of a half dozen times inside of three or four minutes. Hardly had the big bell stopped sounding when the telephone rang and some person wanted to know where the fire was.

"Another point taken is that the telephone wires should be especially free at the time of an alarm as it may be needed at any moment by the firemen and when they need it, it is generally needed badly."—Telephone Topics.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUED

Session Breaks All Records In His'ory of State

VETO OF THE ELLIS MILK BILL

Sharp Protest In Eastern Part of Commonwealth—Far Reaching Legislation Enacted. This Session, Including $3,000,000 Boston Harbor Bill

The veto of the Ellis milk bill by Governor Foss has aroused a storm of protest in this section of the commonwealth. The bill was a combination and modification of one framed by a legislative recess committee of 1910 and another proposed by the Milk Consumers' association. Both bills aimed to protect the public health, as well as the Massachusetts producer of milk. It has been fully recognized not only by the dairy bureau but also by the members of committees which have considered this matter that milk production is primarily a health question and must be considered accordingly. Some members of the committee, however, believed and declared that as the problem of milk inspection is primarily a health problem, the proper place for its administration is with the health authorities.

The view taken by the members of the dairy bureau after carefully studying the matter, did not meet with the approval of the farmers or milk producers, for at the hearing at the state house there seemed to be as much opposition to the bill proposed by them as to that proposed by the Milk Consumers' association, thus putting the farmers apparently in the attitude of opposing any further legislation looking to the protection of the public health, an attitude which would be honestly repudiated by a large majority of them as individuals.

How the Governor Changed

That this bill met with the approval of the governor cannot be questioned. Not only was his personal assurance given to this effect, but his message to the legislature accompanying the report of his expert, Dr. Clapp, recommended legislation almost exactly in line with it.

The bill went through the legislature so nearly unanimously that not even a rising vote was called for, while the senate passed it by a vote of 16 to 6.

Friends of the bill relied it is exceedingly not probable that fourth expediency would have induced the governor at the last moment to veto it and the house to refuse to pass it over the veto.

With the report made by Dr. P. H. Mulloney, inspector for the B. of h board of health, showing that the conditions surrounding the production of milk for the Boston market are to two to four and one-half times as bad. In other states (which supply two-thirds of the milk for Boston consumption) as in our own state, it did not seem likely that consumers will be satisfied until laws are passed controlling this production, and that when the producers in this state who do their own thinking also realize what this means to them, they will gladly co-operate instead of opposing such legislation.

The Appointment of Minard

The appointment of Asa R. Minard by Governor Foss to the position of supervisor of small loans under the act passed this year has caused a great deal of criticism. The act is designed to prevent the high handed operations of loan sharks in this state and a strong man was needed to scan the work. It is very evident that Mr. Minard is not regarded as such by those who know him best and it seems apparent to many that his appointment was dictated wholly by political consideration. Mr. Minard has posed as the organizer of the Progressive Republicans in 1909, a body of men who supported Eugene N. Foss in his candidacy for lieutenant governor largely because of his advocacy of reciprocity with Canada.

However, there were some who believed that Governor Foss meant what he said when in his inaugural message he declared in favor of a business administration. Even the Progressive Republicans are not satisfied with the selection of Mr. Minard. They take issue with the statement that he was one of the original Progressive Republicans. They insist that he has no political activity and is unknown politically outside of the city of Medford, where he resides. They also believe that a year or a last fall, immediately after the inauguration of Mr. Foss, he (Minard) went to James H. Stevens, the Medford political boss, called a conference at Young's hotel, to launch the Independent Republican movement as was the Progressive Republicans. They declare that Mr. Minard was not present and was not in the country at that time. He had, as they insist, moved to Canada some time previously, and it was after this meeting that he turned up saying that Mr. Foss had telegraphed him to come to Boston. He suddenly appeared on the scene and made haste to get into the Independent movement for Foss.

Last fall Mr. Minard attempted to get the Progressive Republicans again to take off their coats for Mr. Foss, but they had become closer acquainted with that gentleman and refused to do it. Thereupon Mr. Minard tried to organize what he called the Progressive Republican league. The attempt was not a success. The larger part of the original Independent Republicans was composed of British American citizens, and it has been sought to create the impression that Mr. Minard was a most influential man among this element. Those who claim to know insist that Mr. Minard has absolutely no business qualifications for the position to which he has been nominated by Governor Foss.

Foss and Lefgislature Break Records

The great and general court has finished its work and been prorogued. The session parallels that of 1852, having sat for 206 days. However, the record of this session breaks all others in the number of matters considered, the number of messages from the governor, the number of vetoes, the number of bills passed over the governor's veto, the number of bills and resolves approved by the governor, as well as in the number of bills and resolves which were permitted by the governor to become law without his approval. He has signed 719 acts, 152 resolves, vetoed 19 acts and 6 resolves, and allowed 28 acts and 5 resolves to become law without his signature. In the closing hours of the session a redistricting committee to sit during the recess was appointed consisting of Senators Blanchard of Somerville, Tolman of Gloucester, Barnes of Weymouth and Schoonmaker of Ware, Republicans; Lomasney of Boston and Quigley of Holyoke, Democrats; Representatives Wolcott of Milton, Quinn of Pittsfield, Hahis of Montague, Tufts of Waltham, Stevens of Dracut, Wells of Haverhill and Bean of Cambridge, Republicans; Dean of Wakefield, Hurlburt of Worcester, Brophy of Boston, Conway of Boston, Meaney of Blackstone, Parks of Fall River and Bartlett of Plymouth, Democrats.

Big Measures Which Became Law

Some of the important acts passed were these: An appropriation of $9,000,000 for the improvement of Boston harbor; workingmen's compensation law by which workers may be compensated for accidents without the delay incidental to law suits; a law for the supervision of the small loan business; bills for new transit tunnels and subways and for the extension of the elevated leases and rentals of existing tunnels; providing for the direct nomination of all elective state officers, fixing the personal expenses of candidates in counties and electors, requiring that all giving alleged violations of improper practices the right of trial by jury; the fifty-four-hour bill for women and children; measure for the consolidation of the Boston Elevated and West End Street Railways; provision for increase of number of justices of the supreme and superior courts; authority for the Boston and Eastern Railroad company to proceed with construction of the electric road from Boston to Beverly; measure increasing the salaries of Boston primary school teachers.

THE SILVER BOWL.

It Was Full of Water, and It Puzzled the Week End Guest.

A rising young politician in New York tells this story on himself. He was invited recently to spend a week end at a country house where things were done a notch or two more elaborately than he was accustomed to, and he stood in not a little awe of the solemn person who was assigned to act as temporary valet to him. The climax came when this functionary tapped at his door on Sunday morning and told him it was 8 o'clock.

"All right, I'll get up," said the visitor, and the solemn man disappeared into the bathroom, from which presently the noise of water running into the bathtub was audible. In half a minute more the solemn person emerged, holding a large silver bowl full of water, with which he approached the bed.

"He must have seen the astonishment in my face," said the New Yorker, "I couldn't conceal it. It was a wholly new game to me, and I didn't know whether I was expected to dip my head in it or to drink it. It was an awful moment, but that man was a diplomat. He realized my embarrassment, and he just let drop in a cold and aloof tone, as if he had outsiders to deal with every day, the simple explanation:

"The temperature of your bawth, sir."—New York Sun.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

I consider the public school system the greatest factor in the making of good men. It does more to make a man of the poor boy in this world than school or church, in many cases, but should be built on liberty and patriotism, as the foundations. But it is not so much what you teach the child, it is not so much what you say to the child, as it is what you are to the child that is of greatest value to him. We sometimes forget what examples we are.—Dean Sumner.

MEN AND RELIGION.

Reports received at local headquarters of the Men and Religion Forward movement, which is beginning to engage earnest attention in all parts of the country, indicate that the work of organizing Boston and its vicinity for the undertaking is well under way. The "Men and Religion" movement is the name under which for six months, beginning next September, the United States and Canada are to be swept by a campaign to bring together, as the name signifies, men and religion, with a view to establishing closer relations between men and active church work and bringing about a recognition of the true relation of men to the religion of Jesus Christ.

Under the plan adopted by the national committee,—"the committee of ninety-seven," to use its official title, which heads the movement, ninety cities of the United States and Canada are to be centers for carrying on the fall and winter campaign. Boston, as one of these centers, already has organized its local committee, with Rev. George E. Briggs, of Lexington, as chairman and a full list of members and sub-committees representing the leading business and churchmen. Francis B. Sears, of the National Bank, Boston, is the chairman of the local committee, and Edwin W. Pierce, of 4 Ashburton place, Boston, is executive secretary.

Within the past few weeks more than 50 public meetings, addressed by Boston and New York speakers agitating the movement, have been held.

The Boston campaign will be carried on in the district within a radius of 10 miles from the State House and it will extend as far north as Wakefield, as far west as Waltham and as far south as Readville. At least 10 meeting centers will be selected in this district at which, beginning in September, District Meetings will be held at various times in the interest of Bible study, Boys' Work, Evangelism, Missionary effort and social service. The meetings will be interdenominational in character and held in towns easily accessible by trolley to all the people of the district.

Beginning at about the middle of January, 1912, what are known as "The Eight-Day Campaign meetings" will be held at the centers in each district. During this period speakers who are recognized experts in the various branches of work embraced by the campaign, will be in Boston and each of them will speak in these 10 points during the 8 days, thus making the meeting of equal benefit to all the people of the entire Campaign District.

The Auxiliary Town committee, a sub-committee of the Boston Campaign committee of 100, has invited the following cities in Eastern Massachusetts to become Auxiliary Centers to conduct a year's campaign in that city and in the district immediately surrounding it: Lynn, Beverly, Gloucester, Newburyport, Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Manchester, N. H., Concord, N. H., Fitchburg, So. Framingham, Norwood, Brockton, Taunton, Middleborough, Plymouth. Of these cities the following five are actively at work on their organization and preliminary agitation: Lynn, Lawrence, Lowell, So. Framingham and Brockton. In the following places several meetings have been held and it is expected that they will soon show permanent activity: Beverly, Gloucester, Fitchburg, Taunton and Middleborough.

The Bible Study Committee have organized themselves to promote the following types of work: Boys' Bible Study, Teacher Training, Bible Class Efficiency, Organization of New Classes, Extension Classes, that is, outside of churches. They will co-operate with the Greater Boston Bible Class Council in the annual men's class parade, and, as far as possible, with any other organization interested in Bible Study among men and boys.

The Boys' Work Committee has conducted a very successful Conference in Ford Hall, attended by 75 adult leaders and 125 older boys. The committee definitely plans to organize training groups of both adult and older boys to provide trained leaders for churches, Christian Association, settlements, etc.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Next week Mr. Keith will return to modern vaudeville with an all-star bill of present day artists. One of the principal features will be Valerie Bergete and company in a new comedy, "She Wanted Affection." This is said to be one of the funniest and at the same time one of the best of the many sketches that Miss Bergere has produced, and her part particularly is very well suited. Another popular legitimate player is George Lawrence, who all last season was at the Park Theatre in "The Commuters," with her brother Walter Lawrence, she will present in a new comedy entitled "Don't Look Back." The bill will include many other specialty acts, among them being Hal Davis Dyer with his "Kid" and his "Chinaman and the Coon;" McIntosh Sisters singing and dancing specialties; Art Bowen, the singing cartoonist, and the Zarrell Brothers.

Approached in the right way the Selectmen will be found willing to do everything that they can consistantly, and give attention to suggestions. Last week the STAR called attention to the sidewalk on the south side of Mt. Vernon street, and it was put in good condition. The Selectmen welcome such information.

It is not difficult to understand the reason for the opposition of German societies to the ratification of the peace treaty between England and the United States. The members of these societies see in the defeat of this measure a chance to further the ambition of the fatherland by eliminating the United States in any controversy that might arise between Germany and England.

On August 1, 1888, or 31 years ago last Tuesday, its present proprietor, George H. Hobbs, took possession of the Woburn Journal, and during that long period he has never had a vacation, not for a day, even. It is good to get away from business, if only for a few days, and no doubt, our genial friend, Editor Hobbs, could he begin life over again would join the procession of those who are trying to take life easy.

Winchester is called upon this year to pay $3260 as its proportionate share of the cost of building the Charles river basin between Cambridge and Boston. This means that the taxpayers will pay 25 cents additional on $1000 this year. This assessment will continue with variations until the expense of building the basin is paid for. Also forever after its share of maintenance. In a few years large assessments will come for improving Boston's harbor.

The members of the local First Church of Christ Scientist, when they decided to rehabilitate the interior of their church, took a course that will be found pleasing to our business men. Instead of going out of town to procure bids for the work, they gave it to the local establishments. This is as it should be, as out-of-town contractors have no interest in Winchester, neither do they spend their money or pay taxes here, while our business men, not only spend their money in town and pay taxes, but give employment to many citizens and contribute freely toward the support of all our institutions—and it is true that some of these institutions not only fail to reciprocate, but go out of town, when they might do just as well in Winchester. It is a good thing to spend your money at home as far as possible. The town benefits, and in the end all benefit.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Franklin Miner, the little four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Miner of Mt. Vernon street, was taken to the Copp Hospital, Cambridge, on Sunday and operated upon for appendicitis. The little fellow was taken sick last Thursday and for the first three days of this week it appeared doubtful whether he would recover from the operation. Reports yesterday, however, were that his condition was improving and that he had a good chance for recovery. During the crisis Mr. and Mrs. Miner have taken up their residence near the hospital in Cambridge.

The work of drawing plans and tabulating the lots in Wildwood cemetery is being carried through by the Cemetery Commissioners. When this work is completed the department will have a complete record of every body buried in the cemetery, together with plans showing location of each grave.

Mr. F. Percyval Lewis left on Saturday for New York, making the trip by boat around the Cape and through the sound. On Sunday he visited St. Patrick's Cathedral and the new St. John's Cathedral to hear the music. On Monday he left the city for Ocean Grove, N. J., where he is attending the organists' convention.

Mrs. Luella Matthews and daughter, Mira from Norwich, Conn., are the guests of Mrs. Fred Farrow of Euclid avenue. On Saturday these ladies with Mrs. Farrow and Dorothy will go on a trolley trip to Onset Bay where they will stay on a visit to friends.

BASEBALL.

Winchester beat Swampscott A. C. on Manchester field last Saturday afternoon in a rather loosely played game 7 to 6. Winchester took the lead and held it to the finish but the visitors looked rather dangerous in the ninth. The locals scored 4 runs in the second on four clean hits and a base on balls, one in the fourth on three passes on balls and a hit, one in the sixth on three hits, and one in the eighth on a hit, a stolen base and two sacrifices.

Kenney Beat it for Home on the Throw to Second in the Eighth.

The visitors scored two in the third, on an error, two singles and a double, two in the sixth on two bases on balls, a stolen base and three hits and two in the ninth on two wild throws and two hits. Young Whittacker established a strike out record for Manchester field by fanning 7 of the visitors. In every inning he struck out one or more, and in the second and seventh innings he fanned three.

Flaherty Nabbing Those Foul Flies.

The other features were a fine three bagger by Thornton and several difficult catches of foul flies by Flaherty.

For the visitors J. Porter excelled by his fine all round playing.

TOWN HALL HEATING PLANT.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

During the late "hot spell" I was considerably "set-up" by receiving the following unsigned communication, regarding a public matter of much interest to the community. It amounted to this:

"The town hall heating plant has given no cause of complaint so far this season. To be picked out among all the municipalities of Winchester as an authority on summer heating is a source of great gratification to me. To be sure the applied cost principle is a little out of season from a whole person's viewpoint, but is anonymously written, but as it evidently came from the town hall and the expense involved was paid to me for work, I felt that I ought to reciprocate the favor by publicly thanking the unknown writer and contributing a little information regarding the present state of the heating plant, so that it can be made to cost cold and taxpayers with one eye on my job the working plant next winter. It is well not to have "Comfort" in summer, or rest at the town hall, for fretful tax-paying officers. It is hard to get seats warm in winter without a dozing fire so as not to bring about that desirable result. I was once informed by one of the town hall heating plant and for many years, up to last year, it gave good satisfaction. A late examination shows that many changes have been made since the plant was first installed and these alterations have not always been made in the interest of true heating economy. Some improvements might also be made in the original plant which would cost but little but would add much to cold weather efficiency of our town offices. If overworked, during the long winter days they ought to be able to take occasional "rests" sitting in their chairs without freezing to death and it seems to me that this desirable recreation can be established at the town hall without the expenditure of $35—or more than one tenth of that sum on the present heating apparatus.

The plant was first installed as an indirect steam heating plant, cold air being taken from out doors, passed through large steam radiators and forced through the building by means of a power blower. Later, direct steam pipes were installed and the police station and the book room of the library, both situated at extreme ends of the long building, are now heated with radiators supplied with supposed to be live steam direct from the boiler. The supply pipe to the radiators is large for the suppose, (2 3/8 inch, outside diameter) and for its full length of about 175 feet, in addition to the same amount of one inch return steam pipe, the pipe is not protected in the least to prevent heat radiation from the supply pipe into the basement of the building. Of course, this assists to heat the basement up to the baking point, but it does it at the expense of not heating the rooms designed to be heated as well or as economically as they should be. The steam is robbed of its initial heat by such unprotected supply pipes. No manufacturer would think of not protecting such supply steam pipes with asbestos or other covering unless he wanted to heat his basement as much or more than other upper rooms. It would be a small matter to protect these pipes and save much heat which is now being wasted in transmission.

The radiators in the police station are amply large enough to supply all the heat wanted, even with the present unprotected supply pipes, but the radiator for heating the book room of the library is a very small affair of one single coil of small pipe cased in under the library floor. This one coil of heat radiating pipes can be increased to four or five times its present heating capacity by simply adding more coils to the present one, taking steam and returning it by the present supply pipes after protecting them by a suitable non-conductor of heat. From all I can gather, the library rooms are the most difficult to heat of any in the building. If this is so, a plenty of protected hot steam heat from an enlarged radiator supplied with pure air in proper quantity from out doors will certainly heat the department satisfactorily. The present small radiator I have described is not supplied with out door air, but takes air from the basement room under the library. It is as poor an arrangement as could be made for its purpose and should be altered and improved at once.

The large galvanized sheet iron tubes which conduct heated air from the large boiler radiators to the town hall and other rooms are not in the least protected from radiation. In most first class dwelling houses common furnace pipes are now protected in some way from loss of heat by radiation, but not one of the large heating pipes in the town hall basement is thus protected, notwithstanding their large radiating surfaces. It would be a good way to save heat for upper rooms to properly protect the heat conveyed through the large supply pipes in the basement of the town hall.

The air to be heated by steam and then forced over the building (called indirect heating) is taken from out doors on the southerly side of the town hall building. It can be regulated to supply more or less air by regulating the speed of the blower which is operated by a water motor from the town water supply. Often times too much air is no doubt taken in for the amount of heat supplied from the boiler, thus conveying too cold air into the upper rooms. I have known so much cold air taken in and forced against the boiler radiators at the town hall as to cool off the steam in the radiators, causing such a perfect vacuum as to draw water from the boiler and fill the radiators full of it. In such a case, too much air cools the other heat instead of the boiler heat heating the air. The "main" must be shut off the fresh air, but the perfect in properly heating the town hall building.

A good economical result might be obtained if the out door supply air pipe was also connected by a damper, supply pipe from the boiler room, thus saving furnace heat. If this is not possible steps to take off the fresh air in the hall and heat it by steam until the cold air is not such an inconvenience when air from out doors could be used. It seems wasteful to heat more cold air than is necessary into a large hall while it is being heated and people living to cold.

After the hall is heated, it takes but little steam to keep it warm and the cold air from out doors can be mixed with the heat pro vendation or supply coming dampers in the supply pipes. There is no connection at present of this character but one could be made at a very small expense. The three steam heating pipes in the library, police station and other rooms have no out door air supply what ever at present, ventilation being obtained by opening the windows. This should be altered, especially in the library.

As to the boiler which makes the steam heat used in the town hall, it seems to be large enough to properly do its work. The present and former janitors both say there is no trouble in keeping up the pressure of steam to the desired point. The trouble seems to be in making more heat and not pressure, or in the transmission of the heat after it is made. Having considered the question of transmission of heat it might be now asked if the boiler can be made to produce more heat economically and without injury to any part of it. The boiler is an ordinary well made steam boiler of about 30 horse power. It has always been rated high by the Hartford Boiler Insurance Co. and to all appearance is good for many years for heating purposes. If a new boiler was required, it would not cost an enormous sum as I have lately installed a new first class steam boiler, 60 horse power, all set in place and bricked in for $375 which is quite a small part of $3500. But the heating capacity of the present boiler can be much increased at little cost by increasing the number of feet of radiating surface which heats the air before it is forced over the building. The present boiler radiators which are fitted into a close brick chamber over the boiler into which chamber the cold air is forced before being circulated over the building, contains five radiators, each containing three coils of one inch pipe. There is room enough to double the number of radiators thus much increasing the heating capacity of the heating chamber. It can be easily understood that this change alone would much increase the capacity of the present plant, provided the boiler would keep up steam to the desired point. The boiler can be made to produce more steam, if it becomes necessary, by altering the grate somewhat and introducing an air pipe from the blower into the ash pit to force a sleight draft in dull or wet weather. This would be necessary if a larger boiler was installed as the chimney is not of large enough capacity for a much larger boiler under natural draft than is now in use.

There are other minor changes which might be made in the heating plant under discussion to improve it but enough has been said to indicate that the present plant only needs some alterations to make it sufficient for several additional years of usefulness. It is well we have all decided and agreed after much discussion over the question, whether the heating plant is worth anything except for old junk; that the heating plant does work well in summer time. Now it all will try and make it work well in winter time, it seems to me we can succeed without expending a large amount of money "to install a new heating apparatus in the Town Hall building" according to an article in the last town meeting warrant. The anonymous report regarding the satisfactory summer capacity of the town heating plant which caused the publication of this article may seem a small "peg" upon which to hang such a long discourse as I have written, but it will do, even if no one reads it or believes it, to air my grathed feelings that I am recognized as an authority on summer heating. Even the subject of winter heating is too much for me. I again thank my unknown and secret admirer for his courtesy in writing me, but trust he will append his name next time he writes me on a public question that I may thank him personally and not through the public press for his kind and appreciative consideration.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a birdsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

SUCCESSFUL FISHING TRIP.

The annual fishing trip of the Aeropha Comrades was held as usual on Trader's Day, and although the Council did not vote this year to hold one, some of the members decided to get one up among themselves. Some 25 or 30 signified their intention of going, but on account of the unsettled condition of the weather on the morning of Wednesday only 13 showed up for the trip. This number looked sort of ominous, but after a consultation it was decided to go, and away they went to Swampscott where the Letter D. was boarded an I very soon the fishing ground was reached and lines cast. The number 13 was soon put entirely on the blink, for the fish were coming very fast and of large size. The fun became galore and continued the whole day. A little after 3 o'clock the start was made for home all being satisfied with the result.

Dr. Orton Kelley led the high mark, he having caught over 100 lbs. of fish also the largest, a 24 lb Boston bass fish. Mr. Webber and Mr. Fallon had 90 lbs. each. Mr. Komkey Sellers, Mr. Dodge 65, and Mr. Frank Taylor 60 lbs. 750 lbs. being caught, filling 4 barrels.

Mr. Schurman caught the smallest fish an inch and a half, this he used as a bait and at once with this he caught an immense skate as large as a washtub, but on coming to the surface it took just one look at Mr. Schurman's determined expression and promptly departed to its former dwelling with bait, hooks and part of the line.

All brought home large baskets full of fine fish and Mr. Schurman backed his automobile down to the beach and took home a barrel full. Everybody was home at 6 o'clock perfectly satisfied with the day long to be remembered.

Mr. Paul Badger was unable to play on the Winchester team in last Saturday's game owing to a broken finger received while playing at York Beach, Me., earlier in the week.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

July 31st, 1911.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present, Messrs. Bouteell, Nugent, Pond, and Daly.

Received letter from some of the Italian citizens in regard to their annual celebration to be held on the 15th inst. Voted, that they be allowed to parade as asked for, under police protection. Balance of communication referring to use of Manchester Field and bandstand, they were told they must see the respective parties having such things in charge.

Voted, that the vote of May 22nd whereby it was voted to build a tar concrete sidewalk on Main street from Vine to Water street, be and hereby is, rescinded.

Voted, that we build a tar concrete sidewalk on Main street, from Vine street to the Town yard, 7 feet wide, and from the Town yard to Salem street, 6 and 1-2 feet wide.

Voted, that the Supt. of Streets is hereby authorized to obtain the necessary curbstones, corner stones, and inlets, required to complete the work now under way.

Letter from George W. Blanchard asking for curbing at his residence No. 44 Washington street, referred to the Supt. of Streets to report.

Warrants were drawn for $637.48 and $3828.93.

Adjourned at 10.30 p. m.

G. H. Lochman, Clerk.

The fire department was called out Wednesday forenoon in response to a telephone alarm for a fire in one of Mrs. O'Connell's houses on Swanton street. The telephone was for a chimney fire, and one round was rung in from box 7 at the centre house. Upon the arrival of the firemen, however, it was found that the fire had eaten into the partition and was rapidly assuming dangerous proportions. Quick work on the part of the firemen prevented its further spread with slight damage.

ARE WE COURTING DAMAGE SUITS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

How many more warnings will our selectmen wait for before putting in proper barriers at the railroad end of Walnut street? Since the posts formerly there were taken down, a dozen vehicles have gone onto the railroad tracks, which is conclusive evidence that a barrier of some kind is needed and called for. Chairman Gould of the County Commissioners has said they ought to be put in at once. The Railroad Commission said the same. What are we waiting for, a fatal accident? One bad accident there might cost the town a hundred times more than the work, even if you do not consider the loss of life and limb.

Yours truly,
Abon.

TRADERS' DAY.

The Winchester traders held their annual outing on Wednesday, all of the business places and stores of the town being closed. The main body went to Bass Point for the day, leaving Boston on the 9.30 boat. The weather was threatening during the entire day, but notwithstanding about fifty took the boat.

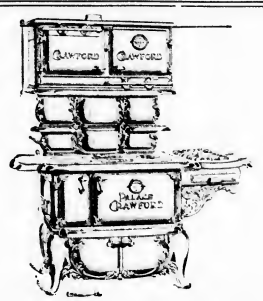

Owing to the absence of the captain of one of the ball teams the game between the West and East side teams was not held, a scrub game taking its place. At noon a fish dinner was enjoyed by the entire party, and in the afternoon the various places of amusement were visited, those present returning to Winchester as the spirit moved them.

Many of the merchants enjoyed the day with their families at home or on some trip planned at a previous time.

About $1,000 will have to be spent at the center fire station this fall in order to make it serviceable for winter occupancy. This is just for the most necessary repairs. The building leaks badly, the cellar fills with water after every rain, the doors stick with the sagging of the building so they have to be opened by hand and numerous other things must be attended to.

THE POLLUTION OF STREAMS BY MANUFACTURING WASTES.

Liquid Wastes

The quantity of liquid wastes produced at a single factory is frequently greater than the total quantity of domestic sewage flowing in the sewers of the town in which the factory is located, and the character of the wastes may be such that they cannot be purified in connection with the sewage, except at a very great increase in the cost. The cost of the sewers and of sewage disposal is largely assessed upon those benefiting by the sewers and in proportion to the benefits received. If a proper portion of the cost should be assessed on the manufacturers, the assessment would be in many cases enormous and enough to make such disposal practically prohibitive. It is difficult, moreover, to determine in advance what the added cost of removing and purifying the manufacturing wastes in connection with the town sewage is likely to be, for it is uncertain how much added expense there will be in purifying the sewage. In some cases the method of treating the sewage must be quite different if the manufacturing wastes are added.

Wool Scouring Waste

A recent example of the effect of the discharge of wool scouring wastes into sewers is found in the experience at Hudson, Mass., where the town sewage was for several years successfully purified by intermittent and filteration. A worsted mill situated on the river and discharging wool scouring wastes directly into the stream was obliged, on account of the protests of a manufacturer on the stream below, to make some other disposition of the wastes, and connection was made with the town sewers and the wool scouring wastes were mixed with the sewage after brief sedimentation. Soon after the wastes were admitted to the sewers the town filter beds became clogged and inoperative, necessitating the disconnection of the worsted mill from the sewers and causing a large expense to the town for the renewal of the filter beds in order to put them into such a condition that they would again purify the town sewage. Similar experience has been made in other places with wool scouring wastes and with wastes from gas plants, yeast factories, creameries and from other manufacturing processes.

Some wastes can undoubtedly be discharged into the sewers without causing trouble, depending on the character of the wastes and their volume as compared with the volume of domestic sewage flowing into the sewers. Other wastes can be discharged into the sewers after some simple preliminary treatment without causing trouble, but in perhaps the majority of cases, where wastes cause trouble in the stream, they are likely to cause trouble in the sewerage system, especially if the sewage is purified.

The Need of Care

Another reason why in some cases it is not feasible to discharge the manufacturing wastes into the sewers is that the division of so large a quantity of water from the stream would bring suits for damage from those on the stream below, and in many cases, like the Neponset River, for instance, where the entire dry weather flow of the stream is used in the manufacturing processes at each of the factories on the stream, the discharge of the wastes into sewers would be impossible. For such cases the only possible way of disposing of the liquid wastes is by discharging them into the streams.

The effect of the discharge of domestic sewage into streams is well understood, and the limits within which such discharge may reasonably be permitted have been fairly well established. The Massachusetts State Board of Health has found that, where the quantity of clear water available for dilution of domestic sewage in a stream exceeds about six cubic feet per second per one thousand persons discharging sewage, objectionable conditions are not likely to result. Under the most favorable circumstances, such as in cases where the sewage is discharged at many outlets into a large body of water, where dilution is accomplished quickly and effectively, objectionable conditions may not result where the dilution is somewhat less than six cubic feet per second per one thousand persons, but objectionable conditions are certain to result where the flow is less than 2 ½ cubic feet per second per one thousand persons discharging sewage into the stream.

The dry weather flow of streams in Massachusetts will average from one-fourth to one-third of a cubic foot per second per square mile of watershed, so that, reduced to other terms, objectionable conditions are certain to result where the population discharging sewage [illegible] [illegible] stream is more than [illegible] one hundred per square mile of watershed, and they are not likely to result where the population is [illegible] forty to fifty per square mile of watershed.

Manufacturing wastes in general differ greatly from sewage in their effect on the water of a stream, and the study of pollution of streams by domestic sewage is of little assistance in determining what the effect of a given waste will be. The nature of sewage is such that, if it is discharged into a stream containing at all times a sufficient quantity of oxygen, so that the putrefaction will not take place and so that it is quickly mixed with the water, it undergoes chemical changes and quickly becomes inocuous. Many of the wastes from manufacturing processes, on the other hand, are quite stable and may be carried for long distances before becoming changed to such an extent as to become unobjectionable.

No Fixed Rule

No fixed rule can be applied to the amount of manufacturing wastes of any given kind which can be discharged into a stream of a given volume, for the seriousness of the pollution depends on the use to which the water is put even more in the case of manufacturing wastes than in the case of domestic sewage. In fact, the increasing fastidiousness of the public and of users of the water makes any fixed standard out of the question, and each case must be settled independently. Generally, too, the problem is complicated by wastes from other factories and the responsibility of each manufacturer is difficult to determine.

It must be accepted as a fact that the time is coming when no manufacturing wastes containing any considerable amounts of polluting matters will be permitted to be discharged into the streams of the eastern section of this country, at least, without purification, and the purification must be such as to make the water of the stream unobjectionable to those living near it or resorting to it. Furthermore, the water must be fit for use for manufacturing purposes or for any other reasonable purposes by the riparian owners on the stream below. While this may at first be a hardship to the manufacturer, it will soon work out so that the hardship will in most cases not be noticed, and, of course, it such a rule is universally applied, the cost will eventually be borne by the public which is responsible for the change.

If the wastes are to be purified, it is obviously desirable to reduce, as far as possible, the volume of the wastes, or the quantity of objectionable material to be removed by separation of those wastes which require purification from those which can safely be discharged into the stream. Many times this can be done without difficulty, and there are cases where it would be economy to make expensive changes in the plan to accomplish the separation of the most polluted water. For example, the quantity of water used for rinsing in cloth washers is many times as great as the quantity of soapy water used for washing, but it is practically clean water and can be discharged into almost any stream without objection. There are cases, too, where valuable stock may be recovered from the wastes before they are purified at a small net cost or even at a profit, preventing to this extent the pollution of the stream or reducing the difficulty of treating the wastes if their purification is necessary. An example of this is found in the saveralls used in paper mills.

Waste Purification

The subject of the purification of manufacturing wastes has received comparatively little attention in this country, and the work which has been done in other countries has comparatively little practical value here on account of the great difference in the conditions. The United States Government has carried on investigations and experiments on different classes of wastes, and the Massachusetts State Board of Health has made very valuable experiments with the wastes from certain mills, but the conditions are so different at different factories and the character of the wastes varies so greatly in different mills, even in those producing the same kind of goods, that, while the investigations already made are of value, it is impossible to solve any particular problem by direct application of the results obtained in the comparatively few cases which have been studied.

There is for every liquid waste some means of purification by which it can be improved to such an extent as to make it permissible to discharge it into a stream. In some cases this method of purification is simple and inexpensive; in other cases it is complex and costly, but with our advancing knowledge of the subject of purification, the processes are becoming much less expensive.

Fortunately those wastes which are most expensive to treat are likely to contain substances of enough value so that their recovery will at least reduce somewhat the cost of purification, and this is especially true of the wastes from woolen mills. Every woolen manufacturer has some idea of the great value of the material escaping with his wastes, but he is also probably aware of the great cost of recovering this material by the present methods. Even if it could be recovered at a small profit, the trouble and annoyance of carrying on a grease rendering plant outside of the regular business of the factory might more than offset any profit.

Starting with the proposition, however, that the wastes must be purified whatever the expense [illegible] [illegible] recover [illegible] products [illegible] [illegible] expense of purification is [illegible] recovery of the wastes is [illegible] not as a profitable end [illegible] is a means of reducing the expense of the necessary purification of the wastes.

In some parts of the world, where factories are close together, companies have been formed which make a business of treating the wastes from the factories. In some cases the company pays the manufacturer a small amount for the privilege of treating his wastes, and recovers whatever is worth recovery from them. In other cases, where the wastes are of less value, or the expense of treating them is greater, the company receives a certain compensation. This company naturally conducts the business of the recovery of the wastes much more profitably than would be possible in case of a single manufacturer, and he is better able to find or make a market for his product. Furthermore the manufacturer is relieved of the trouble of maintaining the plant. There seems to be no reason why this cannot be successfully done in many parts of this country and the manufacturer's wastes handled in much the same way as the wastes from meat markets are now handled, relieving the manufacturer of the troublesome problem of handling his wastes, and at the same time producing a revenue from material which has hitherto gone to waste.

In the foregoing discussion the importance of the recent trend of public opinion and of court and legislative action has been considered from the point of view of the manufacturer producing liquid wastes, but they are perhaps of equal importance to the manufacturer, requiring clean water in the manufacturing processes. Many of the court decisions have been the result of action by manufacturers who claimed to be injured by the discharge of wastes from a factory on the stream above them, and in many cases within the last few years rivers have been made cleaner by the action of manufacturers who have obtained redress without recourse to the courts, peaceful settlements being obtained on account of decisions of the court in other similar cases.

The fact has been established that both riparian owners and the public are entitled to clean water in the streams, while to secure this certain manufacturers may in the beginning be put to a considerable expense, the advantages of clean streams to the community and the advantage of clean water to the manufacturers will, on the whole, make the balance on the right side.—Textile World Record.

An unbridled fear of approaching danger haunts the man of wealth. He sees a menace in the present condition of men and affairs, individual, but none the less real, so that he is prone to look upon his possessions as a loan that can be demanded of from him without regard to any one moment to benefit. The poor man is consumed by envy and greed of the very few favored beyond him. Neither in himself nor in the existing attitude of the world and society as he has learned to understand it does he discover any convincing reasons for the fact that he is poor and he is excluded from the table of life's abundance. The rich man is dreading the poor man is plotting and working to bring about a change in the present conditions of property ownership.—Max Nordau.

LAND COURT.

To Mary F. Studley, Annie M. Cutting and Thomas S. Sparr of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said court by Lucas G. Mayo and Mary M. Newton of said Winchester, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded Westerly by Fairmount avenue, one hundred and 26-100 (100) feet; Easterly by land now or formerly of Mary L. Studley two hundred ninety and 50-100 (290.50) feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of Annie M. Cutting three hundred sixty-five and 95-100 (365.95) feet; Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Thomas S. Sparr one hundred nineteen and 50-100 (119.50) feet; and Westerly by said Sparr land one hundred sixty nine and 21-100 (169.21) feet. Estimated to contain 59,177 square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are assumed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at the Court House in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of August A. D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the prayer of said petition, should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THEODORE DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of July in the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

I.—Flirting With Death at 10,000 Feet

[Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely. All rights in Great Britain and Canada reserved.]

It was on the train between Philadelphia and New York I had just received confirmation of my altitude record of 9,807 feet—the highest man had ever been in an aeroplane and had read in the evening papers that my great ambition to be the first to go up above the coveted 10,000 mark would never be realized, for Legagneaux had risen 10,499 that afternoon.

"Well," I heard one man say to another, "they have settled Drexel's record beyond all question now. Heroes in a way who has beaten him by 500 feet."

"Yes," said the other, "it seems to get easier every day."

Easy! A man climbs and climbs and strains every nerve and muscle to the breaking point—he fights inch by inch, forcing a frail machine beyond anything it was ever intended to do—he hears the creaking of the woodwork and the wicked singing of the tautening wires, and he knows that one little ounce more of strain somewhere, anywhere, and it will all be over in the most horrible of ends—he plugs onward and upward, sick at heart and in body, utterly weary and hopeless, nerves gone, strength ebbing fast, brain dizzy, ears bursting and eyes swimming until a momentary spell of near unconsciousness makes him pull himself together for the awful hell of that final plunge to earth, to leave him practically helpless when at last he does reach the ground—and they call all this easy!

No man will ever be able adequately to describe that long, vast plunge to earth after every nerve has collapsed and every muscle refused to do more work upward. I in e experienced it more often than any living aviator, yet even now I cannot recall my detached or definite impressions of it—nothing but a shuddering memory of horrors rushing by with an awful sense of defenselessness and futility of effort as I fairly shrieked through the air to earth with the chances 100 to 1 against a safe landing.

"Anybody can climb for height," said Morane. "The thing is to get down again."

Climbing the Air Stairs.

That fellow who said that it was "getting easier all the time" should have seen the beautiful Bleriot as she swept gracefully off the ground with me that day at Point Breeze and as she flew, without effort and with scarcely a tremor, in the first wide preliminary circles as I mounted the first 2,000 feet.

Easy! That would have looked easy enough certainly. The machine must have looked like a great gull or a buzzard floating on the breeze, and I suppose I might have been sound asleep in her for all the spectators on the ground could have seen of motion or of effort on my part.

Then came the clouds, and I worked my way up through them, hoping that they would not be thick nor last long, for above the clouds in the sunlight are the wickedest gusts, and it means fight, fight, fight, all the time.

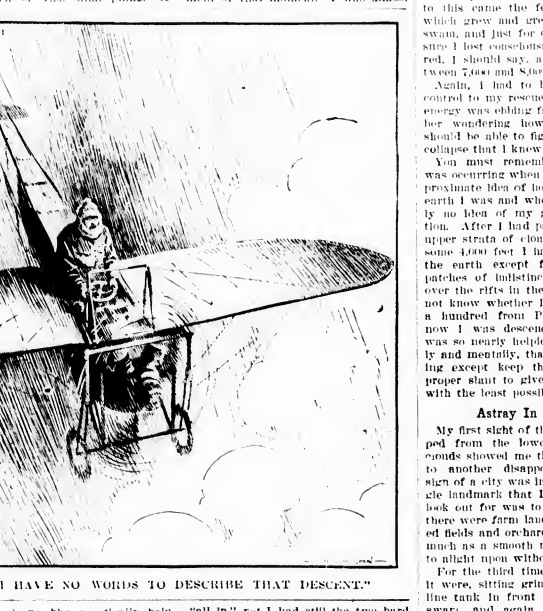

The hand of the aneroid barometer in front of me kept creeping round and round as I mounted. The first 2,000 feet were told off quickly, and then more and more slowly the indicator went as I entered the thinner strata of the upper air and began the struggle to pass the thousand marks. Three, four, five, six thousand I passed, each one taking an increasing length of time and requiring more of physical effort and mental and nervous strain.

Soon the hand of the aneroid began to caper back and forth. I knew I was mounting steadily, but the little instrument did not show it and finally dropped back near the starting point and stayed there. The aneroid had evidently gone higher than it was ever intended to go and was completely out of commission.

A barograph, which is a recording barometer, had been tied about my neck, and I took one hand from the control and turned the face of the barograph up toward me. Through the glass front I could see the pencil line that had traced my ascent. I felt sure that I must be near the top. It seemed ages since I had started, and the terrible cold was beginning to penetrate even the thick, fur lined clothing that I had made particularly for this flight. My hands were beginning to get numb, and I felt that my ears would burst with the pressure from inside my head or, rather, with the lessening of the pressure outside.

But one sight of the barograph made me grit my teeth and shove the nose of the Bleriot a good deal higher than wisdom warranted. Instead of being near the coveted 10,000 mark, I was barely passing the 8,000 line.

No words of mine can express the disappointment and the discouragement of that moment. I was almost

"I HAVE NO WORDS TO DESCRIBE THAT DESCENT."

"all in," yet I had still the two hardest stages of my journey to cover—the bitter fight of jumping and falling, jumping and falling, during the final 500 feet, and last, but most awful of all, the horrors of that descent where the chances were 100 to 1 against me.

Laughing at 10,000 Feet.

There was nothing for it, however, but to continue the fight upward.

So I doggedly fixed my mind upon the mingle figures 10,000 and mounted again. Below me there was nothing but space. The filmy clouds formed a haze which completely shut the earth from my view, and I seemed like an impudent little fly buzzing around importantly in the vastness of infinitude. The thought struck me as being rather droll, and I laughed aloud.

Then I remembered how a friend of mine had come to me at the hangar before I started and, with a quizzical expression on his face, as though he knew I was not serious, asked:

"Are you really going for altitude today?"

"Yes," I answered.

"Do you think you have any chance of making it?" he asked.

"There's always a chance," I replied and jumped into the machine.

Since then I have thought over that short conversation a score of times and I have failed to find in it anything amusing. Yet away up there in a loneliness whose vastness and impressiveness only Legagneaux and I of all living men can appreciate, with the motor buzzing and whirling and humming and spitting, seemingly to accentuate the very vastness of the solitude and make it even more awe inspiring than it is to the floating balloonist—away up there, passing close to the 9,000 foot mark—the two questions and their answers struck me as being the most droll things I had ever heard, and I started to laugh boisterously like a drunken sailor in a low taproom.

"Crazy," I thought, and as the thought flashed across my mind with all the horrible possibilities of a loss of mentality and mental balance nearly two miles above the earth—with the slightest misstep meaning awful death—I pulled myself together again and made a final desperate effort to cross the 10,000 mark.

It was impossible for me to know whether I had succeeded or not. The last few feet were such a bitter struggle up and down, up and down, through the thin air that I could not look at the barograph and indeed could not see the line the one time I did try.

Finally, utterly exhausted and numb both in body and mind, I gave up the struggle and turned the nose of the Bleriot toward the earth.

The Drop to Earth.

I have no words to describe that descent. It would sound like the verbiest drivel if I should try, for only a man trained to repression of superlatives could give an idea of its horrors with out making it seem like silly exaggeration.

Every reader has probably gone down fifteen or twenty floors in an express elevator. Do you remember how dizzy and sick at the stomach it made you?

My descent was made at the rate of a vertical mile in about two minutes while I was traveling horizontally at the rate of seventy or seventy-five miles an hour. In other words, my vertical speed downward was about four times as fast as that of the fastest elevator, and I had the added strain of the tremendous horizontal momentum.

The effect of this rapid descent is almost paralyzing. Those who have traveled under the new Pennsylvania railroad tunnels to New York have felt the effect of the pressure of air against the eardrums. This is about one tenth the effect that is made upon the ears when descending in an aeroplane from a great height. In my case in coming down from 9,807 feet at my tremendous rate of speed my ears felt that they would burst, and the top of my head felt as though it would fly off at any moment. Added to this came the feeling of nausea, which grew and grew until my head swam, and just for one moment I am sure I lost consciousness. This occurred, I should say, at a height of between 7,000 and 8,000 feet.

Again, I had to bring all my self control to my assistance, for my nervous energy was ebbing fast, and I remember wondering how much longer I should be able to fight back the utter collapse that I knew was coming soon.

You must remember that all this was occurring when I had only an approximate idea of how high above the earth I was and when I had absolutely no idea of my geographical position. After I had passed through the upper strata of clouds at a height of some 4,000 feet I had not again seen the earth except for little drifting patches of indistinct drab as I flew over the rifts in the vapor, and I did not know whether I was one mile or a hundred from Philadelphia. And now I was descending so fast and was so nearly helpless, both physically and mentally, that I could do nothing except keep the Bleriot on the proper slant to give the best descent with the least possible strain.

Astray In Skyland.

My first sight of the earth as I dropped from the lower fringes of the clouds showed me that I was doomed to another disappointment. Not a sign of a city was in sight. Not a single landmark that I had been told to look out for was to be seen. Instead there were farm land and forest, plowed fields and orchards and nowhere so much as a smooth meadow fit for me to alight upon without smashing up.

For the third time I saw Death, as it were, sitting grinning on the gasoline tank in front of me. My head swam, and again, with that awful feeling of nausea, I seemed to lose consciousness for a fleeting moment. Then the sight of a small field brought me back to my senses, and I circled again to come upon it from the best direction.

Fortunately for me, I made a perfect landing. It was probably the instinct that comes of long practice that kept me from smashing up on coming to the ground, for I know that my brain was no longer working and my muscles were incapable of obeying a mental command.

I must have sat there helplessly in the machine for fully five minutes, mumbling meaningless things to myself, until I saw a woman coming toward me. Then I stretched myself half rose and sprawled rather than climbed down from my seat to the ground. But even then I could not stand without help.

I found that I had landed in Ohio mind, about fourteen miles northwest of my starting point in Philadelphia.

The After Effect.

Later came the dismaying announcement that a test of my barograph (a rough reading of which had showed approximately 9,970 feet) gave me only a little more than 9,400 feet. But the officials of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, under whose auspices the flight had been made, were sure that a mistake had been made somewhere and so turned the instrument over to George S. Bliss, head of the United States weather bureau in Philadelphia. To the indefatigable and generous efforts of this official we owe the fact that the final official reading of 9,807 feet was given after tests to which no barograph had ever been subjected before. That was the world's record for only a short time, for a day or two later came Legagneaux's wonderful feat, when he ascended 10,499 feet and made it impossible for me to realize my fond hope of being the first man to pass the 10,000 mark.

Jeremiah Tried and Acquitted.
Jer. xxvi.

Golden Text—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? Ps. xxvii:1.

(1.) Verses 1-6—What was the character of Jehoiakim, also of Josiah, his father?

(2.) To whom did the word of the Lord come?

(3.) How did God probably speak to Jeremiah?

(4.) May all persons today, with the goodness and ability of Jeremiah, hear the voice of the Lord as distinctly as he did?

(5.) What was the message which the Lord gave Jeremiah to deliver?

(6.) If the people had repented at the command of the Lord, would the kingdom of Judah have been preserved?

(7.) Why can there be no escape for sinners from the just punishment of their sins, unless they repent?

(8.) Verses 7-16—How do you account for it that the priests and the prophets wanted to kill Jeremiah, for delivering the message that God had given him?

(9.) If a professional priest, or preacher, is backslidden and living in sin, why is he apt to be more cruel to a faithful preacher of righteousness than an ordinary sinner?

(10.) From the days of Jesus until now, by whom have the martyrs been put to death, or, admittedly men of God, expelled from the churches?

(11.) Which are the more cruel to those who rebuke them, men who under cover of religion are doing wrong, or outstanding sinners such, for example, as gamblers?

(12.) Verses 11-12 — Did these priests and prophets, who wanted to put Jeremiah to death for preaching the truth, believe that he was wrong and they right; or knowing he was right, want to get rid of him for exposing their sins?

(13.) What qualities did Jeremiah possess which are essential to all who obey God in rebuking sin?

(14.) Must a good man always rebuke what he knows to be wrong, no matter how much danger it may involve to himself? Give your reasons.

(15.) Is it the lack of knowledge that they are wrong, or something else which causes people to remain in sin?

(16.) Verses 13-15—Do you know of any Bible threat against sinners, that is not associated with a promise of forgiveness on repentance?

(17.) Is it possible for a good man to die, or be put to death, before his work is done? Why?

(18.) Verses 16-24—The priests and the prophets are the accusers of Jeremiah and want to put him to death, and the princes and people appear to be the judge and jury; what was their verdict and upon what was it based?

(19.) Is it safe in these days to trust the people to decide moral issues? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20.) What were the two historic incidents mentioned as precedents for the acquittal of Jeremiah?

(21.) What has been the fate in the past of pure and courageous preachers, and how are they treated today?

(22.) What is better, to forfeit your life will of God at the expense of your lives, or to dodge His will and save our lives?

The old tower striker formerly on the Beggs & Cobb tannery, used for blowing the fire whistle, has been put into shape again by the fire engineers and is to be placed on the Swanton street hose house in connection with a bell alarm. As it is now, unless the wind is right, the whistle cannot be heard in that section, and the engineers are confronted with either the installation of the bell or raising the whistle. As the latter would mean the erection of a steel tower and probably cause considerable inconvenience to the tannery folks the bell was decided upon as the most suitable. It is expected that the bell will be installed this month.

The Misses Catherine and Teresa Sullivan are spending their vacation at Jefferson.

During the extremely high wind following the storm last Friday afternoon and evening the fire alarm sounded at intervals owing to a wire being blown from its fastening and crossing another line. In the evening shortly after ten o'clock Miss Nellie Nourse telephoned the central fire station from her residence on Church street that the Sutter residence was all ablaze. Box 53 was rung in from the engine house. The firemen found that the fire was caused by an electric light wire burning a tree in front of the house, the wind having blown it from its fastening. The flashes and fire from the tree made quite a display. Owing to the worn mechanism of the apparatus at the centre house the alarm was rung in first as box 33.

BOYS PARADISE.

The West has its Ben Lindsay and so too has the East, with this difference that the former holds the position of judge while the latter is a plain business man imbued with all the attributes that have made Judge Lindsay famous the country over. The idea of giving the boys a square deal, however, did not originate in the far West, but here in Massachusetts where the square deal has been in practice for about ninety seven years. It is seen at the Farm and Trades School on Thompson's Island, Boston Harbor, and the Superintendent is Charles N. Bradley, who has held the office for twenty-three years. All of the 100 or more boys there are on honor, and they greatly appreciate that fact by trying not to forfeit the trust imposed upon them by the management.

It frequently happens that, although we have visited and are more or less familiar with places in Washington, New York, or even London, we have failed to visit Bunker Hill, the old State House, or other places near our own home. With this in mind, it may be said that too few people know of the interesting School on Thompson's Island in Boston Harbor known as The Farm and Trades School. The School, a private corporation under the laws of Massachusetts which is operated by a Board of Managers and a Superintendent as executive, first occupied the old colonial Governor Phipp's house, which stood at the corner of Salem and Charter streets. Thompson's Island, where Miles Standish, the first white man to land in this vicinity, landed while on a trading trip among the Indians in 1621, was purchased in 1832 and the School has since been located here.

The idea of a school of this kind originated among some of Boston's merchants nearly 100 years ago, who saw in the streets many boys who needed watchful care and training to become useful citizens. From that time to the present the institution has been financed and managed by Boston's leading business men and philanthropists.

While the Managers are willing at all times to receive applications for admission and to give careful consideration to each individual case, only boys whose recommendations are satisfactory will be received, and, if on trial, a boy develops vicious tendencies or shows that he is incapable of appreciating the advantages of the school he will not be allowed to remain.

Many of the graduates of the school have become successful business men or are holding responsible positions in all parts of the country. Supt. Bradley is ably assisted by his wife, a most charming lady, who has been the only mother that many of the graduates and the present scholars have ever known. That the tender care and advice is appreciated is seen at the reunions when many of these graduates come with their wives and children to pay their respects to this lady and to view the surroundings that contributed so much to their present standing.

The location is admirably suitable for the school. Although near enough to Boston for necessary business communication, it permits a sort of independent community which affords valuable attributes. It is shut off from various undesirable influences and substitutes the wholesome surroundings of both country and seashore. Furthermore, the combination of country and seashore lends itself to many practical forms of mental and physical training.

The purpose of the school is to assist worthy boys of limited means to an education both practical and uplifting. No boys are received except such as the Managers consider desirable, and those received are preferably orphans between ten and fourteen years old.

Agriculture forms the basis of instruction, and with it are co-related the usual grammar school studies. Industrial training is given in farming, blacksmithing, machine work, printing, painting, and carpentering. The boys assist with all of the work on the Island. They learn to do what they are told to do quickly and cheerfully. It will be seen from the intelligent consideration of what follows that practicalness, good judgement, thrift, and neatness are the foundations of all their training.

Since the Island contains one hundred and fifty seven acres, there is ample opportunity for various agricultural activities. On the farm the boys learn about the care of all farm livestock, raise the vegetables which they eat themselves, care for the fruit, and become somewhat acquainted with the principles of botany by setting out, transplanting, and caring for trees.

About the water the boys are instructed in the handling and care of boats. They learn to row and swim. On the fifty-foot steamer a few have a chance to get practical experience in marine engineering, because the boat is equipped with all of the machinery, in miniature necessary on an ocean liner.

During their playtime the boys have access to Cottage Row, a model city. The dozen or so small houses are built by the boys themselves, and are bought and sold in regular legal manner. There is a mayor, board of aldermen, judge, police force, street commissioner, assessor, and city clerk. With its departments modeled on practical usage, the little city furnishes lessons in citizenship, government, and business forms.

Both as a practical outlet for the English work and as a means of keeping its friends informed as to what is "going on," the Thompson's Island Beacon is a valuable form of activity to the school. This little monthly paper published by the boys tells of the work in their own words.

About thirty of the boys form a brass band which was organized before the Civil War. This band furnishes both amusement for themselves and pleasure for their friends and relatives.

On a hill well separated from other buildings stands a meteorological observatory where the rudiments of meteorology are taught. The chief observer, from the reports delivered to him by his subordinates after they have taken the readings of the various instruments, makes a daily weather forecast. This forecast is valuable in connection with both the farming and the boating.

Everything is made use of on the Island. In the autumn the leaves are gathered from the lawns where they look untidy and are used for bedding in the barns. The drift wood which comes ashore is used in the bakery. The remainder of the usual waste which washes ashore, together with whatever may occur on the Island itself, is burned in an incinerator, and the resulting ashes are spread upon the land. This keeps the Island neat in appearance and furnishes fertilizer at a minimum cost.

Whatever additions are made, the boys do most of the work under the guidance of an instructor. In this manner the meteorological observatory, the incinerator, and much of a new power-house were built. The boys also assist in keeping the different buildings and parts of the Island in repair. A few years ago there added in making an addition to one wing of the main building, and recently they have dug and hushed a new cellar under another wing.

With so many different activities and opportunities at hand, each boy may find at least one in which to become especially interested. On this Island the boundless resources of boy nature have been progressively developed under most favorable conditions. The practical and thorough training which the boys receive makes good citizens. The proof of the success of the school is shown in its graduates, many of whom have become prominent in the business, political, and social world. Since the school is dependent upon donations and bequests, and thus restricting the number to one hundred boys, it may easily be seen that more effective and widespread work might be accomplished if more should add their support to that of its many friends. As it has so recently been termed by the Boston Transcript, The Farm and Trades School is truly "our harbor man factory."

TART—HODGE.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Hodge of Pond street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Sunday evening, when Miss Mary Hodge their daughter, became the bride of Mr. Howard Tart of Boston. The ceremony was performed at the parochial residence by Rev. Walter J. Roche.

The bride was attended by Miss Sara Lafleyette, an aunt of the groom and the best man was Mr. Carl Hodge, brother of the bride.

The bride was attired in white silk trimmed with allover lace and the bridesmaid's dress was also of white silk. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride to the relatives and friends of the couple.

After a wedding trip to New York the young couple will reside in West Medford.

MRS. A. D. DRESSER.

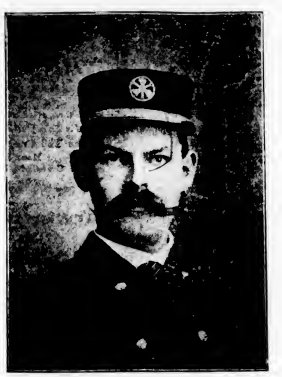

Mrs. Dresser, whose death we record this week, was the mother of Mrs. W. Eugene Wilde of Winchester. For many years she has made her home with Mrs. Wilde—but for the past year and a half, due to her invalid condition, she has been in the care of a Doctor in Natick. She suffered a shock on Wednesday morning and died in a few hours.

Mrs. Dresser was the widow of the late Amos L. Dresser of Portland, Me., at one time a well known bookseller and publisher in that city. She there enjoyed a large circle of friends and was known as a woman of rare beauty, charm and broad culture of mind.

Prayers were said in Natick on Thursday afternoon and interment was in Portland on Friday.

FENCE AT STATION.

The Selectmen voted on Monday evening to request the Boston and Maine, R. R. to place an iron guard rail at the foot of Walnut street adjoining the walk at the station. This will prevent automobiles and carriages not familiar with the place from driving on to the railroad tracks.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR WINCHESTER.

The Winchester's won their sixth straight game last Saturday by defeating the strong Riversides of Cambridge. It was a very loose fielding game on both sides. Both teams seemed a bit nervous, but the hitting was good on both sides. Winchester showing up the best by bunching their hits and getting 12 to Riversides 10.

In regard to the umpire, word was received from Mr. Cody, the regular umpire at 1.30 that he could not come on account of sickness. So a Mr. Farrell of Boston who professes to be an umpire officiated, and such an exhibition of umpiring was never seen on Manchester Field. He had both teams and the spectators up in the air all through the game by his mind decisions.

Find the Umpire.

The visitors scored a run in the second on errors, one in the third on two bases on balls and a fielder's choice, and two in the fourth on four hits. That settled their run getting. But they looked dangerous in the seventh with three men on bases and one out, when the batter hit a fly to right center which looked like a sure hit, but Badger by fast sprinting made a wonderful catch and doubled the runner at second, retiring the side.

Winchester put the game on ice in the second, scoring fine runs on five clean hits and a sacrifice. They scored one in the seventh on a fine two bagger by Murray and a single by Thornton. The only redeeming feature was the hitting of Flaherty who got three hits in four times at the bat, and several fine catches by Badger in center field.

Badger Making Difficult Catches Easy.

This was the second defeat of the Riversides this season. Winchester's record so far is ten victories and five defeats, losing three of them by one run and an extra inning game.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A Winchester gentleman who was in London during the Coronation of King George V, informs The Spectator that the prices of everything required or desired by Americans was advanced to virtually extortionate figures. In all European cities, as some people who have travelled to any extent can testify, the tourist from this country has always been looked upon as an "easy marks." As a rule he is abundantly supplied with money and as the best is good enough for him his habit is to spend it liberally and often lavishly. He bears the reputation—not often undeserved—of loving to make a display of affluence and impart the impression, in many cases not substantially founded, that he is nothing short of a millionaire, and that the natural consequence is that he is taken at his own estimate and taxulted accordingly. The gentleman informs The Spectator that the charges for the hotel accommodations, sites to view the coronation pageant and about everything else were inflated to a point at which even many real American millionaires balked.

A church woman writes The Spectator a "Protest against the Rummage Sale." She ventures to hope that we may soon see the last of church rummage sales. Among other things she says: "One reason why the rummage sale should go is because it is not sanitary to gather a lot of odds and ends that have been reposing in attics and out-of-the-way places, half-used gowns, revived hats and a promiscuous assortment of discarded furnishings to serve other purposes in other homes. I might elaborate upon this sanitary feature but it is not the most impressive of all. That the rummage sale is undignified is not a serious arraignment, because the church can maintain its dignity in vital ways and still resort to commercialism to help fill its coffers. And yet there is, there always will be something very cheapening in the sign of a 'rummage sale' attached to a church door. It is not alone because goods are disposed of at 'second hand,' but because of the thought back of the sign. And therein lies my chief grievance against the rummage sale."

It seems to The Spectator that when our church folk are ready to discard gowns, hats and furnishings they should not be sold at any price, but given to those whose need is great. That is in conformity with the word of the great Teacher of us all and is a fitting way to follow precepts set for our guidance. The Spectator surely is not taking too much for granted when he says that every church must be in touch with an abundance of "worthy poor" who would be neither pauperized or hurt by the proffer of help when minds were at ebb tide. And while the financial prosperity of the church sometimes becomes a grievous responsibility, upon which the few lead workers must ponder deeply and work faithfully, there is another side which cannot be ignored. When the time comes that a church knows none in need of assistance to tide them over sudden disaster or long continued disability to work one would think that its days of usefulness were over. And while a church may have many a rummage sale and still give and add comfort to many a stranded victim of misfortune, The Spectator and many others would like to see it drop the sale and send these goods, one at a time, to homes that know all more of the struggles of life than of the pleasures.

"The merciful man is merciful to his beast." Animals have suffered no less than men from the heat of this season of the year. The sufferings of the horse have been greater, perhaps, than in the case of man, because the horse is necessarily exposed a greater part of the day to the direct rays of the sun and too often the driver gives little thought to the poor beast's condition. The merciful man will protect his faithful servant, the horse, and this can be done by supplying a sun shade or keeping a sponge wet with water on top of the animals head. Shade should be sought for the horse as well as for the driver. Attention to the animal's food and, of course, a bountiful supply of cool, pure water are necessities that will suggest themselves to the humane horse owner. Sympathy bestowed on dumb animals is not misdirected. Man's faithful servants of the animal kind surely deserve some consideration.

A medical friend of The Spectator's calls his attention to the need of sending out experts to teach ignorant people how to cook properly. "A man is, to a considerable extent, what he eats," says this physician. "People who have plenty of nourishing and well cooked food do the best physical and mental work. We are not in reality distinguished as a nation for good cooking. It is all very well to send out into the backwoods travelling libraries, as is being done in some of the States, for the benefit of the unlettered inhabitants, but it is just as important to send out experts to teach ignorant people how to cook. In Germany, which seems to always lead in popular education, they have already begun this policy of sending out agents to give lessons in cookery to the young girls of the towns. Clever women teachers are employed by the government, each being given as a year's work a list of seven towns, with a six-week stay in each, during which the little pupils are taught, not only how to cook simple dishes in the best way, but the prices of food stuff and all the economic details of the kitchen.

A gentleman tells The Spectator the case of a young woman in a near by city who died soon what the doctor's pronounced brain exhilaration induced by automobile speeding. She was found in a comatose condition after a day's outing in her automobile and never regained consciousness. The average auto scorcher appears to suffer with chronic brain exhilaration though The Spectator never heard it result fatally unless he is "dumped."

MOUNTS UP VERY FAST.

"It is mighty hard," said an unfortunate workingman some time ago to the writer, "to save up a thousand dollars by laying aside a dollar or two a week and then to take it out of the savings bank and lose it to a get-rich quick swindler as I have just done." This poor fellow could work and save, but he had not had even a kindergarten education in finance, else his story would have been different. He had never given a thought to interest, and so was absolutely ignorant of growth through compound interest, and, of course, had never heard of that wonderful process of accumulation known as "progressive compound interest."

One dollar deposited in a savings bank that pays four per cent. will amount to two dollars and nineteen cents in twenty years. This is simple compound interest. Now, if you deposit one dollar every year for twenty years, or twenty dollars in all, the sum to your credit will have grown to thirty dollars and ninety-seven cents. Any wage earner can put by one dollar a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will have increased to $1,612. A deposit of five dollars a week will have grown to $8,060, and this at 4 per cent. will be $320 a year. This is no secret, no mystery about this. It is clear as the cloudless sun and the method is just as clean and honest.—The Christian Herald.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

The recent legislature passed the following act relative to the maintenance of isolation hospitals by cities and towns:

Section 1. Chapter seventy five of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by striking out section thirty-five and inserting in place thereof the following:—Section 35. Each city and town shall establish and constantly maintain within its limits one or more isolation hospitals for the reception of persons having diseases dangerous to the public health as defined by the state board of health, including a tuberculosis hospital or tuberculosis wards. Plans for the construction of such hospitals shall be approved by the state board of health, and said hospitals shall be inspected by the state board of health or by its accredited agents at least twice in every year. But if, in the opinion of the state board of health, two or more adjoining towns of a city and contiguous towns can advantageously establish and maintain such hospitals in common, the authorities of said towns or of such cities and contiguous towns may enter into such agreements as may be necessary for the establishment and maintenance of the same. Any city or town which upon the request of the state board of health refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit not less than five hundred dollars for every such refusal or neglect.

STATE TAX $5,500,000.

The State tax has been set at $5,500,000. This amount shows a reduction of $500,000 dollars from last year.

Woburn	$16,855
Reading	8,085
Wakefield	13,750
Melrose	24,750
Medford	33,770
Winchester	18,480
Stoneham	7,700

NEW FIRE ENGINEER.

At the meeting of the board of selectmen Monday evening Roland E. Simonds was nominated for a member of the board of fire engineers to succeed Dr. Clarence J. Allen, who recently resigned.

Mr. Simonds has long been interested in fire matters in Winchester and will no doubt prove an efficient member of the board.

The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

Mr. Joseph J. Donahue of Medford will oppose Senator Brown in the senatorial district this fall. The district comprises Medford, Woburn, Wakefield, Arlington, Stoneham and Winchester.

Now that the International League of Women Suffragists has just closed its convention at Stockholm, Sweden, it is of interest to note that most of the Swedish people seem to be against the aims of the suffragists. In Sweden the question seems to have become a party question as the Conservatives declare themselves against women's suffrage, while the Liberals and Socialists are in favor of it. The suffrage movement among Swedish women is very slow, and most people seem to take little interest in it.—Elizabeth M. Gosse.

The centre railroad crossing is in the poorest condition this summer that it has been for a number of years. That space adjoining the tracks which is not planked over is filled with a mixture of large broken rock and gravel, making a rather dangerous cross-over, on which many horses stumble. The planks immediately beside the rails are filled with pieces of rock, probably embedded by passing express trains. It has appeared that every time the crossing has been put in first class shape it immediately became necessary to dig it up to replace rails. As the crossing is now, it appears to be in a decidedly dangerous condition.

ADHESIVE STAMPS.

Only Those Issued by the Government May Be Affixed to the Address Side of Mail Matter.

Order No. 5620, issued from the office of the Postmaster General, Washington, D. C., July 1, 1911, has been distributed to all post offices in the United States. The copy is as follows:

"No adhesive stamps, or imitations of stamps, of any form or design whatever other than lawful postage stamps, shall be affixed to the address side of domestic mail matter, but such adhesive stamps, provided that they do not in form and design resemble lawful postage stamps, and do not bear numerals, may be affixed to the reverse side of domestic mail matter."

"All domestic mail matter being on the address side, adhesive stamps or imitations of stamps, other than lawful postage stamps, will be returned to the sender, if known; otherwise they will be forwarded to the Division of Dead Letters."

SOIL FOODS.

The Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station has just issued two bulletins which should prove of much value. No. 137 relates to lime. It tells how to determine what soils are in need of an application of lime and the beneficial effects which follow its use. It tells also what crops are especially benefitted by lime, and points out that some are injured. It tells where lime can be obtained, gives the composition of different kinds, and their relative cost. No subjects interest land owners at the present time more than the question as to whether the soil needs lime, the kind of lime which will be best, and the right methods of using it. This bulletin gives just the information needed. No. 138, Tomato Diseases. This bulletin will be especially valuable to those engaged in the production of tomatoes as a hot house crop, but it will be of value also to those producing it as an outdoor crop.

It discusses all the common diseases from which the crop suffers, gives information as to causes in so far as these are known, as well as the methods to be followed for prevention or treatment. These bulletins will be sent on application. Address Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass.

A BREATH OF INSPIRATION.

At the request of a subscriber, we print the following, taken from the Woburn Times:

Mr. Editor:—I wish very much that you would reprint the following sentence from Dr. Norton's magnificent sermon delivered by him recently. Please print it in bold type so that it may get the attention from your readers when its importance demands. I think that a breath of inspiration swept over Dr. Norton when he wrote that sentence. Here it is:

"Far beyond our consciousness in thought, below our deepest feelings and above our highest purpose is this reality of our being which conditions and controls our physical existence."

This is like Paul's thought: "In Him we live and move and have our being."

STATE WIDE POLITICS

Gov. Foss Makes Several Belated Judic'al Appoin'ments

MINARD CASE IS POSTPONED

Speaker Walker Charges That Foss Worked For Political Rather Than Economic Reasons, In His State Investigations—The Tax Commissionership

Governor Foss has at last sent to the executive council the names of four men to be justices of the superior court. Three of these nominations were to fill places created by an act of the present legislature, the other to fill a vacancy caused by the promotion of Judge William Schofield to the federal bench in Boston. The new judges are Hugo A. Dubuque of Fall River, Walter Perley Hall of Fitchburg, Patrick M. Keating of Boston and John B. Ratigan of Worcester. Dubuque and Hall are Republicans, while Ratigan and Keating are Democrats.

There is much regret that the governor selected Mr. Hall, who has been for several years chairman of the railroad commission, and has filled that position with such unusual ability as to make him seem almost a necessity there. However, it has been understood that the governor desired a place on the railroad commission to which he might appoint Frederick Macleod of Cambridge, for two years chairman of the Democratic state committee. Macleod desired a judgeship, but the governor has all along hesitated to appoint him but at the hesitated to appoint him at the same same time evidently wished to reward him for his services as chairman of the Democratic state committee in the two campaigns of 1909 and 1910. In view of some of his judicial appointments Macleod's friends think the governor would have done no violence to the superior court bench if he had given him a place there.

There has been considerable opposition to the confirmation of Asa R. Minard of Medford for supervisor of loan companies in Massachusetts. Most of this comes from British Americans who deny that Minard is representative of that element and that his identification with the progressive Republican movement has never been prominent enough to entitle him to this recognition. The nomination has been held up by the executive council and will probably be considered more fully at the next meeting.

Joseph Walker Criticises Foss

Hon. Joseph Walker, speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives, is now talking very plainly regarding the administration of Governor Foss. In a speech at Springfield Mr. Walker declared that the governor has used the legislature and the state institutions for his own political ends. He believes that he sought to cause dissension, and dissatisfaction with the legislature. Some of the messages, Mr. Walker declares, were positively insulting, while his criticisms were greatly exaggerated or without substance. It looked to him as though the governor were trying to quarrel. He admitted that the governor might have gained an advantage in his quarrel with the legislature, in that it perhaps increased his popularity in certain directions. Such an attitude always did. Mr. Walker said he supported the governor when he asked for experts to investigate the state institutions and believed that strict economy should be observed in conducting their affairs. However, he did not like the way Governor Foss used his experts. Here again he thought he worked for political reasons and not for economic reasons. His investigations were not based on an honest desire to get down to the bed rock of things. It is thought that such an indictment from a man as fair and honest as Speaker Walker is known to be must convince the most skeptical of the truth of his charges.

Governor Foss and Commissioner Trefry

There is some question as to whether Governor Foss intends to reappoint Tax Commissioner Trefry. It has been said that he would select in place of the present tax commissioner Professor Bullock of Harvard college, who has been the governor's chief adviser in matters of taxation. It has been claimed, however, that Professor Bullock's system of taxation would benefit the rich and result in a heavier tax on people of moderate means. This charge is made by Major Henry Wise of Malden, who has given many years to a thorough study of the tax question. No one denies that Commissioner Trefry has been a faithful public official. He was first brought to public notice in the early nineties when he was elected state auditor on the Democratic ticket. He made so excellent a record at the state house that he was appointed by Governor Wolcott, a Republican, tax commissioner. During all the time he has held this position not a breath of suspicion has there been against him, not a doubt as to his honesty and ability. As a lawyer he has brought to the discharge of his duties a thorough knowledge of the law as well as a fine understanding of the whole scheme of taxation. To most men, a failure to reappoint him would indicate a desire on the part of the governor to play politics with one of the most important positions in the commonwealth.

Our Expanding Foreign Commerce

The increase in exports from this country during the fiscal year just ended amounted to $304,000,000 when compared with the year preceding. Manufactures supplied $140,000,000 of this increase; cotton, about $135,000,000; meat and dairy products, about 19,000,000; corn, approximately $10,000,000; flour, about $2,500,000; food animals, $1,500,000. Wheat alone shows a decline.

In the total exports cotton aggregated $585,000,000 against $450,000,000 in 1910 and $481,000,000 in 1907. The exports of wheat and dairy products were approximately $150,000,000 against $131,000,000 last year. The record year in meat and dairy products was $211,000,000 in 1906. It is interesting to note that although the value of cotton exported in 1911 exceeded by more than $100,000,000 that of any earlier year, the quantity exported was less than in 1907 by nearly 500,000,000 pounds. This was owing to the high prices prevailing during the last year. The increase in manufactures ready for consumption was about $100,000,000, and in manufactures intended for further use in manufacturing the increase is approximately $40,000,000. Agricultural implements show an increase of approximately $8,000,000; mowers and reapers, $5,000,000; lumber, about $5,000,000, pig copper, about $15,000,000; iron and steel manufactures, about $17,000,000; structural iron and steel, about $3,000,000; metal working machinery, about $5,000,000; plows and cultivators, about $2,500,000; automobiles, $2,000,000; railway cars, about $4,000,000; naphthas, about $3,000,000; and electrical appliances, about $2,000,000.

Free Imports Exceed Dutiable

At the same time, merchandise entering the United States free exceeded in value imports of any earlier year, namely: $788,000,000 against $755,000,000 in 1910. Non-dutiable imports have increased from $366,000,000 in 1891 to $788,000,000 in 1911, thus exceeding dutiable, while in the same period dutiable imports were increasing from $749,000,000 to $759,000,000. The imports of free merchandise in the last decade show a growth of 12% percent, while the increase in dutiable imports shows a growth of only 55 percent.

The quantity of foreign merchandise brought into the United States and redistributed to other parts of the world increases every year. It amounted in 1890 to $12,000,000 and to $26,000,000 in 1911, thus having been trebled in twenty-one years. Canada is the largest customer for foreign merchandise, the amount in 1910 being $13,500,000.

Years ago it used to be the stock argument of free traders in this country that the nation would never have a great foreign commerce so long as it adhered to a protective tariff. This claim has been so completely demolished in the last few years that no free trader now cares to make himself ridiculous by presenting it. American foreign commerce today comes close to being the greatest of any nation on earth.

The Bawbee.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Pearson's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a commiseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Mixed Metaphors.

A well known bishop, speaking in the upper house of Canterbury convocation on prayer book revision, rather startled some of his Episcopal brethren by declaring, according to the Church Family Newspaper, "We are not writing on a clean slate; there is a good deal of grit under the door."

No Wonder.

"My husband has never spoken a cross word to me."

"You lucky woman! How long have you been married?"

"Nearly two weeks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

WITH ELECTRICITY.

Gates of the Lock at the New Craddock Dam Will Soon Be Operated by Motors.

Electric motors will be installed this week for the opening and closing of the gates in the lock at Craddock dam. The work won't be done any quicker when done by electricity than by the old hand method, but there will be a tremendous saving in physical strain on the part of Gatetender E. G. Tewksbury and his assistants.

From March 15 to date more than 900 boats have gone through the lock, not including tenders of the various small craft which have crossed over the roll-way. Some of the boats have gone through two at a time, and once five were in the lock together, but as a rule they go through singly.

Fifty-one boats of all sizes are kept by various persons above the lock. For every boat that goes through, wherever it may be owned, the gatetender takes the number and also the time.

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITALS.

In spite of the fact that state sanatoria and hospitals for tuberculosis have been established in 31 states, and 114 municipal or county hospitals in 26 states, vastly more public provision is needed to stamp out consumption, says the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in a bulletin issued today.

Every state east of the Mississippi River except Vermont, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Florida, Mississippi and Illinois have provided state sanatoria. In Vermont a private sanatorium is partially used as a state institution, and in Florida an indefinite provision for such a hospital has been made. The states west of the Mississippi River which have established state sanitoria are, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Kansas, Nebraksa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Oregon. There are 39 sanatoria provided by these states, Connecticut having three, Massachusetts four, Pennsylvania three, and Texas two.

New York state leads in municipal and county hospitals for tuberculosis, having 24, while Ohio, the second on the list has 17, and Massachusetts the third, has 9. In these twenty-six states, which are the only ones having any municipal or county care for tuberculosis, there are 114 hospitals, including special pavilions and dispensaries. Hardly more than one-tenth of the cities of 30,000 population and over, make any local provision for tuberculosis cases, and not one-twentieth of the less populous make such provision.

In addition to the state, municipal and county hospitals, the federal government provides for certain selected classes in the United States Army Hospital at Fort Bayard, N. Mexico, the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service Sanatorium at Ft. Stanton, N. Mexico, the United States Navy Hospital at Las Animas, Colo., and in two special hospitals for Indians on different reservations in the West.

Apart from these institutions, and a few special pavilions at prisons, hospitals for the insane and some other public institutions, a grand total of hardly 2000, the institutional care of the consumptives is left to private philanthropy. With 200,000 deaths from consumption every year, and more than that number of living cases, too poor to pay for their care in private institutions, the National Association says that unless the cities, counties and states realize then duty and provide adequate local hospital accommodations for these consumptives, the disease can never be stamped out.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Charles Richman, one of the cleverest comedians on the legitimate stage, and certainly one of the most popular, will head the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Since he first sprang into prominence some years ago as the leading man with Annie Russell in "A Royal Family," Mr. Richman has steadily climbed upward until today he is numbered among the favored actors who have achieved stellar rank. He will present a comedy entitled "The Fire Escape," dealing with the mishaps that form a fastidious young man whose only pair of trousers are at the tailors when a fire breaks out in his hotel. This piece abounds in excruciatingly funny situations, and in Miss Antoinette Walker, late of David Belasco's production of "The Lily," Mr. Richman has one of the cleverest leading ladies now on the boards. Another strong feature will be Gus Edwards' School Boys & Girls, that famous organization of precocious youngsters that appear in a musical comedy called "Graduation Day." Other features will be Carroll and Cooke, "the men of the hour"; Melville A. Higgins, "the country gal and the thin teller"; Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist and lariat expert; Major and Ray, singing comedians; Williams & Warner; French musical artists, and Harry Tsuda, the Japanese equilibrist.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the post-office at Winchester as second-class matter.

For One Year, the Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

It is said that Woburn is to protest the Charles River Basin assessment, Winchester should join in the protest.

Five forty-five is pretty early in the morning to be suddenly awakened from sleep by blastings. It is nerve-destroying and the men who operate the stone quarry at the Highlands should be reminded of this fact.

The Reading Chronicle in referring to the doubtful benefit to Winchester from the $9,000,000 expenditure to improve Boston's harbor says: "All Massachusetts will benefit, particularly the suburbs of Boston, and Winchester's valuation in a short time will be so puffed up as to make its present valuation look small indeed." Time will tell.

It is unfortunate that many people fail to pay their poll tax bills unless pushed or forced to do so. A man who dodges his poll tax ought not to have the privilege of voting. If a person is actually hard up and cannot pay, there is some excuse; but as in many other instances, people who neglect to pay their bills usually find money enough for their own pleasure.

A storm of protest is being raised all over the so called Metropolitan District because of the assessment for building and maintaining the Charles River Basin, situated between Boston and Cambridge. It certainly was an outrage to put this burden upon cities and towns who have not the remotest interest in this improvement, which concerns only Boston and Cambridge.

There does not appear to be much interest taken among the voters regarding a candidate for Representative to the Legislature. It is Winchester's turn to name the candidate for two years, and Mr. W. B. Fay of Medford, who has served two terms, it is understood, desires to be returned, but Winchester has no inclination to do so.

Woburn's assessment for State tax is $10,885, Wakefield $13,780, Reading $8085, Stoneham $7700, Winchester $18,480. The population of Woburn is two-thirds larger than Winchester, while Wakefield is a third larger. Stoneham is about the same, while Reading is a little less. Woburn, Wakefield and Stoneham each form a Representative district, while our district includes a ward in Medford, representation in the Mass. House, alternating between the two, each having two year periods.

A movement for girls similar to the Boy Scout organization has been started by Mrs. Luther H. Gulick of New York, who has been elected president of the Girl Pioneers. Last Thursday she left New York with a detachment of twenty Girl Pioneers, ranging in age from ten to fifteen years, for the family camp at Sebago lake, Maine, where they are to spend the summer. Several of the girls are daughters of millionaires. The members of the camp are to live as the Indians do, the girls learning to make jewelry, beadwork, etc. The experience ought to be valuable and interesting to them.

When Gov. Foss sent his message on taxation to the Legislature some members hissed like a pack of hoodlums instead of giving respectful attendance to the reading as representatives of the people,—which it was their duty to do,—and then if they could not consistently coincide with his views, vote against them. Just what they could find to hiss at, or oppose in this message, we are at a loss to understand. We did not vote for the election of Mr. Foss, but we are willing to admit, that in our opinion, he has so far made an excellent governor. We admire his independence and effort to make new laws in the interests of the masses, and to veto those passed by the Legislature in the interest of a few,—especially capitalists and money speculators. [Athol Chronicle.

Boston has assessed property owners on the Charles River Basin improvements, betterments amounting to $212,776. Cambridge will probably do the same. In view of the fact that the entire Metropolitan District is compelled to pay for this work why not divide these betterments. The district outside of Boston and Cambridge appears to be getting it in the neck.

MUCH INFORMATION IN THE STAR.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a constant reader of the STAR, I want to commend the general good quality of the communications contributed to our clean and wide-awake town paper by correspondents not directly connected with its publication. As a comparatively new citizen, I get much light on many public questions I can get in no other way.

The bishing question, the proper way to lay out and establish grades of streets; the desirability of town ownership of the mill property; the article on the dangerous character of the foot crossing at the station; the communication on the Town Hall heating problem and many other publicly discussed questions have been made more clear to me through articles in the STAR. I hope all your town correspondents will keep on writing, whenever they can throw any special light on any new way to conduct town affairs or have any intelligent advice to give regarding improvements on old ways of doing town business. Too much talk is preferable to too much secrecy and silence in carrying on town work. Our town officers are apt to be so loyal to their particular department that they take no interest in the work of other departments and so outsiders who are not office holders sometimes look at things from a broader standpoint than the most faithful of town servants. The Winchester public want more wide-awake STAR correspondents, not less. Good writers help make a newspaper useful, therefore all such should contribute to the local newspaper and assist the editor to make it what it should be, an integral, helpful adjunct to the community it serves.

PLAYGROUND POPULAR.

The playground on Manchester field is very popular this summer, more so, perhaps, than on any other season. The attendance last week was 850 children. This does not include Saturday afternoon, when over 1,000 children and adults enjoyed the ball game and band concert, and used the apparatus. The boys about town are interested in base ball and group games and the girls play basket ball twice a week, do sewing and enjoy playground ball and games. It is an interesting event to visit the field any afternoon and watch the 150 or more boys and girls, all active in some form of sport.

THE GIRLS AS THEY WERE.

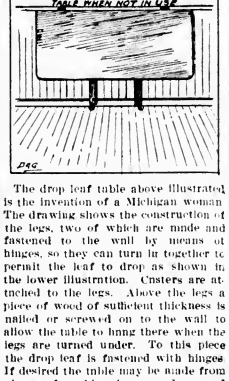

Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight, and give us a maiden dressed proper and right. We are so weary of switches and rats, Billie Burke clusters and peach basket hats. Wads of jute hair in a horrible pile, stacked on their head to the light of a mile. Something is wrong with the maidens, we fear. Give us the girls as they used to appear. Give us the girlies we once knew of yore, whose curls didn't come from a hair dressing store. Maidens who dress-ed with a sensible view. And just as Dame Nature intended them to. Give us a girl with a figure her own and fashioned divinely by Nature alone. Feminine style's getting fiercer each year—O, give us the girls as they used to appear.

Miss Annie Haggerty of Winchester and Miss Annie Barr of Everett are at Waldoboro, Maine.

A seashore party trolleyed to Revere Beach on Tuesday composed of the following children and others. A lunch, bathing and good time delighted all and a safe return was made: Connie McIntosh, Dollie Benet, Edward Benet, Henry Benet, Robert Benet, Norma Benet, Jud. Benet, Harold Twombly.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Drop Leaf Table That Occupies Small Space.

The drop leaf table above illustrated is the invention of a Michigan woman. The drawing shows the construction of the legs, two of which are made and fastened to the wall by means of hinges, so they can turn in together to permit the leaf to drop as shown in the lower illustration. Casters are attached to the legs. Above the legs a piece of wood of sufficient thickness is nailed or screwed on to the wall to allow the table to hang there when the legs are turned under. To this piece the drop leaf is fastened with hinges. If desired the table may be made from pieces of packing boxes and covered with oilcloth. Even in these days, when nearly every housewife has a kitchen cabinet, there are times when a little drop leaf table comes in handy. When not in use it may be dropped to the wall and is out of the way.

Uses For Ammonia.

A bottle of household ammonia will be a great help in every kitchen. A teaspoonful or two of ammonia in the water in which you rinse dishtowels and dishcloths will keep them clean and wholesome. If you rub a dingy carpet with a cloth moistened with ammonia it will look brighter. Dip the hairbrushes up and down in tepid water to which a tablespoonful of ammonia has been added to cleanse them properly. A few drops of ammonia in greasy pans will remove the grease. Ammonia and boiling hot water to flush a sink drain pipe will cut any grease that is clogging the pipe. If you put some ammonia in the boiler in which you are boiling the white clothes it will make them whiter.

Cleaning Hints.

Turpentine applied with a bit of flannel will (especially if the stains are deep) restore the whiteness to ivory knife handles.

Throw coarse salt over rugs and carpets before sweeping them to prevent the dust from rising. This will brighten the color also.

Yellow machine oil stains on white material may be removed by rubbing the spot with a cloth wet with ammonia before using soap.

Here is a new way to clean jewelry: Rub the articles to be cleaned with a chamois on which you have rubbed a little of the soft pink manicure paste.

Chili Sauce.

Eighteen ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped fine; eighteen tablespoonfuls sugar, three tablespoonfuls salt, five onions (not large ones), one teaspoonful black pepper, one nutmeg (put in whole), four cupfuls vinegar, teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice, cloves and ginger, three green peppers, one bunch of celery chopped fine. Boil one and a half hours. Do not put in all of pepper seeds unless you want it real hot.

Washing Tatting.

Tatting cannot be properly washed to look as good as new, for it is almost impossible to restore the picots to their natural shape. Soak the pieces in gasoline and while wet dust them with cornstarch. Wrap them in a clean towel and leave them for several hours. Beat the towel lightly, lift out the lace and shake it free of starch. Press the picots into shape and iron lightly on the wrong side.

Cleaning a Black Skirt.

To clean a black skirt lay the skirt as flatly as possible on a clean table. Remove all grease spots with brown paper and a hot iron; then with a sponge dipped in strong coffee rub over the whole of the dress, paying special attention to the front and edge of the skirt. When the whole of the skirt has been sponged and is still damp iron on the wrong side until perfectly dry.

Cucumber Pickles.

One gallon good cider vinegar, one cup table salt, one tablespoon powdered alum and a small bag of spices (mustard, cinnamon, allspice and cloves). Wash and wipe the cucumbers and place them in the vinegar; weight them to keep them under the vinegar, taking care not to crowd them in the jar. Cover with horseradish leaves.

BURDETT COLLEGE.

An Investment that Earns an Accumulative Dividend.

The close relations maintained with the business world enables Burdett College to guarantee to all graduates that they will be placed in satisfactory positions. The increasing demand for Burdett trained secretaries, book-keepers and stenographers obliges it to leave 1,500 positions of the 2700 offered during the year ending Jan. 1, 1911, unfilled. This is convincing proof that the profession is not overcrowded and emphasizes the value placed by business men on Burdett training.

One of the great inducements that bring hundreds of students from all parts of the country to Burdett College each year for a business training is that, with a moderate investment of time and money, they secure the means of increasing their earning capacity year by year.

In order to meet the great interest manifested by the public in the work of the college, exhibition exercises are held each Saturday from 10:30 to 12 o'clock, when expert demonstrations in typewriting, shorthand and on office appliances are given by the students. Blackboard and pen exhibitions by famous penmen are also given.

The beautiful exhibition room just opened affords all visitors an opportunity to inspect the work of the students. The college is leaving no stone unturned to acquaint the public with the high standard of efficiency maintained in all departments.

Visitors are cordially invited to visit Burdett College any school day or school evening of the week and especially Saturday mornings. The offices are open during August for the accommodation of callers and the enrollment of students who are to begin at Burdett when the fall session opens, Tuesday, Sept. 5.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Texas declared against Prohibition by a small majority, 5,000, much to the surprise of the liquor interests which were quite sure of a "rousing" vote. The temperance people are by no means disheartened and are already planning for the next campaign. Like Grant, they don't know when they are licked.

Not for many years has the liquor question received so much attention from the periodical press as at present. Almost every magazine has an article devoted to some phase or another of the drink evil. In Massachusetts the Foxboro home has been receiving considerable attention and investigation and from Maine to California the question is a live wire in State politics. The shibboleth of the reformers has long been "Agitation" and certainly there is no lack of that and from the quarters hitherto conspicuous for indifference, always harder to overcome than actual hostility.

It looks now as if Germany would yet lead the van of temperance reform in a scientific way. German savants are falling into line with their positive condemnation of the drinking habits hitherto accepted as a matter of course. It is no longer an evidence of mental aberration in one of the Kaiser's subjects to be a total abstainer and abstemiousness is being urged as never before. Surely the world do move.

The president of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U., Mrs. Katherine Lente Steven son, with other workers, is touring the State in an automobile making speeches and spreading the gospel of temperance reform. Open air meetings have been very popular this summer among the suffragists and the white ribboners are working with them and also independently.

The Outlook last week devoted considerable space—an editorial, an article and a letter to the editor—to the question of prohibition, but it is doubtful whether any one would clear up any difficulties after reading them all. Many men of many minds do not settle any question until it is settled right.

The current Union Signal is an exceptionally good number, having been prepared for distribution at fairs and open air meetings. It contains a symposium from the governors and former governors of many states concerning the value of prohibition as a remedy for the evil of the liquor traffic. Articles by Capt. Hobson and quotations from eminent scientists furnish ammunition for those who are sometimes at a loss for what to say, even when wholly convinced of the value of total abstinence and the dangers of moderate drinking.

The following table prepared for a meeting of Life Insurance presidents is worth repeating. Annual expenditures by the people of the United States:

Jewelry	$300,000,000
Candy	365,000,000
Tobacco	450,000,000
Automobiles	465,000,000
Crime	600,000,000
Beer	852,000,000
Alcoholic Drinks	1,745,000,000
Total	$4,807,000,000

Over two billion, five hundred million dollars for the annual drink bill!

EXTRAVAGANCE.

Extravagance has been our great fault. We have been wasting entirely too much in nonproductive undertakings. As a rule, we have been given too much to adornments. We have become obsessed with "the city beautiful" in municipal affairs. We have followed like policies in the state and national governments. Battleships, not only in this country, but also abroad, are illustrations of the extravagance in which the world has been plunged in the past two decades. The money for their construction has been withdrawn from commercial circles and almost as good as squandered, so far as there can be any tangible results observed.—James J. Hill.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

The thoughts and hopes of all the workers for the enfranchisement of women are upon California, to whose voters will be submitted a constitutional amendment next October. The only alteration in the present constitution is the omission of the word "male" in the clause stating who shall be voters and the use of the feminine pronouns, "she" or "her."

The Legislature voted at the last session to submit the amendment to the voters of its ratification, but the opposition in such cases is always active at the last minute and the friends of the measure have used and are still using every means in their power to educate the voters; for an intelligent understanding of the proposed act seems to be what is mainly needed to secure its passage. Country organizers are making a house-to-house campaign, during these last twelve weeks, and ten thousand copies of a letter which gives the reasons for the change, in a very condensed but illuminating form have been sent to the farmers of the state, by the California Political Equality League of Los Angeles. It reads:—

"Mothers, Fathers, and All Good Citizens—

"A constitutional amendment giving the suffrage to women is to be voted on October 10, 1911.

"Mothers—our duty is to take care of the home and the child, but we cannot raise good children unless we can control the conditions surrounding the home.

"The vote has to do with the cost of living, sanitation, food supply, education and moral conditions affecting our young people. Big organizations are making vast profits from commercialized vice. We and our children are the victims. Mothers, beseech the men you know to give you the vote to protect the home.

"Fathers—remember your daughters—they must make a living; conditions are hard for them—give the girl as fair a show as the boy. Protect your daughters by giving them the vote.

"Citizens—put it into the hands of the many for it is just and it is progressive. It doubles the power for good. Thousands of women desire it and realize their need of it.

"Vote for the amendment giving women the suffrage and insure good government in California."

Now is the time for every one who has a penny to spare to send it to California for its educational campaign. The members of the Woman Suffrage Party in New York propose to hold a self-denial week in August. They will refrain from luxuries and send the money thus saved to help the campaign. Contributions may be sent to the State President, Mrs. E. L. Watson, 214 Pacific Building, San Francisco.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. Herbert C. Sanborn, W. H. S. '92, Prof. of Philosophy and Education in Washington College, has resigned his position in that institution to accept the Chair of Philosophy in Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee.

Mrs. Frank W. Winn of Euclid avenue has been very ill with pneumonia but is now slightly better with hopes of her recovery.

Miss Pearl McLean of Clematis street has returned from Portland, Maine, where she had been spending several weeks.

Mr. Guy Messenger returned Monday from a three weeks' vacation at York Beach, Me.

Mrs. W. S. Purrington of Cambridge street is spending the month of August visiting relatives and friends in New Hampshire.

Edwards and Poor Co. are installing new plumbing in Mr. Green's house.

Miss Catherine Quill of Cambridge street returned this week from her vacation spent at Rockport.

The fire department was called out last night about ten o'clock for an alarm from box 23 for a fire in the house on Purrington place occupied by William J. Gray. The fire was confined to a matrass and bedding in one room, being caused by a child dropping a lamp. A hand chemical extinguished the fire with small loss.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blanchard are spending the week at their camp on the Casco Bay, Maine.

Mr. Gene Farrow treated the residents of the Highlands living in the vicinity of the North Reservoir, and incidentally Supt. of the Water Dept., William T. Dotten, to a fine graphophone concert last evening. The concert was given on the dam near the water, and the combination of moonlight, music and a large audience made the affair quite a success.

CLOSE OF VACATION SCHOOL.

The closing exercises of the vacation school took the form of a visiting day Thursday morning at the Chapin schoolhouse. There were many parents and guests there who were pleasantly entertained by the exhibition of the season's work by the children. There have been four classes this summer, the babies, looked after by Miss Elizabeth Cullen and Miss Mabel Coty. These little tots are all under five years. The largest attendance being 30. The next, the kindergarten class,—Miss Holman and Miss Edith Adams, numbered 36 and were all under seven years old. The Intermediate class, Miss Elizabeth Naven and Miss Elmer Homer, were none of them over ten years. The attendance here was fifty-one, at no time less than forty two. These children showed some very pretty useful and ornamental things, such as booklets, mats, paper baskets, and bead work. The advanced class, Mrs. Nellie Walker and Mrs. Annie Philips, teachers, was a very interesting place, to visit. The millinery exhibit was particularly good as an exhibition by itself. The children, about 10 years old, braided the rafia and shaped and trimmed the hats without assistance. There were also other articles, bags, dusters, dolls furniture, pin cushions, etc. The number attending the sessions was forty two. An interested visitor was Mrs. J. F. Dorsey who was the originator of the vacation school in this town. Lunch was served to all the children. Two interested gentlemen, Mr. Preston Pond and Mr. W. D. Richard, contribute each a large can of milk a day. Today the children will have a party at the schoolhouse with icecream and cake which closes the school for 1911.

CANNOT SLEEP.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It seem to me as perhaps to other residents of Winchester Highlands, that a change in the time of the heavy blasting done at the nearby quarry, early every morning, is in order. Daily at six o'clock in the morning, we are aroused from our sleep by this cannonading. Windows rattle and houses shake as each successive blast is fired. It is getting to be little short of a nuisance and if not abolished entirely, or the noise greatly lessened, might well be deferred until later in the morning.

POLL TAX BOOKS EXHAUSTED.

The 1911 poll tax books (List of Assessed Polls) issued the first of July have been distributed as called for by the citizens and the edition for 1911 is exhausted. The STAR office has been out of copies for the past two weeks, and owing to the large number of calls received daily gives notice herewith that no more copies are available.

The book is eagerly sought for by the citizens, and last year the edition only lasted for about a month.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an inspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Mrs. Benjamin Edwards, who has been in a sanitarium at Reading taking treatment for tuberculosis, has returned to her home and will continue the treatment there.

FER-MIL-LAC

The New Health Drink

There are some very interesting and wonderful things about Fer-mil-lac you should know. As a beverage Fer-mil-lac surpasses all other drinks in flavor—but its value as health drink far overshadows its cool deliciousness.

We make Fer-mil-lac from sweet, whole milk with all the cream left in. It is the highest grade milk to begin with—and stands the most rigid tests.

ELECTRIC SERVICE IN THE WEST.

"Horace Greeley once said, 'Go West, young man, and grow up with the country,' and to those who are interested in and have the management of the electric transportation facilities here in New England we would say, 'Go West, gentlemen, and learn what real rapid suburban transportation is.' We are not disposed to criticise the Boston street car system, or in fact those systems of other cities and towns in New England so far as short local lines are concerned, but what is to be deplored is the lack of fast suburban service, something which we should have all over New England.

"Indianapolis, for instance, is the terminus for any number of fast electriclines which radiate for seventy-five miles or more in all directions. Some of the points which can be reached from this city without changing cars are given below with the fares charged to each point.

	Miles	Fares
Indianapolis to Terre Haute	72	$1.45
Indianapolis to Lafayette	7	1.25
Indianapolis to Richmond	70	1.05
Indianapolis to Seymour	62	1.05
Indianapolis to Louisville, Ky.	117	2.00
Indianapolis to Crawfordsville	45	.75
Indianapolis to Connersville	58	1.15
Indiana olis to Logansport	80	1.45
Indianapolis to Peru	77	1.40
Indianapolis to Bluffton	99	1.75
Indianapolis to Fort Wayne	136	2.25
Indianapolis to Goshen	136	2.75

"And this is only a third of the points averaging fifty miles distance which can be reached from Indianapolis.

"The total number of passenger trains in and out of Indianapolis' great electric terminal daily averages five hundred, with eighty-two freight trains. The total number of passengers carried in and out during 1910 was six million. One hundred and fifty pounds of baggage carried free over all lines. The cars are geared to run sixty miles an hour outside of the city limit, and as a matter of fact they will average better than fifty miles for the express service. A passenger can travel from Indianapolis to Louisville, Ky., a distance of one hundred and seventeen miles, and reach his destination almost as quickly as he could by using the steam road. The West has a number of long electric lines on which dining and sleeping cars are features.

"What have we got here in New England to compare with such a system as has been referred to. Take, for instance, the much heralded Boston and Worcester which was built a few years ago, and which was to give us not only a fast suburban service, but insure quick connections between the two cities. It is anything but rapid. Even the limited cars take two hours to make the trip, and the regular cars two hours and twenty minutes. It is the exception for any one of the company's cars to run through to Worcester or even to Framingham without something going wrong to the car to hold it up. Either the trolley pole is defective and must be replaced, or else the car has a hot journal, due to using poor oil and waste, or it must stop and take on a gang of laborers with their ladders, rather than operate a service car. The only thing that can be said in their favor is that they charge no more on their limited car than on their accommodation cars, which possibly is due to the fact that they cannot guarantee that one will make the trip any quicker than the other.

"A short trip through the West will convince any fair-minded person that New England is far behind in interburban trolley service."—[The Commercial Bulletin.

THE "STAND-BYS."

The following article appeared in the Mansfield News, and it is just as good for all other towns as for Mansfield. The stand-by variety of citizen is known to us all. May his tribe increase:—

In every church, in every society, in every club, in every lodge, there are a few members who work hard to promote the interests of the organization. These members are known as "stand-bys," because they have the interests of their church, etc., at heart and can be depended on at all times to work. These willing members are worked hard. When interest is flagging they start something and revive the interest. In fact they stand ready at all times to do that which none but they would. Without these faithful ones there would be any number of failures. But generally these people are courageous and when failures seem imminent they come forward with a new move and success is restored. In your church, in your club, in your lodge, in your Board of Trade you have members, called ones who are always on the job. Appreciate them. Help them. Do all you can to work in harmony with them. Please appreciate them while you have them. Don't wait until they are dead and then say, "Oh, what a man he was." Get together.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

What's the Matter With Thomas?

There are some names which seem peculiarly suited to royalty; Louis, for instance, has a kingly sound. Francis, George, Henry in both spellings, Charles, William, Edward and James all have served their turn. Johns there have been, and Stephens. I remember a Robert in Sicily and a Peter in Russia and Servia. Frederick has often worn the crown, and royal honors are even now paid to Ferdinand in Bulgaria. But was there ever, anywhere, a king named Thomas? Oscars and even Haakens ascend the dais, but ever through all the centuries Thomas remains the subject, sometimes struggling up to a bishopric or an earldom, but never attaining the crown. Nicholases wear the imperial purple; Godfreys lord it over Jerusalem; Alexis struts in ermine; Alexanders fare forth to conquest; Julius and Leo don the triple crown, but Thomas, poor plebeian Thomas, has never a crown to his name. Now tell me, you who are wise in the occult influence of names, what is the matter with Tom?—London Idler.

Washington as a Humorist.

While president Washington's humor seemed to find expression in the diplomacy of self protection. A French revolutionist came to him for a general testimonial, which Washington did not care to grant, yet he did not wish to give offense to the French by a curt refusal, so he wrote an evasive card worthy of Lincoln—"C. Volney needs no recommendation from G. Washington."

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown Washington treated him with high consideration. At a dinner given in honor of the distinguished prisoner Rochambeau proposed "The United States" as his toast; Washington responded with "The king of France;" Cornwallis, perforce, faintly suggested "His majesty," when Washington startled them all by announcing, "The king of England—may he stay there!" with a ready wit that made even Cornwallis laugh.—Century.

Cards and Card Playing.

In a paper in the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts Professor H. Cheney, discussing the part played by gambling in magic, observes: "The use of cards is said to be derived from the Tuyt cards, which were originally employed for occult purposes. The legend which ascribes the invention of cards to the purpose of amusing a mad king does not seem at all a sufficient explanation, and there is in addition the fact that cards of a kind existed before the said king. In further support of this idea the well known practice of telling fortunes by cards may probably be regarded as a survival of a regular form of divination by such means. It seems, in fact, that card playing for stakes is a mere development of a ceremony in which individuals consulting the oracle decided to abide by its pronouncements as to the holding of disputed property.

Meteors and the Atmosphere.

One of the most useful results arising from the study of sporadic meteors is the light thrown upon the question of the height of the atmosphere, since it is the friction of the air that sets them on fire, and if their elevation is known at the moment of their first appearance the probable height of the atmosphere can be calculated. On Aug. 11, 1909, a brilliant meteor happened to impress its picture simultaneously on three photographic plates, at Tashkend, Iskander and Tschimgan, in Russian Turkestan. The distances between these places furnished base lines from which the height could be deduced. The calculation shows that the meteor first appeared at a height of 69.45 miles above the earth and disappeared at fifty miles.

The Orange In Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who can eat an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The senorita cuts off the rind with her silver knife, then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.

Unpalatable.

The Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon was fond of a joke, and his keen wit was, moreover, based on sterling common sense. One day he remarked to one of his sons:

"Can you tell me the reason why the lions didn't eat Daniel?"

"No, sir. Why was it?"

"Because the most of him was backbone and the rest was grit."—Youth's Companion.

Going the Rounds.

Husband of Tomorrow (reviewing wedding presents): That awful cruet seems familiar. Wife of Tomorrow—Yes, dear, you saw it at the Browns. They got it as a wedding present and gave it to the Smiths at theirs. It's the Smiths' present. But never mind, dear; Harry's wedding comes off soon! —London Opinion.

Adroit.

"He is what you might call an adroit man."

"Decidedly. His sins never find him out and his debts never find him in."—Exchange.

Chilly Affair.

Stella—Did you give the bride a shower? Bella—Well, all her friends threw cold water on the bridegroom.—New York Sun.

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

II.— My Closest Calls In the Air

[Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely

To every man who flies there comes the moment when fate hangs by a slimy thread, when a hair's breadth one way or the other means life or death. I know of nothing in human experience which can leave so indelible an impression in so short a space of time. With the aeroplane as it is built today these critical moments are really only the infinitesimal fraction of a moment. The danger is reached and in a flash it is passed—safety or otherwise. There is no time for thinking. Everything must be done by instinct.

True, we do make voluntary and logical movements when we get into these scrapes, but I believe that these movements are always made too late to do any real good and that the first instinctive motion, without reason and without thought, is what decided the outcome of the moment.

Sometimes we have a warning of what is coming, and in such instances we can prepare ourselves and meet the danger with a plan of action logically thought out and calculated to meet the emergency in the best way. At other times the danger comes and is past before we really realize what is happening, and in these instances it is only the instinct that comes with long training in flying that pulls us through in safety.

I have personally had many thrilling experiences in the air, but there are two instances that have left upon my memory stronger impressions than all the others. I regard them as my two closest calls.

Both of these thrilling moments came to me while I was flying for practice at my school at Beaulieu, near Southampton, England. My partner, Macaulay, and I have an ideal flying ground there. It is seven miles from the railroad station, with perfectly flat country, smooth and clear except for one line of telegraph wires.

My Closest Call of All.

My closest call came to me in a most undramatic way. There were no spectators save only Macaulay and our mechanics, and I think that Mac was the only one of them who really saw my danger and knew that he was near to losing a partner.

I was flying low with the Blériot XI., which the antiquated type of wings I started to circle the place in wide, easy curves, without any definite object in view. I found the machine was banking well at the turns, and I became curious to see just how small a loop I could make with her, so I gradually narrowed the circle in which I was flying. There seemed no limit to her possibilities; I felt as though I could turn her on her beam ends if I wanted to, and so, without the slightest thought of danger, I kept drawing closer and closer about the center, flying at a great angle all the time because the circle had become so small that there was no straightaway flight. It was a case of jam the rudder over hard and see how close she would come about.

It may be well to explain that the Blériot banks automatically when going about a turn—that is, the far side rises and the near side falls until the machine is frequently tilted at an angle of forty-five degrees. This can, of course, be prevented by warping the wings and keeping her on a more even keel, but to do this puts so severe a strain on the planes that it is extremely dangerous.

I think, on this day I speak of, that I was turning the machine in her own length or even shorter. I was paying not the slightest attention to the angle at which I was flying; all my thoughts were on the little circles I was cutting through the air, when suddenly I felt myself slipping on my seat, and I realized in a flash that my planes were dangerously near the perpendicular.

There was no time to think. One instant more and she would have lost her balance and come crashing down sideways to the ground 150 feet below.

Instinctively I threw my weight to the high side. My hand at once touched the bottom of the framework—a circumstance that will give some idea of my great angle. I took my feet from the steering lever, braced the left one against the side of the framework, shoved the steering post over with my knees to warp the left wing and help to right her and then—I closed my eyes and waited for things to happen.

But, fortunately for me, I had done the right things just in the nick of time. An indistinctual fraction of a second later would have been useless, for I am convinced that I caught the machine just as she was passing the critical angle, after which there would have been nothing to support her in the air, and I should have gone crashing downward. As swiftly as it had come the danger had passed; the machine had righted herself, and I opened my eyes to find myself sailing away on an even keel—safe, alive, and thanking God for it.

I looked beneath me and saw that the mechanics were gazing up at me with no idea of what I had just passed through. Mac, however, looked as white as a ghost. He knew.

Naturally my nerves were about gone. My heart was thumping like a triphammer, and I could scarcely get my breath from the excitement. But I made up my mind that Mac was not going to see me quit, so, as though I had intended just what happened, I went sailing away to the far side of the grounds and came back again in wide, easy, sweeping curves that landed me at the feet of my excited partner in perfect style.

I did not fly again that day.

Lost In Cloudland.

My other narrow escape was the result of a fluke, and I was saved by a fluke. To this day I have not been able to figure out why either of the flukes happened. I was practicing at Beaulieu for height; altitude work had attracted me from the beginning, and I practiced constantly. In fact, I had several times exceeded the world's record for height as it stood then, but could not climb it officially, as I used my own barograph and aneroid and the flights were made with Mac and the mechanics as the only watchers.

On this day I went up toward evening. It was one of those gray days with a thin mist over everything and a damp feeling in the air that suggested an impending fog. I should have known better than to attempt to climb under such conditions, but I was keyed up to it and I did not want to put it off.

The machine banks turned the propeller over and I was off. The engine was running with that smooth purring that is music to the ears of an aviator, and without any incident whatever I climbed to something like 6,000 feet, which was then above the record, and was debating whether to try for any more altitude with the darkness of evening gathering when my engine began to sputter and miss in a way that sounded as though there were no more gasoline in the tank.

This, however, I knew could not be the cause of the trouble. The tank had been well filled before I started, and what the trouble was I have never ascertained, but I felt the power beginning to give out, and I shoved my steering post forward just about in time to get the machine's nose pointed down when the engine stopped entirely. There was nothing for it but to plane down and get as near back home as possible.

With the machine pointed right for a long spiral glide, I looked below to get my bearings, and that is where I got my first fright. The mists had gathered so thickly that I could not see a single glimpse of the earth. There was nothing below me but a billowy sea of clouds, impenetrable to the eye.

I blamed myself in forcible language for my folly in not taking more careful note of my position on the upward climb. Now it was too late. I had not the slightest idea what part of the country I was over nor in what direction I was headed, but I had all I could do to take care of the machine, rushing downward through space as I was at the rate of seventy miles an hour or more. I thought of nothing except the steering and instinctively tried to keep her going in a general way in about the same wide circles that I had followed on my journey up.

Saved by a Fluke.

Soon I entered the clouds and began to catch glimpses of the earth. I thought I saw something that looked like one of the buildings on our grounds, and I steered accordingly, aiming to plane down so as to have plenty of room in the open land that stretched for miles away from the hangars.

Suddenly I plunged through the mists into the ordinary atmosphere of the earth's surface, and below me there was nothing but trees, trees, trees, as far as the eye could reach. I seemed to be directly over the heart of a limitless wood. To land in the branches meant certain wreck, and no power in the engine to give me a chance to look about me for an opening. There was nothing to do apparently but to plunge down among the forest giants and trust to luck that the wreck of the machine would not cut me up badly and that my fall from the top of whatever tree I landed in would leave my features in good enough shape for identification at the inquest.

I took a deep swoop downward and then desperately turned the aeroplane's nose upward to coast as high as the momentum would take me and search for a clearing in this momentary respite.

I plunged downward for a hundred feet at a terrible rate; then at the moment of turning up my heart nearly stopped beating as I heard a choking cough from the engine, then another, then another, and suddenly the beater of the cylinders as the explosions came with full force, and the propeller, getting its grip on the air, put on all its power, and I climbed safely away from the treetops, everything working perfectly and once more in control of a safe and efficient piece of machinery. I sailed close to the ground until I recognized some houses over the edge of the wood. I was more than twenty miles from home; but, with the engine working smoothly, the trip back was a mere child's play, and I was soon on the ground again, being alternately cursed and hugged by Mac, while the mechanics trundled the Blériot to the hangar.

The Eternal Question.

They are never pleasant to talk about—these narrow escapes. It is best to forget about them as soon after they have occurred as possible, for they get on the nerves, and things that get on the nerves are not good in aviation. It has always struck me as odd that almost the first question the average man will ask after he has met me is:

"What was the narrowest escape from death you have ever had?"

This is simply another manifestation of that morbid desire for thrills at another man's expense by demanding feats the aeroplane was never intended to perform. The aeroplane has its limitations, and they are, so far, very narrow ones. It will do certain simple things very well and if not pushed too hard is not a great deal more dangerous than manufacturing dynamite or being picked out by the Black Hand.

The late Ralph Johnstone recognized this clearly, and he once said: "I will get us all some day." He got him just as it has got many another good man who is trying to advance the new science, but these are the things that it is best for us not to think about.

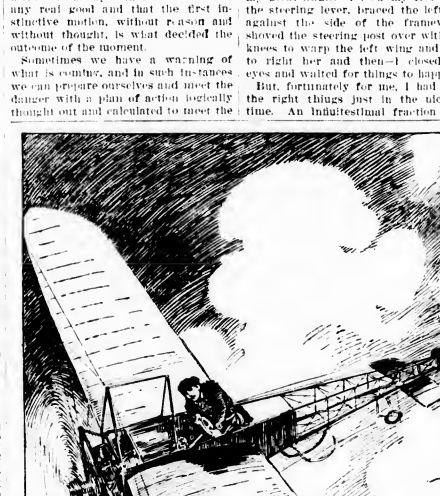

I remember when the first news of Johnstone's death reached me. I was dining with Grahame-White in Philadelphia. White had had a hard afternoon flying in the teeth of a fluky wind that would have kept any other man safely housed in the hangar.

Reporters wanted to know if it would keep White from flying next day.

"No," said White. "These things cannot stop us. We must do our work just the same. But such accidents bring home to us the awful danger that we are constantly running, and we have to keep constantly pushing such thoughts out of our minds."

Yet, as I say, the average man, after he has talked to an aviator five minutes, will ask:

"What was the narrowest escape from death you have ever had?"

"I KEPT DRAWING CLOSER AND CLOSER ABOUT THE CENTER, FLYING AT A GREAT ANGLE ALL THE TIME."

Jehoiakim Burns the Prophet's Book. Jer. xxxvi.

Golden Text—The word of our God shall stand forever. Isa. xl:8.

(1.) Verses 1-3 — What was the character of Jehoiakim?

(2.) Why is it that God bears so long and patiently with sinners, and takes such loving pains to save them?

(3.) What advantage is it to us that men like Jeremiah wrote the history of God's dealing with his people, and that we have these records in the Bible?

(4.) Who had been the kings of Judah since the death of Josiah, and what had been their characters?

(5.) Verse 4—What was the chief purpose of the Lord in commanding Jeremiah to write a book, containing what God had revealed to him, concerning the sin and the coming punishment of Judah?

(6.) Jeremiah had previously delivered those messages orally and had been tried for his life on account of it; why was it important that they should be written?

(7.) Why is it necessary that such important messages should always be written?

(8.) Verses 5,6—Why could Jeremiah not read the roll personally in the temple?

(9.) If we cannot go personally as missionaries, what is our duty in the circumstances?

(10.) Why is every Christian in duty bound to be a missionary, either in person or by proxy?

(11.) Verse 7—God was then very anxious to save these sinners from the doom they were bringing on themselves; how does he show the same anxiety today?

(12.) Verse 8 — Which was the more meritorious in the sight of God, Jeremiah or Baruch, the man who writes a book at God's command, or the man who publishes it at his command?

(13.) Verse 9—The king, the priests and people were rebels against God, yet they proclaimed a religious fast for they were likely in great national peril. Do the prayers and fasts of the impenitent wicked, please or insult God? Why?

(14.) Verse 10—The Salvation Army and some others take advantage of every public gathering to preach the gospel; Is it or not the duty of all the Christian churches to do the same? Why?

(15.) Verses 11-19—What was the first effect of Baruch publicly reading Jeremiah's book to the people?

(16.) Which secures the more converts, the direct or the indirect results of preaching the gospel?

(17.) Verses 20-25—What effect had the reading of the book upon the great men who stood around the king, and upon the king himself?

(18.) Why did the king have the book burned?

(19.) What has been the result in all the attempts that have been made to suppress the word of God?

(21.) Verse 27—Why is it that sometimes God takes his servants from the scene of their enemies, and sometimes allows them to ...

(22.) Verses 27-32—What motive ... burning the roll?

(23.) What is always the final result of sinning against God? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the class.)

The appearance of the centre in the vicinity of the First Congregational Church is rapidly changing. Another of the large elms, long handsome landmarks of the place, was removed this week—that in front of the old S. H. Davis shoe store on Vine street. This makes about six of these trees which have withered and died from some unknown cause. The place no longer resembles the lovely shaded corner of two years ago. What has caused the trees to die is a mystery, it being variously attributed to the oil on the street, gas, lightening and electricity.

Through the generosity of a Winchester lady about twenty girls of the town enjoyed a picnic and trolley ride to Nantasket Beach Wednesday. The children were under the guidance of Mrs. Francis Platta and included those who would probably not be able to otherwise enjoy an outing this summer. A most enjoyable trip was taken, the day being well filled with all the pleasures which delight the childish heart.

An extra freight train came very near going through the centre Wednesday forenoon without the gates being lowered. Four trains had passed the crossing in quick succession, and when the freight came down the loop at a good rate of speed the gates had just been raised. Warning cries from the tower man and sharp whistling from the locomotive called attention to the crossing. Fortunately only one team was passing over the tracks, and that hastily got out of the way. Sooner or later an electric car is liable to get stalled on the crossing in a case like this.

Wednesday morning a small boy attempted to jump on a dray passing through the centre by stepping on a swinging hook at the rear. The hook turned and threw him backwards, catching on his shoe. Warning cries from persons witnessing the accident caused the driver to stop. The boy was somewhat bruised by being dragged several yards. Had the team been going faster than a walk the consequences would have undoubtedly been serious.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles Holbrook returned this week from a stay at Little Compton, R. I.

A dog owned by Daniel Callahan of H. B. Winn's store was struck by an automobile last Saturday afternoon and so badly injured that it was found necessary to kill him. The accident occured near Dr. Cummings' residence on Church street and the animal was chloroformed by the doctor. Eye witnesses stated that the driver of the auto deliberately followed the dog until he ran over it. The number of the car was not ascertained.

"My next door neighbor awoke one night recently around one or two o'clock with a feeling that all was not right in the house. He lay awake listening when he heard a noise below stairs. Arising, he looked out of the window and was horrified to see that the windows on the first floor were all alight. Without pause he cried, "burglars" at the top of his voice, arousing his neighbors, who immediately responded to offer aid in capturing the intruders. It followed that a lady of the house was walking in her sleep and had descended to the first floor to let the cat in—so she dreamed. The neighbors were allowed to depart with thanks."

BASE BALL.

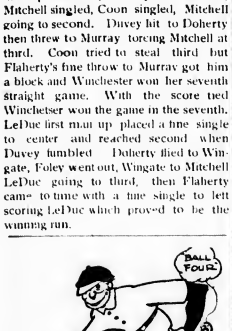

Splendid Victory for Winchester Over College Boys.

Winchester has been treated with some very fast ball this season, but the game with the Rovers, an all college team, last Saturday was the best exhibition ever seen on Manchester Field. It was filled with light but clean batting, sensational fielding and heady pitching, both pitchers doing great work when hits meant runs. It was hard tought from the start and looked like anybody's game till the last man was out in the ninth. Winchester started several batting rallys only to be checked by Wingate and Coons. Wingate made two sensational catches of hard line drives by jumping in the air about three feet and getting the ball with his left hand. Coons also pulled down a hard line drive. The Rovers went out in order in the first. For Winchester, Murray got hit with a pitched ball, stole second, O'Connor struck out, Thornton doubled scoring Murray, and went to third on the throw to the plate. Thornton scored when Earley went out, pitcher to first base. LeDuc got a base on balls, but was thrown out stealing second. Donahue to Gibson, two runs. The Rovers evened up in this half of the second. Donahue struck out. Three hits in succession by Mitchell, Coon and Duvey gave them two runs and tied up the score, then Whittaker tightened up and struck out Wing and Beebe.

Whittaker did this to Beebe and Wing every time at bat.

The visitors looked good to score in the fourth when Donahue reached second on a wild throw by Murray, Mitchell then out to Earley. Coon singled to the left and went to second on the throw in to hold Donahue on third. Then came one of the fine plays of the game. Duvey hit to the left of Whittaker who got the ball and made a bluff throw to first, then threw to Flaherty which drove Donahue back to third, but Flaherty whipped the ball to Murray at third and got Donahue off the base, then Murray wheeled around and got Coon coming up from second completing a double play and retiring the side. They looked dangerous in the ninth. Donahue first man up went out, Doherty to Thornton, Mitchell singled, Coon singled, Mitchell going to second. Duvey hit to Doherty then threw to Murray forcing Mitchell at third. Coon tried to steal third but Flaherty's fine throw to Murray got him a block and Winchester won her seventh straight game. With the score tied Winchester won the game in the seventh. LeDuc first man up placed a fine single to center and reached second when Duvey fumbled. Doherty flied to Wingate, Foley went out, Wingate to Mitchell LeDuc going to third, then Flaherty came to time with a fine single to left scoring LeDuc which proved to be the winning run.

LeDuc scoring the winning run.

The features of the game was the great catches of Wingate and Coon. A double play by Whittaker, Flaherty and Murray. Whittaker pitched a fine game, and struck out ten, getting Wing and Beebe every time at the bat. The Rovers had the assistance of Dr. Sexton head base ball coach of Harvard who put them through their fielding practice, and sat close to first base coaching lines.

MRS. MARY MAUD CHAMPMAN

Miss Mary Maud Pierce was born Oct. 12, 1876, at Norton, New Brunswick. She died August 5, 1911, aged 05 years. She was married Dec. 24, 1885, to John W. Chapman, at Haverhill, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman resided for sometime in Boston, also in Melrose, and later moved to Winchester where they have resided for the past twenty years. For more than ten years Mrs. Chapman was an invalid, suffering from bronchial asthma. In spite of her illness she was deeply interested in the welfare of others. For many years she contributed generously toward the promotion of Foreign Missions. During the past twenty-three years Mrs. Chapman was a member of the Christian Church in Boston, the present pastor of which, P. S. Sailor, assisted by Rev. P. I. Osborne, conducted the funeral services which were held at the Chapman residence on Cross street.

Interment was made in Wildwood cemetery.

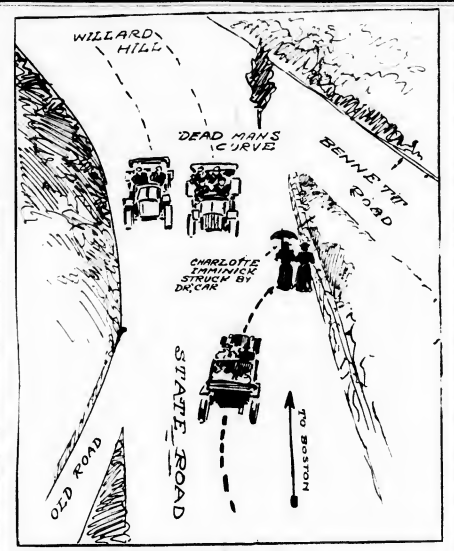

The deceased is survived by her husband, Mr. John W. Chapman, of Winchester, Mass., also by two sisters and three brothers: Mrs. H. S. Coates of Dorchester, Mass., Mrs. Robert Porter of Norton, New Brunswick, Gabriel Pierce and Henry Pierce of Norton, New Brunswick, and Robert Pierce of Chicago, Ill.

MISS McCALL MEETS WITH ACCIDENT.

Yesterday forenoon the horse of Hon. Samuel W. McCall, attached to a light carriage, stumbled on the loose stones on the railroad crossing at the centre and fell on the tracks, throwing Miss Margaret McCall and Miss Ryan, who was riding with her, out. The young ladies were badly bruised, Miss McCall receiving a cut on her elbow and her arm being badly sprained. Miss Ryan escaped with bruises only. They were assisted to Abare's drug store and their cuts attended to by Mr. Walker. The horse or carriage was not injured. Attention to the bad condition of the crossing was called in last week's STAR. loose stone making it a rather dangerous place for horses and automobiles.

BASE BALL.

Winchester will have for its opponents Saturday afternoon the Notre Dames of South Boston. This team is considered the fastest in that part of the Hub, and they will try their best to turn the tide of victory that has for so long a time set toward Winchester. The game will be called at 3.30.

This diagram shows condition of road where an auto ran into two girls at Wayland last Sunday, killing one of them. A similar condition exists in Winchester at the sharp turn near the Country Club House on Cambridge street. We are indebted to the Boston Post for permission to use this diagram.

A DANGEROUS PLACE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My dear Sir:—I am enclosing herewith a sketch from the Boston Post of this morning, showing conditions at a certain point in the road to Wayland where a disastrous automobile accident happened last Sunday. I send it in order that it may be compared with the conditions existing opposite the Winchester Country Club, near the Arlington and Winchester line, at the junction of Cambridge and Arlington streets. The situation, assuming that the portion marked "Willard Hill" represents the road coming from Arlington, is almost identical, apart from the existence of a high stone wall on the right. Such a wall, as a matter of fact, however, does exist at the left, where exactly the same conditions would be reproduced if a motor car coming from Arlington should be forced to the extreme right. Moreover, at least seven out of every ten cars coming from the direction of Winchester keep to the left of the road by reason of the tracks of the Electric Street Railway which are on the right. There are times during every day when a number of persons are standing directly against this wall for the purpose of boarding cars coming from Arlington, and narrow escapes from accidents are constantly occurring. If two automobiles should be forced to try to pass in the narrow space between the track and the wall, disaster would be certain.

It would be extreme folly, to my mind, to adopt the suggestion of widening the road on the Country Club side rather than on the opposite side where the bank comes down to the road, exactly as it does in this sketch on the left-hand side going toward Boston, as indicated by the arrow. The palpable thing to do is to remove a portion of the high bank and thus reduce the curve and afford opportunity for drivers of vehicles approaching in opposite directions to see one another.

If the condition is allowed to exists as it has, or the makeshift is employed of widening the street on the wrong side, it is only a question of time when serious or fatal injuries will be received by some one at this point.

Lest it be suggested that I write this letter with the idea of protecting the Country Club, of which I am a member I would add that in my judgment the road should also be widened on the Club side by taking into the street that portion included in the original layout, but which was never built over, and which is still enclosed by the wall on the Country Club estate.

Very truly yours.
Arthur H. Russell.

THEN AND NOW.

Some idea of the increase in the cost of living is shown in the taxes that Winchester is now called upon to meet. For comparison the taxes of 1895 and the present year are given:

	1895	1911
State tax	$1,340.00	$18,435.00
County	4,695.00	11,798.94
Town grant	85,074.25	185,337.97
Raised by taxation	102,488.00	244,442.08

In 1895 the park tax did not figure in the tax levy as it does now when the town is called upon for $6662. The above figures are interesting, however, and show the present day tendencies and also the increase of expenditures caused by the growth of the town.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

FOLEY—McGLINCHEY.

A very pretty wedding took place in Winchester Monday evening, when Miss Sarah A. McGlinchey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McGlinchey of Pond street, became the bride of Mr. Thomas F. Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Foley of Main street, Woburn.

The marriage ceremony took place at 7 p. m., at the Winchester parochial residence, Rev. Walter Roche of St. Mary's Church officiating.

The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Brogan of Winchester as bridesmaid and the best man was Mr. Stephen Degan of Woburn. The bride was handsomely attired in white silk trimmed with rare Irish lace and the bridesmaid's dress was also of white silk.

A reception was tendered to the couple at 2 Buckman street, Woburn, where they were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Foley and Mrs James Brogan. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants and about 200 relatives and friends assembled to express their good wishes to the young couple.

After a wedding trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Foley will be at home to their friends at 2 Buckman street, Woburn.

CARTER—SIMPSON.

A pretty home wedding took place last Saturday evening at the residence of William R. Cowdery on Mystic avenue, when Miss Florence Ethel Carter of Dexter, Me., daughter of the late Elbey A. Carter, and niece of Mrs. Cowdery, was married to Verne N. Simpson of Kenduskeag, Me. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Peter I. Osborne of Winchester in the presence of their immediate relatives. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Simpson will reside at Winter Hill, Somerville.

SUMMONED INTO COURT FOR FISHING.

Judge Johnson Will Give Decision Next Thursday.

Summonses have been issued for the arrest of three prominent Winchester residents for alleged violation of the state board of health regulations, relative to fishing in the North pond, a part of the water supply of the town of Winchester. The complaints were made by the park police. Arthur E. Whitney, Amos Lawrence and Frank Gansonson were among the men mentioned in the complaints.

The cases were before Judge Johnson yesterday forenoon and they were all continued pending the decision on the Whitney case which was the first to come up. Mr. Whitney was represented by counsel and after hearing the evidence on both sides, Judge Johnson announced that he would give his decision next Thursday.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

The annual observance of the Assumption by the Italian residents of the town was somewhat interrupted this week, although ultimately carried through to the satisfaction of everyone. An elaborate program had been arranged for Tuesday, including a parade, band concert and fireworks. Owing to an unavoidable delay in the arrival of the band, the parade was not held until almost four o'clock, although scheduled to take place at 2.30.

The music was furnished by the Italian Marine Band, V. Sala, conductor. This band furnished the music for the town's celebration on July 4th so acceptably, and an elaborate program of Italian opera selections were arranged for Tuesday. The band played a number of selections while the parade was forming on Oak street and during the route, which included Oak, Swanton, Washington, Mt. Vernon and Thompson streets to Manchester Field.

The parade reached the field shortly after four o'clock, and from then until the heavy rain commenced the concert was enjoyed. Owing to the heavy down pour the concert was early broken up, and the fireworks scheduled to the evening were postponed until Wednesday evening.

The fireworks were made by Ernesto Borrelli, the same manufacturer of the fine display given by the town on the 4th, a resident of Winchester.

The Italian residents placed the stay-at-homes in Winchester under deep obligations to them for the fine concert and excellent display of fireworks on Manchester Field Wednesday evening. It was intended to have the celebration Tuesday evening, but owing to the rain it was necessary to postpone it to the next evening. There may at some time in the past have been a larger crowd on Manchester field than on Wednesday evening, but if there ever was it is not recollected. The great throng went up into thousands and this did not include the large number of automobiles spread out along the parkway. After the fireworks the crowd split up, part remaining to listen to the continuation of the band concert, the rest leaving for home. The latter completely congested the centre—automobiles and the people making a general mix up, so much so that the policemen had their hands full in preventing accidents. Large numbers of people came from Woburn and Stoneham and Supt. Ellis of the Woburn division was on hand to attend to his part of the line, while Supt. Myers looked after the Arlington division.

At seven o'clock D'Avino's Boston Banda Rossa opened the festivities with an excellent concert that was enjoyed immensely by the great crowd. This band will play here for the last time this season on Manchester Field this Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

The fireworks met with an almost continuous round of applause, the excellent display being full of snap and surprises that caught the big crowd of spectators. The display lasted nearly an hour, and the making of the set pieces and bombs showed rare skill in the remarkable effects produced. Altogether the Italian residents did themselves proud.

The committee in charge of the celebration consisted of the following: Vincenzo Barbaro, Vincenzo Ghiotti, Giovanni Fronciello, Pasquale D'Amico, Alfredo Rotondi, Raffaele Giuliano, Antonio Fronciello, Vincenzo Chiriolo, Sebastiano Rossi.

AUTO CRASH IN WOBURN.

Nine Escape Injury, One Woman Hurt.

Half a dozen persons narrowly escaped being killed in an automobile accident at the corner of Cambridge and Bedford streets, Woburn, about 2.30 Wednesday afternoon.

Two cars met in collision. One was owned by August Lubbe of 2022 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and there were four persons with him. The other machine was owned and driven by a Mr. Stephens of Detroit, Mich. In his car were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart of Winchester and Miss Stephens and Miss Burnham of Detroit.

Both machines were going in the same direction. At the cross roads the Stephens car started to turn around, and the other car, which was just behind, was going so fast it could not be stopped in time. An instant later it struck the tender of the Stephens car.

The Lubbe car ran into a stone wall and its forward wheels were smashed and its engine badly damaged. One of the women in the machine was thrown out and struck on her shoulder. She was taken into the house of Everett Cummings and attended by Dr. Stewart, who found she was not dangerously hurt. She was one of Mr. Lubbe's guests. All the others in both cars escaped injury.

REQUEST FOR NOMINATION PAPERS SLOW.

Up to this forenoon no nomination papers had been taken out at the Town Hall excepting those for Republican and Democratic town committees. The time for filling such papers expires Saturday, Aug. 26. It looks as if it was on the slate to give Representative Fay, of West Medford, Republican, a third term in the House. It has been customary since the district was formed for Winchester and West Medford to alternate with two year terms. Mr. Fay has taken out papers in West Medford.

The Democratic candidate will also come from that place.

It has been understood that Mr. Preston Pond would be a candidate, but he has declined, it is said in favor of Mr. Fay. Mr. W. F. Prime has announced that he will be a candidate. He did not desire to oppose Mr. Pond should he wish the nomination, but now that he has decided not to enter, Mr. Prime will run, believing that Medford having had its two years Winchester by right and custom is entitled to its turn, and many voters appear to agree with him, and that the town should have a representative in the Legislature which it has not had for two years.

BAND CONCERT.

The following program will be given at the concert by D'Avino's Boston Banda Rossa, on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon from 3.30 to 5.30:

Wedding March
Overture Il Guavany Gomez
Barcarole Tales of Hoffman Offenbach
Cornet Solo Emersonian Polka Emerson
Mr. Frank S. Truda
Minnetta and Gavotte from Opera Paghacci Leoncavallo
Grand Selection Ada Verdi
Selection Red Mill Herbert

BOY DROWNED IN MYSTIC LAKE.

John Murphy, aged 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Murphy of 53 Dudley street, Arlington, was drowned in upper Mystic lake last Saturday afternoon while attempting to learn to swim. The accident happened in a cove a short distance from the Medford boat club house.

The boy, in company with Walter Holt, aged 13, of Brattle lane, and his brother, Andrew Murphy, went to the lake and John was to try out a new pair of water wings that he had purchased. The two companions did not go into the water, but sat on the bank to watch him. He paddled around for some time and then took a little courage and went farther from the shore.

In his attempts to swing his arms one side of the wings became dislodged and slipped off. The boy sank from view and on coming up shouted for help and sank again. His companions ran to the Medford boat clubhouse and told Frank Dunn, the janitor, of the accident.

He ran to the place with the boys and when they arrived they found two other boys, whose names were not learned. Dunn dived for the body but could not locate it. One of the unknown boys finally brought the body to the surface.

Dunn worked over the boy for some time and a hurry call was sent to Dr. E. D. Stickney. He arrived in a few minutes and worked for nearly an hour but to no avail. The boy was in the water only about 10 minutes before he was taken to shore, but all signs of life were extinct.

The boy was a bright young fellow and had made many friends since the family moved to Arlington a few months ago.

MEDFORD PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Medford Private School will begin the new school year, Wednesday, September 27, 1911.

The school consists of a primary and a grammar department with a course in French. The grades are similar to the grades of the public schools, and the Newton plan of study is closely followed.

The house, at the corner of Governors and Hall avenues, especially designed and built for the children, has proved most satisfactory to their use and comfort.

Early application is desirable as the number of children is limited. Address, Miss Grace M. Swett, 49 Governors avenue, Medford.

It is well to get your orders in early for fall planting. August and September is the proper time to transplant evergreens and most of our hardy perennials. West Street, Nursery, Reading, Mass.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The American Express Co. has decided to ship no more liquor into Maine, so many consignments having been seized, though the old interpretation of the Inter State Commerce law made evasions possible. As the American Express has a practical monopoly of the business in the Pine Tree State this means a considerable reduction for the time being in the amount smuggled in although the illicit dealers are fertile in resources and will doubtless soon find another way of nullifying the law.

A report to be made to the British Colonial office is to the effect that the liquor traffic is ruining both whites and blacks in Africa and it something is not done to curb it the Germans will find it an easy matter to take over any or all of the British possessions when they so desire. Couple with this the strong advance of temperance sentiment in Germany and it may be clearly seen that the question of liquor blooms large in international politics after all. It is true that Germany is popularly supposed to be a great nation of guzzlers. However, it is beer that is the national beverage and a mild variety at that, while in Africa spirits are almost universally used, 1,000,000 cases being imported annually. The havoc this creates among the natives is terrible, but among the whites the resultant moral degeneracy is appalling.

Members of the local Union are reminded that the campaign for increased membership this year is drawing to a close as the State Convention is but a few weeks away. Have you succeeded in getting at least one new member? Perhaps your neighbor would join if you were to ask her. Have you ever asked her? Have you ever asked anyone? One woman makes a point of asking at least one person a week. Not all respond but sometimes she is surprised by those who seemed most indifferent being the first to accept. It is a pretty good plan. Suppose you try it yourself.

B. & M. PLANNING NEW TERMINALS.

Abandonment of the North Station and the erection of a new terminal on the site of the Waverley House in City square, Charlestown, says the Boston American, is a project contemplated in connection with the plan to send all Boston & Maine through trains over the East Somerville junction tracks to the South Station. The chief reasons for this move are based on the insistence of the federal government upon the widening of the Charles River drawbridge and the raising of the North Station tracks to a second floor level to help solve the increasingly pressing problem of transportation on the North side of the city. The cost of these changes has been estimated at $15,000,000, and the new plan, it is said, would involve far less expense.

The carrying out of this plan would necessitate extending the terminal onto land which it is proposed to create by filling in South Bay and a portion of Fort Point channel. The loop under the station, hitherto unused, would then be put into service for suburban trains.

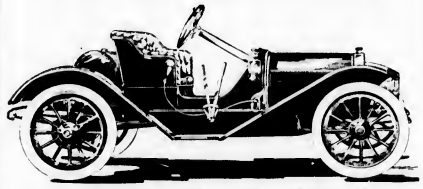

The Winchester police were notified Saturday that on Friday night Henry Hutchins, a fifteen year old boy at the insane hospital at Waverley, had escaped. As he previously lived in this town on Cutting street it was thought that he had come to Winchester. He was captured later in the morning in Dedham. He had previously escaped and was caught here by the police.

Quick climatic changes try strong constitutions and cause, among other evils, nasal catarrh, a troublesome and offensive disease. Sneezing and snuffling, coughing and difficult breathing, and the drip, drip of the foul discharge into the throat—all are ended by Ely's Cream Balm. This honest remedy contains no cocaine, mercury, nor other harmful ingredient. The worst cases yield to treatment in a short time. All druggist, 50c., or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The other day The Spectator read in one of the exchanges reaching his desk of how a woman artist starved to death because she refused to use her talent in work that would renumerate her financially. An American girl killed herself not long ago in the artist quarter of Paris because her dreams of fame could not be realized. Both these unfortunate creatures died from a lack of that most valuable of all human qualities, plain common sense. The world would not revolve very long, or at least to any good purpose, if the idealism of the human race should be lost, but the words of the gruff old artist are as applicable in this connection as they were when he uttered them to the impertinent stranger who questioned him. When asked what he mixed his paints with, the artist replied: "With brains, sir, with brains."

A gentleman who has tried the experiment informs The Spectator that chloride of lime sprinkled plentifully about where there are rats will solve the problem of getting rid of these unwelcome visitors. He says the lime should be sprinkled around their holes and under the doors or other cracks through which they go. The stuff eats into their feet, and they will not come back. He says it is well to remember, though, that the lime corrodes metal things and should be swept up in the daytime. It is well to put away for the time any brasses or bronzes.

The Spectator agrees with his friend the philosopher that "one who builds misrepresentation upon a foundation of partial truth is more dangerous than one who simply lies."

The Spectator wonders what has become of that proposition to advertise Winchester by affixing "Winchester stamps" to all mail and express matter leaving the town. Just at present, of course, it is not wise to do anything, but as soon as the warm weather is over The Spectator hopes the public spirited men and women of the town will execute the proposition. Winchester is one of the best towns on earth and we want to acquaint outsiders with that fact.

Sometime ago The Spectator advocated a "free dental clinic" where the poor of Winchester can obtain treatment. This is a practical benevolent work or great benefit to those unable to pay for skilled dental treatment and that there are some needy in Winchester no intelligent person denies. Once established its benefits would be generally recognized and there would be no dearth of volunteers from the dental profession. There are communities much smaller than Winchester having the secret. Dental clinics, in some, the celebrity's organ is connected with the [illegible] department of schools, schools and playground authorities have charge of the clinics. Not all of the teeth in a public school are pain, disease and incapacity for remunerative labor. Among the poor it is largely the result of ignorance. The free clinic will not only provide relief for the suffering, but will educate the ignorant in the care of their teeth.

The other day The Spectator overheard a man remark. "Whenever we do a thing we shouldn't do, we feel sneaking about it, and a sneaking feeling is the most uncomfortable feeling in the world." The Spectator wonders what the person in question has been doing this time.

Upon the occasion of the recent death of his wife a resident of a town not far from Winchester sent a written notice to the woman's two brothers that their presence at the funeral would not be welcome. Spite not uncommonly goes to long ends, but The Spectator knows of no other variety so bitter as family spite.

At last The Spectator has discovered why the women took to the hobble skirt. It is to make them look like mermaids. To carry out the idea they should let their hair down and carry combs and hand glasses, as all well brought up mermaid are supposed to do.

An honest person is one who is always willing to tell where he got his umbrella.

Sometimes a man who flatters himself that he has a strong will has only a strong won't.

The Spectator.

NOW BAY STATE ST. R. R.

Bay State Street Railway Company is the new name of the system formed by the consolidation of the Old Colony Street Railway Company with the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company, which has, since the consolidation became effective July 1, been known by the latter designation.

This change was formerly authorized by the certificate of the Secretary of the Commonwealth issued under date of Aug. 8. The Bay State Street Railway Company operates approximately 950 miles of track the larger portion of which is in Massachusetts. Outside of this state it operates north to Nashua, N. H., and south to Newport, R. I. This system includes practically all of the lines north and south between Boston and these points. Mr. P. F. Sullivan, who was president of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony Street Railway Companies, is president of the Bay State Street Railway Company.

UNJUST TAXATION.

After four years of labor and several millions of dollars spent on its construction the Charles River Basin was completed in 1910 and accepted by the State. Hon Joshua Bennett Holden, an eminent Boston Lawyer, captalist and politician, a native of Woburn, was one of the members of the State Board of Commissioners under whose direction and authority the Basin was built. Just why and how the Commonwealth shouldered the great work and payment for it nobody outside the State House fully understands. It was done solely for the benefit of Boston and Cambridge, and it was only fair and just that those cities should pay for it.

The State, or Park Commissioners of the Metropolitan System, (it is hard to say which) thought differently and decided that all the towns and cities in the Metropolitan District which would be benefited by the Basin should contribute each its proportion towards the cost of building and maintaining it, and on that decision the Assessors proceeded to assess those towns and cities which the Commission, or State authorities, or the Park Commissioners concluded would be benefitted by the Basin, the amount required for this year's expenses, and notify those unfortunate municipalities of the exact extent to which they had been victimized.

Last week Woburn's Board of Assessors were informed that the amount of the tax for this city had been fixed at $2,785.71, in spite of the fact that George W. Norris, Esq., as City Solicitor, had early in the proceedings, notified the C. R. B Commissioners that Woburn should not be included in the enterprise but exempt from all connection with it soley on the ground that the city, by no possibility, could receive the least benefit from it.

The taxpayers in the towns and cities that have been assessed for this purpose are indignant and will resist payment of the tax to the bat's end. Woburn tradesmen, manufacturers, the Business Men's Association, are bitterly opposed to the tax, and will refuse to pay it.

The assessment is unlawful; it cannot be enforced, say good lawyers. Who are to decide whether or not a town or city is benefitted by the Basin, and how? The Basin tax on Winchester is $3,330; that on Wakefield is equally high, and both towns have been heard from on the subject. They are up in arms, and will resist payment.

Steps are soon to be taken to present this subject to the proper authorities, and to adopt plans to bring organized opposition to bear on it, and combine to fight the unjust and illegal tax in the Courts, need be. At least, we have been assured of Woburn Journal.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

For announcement that Willard Simms in "The New Patent Hanger" will be one of the principal features at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week is sufficient evidence that those who visit this popular resort during the coming six days will enjoy many a good hearty laugh. For Simms is without question one of the funniest comedians that has ever been seen in vaudeville, and in the character of the amateur paper hanger who mixes his numbers and papers on the wrong flat, he keeps his audiences in a constant paroxysm of laughter. Only those who have found by actual training in the hard school of experience, how really difficult it is to paper a room, can imagine the ludicrous mishaps that befall the unfortunate Simms during the twenty minutes he is on the stage. Other strong attractions engaged for the same week are Alexander and Scott, late of Cohan and Harris' Minstrels, in "From Virginy;" Keller Mack and Frank Orth, the song writer and the comedian in their musical absurdity, "The Wrong Hero;" Jewell's Manikins, a remarkable troupe of minature performers; Cotter and Boulden, "The Whips in Bits" in original songs and dances; the Great Ploetz-Larrella Troupe of daring gymnasts, and other strong features to be announced later.

A SENSIBLE VIEW.

Right Reverend Brandram B. Ussher, a retired Episcopal clergyman of Dedham takes this sensible view of the Astor-Force marriage: "The washing of soiled ecclesiastical linen on the rough washboard of rancorous condemnation will neither help the church, her clergy, or morals. There seems to be a very unwholesome effort to pit the church against the state, and to dire threats and condemnation to force an observance of ecclesiastical law by state officers, who failing to be thus intimidated will be under clerical ban. The law of the land permits divorce, of cause the law of the land permits remarriage unless specially forbidden. The fault of the church's authority is to refuse to sanction the divorced persons being married again by any of her ministers, this she can do, and no more, and when it comes to the vilification of citizens, male or female, by the extravagant utterances of evidently very flighty clergymen, it may be well to pause ere the spiritual force of the church is weakened and the individual irresponsible minister becomes the storm centre of slander and legal reprisals."

For One Year, the Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance.

News items, lodge meetings, society events, personals, etc., sent to this office will be welcomed by the Editor.

Many inquiries are received at the STAR office whether fishing in the reservoirs is permissable. Our advice is, don't do it.

The automobile is exacting a human toll that is making the Fourth of July appear insignificant. Speed and recklessness are the causes.

It has been suggested that Winchester sever its connection with the Metropolitan district. When did it ever vote to enter the district?

It is evident the West Side hill land will soon have to be assessed by the foot instead of by the acre as in the past. Assessors' plans should be made for all of this land now.

As showing the range of valuation of towns in Massachusetts, New Ashford pays a state tax of fifty-five dollars and Brookline one hundred and fifty-two thousand. Only ten towns pay a larger state tax than Winchester.

If John Jacob Astor was a poor man, no notice would have been taken of his forth-coming marriage to the Force girl. The union appears to be agreeable to them, and besides the great mass of the people take no interest in them whatever. There has been too much newspaper talk about this marriage.

As we are to pay a tax annually towards the Charles River Basin we should have something to say about its management. The people of Boston do not know how to get what they should have there and the Governor is right when he says we are not beginning to get our money's worth out of the park system yet.

Gifford Pinchot was forced out of the Forestry Bureau, but it is being found harder in the case of Dr. Wiley, head of the pure food department. It looks as if there was need of considerable investigating at Washington. The dollar seems to be more powerful than an impartial administration of the laws, especially in the endeavor to give the people pure food.

It has taken the world a long time to learn some very simple things. One is that one-fourth of the blind children in the blind schools of this country are doomed to go through life sightless merely because their eyes were not properly washed and treated at the time of their birth. Such neglect is little short of criminal. Even the brute creation were not so neglectful of their offspring.

In a communication printed on the first page of this issue, Arthur H. Russell, Esq., strongly calls attention to a condition on Cambridge street in front of the Country Club house that is fraught with danger not only to automobilists, but to the large number of persons who use the street and the electric cars, because of the sharp turn in the road. The County Commissioners are to pass upon this matter at a hearing to be held in the Selectmen's room on Sept. 15, at 9.45 a. m. The STAR agrees with Mr. Russell that the only proper way to eliminate the danger at this point is to remove a sufficient portion of the high land opposite the Club House so that the curve will be so broadened that a clear view can be had from the top of the hill to Mystic street in Arlington.

THE FALSE ALARM FIEND.

The fact may not be recognized that while the false alarm fiend may not be the cause of so great a property loss, he is, nevertheless, year in and out, the direct cause of a vast amount of slaughter in public streets, the extent of which is not realized, owing to the loss of life not being wholesale as in cases of such holocausts as those in Newark, N. J., and New York. Yet if the figures of the loss of life, personal injury, and the killing and maiming of horses, chiefly in the fire departments were collected and published for the end of twelve months, they would stagger humanity and might move our magistrates and officers to take much more serious notice than they do of those who for reasons best known to themselves chiefly, apparently for the purpose of seeing the apparatus, crews and horses turn out, send in false alarms.

It may be safely said that of all the accidents, fatal or otherwise that happen to firemen, horses and apparatus in the streets of our cities and towns, the great majority are due to alarms needlessly turned in, and of these only a minority can be credited to someone's real impression that a fire has started.

By far the greater majority are the results of the false alarm fiend's endeavors to make the firemen's lot much less endurable than it already is.

The consequence is that as the firemen and horses rush along they collide with telegraph poles or hydrants, or come into violent contact with electric cars, trucks, wagons and automobiles in trying to avoid killing or wounding unwary foot passengers or horses or damaging other vehicles at such times. And in spite of all the care and skill of the drivers, children, men, or women are knocked down and killed or grieviously injured; more commonly, however, it is the firemen or fire horses that suffer. If these escape death or injury, the probabilities are that the piece of apparatus is put out of commission for weeks and the department is thus short, perhaps of some machine whose absence at a critical time is severely felt.

Taking all these moving accidents and fatalities into consideration, therefore, there is no reason why these false alarm fiends, when caught, should not be punished at least by a heavy fine for the first offense,—by imprisonment if any life has been lost or personal injury suffered, and a fairly long imprisonment with hard labor if the offender has been previously caught at his nefarious work.

Such a crime should no longer be treated as a misdemeanor, but a felony, and punished accordingly. In the case of mischievous boys, (who really are not the worst offenders,) a good flogging with a birch rod, wielded by a brawny policeman, to be followed by imprisonment and bread and water diet for a few days, would probably prove a sufficient deterrent.

But such offenders should not get off, either with a warning or a light fine, as is too commonly the case, as it will only encourage them and others in their evil deeds and to continue still further to endanger the safety of our firemen, their horses and their apparatus, to say nothing of leaving valuable property unprotected while they are answering the call of the false alarm fiend.—[Fireman's Standard.

THE COMMONPLACE.

A commonplace life, we say, and we sigh
But why should we sigh as we say?
The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky
Makes up the commonplace day.
The moon and the stars are commonplace things,
The flower that blooms and the bird that sings.
But sad were the world and dark our lot
If the flowers failed and the sun shone not,
And God, who sees each separate soul,
Out of commonplace lives makes his beautiful whole.
—Susan Coolidge.

A Curious Tea Case.

A correspondent of the British Medical Journal gives an account of the curious symptoms he experienced after drinking tea. He writes: "Whenever I take tea I go through a regular procession of events most distressing and stultifying. Shortly, these are as follows: Within fifteen minutes of walking movement seems to be essential. I feel hot about the scalp and knees. The former feels as if pepper were dusted all over it. Then I practically lose my sight and hearing and if in conversation cannot say more than 'yes' or 'no' because I am so faint and distress; then I lose the power of walking quite straight and choose the wall side of the path. Lastly I break out into a general perspiration, and within forty-five minutes I return to my senses." This correspondent adds that he has consulted many medical men, but has never found any means of relief.

A scene from "The Girl in the Taxi," with Bobby Barry at the Boston Theatre Aug. 21.

BOSTON THEATRE.

That hilarious, laugh-producing, gloom-banishing musical farce-comedy, "The Girl in the Taxi," with "Bobby" Barry, and its all star cast of mirth-makers, is announced for an engagement of only two weeks at the Boston Theatre beginning Monday evening, August 21st. "The Girl in the Taxi" has been seen here before, and the reception accorded it then, in the form of capacity audiences, augurs well for its visit this season.

During the past two years "The Girl in the Taxi" was presented by two all-star casts, which helped to score record runs in New York and Chicago and then toured the principal cities of the country spreading the fame of the French American farce from coast to coast. This season the play is "repeating" along the line of its former triumphs with a company composed of the pick of the two original star organizations, headed by that inimitable comedian, "Bobby" Barry.

HURRY UP!

All who wish to marry in a hurry, to get out a marriage license and rush off to the minister to listen to the marriage service, should make their plans this year. After Dec. 31 it will be impossible, in this state, to pop the question, see the town clerk, and then the minister without a pause between the filing of an application for a marriage license, and obtaining the permits to take to the minister. By a new law, approved by Gov. Foss last month, which takes effect Jan. 1, 1912, persons who intend to marry in this state shall, not less than five days before their marriage, cause notice to be filed in the office of the clerk or registrar of the city or town in which they dwell. The clerk is required to wait five days before the certificate is issued by him. There is a provision whereby a judge of probate or a district court justice can grant a certificate stating that the intended marriage be solemnized without delay.

CONGRESSIONAL RE-DISTRICTING.

One of the last and most important acts in the closing session of the Legislature was the appointment of the Congressional re-districting committee. Congressional re-districting takes place every 10 years. The committee comprises 14 representatives and 6 senators. President Treadaway named 4 Republicans and 2 Democrats, while Speaker Walker divided his appointments equally—7 Republicans and 7 Democrats. In giving the two parties equal power on his committee Speaker Walker said that he believed the duty which they would perform is judicial and not political and that he had been assured by all his appointees that they would not "gerrymander;" that is, they would not make "an arbitrary arrangement of political divisions of a state in disregard of the natural or proper boundaries as indicated by geography or position, made so as to give to one party an unfair advantage in elections."

WORK ON B. & M. CAR SHOPS.

Work is progressing rapidly in the preparation of the Boston & Maine car shop site at North Billerica for construction.

About a quarter of a mile of railroad track has been laid, and a gang of workmen is busily reducing the hills and filling in hollows preparatory to laying more tracks. A force of forty men is at work track laying and levelling. A steam shovel is in operation. The old Middlesex canal runs through the field and a emporary bridge of railroad ties has been built over the canal to carry the railroad track.

The contractor is clearing 600 acres of wood, lumber and brush. He has a gang of 35 men working under him.

MARDI-GRAS CARNIVAL.

Season at Revere Beach To End With Week of Festivity.

For the first time in the history of that most popular and splendidly managed resort, Revere Beach, the current season is to end with a genuine Mardi-Gras Carnival lasting one week. The Metropolitan Park Commission for the first time also, is assisting in the project, and has granted the most unusual privilege of permitting the great Carnival parade to pass along the Boulevard between the Winthrop Parkway and Revere street, a magnificent stretch of brilliantly lighted roadway four or five miles long. Because of this stamp of approval by the state authorities the Revere Beach Business Men's Association has gathered a large fund and is hustling to present to the almost countless thousands of the surrounding cities and towns a week of royal festivity, which will not only delight all visitors but be of such a character as to create a demand for its repetition every year.

The various electric and steam railroads landing passengers at Revere Beach are also concerned in the great success of the Carnival and special cars and trains will be run from many points.

The Carnival parade it is confidently asserted will be of dazzling brilliancy and of absorbing interest. While the details cannot yet be announced, there will be twelve magnificently decorated and finely illuminated historical floats, six bands of music, many foot features, gaily costumed groups of revelers, dancing girls, and all sorts of picturesque characters. Everything is promised to be of the best.

This great Carnival is scheduled for the five evenings beginning Labor Day, Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. There will be a different king and queen of the Carnival every night and prizes and special features securing constant public interest for the week.

WANT TOWN BUSINESS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

One of your correspondents last week said people liked to have matters of local interest written about in the STAR by citizens, and while this is undoubtedly true of the great majority there is a small minority which is always opposed to publicity and objects to truths being told if they hit their departments or committees. Why is it the STAR does not give us what is going on about important public matters? What is the Park Board doing on waterways? What is doing on grade crossing? What is doing on streets, sewers, water works, etc. Is the Board of Health alive? The Selectmen's meetings are the only ones you have any account of and that is not very full. The people want local news in a local paper.

CORE OF THE EARTH.

It May Be a Mass of Steel Some 5,580 Miles In Diameter.

Various conjectures have been made from time to time by geologists as to the possible condition of the center of the earth. One of the most popular impressions seems to be that the earth's center is a core, is a flaming furnace. At a meeting of the Seismological association at The Hague Professor Weichert asserted that his studies of the varying velocity of earthquake tremors passing through the interior of the globe have led him to the conclusion that the earth consists of a central core of iron or steel, about 5,580 miles in diameter, surrounded with a stony shell 930 miles in thickness. Between the outer solid rind and the inner layer of rock, covering the metallic core, he thinks there is a layer of liquid or plastic material, lying a little less than twenty miles below the surface of the earth.

Men sometimes dream of enormous wealth stored deep in the earth below the reach of miners, but experts now aver that there is little or no ground to believe that any valuable metallic deposits lie very deep in the earth's crust regardless of Professor Weichert's beliefs to the contrary. Such deposits, it is said, are made by underground waters, and owing to the pressure on the rocks at great depths the waters are confined to a shell near the surface. With few exceptions ore deposits become too lean to repay working below 3,000 feet. Nine mines in ten, taking the world as a whole, are poorer in the second thousand feet than in the first thousand, and poorer yet in the third thousand than in the second.—New York World.

To Stop Hiccoughs.

Simple cases of hiccough are often relieved by such measures as sucking ice or taking salt and vinegar, says the New York Medical Journal. Pulling the tongue forward and holding it for some time is an effective procedure. Sometimes obstinate hiccough is relieved when the patient is strong by having him hang with the arms extended and grasping some beam or pole, so that his feet do not touch the floor. With all the abdominal muscles tense, have him hold his breath as long as possible. Sneezing is very efficient in certain cases, since it is the exact opposite to hiccough, being a sudden expiratory act.

McSwiney's Gun.

Near Horn Head, County Donegal, Ireland, there is a hole in the rocks called McSwiney's gun. It is on the seacoast and is said to have connection with a cavern. When the north wind blows and the sea is at half flood the wind and the waves enter the cavern and send up jets of water from the "gun" to a height of more than 100 feet. The jets of water are accompanied by explosions which may be heard for miles.

More Worry.

"I didn't know you admired that official."

"I don't," replied the political manager.

"Then why do you insist on crediting him with a presidential boom?"

"Merely to make his life harder by giving him something more to worry about."—Exchange.

Be Slow to Indorse.

"A man should think before he speaks," said the prudent youth.

"Yes," replied Uncle Silas Stax. "And he should think a heap harder before he writes his name on the back of any sort of document."—Washington Star.

All Must Help.

A wise man who does not assist with his counsels, a rich man with his charity and a poor man with his labor are perfect nuisances in a commonwealth.—Swift.

When a Peanut Sprouts.

"Few persons are perhaps aware that a thing of beauty is a common peanut plant growing singly in a six or eight inch pot and grown indoors during the colder weather," said a florist. "Kept in a warm room or by the kitchen stove, a peanut kernel planted in a pot of loose mellow loam and only moderately moistened will soon germinate and grow up into a beautiful plant, extending its branches over the pot. The leaves close together like the leaves of a hook on the approach of night or when a shower begins to fall upon them. The plant bears tiny yellow flowers. There is nothing else just like it."

Lengthy and Monotonous.

One of the most curious contracts entered into by an operatic artist was that agreed to by Farinelli. When he visited Spain, Philip V. was suffering from mental depression, from which nothing aroused him until the arrival of Farinelli. The queen was so delighted to secure her royal spouse once more interested that she engaged Farinelli at a salary of $10,000 to remain in Madrid. This he did, singing the same four songs to the king every night for ten years.

An Old Smallpox Cure.

The following primitive "cure" for smallpox was discovered by the Leyhonstone (England) guardians in one of their registers for the year 1740: "Take thirty to forty dive toods and burn them to cinders in a new pot, then crush into a fine black powder. Dose for smallpox, three ounces."

He Lumped It.

"My coffee is not quite sweet enough," remarked Sue.

"Well, if you don't like it I suppose you'll have to lump it," said she, with a smile, passing the loaf sugar his way.

A Curious Swiss Custom.

In one part of the canton of Ticino, Switzerland, a very quaint marriage ceremony prevails. The bridegroom dresses in his "Sunday best" and, accompanied by as many friends and relatives as he can muster for the fete, goes to claim his bride. Finding the door locked, he demands admittance. The inmates ask him his business, and he solicits the hand of his chosen maiden. If his answer is deemed satisfactory he is successively introduced to a number of matrons and maids, some perhaps deformed and others old and ugly. Then he is presented to some large dolls, all of whom he rejects with scorn amid general merriment. The bridegroom, whose temper is sometimes sorely tried, is then informed that his lady-love is absent and he is invited to come in and see for himself. He enters and searches from room to room until he finds her in her bridal dress ready to go to church. Then all his anxiety is at an end, and the nuptials are duly celebrated.

The Man Guessed Right.

In a church at Amsterdam there is a very ancient funeral monument of white marble on which are engraved a pair of slippers of a very singular kind with this inscription, "Effen Nyt," which means "exactly," and the story of this singularity is this: A man who was very rich, but who was a boon vivant, took it into his head that he was to live a certain number of years and no longer. Under the impression of this idea he calculated that if he spent so much a year his estate and his life would expire together. It happened that he was not mistaken in either of his calculations; he died precisely at that time which he had proposed to himself in fancy and had even brought his fortune to such a point that after the paying of his debts he had nothing left but a pair of slippers. His relations buried him in a creditable manner and had the slippers carved on his tomb with the above singular advice.—Tales and Anecdotes.

FEED THE HUNGRY.

When Christ fed the multitude, you know, he did not give any lecture or precede it with homilies. He just fed the hungry, you remember. I think that is very significant, and I believe that when people are in need they should be lifted out of their condition.—Mrs. Russell Sage.

SWITCHED THEIR VOTES.

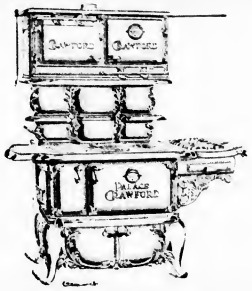

The Incident That Won Tom Corwin's First Fight For Congress.

"When I saw the oil painting of Tom Corwin in the treasury," said an Ohio man, "I could not but recall the story told in Corwin's old home of Lebanon of how he won his first election to congress. He was a young man and already noted as an orator, but he had a hard, uphill and little encouragement for election. He was making his tour of the counties and one night stopped at the double cabin of a farmer known to be a very fervent advocate of political policies of the opposition. Corwin talked politics energetically with the old man and his sons before bedtime, but had little hope of winning a single vote in the household. In the morning the old man took Corwin outside and announced that every voter in the family would be for him on election day. This astonished and delighted Corwin, who could not help but ask why the sudden change of heart.

"The old man told how the opposition candidate had stopped at his house one night the week before and how the host and wife had watched the candidate go to bed. To their disgust, he actually put on a nightgown like those worn by a woman. This disgusted the rugged old pioneer. Then Corwin was told how the old farmer and his wife had watched him go to bed, and as he had not bothered about a nightie they determined he was not taken to frills. Corwin could see the humor of the incident, and in every succeeding speech he told that nightshirt story on the other candidate, holding him up to scorn. The result was a victory for Corwin, and he owed it all to that story of a shirt."—Washington Post.

POLITICAL SLATE MAKERS

Governor Foss Charged With Fixing Up S'ate Ticket

CHAIRMAN McDONALD DENIES

Hisgen as a Candidate For Democratic Nomination—Appointment of Macleod Condemned by Springfield Republican—Foss' Charge of State Stealing Challenged

There has been a good deal of Democratic resentment over the attempt charged to Governor Foss to name the state ticket in anticipation of the primaries. It has been well known that last year Governor Foss practically dictated the entire state ticket. He thought he knew the strongest men for the different positions on the ticket and his Democratic friends say that he named this ticket in self defense. This year a good many of the Democratic leaders imagined that the state-wide primary act had done away with the personal selection of a state ticket. Government by the people was one of the planks of the Democratic platform last fall and the rank and file of the party took it seriously. It has to be admitted, however, that the Democratic politicians fully expected that they would be able to run things in the future as they had in the past, state-wide primary acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

Governor Foss paid most of the bills for the campaign last year and undoubtedly expects to do the same again. He will have to do it, anyway. In view of that fact his friends say he has a right to name the rest of the state ticket and that he is only exercising that right at the present time. Government by the people is a fine slogan with which to run a campaign, but Democratic politicians do not intend to allow the control of the party to pass from the hands of the machine.

Richardson Rebels Against Domination

Former Collector of the Port of Gloucester Frank Richardson, who happens to be a resident of the little town of Essex, is said to have felt very much stirred when he learned what Mr. Foss was trying to do. Mr. Richardson is one of the old Democratic war horses and held office under President Cleveland. He has always believed in the practice as well as the theory of government by the people and when he saw what Mr. Foss was doing, he began to take very strong ground. He had hardly got warmed up, however, before Governor Foss announced that a member on the board of assistance for all. The politicians say that the governor thought he had to show a little action on the part of Mr. Richardson and others who want to pass out the patronage to the faithful who were getting weary of waiting for jobs. Richardson, however, rather surprised the politicians by declining to accept the appointment. He is not dependent on party patronage, but likes to be able to loyally support the ticket with a clear conscience.

Governor Foss and Cassidy

It is said that the governor does not care to have Thomas F. Cassidy of Adams, who ran with him last fall as the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, renominated, although it has been generally admitted that Cassidy made a good run. The politicians say that Mr. Foss prefers Ex-Representative Walsh of Clinton as his running mate. Democratic politicians say that it will not be difficult to get the Democratic masse to vote for any ticket they may select at the primaries in September. Those who have a pretty thorough knowledge of the temper of the Democratic rank and file coincide with what these men say.

Chairman John F. McDonald of the Democratic state committee denies all charges of slate fixing by his committee, or by anybody else. Nevertheless, all the Boston newspapers, which know what is going on as well as the politicians themselves, repeat that the slate is made up, and print the names.

Thus far but little is heard about Boston regarding the candidacy of Thomas L. Hisgen for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Mr. Hisgen is quoted as saying that he is in the field, and that if he does not receive the nomination he will run as an independent candidate. He made a big run as a candidate of the Independence League, and his political friends say he will get many votes for the nomination. No one, however, in the Boston end of the state believes he will be able to defeat Governor Foss.

The appointment of Clifford Macleod, Knowledge of the position, has caused general regret, especially in view of the fact that Governor Foss has not thus far satisfied the lawyers as a body of his ability or desire to keep the courts up to their past standard of excellence.

Minard and Chairman Macleod

At the meeting of the executive council the name of Asa R. Minard of to be supervisor of loan agencies under the loan shark law, was withdrawn. Mr. Minard stated that he had learned the council would refuse to confirm him, for which reason he withdrew his name.

The governor has paid a political debt by the appointment of Frederick J. Macleod to be a member of the Massachusetts railroad commission in place of Walter Perley Hall, who has been made a superior court judge. The friends of the governor say that Mr. Macleod, as chairman of the Democratic state committee during the two years when Mr. Foss was first a candidate for lieutenant governor and then a candidate for governor, put Mr. Foss under heavy obligations by the effective work he did for the Democratic state ticket. Macleod was extremely anxious to go to the superor court bench and was not entirely satisfied to be placed on the railroad commission. However, as that seemed to be the best he could get he decided to accept and the appointment was made. Republicans are prone to say that if a Republican governor had appointed a chairman of the Republican state committee to a responsible position of that sort he would have been attacked by every newspaper in Massachusetts; nevertheless, they call attention to the fact that very little criticism of Governor Foss has been made by the press, although the Springfield Republican condemned it sharply. It is felt that Republicans are held to a higher standard of official conduct than Democrats, although it is difficult to see the justice of such discrimination.

Governor Foss and His Charges

Governor Foss is living up to his reputation for irresponsibility in a startling manner. He has given to a newspaper an interview in which he makes some astonishing charges entirely of a general nature and when his statements are challenged he declines to furnish specifications. In this interview he said among other things: "If I had not been elected, or if somebody who would do what I am doing had not been elected, Massachusetts would soon have been in the mire of a great scandal. The state was fast going to the bow-wows. As a result of my election and my administration the state has been halted in its travel along the wrong road and has been led back to the right road. And we are going to keep it there. There isn't the slightest doubt in my mind that a lot of the state's money has not only been wasted but been stolen. Stolen not necessarily by the men who were appointed or employed to look out for the state's interest, but under their noses."

Lieutenant Governor Frothingham immediately replied to Governor Foss' statement that he proposed to make it good or withdraw it. He declared the governor would do the latter. "As for the Republican Governor Foss mentions," he said, "I know of no case where any money has been stolen, and I challenge him to produce one. I want to say that as a citizen of Massachusetts I resent this malicious effort to cast a slur."

Up to date Governor Foss has been as mum as an oyster as to the particular stealing which he declares is going on. Politicians generally expect that this is the kind of a mud-slinging campaign which the Democrats are to run this fall.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

III.—The Physical Strain of Flight

[Copyright, 1910, by Henry M. Neely. Copyright in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.]

MAN has invented nothing that looks so graceful and so easy as an aeroplane in flight. Skimming overhead, with broad, outstretched wings and with no effort apparent in any part, so far as the beholders can see, the aviator sitting calmly in his seat seemingly doing nothing, but enjoying himself, this modern air craft looks to be the very acme of comfort, of ease of exhilaration.

Yet a few hours in the air in an aeroplane is the hardest day's work that any man can do.

What is there hard about it? What is there for an aviator to do or to endure that should make it comparable to labor? The man who races an automobile knows something of this strain. But he has only one method of steering to engage his attention. He sends his machine to right or left and that is all there is to it. The aviator must constantly be in control of three sets of apparatus, and a momentary neglect of any one of the three means wreck. He must steer up and down, to right or left, and must keep his horizontal balance in the air.

Three Kinds of Strain In Flying.

Roughly, the strain of flying can be divided into three kinds—the physical, the mental and the nervous. With the man who attempts to break any of the edge it makes the machine rise on that side, and the mechanism at the same time pulls up the rear edge of the left plane, thus lessening the impact on that side and causing it to fall. It is in this way that the aviator controls his balance, warping his wings as he dips one way or the other and keeping himself on an even keel. After he has become thoroughly experienced he learns to balance without warping under ordinary conditions, for it has been found that steering the machine toward the high side brings it again to the horizontal. Then he uses the warping devices only in emergencies.

On this day at Belmont park the wind was nasty and gusty, and I was in trouble at the very start. The extremely small breadth of the planes, I found, gave me practically no horizontal support, and, though I kept steering first to one side and then to the other as the machine careened over dangerously, I found that this simple method of righting my balance would not suffice. I had to keep warping my wings to their utmost limit, and not for one moment did this necessity cease.

In the seven laps of the course that I made I cannot tell how many times I felt that I was turning over in the air. Almost momentarily I felt as though I must go crashing to the ground below, for try as I did I could not get an even balance on the little planes for any length of time.

It was a totally new experience for me, and I regretted more than once to brace myself up to pass the scrutiny of the onlookers about the hangars.

In this case the entire breakdown was the result of nervous strain. Yet flying can impose great physical strain without reference to nerves or mind. Those who go in for endurance records are subject to this, and those of us who have made climbing for height especially know the terrors of physical fatigue which is purely muscular, but which has the mental and nervous element added to it.

Strain of Endurance Flights.

I have seen men crawl down from their aeroplanes after a long flight and have seen their friends rush up to them to shake hands in congratulation for a noteworthy feat. And I have seen the hand dropped at once, for it could not respond to the grasp that was given it. There was no life in it. It hung limp, inert, powerless and feelingless from the fatigue of gripping a lever with little or no change of position for so long a time.

Yet endurance flights such as those made for the Michelin trophy and prize are flown over good courses, clearly marked by pylons or posts, and almost invariably over good grounds that provide safe landing places at any time. In this way there is as little as possible of nervous and mental strain. Otherwise such flights as that of Henri Farman, who stayed up over eight hours, would be impossible.

When these long flights are made across country the nerve and mind enter into the equation against the man. He faces uneven and probably broken land unfitted for a quick descent if anything goes wrong, and he frequently flies across country that is unfamiliar to him, and that keeps him in a mental uncertainty that adds a great deal to the physical fatigue he has to suffer.

The Greatest Strain of All.

Those of us who are foolish enough to climb for height have all of these torments infinitely multiplied, and, added to them, we face conditions that are not met with in the ordinary work closer to the ground.

To most people the strain of altitude climbing appears to be only a matter of enduring the rarefied air met with a couple of miles above the earth, but the big torture comes with the sudden descent—with the rapid change of pressures as we drop a thousand feet a minute or more—and this is indeed a torture long to be remembered.

In the early days of my altitude climbing, when I set the World's record at Lanark, Scotland, I kept fighting for each extra inch as long as there was any strength or endurance left in me. I struggled at the top until it was useless to struggle any longer, and then, with all my strength gone, there was nothing for it but to fall back to earth with my aeroplane pointed as sharply toward the earth as safety would allow.

When the Head Feels Like Bursting.

I came down like a thunderbolt. As the descent began the pressure began to change rapidly with my entering into heavier and heavier strata of air, and I began to feel pains in my head and ears. These pains got worse with every second of the descent, and when I was within hailing distance of the earth I felt as though something inside my head would surely burst with the awful tightening about my ears and temples. I can appreciate now the tortures suffered by medieval martyrs who had bands of iron gradually tightened about their heads. The recollection of that descent at Lanark makes me sympathize with them profoundly.

At Philadelphia last November I rose more than 3,000 feet higher than at Lanark and I fell faster on my descent to earth, but while my sufferings were intense they were not so great as in Scotland, for I had been told of a method of counteracting the increasing pressure and used it with great success. I had shortly before this been talking to Clifford B. Harmon about some of his ballooning experiences and had asked him if he had ever suffered during rapid descents as I did at Lanark.

"I did once frequently in my early days," said Harmon, "but Captain Baldwin told me a way to avoid it."

"What is that?" I asked.

"Swallow—swallow—instantly," said Harmon.

So on this plunge from the clouds above Philadelphia, when my nerves were racked to pieces and my physical faculties were utterly worn out, I suddenly thought of this scheme with the pressure becoming painful on my ears, and the relief was tremendous.

Effect of an Hour In the Air.

An altitude flight of this kind does not last long according to the clock of the watch. It seems ages. But the barograph record for my last trial, 9,807 feet, showed that it took me just nine and fifty minutes to reach the maximum altitude. It could not have taken more than four or five minutes to descend, but my plunge was so rapid that the ink could not flow fast enough from the stylo of the instrument to record, so I cannot tell exactly.

Assuming that the total flight from the time of starting to the time of landing occupied one hour, the physical strain of such work can be imagined when I say that I started in fine condition, fresh and feeling strong and equal to anything, yet when I landed in that empty field at Oreland, fourteen miles away from my starting point, I was so utterly worn out and helpless that I could not climb out of my machine for several minutes.

The next time any of my readers sees an aeroplane soaring gracefully aloft let him remember these things and be satisfied to stay comfortably on the ground until flying is made a good deal easier and a vast deal safer than it is today.

J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL AND HIS BLERIOT MONOPLANE.

records established today these three become in a great measure interdependent and inseparable. I mean by that that when a man's brain becomes tired his body becomes tired with it, and that when his nerves are shattered his body and brain give way too.

During the trials for the Gordon Bennett cup race at the Belmont park meet, near New York, last October, I had had built for my Blériot a special set of racing wings. They were the smallest surfaces it was possible to fly with even at the maximum speed, and were made with as little span from tip to tip as was absolutely necessary, so that there should be the smallest conceivable head resistance when the machine was in motion.

On the day when the Gordon Bennett trials took place I had had these little wings put on. I had never flown with them, but I know that it would be useless with the regulation sized wings to try to compete against the two 100 horsepower engines that were entered because mine was only a fifty horsepower. So I had to trust to luck that everything would go right.

The Greatest Danger In Flying.

In flying an aeroplane the greatest danger comes from the constant tendency of the machine to tip over to one side or the other. A gust of wind, a movement of the aviator's body—anything and everything tends to throw it off its balance, and the minute it begins to tip downward on one side it must be righted.

There are two ways of doing this. A mechanism is provided by which the rear edges of the ends of the planes can be pulled down a few inches, thus offering on that side where this depressing or "warping" is done a greater impact against the air and consequently developing a greater lifting power. When the right wing is "warped" or pulled down at its rear that I had not got these new planes in time to test them out and become accustomed to their vagaries.

Demoralized by the Strain.

The mental and nervous strain of this flight was totally demoralizing. There was not a moment of certainty in it, except the certainty of demolition if I relaxed my vigilance for an instant, and with this thought uppermost it was only natural that there should be a reflex action that had its physical effect, and I found myself grasping my steering post with such a tension that it became painful to the finger tips.

It was like learning to fly all over again, and I was the sole representative of my native country in the great test competition in the history of aviation. My position might have struck me as pathetic had it not been so dangerous.

For three circuits of the course I fought that stubborn aeroplane, determined to conquer it and to make as good a showing in the result as possible. Then I felt the strain begin to tell on my nerves. I found myself warping when there was no need for it. My arms jumped the steering post about in a way that threatened destruction, and I fancied the Blériot was bucking when she was on an even keel.

Again I went around the course, alert-ing through the air at a speed that would have left nothing but splinters if I had struck the ground, and again the strain of those unfamiliar and contemptuous little wings in rested its evil effects upon mind, body and nerves. Soon I found my brain absolutely refusing to work, my nerves jumping like mad and my arms, shoulders, legs and back aching as though I had been beaten with a club.

Finally I came down thoroughly tired out in every faculty and almost unable to walk, though I did manage

Jeremiah Cast Into Prison. Jer. xxxvii.

Golden Text—Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Matt. v:11.

(1.) Verses 1-2—When sin is working wreck and ruin, how do you explain that men keep on in their disobedience to God, as Zedekiah did?

(2.) How did Zedekiah become king of Judah?

(3.) What if any relation was Zedekiah to the king of Babylon. (See 2 Kings xxiv:17.)

(4.) What makes people disregard one whom they believe to be a true prophet, as many of these Jews did Jeremiah?

5.) Verses 3-4 — Jerusalem was now besieged with a powerful army, and Zedekiah in fear sent to ask Jeremiah to pray to God for them; was there merit or demerit, in this request from such a man? Why?

(6.) Does God answer the prayers of the wicked for the success of their projects, or the prayers of good people in their behalf?

(7.) How should a man be treated who is constantly pointing out national sins, and forecasting their disastrous consequences? Is he a traitor or a patriot?

(8.) Verses 5-10—Zedekiah in spite of his oath to the king of Babylon had rebelled against him, and made a league with the king of Egypt; what did God say through Jeremiah should be the result?

(9.) What is the demerit of the sin to break an oath or betray a trust?

(10.) What reason is there to believe that there comes a time, in the life of an individual, when his fate is sealed and his doom certain?

(11.) Verse 11—The Chaldean king of Babylon raised the siege of Jerusalem, so that Pharaoh's army of relief returned to Egypt, possibly driven back by the Chaldeans. This gave Jerusalem a short respite. What should the wicked do while God withholds his judgments?

(12.) Verses 12-14—What was the probable object of Jeremiah in leaving Jerusalem, now he had the opportunity?

(13.) Was there any ground at all for accusing Jeremiah of being a traitor? (See chap. 38.)

(14.) Which is generally the worse, "a lie out of whole cloth" or one based upon facts perverted?

(15.) Verses 15-16—Why in view of God's almighty power does He permit his servants to suffer for their very faithfulness?

(16.) Verse 17—Likely by this time the Chaldean army had relieved the city, and then Zedekiah, the king, sent Jeremiah out of prison to consult him. Is it a usual thing for bad men when in prosperity to reject good people, and when in adversity consult them, or ask their prayers? Give your reasons.

(17.) Jeremiah told the king the blunt truth. Who should we always tell that with sinners?

(18.) Verses 19-21 — Does a good man ever get where he may not suffer hunger or cold, or other bodily discomforts, or is he does not desire help upon terms as do other men? [illegible] one of the questions that may be considered in writing by members of the class.)

knitted hosiery that was comfortable.

And why? Because they started at the toe, and knit round after round, narrowing at the ankle, turning the heel, widening the leg—making a fashioned hose, without a seam.

Nowadays, the "fashioned" hose is often shaped with a seam. True, the stocking is knitted, but then it is sewed to shape. Other hosiery is knit with straight legs, which is well enough for boys and girls. But is knitted for women exclusively. It is knitted on thousands of machines which start at the toe (as grandmother did). No other hosiery concern uses such machines or knits in this manner. Burson Hosiery is fashioned in the knitting, without a seam. In effect, it is a "grandmother's stocking," but finer and more comfortable, evenly elastic, and with double feet below the ankle, giving extra wear and comfort. Cost? No more than ordinary hosiery.

MR. CLIFFORD A. WATSON.
New Teacher and Athletic Instructor at High School.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Timely Information at Eve of School Opening.

Cooking Classes.

The classes in cooking will be organized at the beginning of the school year. They are open to all girls residing in town between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one, whether in school or not. Sections will be arranged to recite in the morning, in the afternoon and in the evening, respectively, so that girls may take this work at the most convenient time for each one. There will also be classes in advanced cooking for those who have had considerable practical experience or who have previously studied the subject in school. The names of those not in school, who may wish to study cooking should be sent or telephoned to the Superintendent before September sixth. Each such pupil should state whether she has had any previous instruction in the subject and on what days and at what time she can most conveniently attend.

Instruction in cooking was added to the High school courses of study last year, and care was taken to furnish an adequate equipment and a competent teacher. As a result the work of the classes was uniformly successful. The equipment is modeled after that found in the Practical Arts High School, Boston, with some improvements. This provides a gas range and a work table with individual utensils for each four pupils, a coal stove for the entire class, cupboards, ice chest, etc. The intention is to provide so that each member of the class shall, as a rule, do all the work for each recipe and this theory has been followed in practice. In this way the instruction is made thorough and practical.

The telephones in the various school buildings are for service. Primarily they were installed to render more efficient the administration of the school department and under this head it is expected that parents will not hesitate to call up principals and teachers and to talk with them about the school work. It will, however, be noted that a telephone call during school hours interrupts recitations and that except for imperative reasons it is better to call up a teacher before school, at recess, or immediately at the close of school. The school telephones have the limited service, hence pupils will be required to pay three cents each for local calls and the toll charges for calls out of the district.

High School Examinations.

Examinations to remove conditions will begin in the High school building on Tuesday, September, 5 1911, at 9 a. m. The program showing subjects and rooms will be published in next week's issue of the STAR. Pupils who wish to try examinations to make up work in which they failed during the school year 1910-1911, must bring a statement showing that the subject has been regularly studied during the summer.

Principal Wixom will be in his office in the High school on and after Monday, August 28, 1911. Any question about high school matters may be referred to him. By telephone he may be reached as follows: office 649W; residence, 658W.

No School Signal.

Pupils and parents may be interested in a brief restatement of the conditions under which the no school signal may be expected.

Under the rules of the School Committee the no school signal, 333 sounded three times, may be given by the fire bell and whistle under the direction of the Superintendent of Schools when in his judgement it seems at 7.45 a. m. or 12.45 p. m. extremely probable that the weather during the following forty minutes in the morning and twenty-five minutes in the afternoon will be so inclement as to involve danger to the health of those exposed to it. It may well be noted that with New England's proverbially fickle climate it is certain that conditions will occasionally change between 7.45 a. m., when the decision as to the signal must be reached, and 8.30 a. m. when the pupils are due in school, so much that the action taken may seem unwise. It may also be remembered that the signal is given to protect pupils while they are on their way to school, that its justification rests in the weather at that time, between 7.50 a. m. and 8.30 a. m., and 12.50 p. m. and 1.15 p. m., and that the weather after the opening of school is not important in this connection.

High School.

At a recent meeting of the School Committee, it was voted that the following regulations for High school pupils be in effect after September first, 1911:

1. Pupils shall not enter classes in subjects requiring a total of more than twenty recitation hours each week except with the approval of the High school principal.

2. The High school principal will issue a certificate of admission to college to graduates of the High school, or a certificate of admission to college entrance examinations to such pupils as have attained a standing of 85 per cent. in the required subjects, and to such other pupils as are in his judgement properly qualified.

3. To those pupils who shall have completed a course of study aggregating 64 diploma points equivalent in the judgment of the High school Principal to the NASH—SYMMES.

The wedding of Mr. Curtis W. Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Nash of Wildwood street, and Miss Gertrude L. Symmes, daughter of Mrs. Walter F. Symmes, took place on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother on Main street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William I. Lawrance, President of the Unitarian Sunday School Association, a former pastor of the couple. Mr. Harold C. Haskell of Brookline was best man, and Miss Dorothy Nash, sister of the groom, was maid of honor.

The residence was decorated for the ceremony with laurel, golden rod and hydrangeas. A reception followed the ceremony, the newly married couple were assisted in receiving by their parents. The groom is treasurer of the Calumet Club and both he and his bride are prominently known among the town's young people. Following their wedding trip they will take up their residence in Winchester.

OUT OF HANDS OF SELECTMEN.

Winchester, August 22, 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Regarding the letter in your last week's issue, on the proposed change in the street lines on Cambridge street, at the Country Club, written by Mr. A. H. Russell, the matter is now in the hands of the County Commissioners, the Selectmen having nothing further to do with it, except to carry out the decision of the Commissioners, which will be given on September 15th.

Board of Selectmen, by J. P. Boutwell, Chairman.

MR. OREN C. SANBORN'S NEW LAUNCH.

A beautiful 50 foot speed cruiser, designed by F. D. Lawley for Mr. Oren C. Sanborn of this town was launched last Tuesday at the Lawley boat yard.

The boat is planked with mahogany and with deck structures, is expected to be one of the fastest of her type yet and it is anticipated she will make an easy 20 miles an hour.

The Helen E. is equipped with two 60 horse power motors, and will be used locally to replace the power cruiser of the same name which Mr. Sanborn used extensively last season.

WINCHESTER PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Winchester Private School will re-open Wed., Sept. 20, 1911. The school is for boys and girls from five to fifteen years of age. Pupils are prepared to enter grades in the Public schools or other private schools. The aim of the school is individual attention.

Parents desiring further particulars will please communicate with the principal, Miss Ella M. Emerson, A. B., 28 Church street. Tel 623-W.

FISHING CASES DISMISSED.

Board Had No Authority to Make Rules and Regulations.

In the Fourth District Court of Eastern Middlesex held at Woburn yesterday morning, Judge Johnson dismissed the complaint against Arthur E. Whittney, of Winchester, charging him with fishing in the North Reservoir in violation of a regulation of the State Board of Health. The case was heard by Judge Johnson last week and was taken under advisement by him until yesterday. At the trial it was shown by the defendant that the Reservoirs are artificial ponds, constructed under special enactment of the Legislature, and that the exclusive control of fisheries in such ponds is by Statute, expressly conferred upon their proprietors. Counsel to the defendant argued that rules and regulations governing fishing in these Reservoirs could only be made by the Town of Winchester, that the only interest the State Board of Health had in the matter was to see that such fishing as the Town authorized did not pollute the waters of the Reservoirs, that the rules adopted by that Board in April 1909 were made by it in excess of its authority, and that a violation thereof constituted no offence for which a prosecution might be maintained.

The action of the Court in dismissing the complaint against Mr. Whitney confirms the contention of the defendant that the regulation of fishing in Winchester Reservoirs is a matter within the control of that Town, and outside the jurisdiction of the State Board of Health.

Mr. Phillip Coyle of Boston was counsel for Mr. Whitney and conducted the case with much vigor and exhibited much knowledge of the law on the subject at issue.

The case was in reality a test case as several other men had been arrested for the same offence the outcome of their cases depending on the verdict reached in the case of Mr. Whitney.

A WINCHESTER CANDIDATE FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

The nomination papers endorsing Winfield F. Prime of Winchester as a candidate for the Legislature have been circulated by his friends in Winchester and West Medford, and have received in each place more than the requisite number of signatures to entitle his name to a place on the ballot for the primaries to be held September 26, 1911.

Among his endorsers in Winchester are:

Hon. Fred Joy
George L. Huntress
George A. Fernald
Jere A. Downs
George W. Blanchard
Edward H. Stone
George B. Hayward
George H. Hicks
Charles T. Main
Henry Nickerson
William M. Belcher
Daniel B. Badger
Marshall W. Jones
Eben Caldwell
Freeland E. Hovey
Fred B. Jordan
Daniel W. Pratt
George S. Littlefield
George S. Cabot
Edgar J. Rich
George A. Barron
Charles A. Gleason
Vincent Farnsworth
Joseph T. Clark
Charles S. Tenney

Under the "direct nomination law" passed this year it becomes necessary for the voters of each party to hold practically a preliminary election within the party six weeks prior to the state election, the nominations to be made without the aid of political committees or delegates.

This law was enacted for the purpose of enabling the voters themselves to nominate by direct vote, and was intended to eliminate the long existing evil of nominations being made through the manipulations of ward and town committees, and trafficking by delegates to conventions.

Taking into consideration the season of the year, the fact that nomination papers must be filed on or before August 26, taken in connection with the fact that Mr. Pond did not until Thursday of last week decide he would not make a contest for the office, Mr. Fay of West Medford having for some weeks been furthering his own canvas, somewhat reduced the opportunities for obtaining on short notice the above list of signers the personnel of which Mr. Prime regards as highly flattering, particularly as he has been out of the state most of the month, paying no attention to political campaigns.

It must be conceded, after reading the above list of names, and it is believed will be demonstrated by an overwhelming vote at the caucuses or primaries, September 26, that the statement industriously circulated in certain quarters to the effect that "Winchester has no candidate in opposition to Mr. Fay of Medford" was a trifle premature.

It is to be hoped that there is no occasion or desire to indulge in any personalities in this contest. The present representative from West Medford, who seeks a third term in violation of all precedents in this district, at a time when it was generally understood that Winchester was entitled to name the representative, has undoubtedly served his district and party faithfully; but that he has performed any stupendous feats in legislation, or that he demonstrated any pre-eminent or conspicuous ability, causing him to tower above all his predecessors in the office, is not generally admitted by the voters of Winchester.

Mr. Prime is a lawyer who has been in practice for twenty-five years, has been a tax payer in Winchester for fourteen years, and, although he has never sought or held office in this town, has been a close student of public questions and the needs of the town.

He served in the Legislature of 1890 as one of its youngest members, while he was a resident of Charlestown where he was born, and, if elected to the House of 1912, will bring to the office all the experience which should be expected of a trained legislator.

COMING EVENTS.

Aug 26, Saturday. Band Concert on Manchester Field by Calderwood's Cambridge Cadet Band from 3.30 to 5.30 p. m.

August 26, Saturday. Garden Party on the grounds of St. Mary's rectory.

BASE BALL.

August 26, Saturday. On Manchester Field at 3.30 p. m., Winchester vs Bennett A. A. of Somerville.

MRS. FRANK W. WINN.

The passing of Mrs. Laura Mabelle Winn removed one of the best known club and society women in Winchester. She died at her home on Euclid avenue Tuesday afternoon. Arrangements for the funeral have been completed, and services will be held at her late residence on Saturday, Aug. 26, at two p. m. Interment will be at Wildwood Cemetery.

The death of Mrs. Winn came as a severe blow to her many friends as her illness was not generally thought to be fatal, though the most tender care was given her and her own good spirits and hopeful temperament seemed to promise improvement. As the days went by, it soon became apparent that she was beyond medical skill and she failed rapidly. Her taking away removes one of the best beloved of the young matrons of Winchester and Boston society. A woman whose charm of manner and disposition endeared her to all who knew her. A brilliant future lay before her as she had a voice of rare quality and had been training preparatory to making her debut this winter in Grand Opera. She was a promising pupil of Oscar Saenger of New York. Those who had been privileged to hear her sing at private recitals were enthusiastic in their praise of her purity of tone and wonderful range. Her taking away is a great loss to the musical world.

Mrs. Winn was always active and efficient in philanthropic and benevolent work. She was a charter member of the "Junior Charity Club" an organization of young society women in Boston which helps the sick and needy. She had long been a member of the Woman's Charity Club, the First Congregational Church of this town and other organizations, engaged in works of charity and education. She was ever ready to assist with her money or her voice any cause in the interest of humanity and to aid the unfortunate.

In her home she was an ideal wife and mother, ministering with loving care and solicitude.

Mr. Winn and her two little daughters will miss her cheerful presence, and great sympathy is expressed for them in their irreparable loss.

Laura Mabelle Crosby was born in Somerville in 1875 the only child of Jerome and Elva Stilphen Crosby who survive her. Great sympathy is expressed for them in their grief.

Besides her parents she leaves a husband Frank W. Winn a former selectman of this town, and two dear little daughters Ethelyn and Violet.

A faithful wife, a loving mother and devoted daughter has gone to her "Eternal Rest, but—
Her God has not forgotten her
For what he saw was best,
He has led her into sunshine,
He has taken her to rest.
And all her pain and sorrow,
Now her pilgrimage is o'er,
Will end in Heavenly blessedness and joy forevermore."

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

Through the office of Sewall E. Newman agreements have been signed for the sale of the property at No. 23 Everett avenue now owned by Mrs. Harriet E. Balch. The purchaser is buying for a home and will occupy some time during the month of September.

Through the same office the following rentals have been made the past month:—

Mrs. Margaret L. Weaber has hired the half house at the corner of Ridgeway and Washington street.

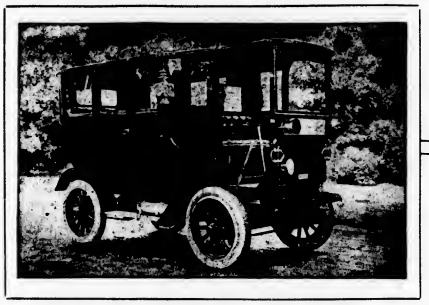

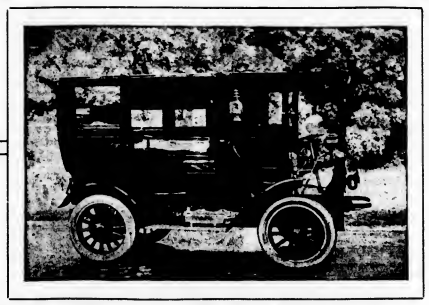

Mr. S. R. Reed of Lee, Higginson & Co. has leased the house No. 7 Glengarry for a period of years.

Mr. George E. Wolcott, of Claremont, N. H., has taken lease of No. 6 Wolcott terrace owned by Mr. Hill and will occupy next month.

BASE BALL.

Winchester will pay the Bennett A. A. of Somerville on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon at 3.30. This is considered a strong team of ball players, who are determined, if possible, to break the long chain of victories that have come to Winchester. The latter, however, will do their best to prevent any such thing happening. Come to the Field Saturday afternoon and witness a good game, and also root for the home team.

The local post office opened its postal savings branch on Saturday last and to date has nine accounts with deposits amounting to $196.00. It is hardly anticipated that the office here will be overburdened with accounts. The Italian residents appear to be the most interested in the bank. Certificates of deposits are given with an envelope to keep them in, the depositor being required to give information similar to that required by savings banks for record on a duplicate certificate kept at the post office.

Chief McIntosh is determined to stop fruit stealing and will prosecute every case that comes under his observation. The Marshall Symmes' orchards having been raided several times and in each case on Sunday. The Chief sent four plain clothes men there last Sunday to watch the orchards. Between five and six o'clock in the afternoon four young men entered the place and proceeded to help themselves to the fruit, when the officers pounced upon them and captured the group, who proved to be Italians from Boston. In court Monday they were each fined $5. The young men were sons of well to do Italian business men of Boston, one of whom has a large fruit store in that city. They evidently believed that stolen fruit was the sweetest and juciest. But they won't do it again.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has been sued for $15,000 in an action of tort by Elizabeth Fay of Winchester. She alleges that on January 19, 1911, while a passenger on a train at Winchester station, she was severely injured owing to negligence and carelessness on the part of the company.

The market gardeners Association of New England had their annual outing at the Point of Pines last Saturday. Among those from Winchester were Thomas Little, Geo. W. Parmigton, Edward Russell, George E. Pratt, G. H. Perkins and H. L. Cox. Base ball and other features made the day interesting.

Robert J. Bowes and William J. Casey, co-partners, doing business as Bowes & Company in Boston, have been sued for $15,000 in action of tort by Frank H. Frotton of Winchester, as administrator of the estate of Peter E. Frotton, late of Winchester. It is alleged that while Peter E. Fratton was in the St. James hotel in Boston, September 27, 1910, he received severe personal injuries from which he died later. The suit is brought for the benefit of a widow and three small children. Frotton also sues for $500 for the pain and anguish suffered by Peter Frotton.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS.

The following is a plain and simple form for selecting candidates for elective officers under the direct primary law:

The primaries are to be held Tuesday, Sept. 26, to be conducted same as elections. The nomination papers for state, county and district officers are filed with the registrars of voters in each town and city, and if found to be correct in every way, are forwarded to the Secretary of State. Names on nomination papers vary from 1,000 for Governor to 10 for representative. From these papers, tickets in the Australian ballot form are prepared, printed and forwarded to the proper custodians. The ballots for the several parties are to be used on a given date by the voters of each precinct, in the following manner:—Entering the polling place, each voter states what party ticket (Democratic, Republican or other,) he desires to use. This secures what is called party enrollment, and the designation by each voter will stand for five years unless in the meantime any voter desires to change his party affiliation. There is a legal form for changing party affiliation and authority for making it rests with the registrars of voters. After July 1, 1912, no voter may sign a nomination paper for any candidate other than a member of the party he named when enrolled. The last date on which nomination papers can be filed is five o'clock, p. m., August 26; with Secretary of State, August 29. The ballots cast at this primary election (excepting only votes for town committees) are sealed up and forwarded to the Secretary of State, where figures are tabulated. The result of the balloting being thus ascertained, the making up of the party tickets follows in the same manner as heretofore when nominations were made in caucuses or conventions. It remains to be seen how generally the voters will participate in this primary election, whether more will take all this trouble than have been in the habit of attending caucuses in the past. We certainly hope the change will demonstrate an improvement in this respect.

EIGHTH VICTORY.

Last Saturday the Winchester ball team won its eighth consecutive victory, and seems to be able to handle any proposition that comes before them. It should not for a minute be supposed that these victories are the result of inferior visiting teams, for this is not so, many of them being among the strongest amateur clubs in the state. Winchester is getting to be a base ball town of high standing, thanks to the energy and good judgment of manager LeDuc who his friends say was born with a ball and bat in his hands and who knows the game from A to Z. Each game sees a larger crowd of spectators who, are compelled to witness the games not under the best conditions, being obliged to stand. The cage at the rear of the catcher has accommodations for many, but only for a small fraction of those who attend. Perhaps at some time, stands may be erected on either side of the diamond, from which the people can witness the games in comfort. They would be appreciated most certainly.

Manager LeDuc receives many applications from out-of-town teams to play here and he finds it hard at times to make selections, because some of the them require more expense money than he can afford to pay. The games cost money, but the spectators have been fairly liberal.

Quick climatic changes try strong constitutions and cause, among other evils, nasal catarrh, a troublesome and offensive disease. Sneezing and snuffling, coughing and difficult breathing, and the drip, drip of the foul discharge into the throat—all are ended by Ely's Cream Balm. This honest remedy contains no cocaine, mercury, nor other harmful ingredient. The worst cases yield to treatment in a short time. All druggist, 50c., or mailed by Ely Bros., 50 Warren street, New York.

PUBLIC ELECTRIC CHARGING STATION

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A physician informs The Spectator that the market price of radium is $5,000,000 per ounce. This stupendous price, however, is not to be regarded as a feature of the prevailing high cost of living, but is due to the fact that there is not one tenth of a grain of pure radium available in all the world.

A man boarded a Reading car in Winchester square the other day and he carried a large unwrapped can. The Spectator noted that "canned eggs" were the inscription of what was contained in the can. What he was going to do with the canned hen fruit The Spectator does not know but The Spectator does know that a recent test of one teaspoonful of the delectable commodity contained 3,000,000 bacteria.

A man living on the outskirts of the town who was troubled with a multiplicity of grievous corns was assured by a certain party whom The Spectator might mention that soaking the feet in hot coal oil was a sovereign remedy for the painful excrescences. While the victim was near the fire upon which he was heating the kerosene the oil suddenly ignited and the blazing liquid was splashed on him with the result that he is now suffering from painful blisters. If the "practical joker" had his deserts he would be suffering in jail.

A man whom I know is in a serious condition from blood poisoning. It resulted from an insignificant pin scratch upon his finger. A solemn warning to "Despise not the day of small things."

A well known gentleman gives The Spectator to understand that he has kept a diary for over 25 years and he wants to see people go back to the good old fashion and keep diaries. He thinks that this is desirable, not only that interesting and perhaps important things may be recorded, but also because each man's life is of interest to himself and his people, because in every life there is a real story which is worth recording, even if no other eyes ever see the record, because it will help the children to express themselves, and to see that life as a whole and that every part is related to every other part. It is a good plea. And yet The Spectator doubts if many readers of The STAR are in accord with him. The day of the diary except for the recording of appointments and for keeping a record of a few important things, is largely gone. There are old people who are keeping such diaries and have done so for half a century. Some of the diaries are simply records of events, and a perusal of them will call to light many a forgotten thing. Some of them are the records of conduct, and a careful reading will show much shrewdness and often keen comment on things of the day and things of the spirit. But even with these examples before us we cannot bring ourselves to keep a diary. The is so much of things to be done, that there is no time to sit down and view it in a detached way. It is a pity that there is not time. For a person's life comes to view when it expresses itself. And undoubtedly many unsuspected qualities would become prominent if the habit of writing be faithfully followed. There would not be so many mistakes made either. And yet it is vain to urge the matter. Most diaries The Spectator has seen show about a month of entries, and then a blank. Life is so much more interesting than the record of it!

There is at least one perfect little lady living here in Winchester. Recently a neighbor invited her over to his house "to see a little stranger." The perfect little lady said she would like very much to see the "little stranger" but her mother told her never to speak to strangers without being introduced!

The Spectator has just read where a young woman brought suit against the owner of an automobile for damages for injuries sustained by her horse running away through fright at the noise caused by the "chugging" of the auto. She lost her case in the trial court but the Supreme Court of the State reversed the decision holding that the noise of an automobile is "nerve racking" and enough to frighten any horse. This judicial dictum is certain to receive hearty indorsement here in Winchester as elsewhere.

A musician points out to The Spectator that rag-time music is more productive of crime in this country than is liquor-drinking The Spectator has often observed that liquor-drinking is productive of rag time music.

As a sequel to a spanking administered with the maternal slipper a 14 year-old girl in a town not a dozen miles from Winchester had her mother hailed into court on a charge of assault. After hearing both sides the magistrate dismissed the case, probably considering that the age of 14 years is within the limit of childhood and that the injunction as to spoiling the child is not transcended by the substitution of the slipper from the rod.

No person likes work for its own sake. It's the reward that it brings which makes it attractive.

subjects, required and elective, for a diploma in the General Course, a General Course diploma shall be granted and thereafter any such pupil shall have completed the subjects, required and elective, for any one of the other courses, the diploma thus earned shall also be granted. The arrangement of the pupils' work under this plan shall be subject to the approval of the High school Principal.

New Teachers and Re-assignments.

Supervisor of Music. Miss Emma C. Diehm, a graduate of Milwaukee Normal School and of Crane Musical Institute, at Potsdam, New York, recently Supervisor of Music in Malone, New York, succeeds Mr. Albert Edmund Brown, who has been asked to take charge of the music department in Lowell Normal School.

Assistant Supervisor of Drawing. Miss Ruth B. Merriam, of Newton, instructor in Massachusetts Normal Art School, will assist Miss Margaret E. Hill, Supervisor of Drawing, and will be in particular charge of grades one to six, inclusive.

High School. Miss M. Frances Harriman returns after a years' leave of absence spent in study at Simmons College. She will assist in the science classes.

Mr. Clifford A. Watson takes the place of Mr. Amasa Bowles, who has gone into business. Mr. Watson is a graduate of St. Lawrence University and has had successful experience as a teacher and High school principal in De Kalb, New York. He comes to us with exceptional recommendations as an instructor and as a citizen. He will be in charge of the science department and of the boys' athletics.

In the Commercial Department, Miss Leila M. Whittemore succeeds Miss Margaret R. Brooks, who resigned to be married. Miss Whittemore is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College and of Kenyon's Commercial School. She has been highly successful in similar work in the High School at Walton, New York.

The other teachers in the High school will continue as for the school year 1910-1911. It is expected that the registration will be about 335 with thirteen teachers, of whom four are men.

Wadleigh. Miss Zina E. Prescott and Miss Bernice G. Oliver will succeed Miss Estella M. Sprague and Miss Mary J. Hills, who have leave of absence to study and on account of ill health, respectively. Miss Prescott and Miss Oliver are graduates of Farmington, Maine, Normal School. The former has been teaching in Dexter and the latter in Sanford, Maine.

Chapin. Miss Kathryn E. Mann, of Winchester, a graduate of Lowell Normal school, for the last five years in Peterboro, New Hampshire, will have the third grade in place of Miss Janet C. Hanson, transferred to the Gifford.

Gifford. Miss Hines will have the position held by Miss Estelle L. Symmes, who has resigned to be married.

Washington. Miss Mary H. Barr, at present principal and in charge of the fourth and fifth grades, will be principal and teach the sixth grade. Miss Edna V. Davis will have the fourth and fifth grades, consisting of the third and fourth; and Miss Mary O. Cowell, a graduate of the class of Miss Nason at Salem, will have the first and second grades, succeeding Miss Eliza H. Hawkins, recently married.

Miss Jessie M. Moulton has resigned as School Nurse to accept a higher salary in Dedham. It is expected that this position will be filled by Miss Ella J. MacDonald of Truro, Nova Scotia. Miss MacDonald is a graduate of the Massachusetts General Hospital, with a varied experience at settlement and dispensary work. She has been spending the summer in Europe and has made some inquiries as to the methods followed there in school medical inspection. All being well she will begin her duties on her return about September twentieth.

Notes.

The public schools will open on Wednesday, September 6, 1911, at 8.30 a. m. The daily sessions will be as follows: High school and Wadleigh Grammar school, one session, 8.30 a. m. to 1.30 p. m.; all other schools, two sessions, 8.30 a. m. to 11.45 a. m. and 1.15 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Grades have been assigned as follows: Wadleigh, seventh to ninth, inclusive; Chapin, Kindergarten to sixth, inclusive; Gifford, first to fifth, inclusive; Highland, first to fourth, inclusive; Mystic, first to third, inclusive; Prince, Kindergarten and sixth; Rumford, first to fourth, inclusive; Washington, first to sixth, inclusive; Wyman, first to sixth, inclusive. Pupils were notified in June as to the grades and buildings to which they will report.

To enter the Kindergarten, pupils must be four and one half years old before October first, and to enter the first grade, they must be five and one-half years old before October first, 1911. During the month of September pupils will be admitted by the teachers to grades to which they are promoted in June, but after October first pupils will be admitted only through the office of the Superintendent. Pupils from other towns or cities who wish to enter grades above the first will be admitted through the office of the Superintendent.

The law requires that all pupils shall have been vaccinated or shall have a certificate from a physician stating that the child is not a fit subject for vaccination. For those pupils who were in school during the school year just past, and who have been vaccinated, the fact is on record. Other pupils who have previously been certified as not fit subjects for vaccination must either be vaccinated or obtain new certificates for the school year 1911-1912.

It is particularly important that pupils should be in school on the first day, as lessons will be assigned and work will begin at once. Those who enter late will be obliged to make up lessons and will hinder the progress of their classes.

The office of the Superintendent of Schools is open every day from 8 a. m. to noon and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., Saturdays, from 9 a. m. to noon, and Mr. Herlon will be glad to consult with parents or pupils with reference to any school matters. Owing to the growth of the High school and the need of more class rooms, his office has been moved to the Prince School Building, corner of Church and School Streets, telephone 107W.

PLAYGROUND POPULAR.

Largest Attendance in History Last Week.

A gentleman visiting the playground on Manchester Field last week said, "I don't see the need for a playground in Winchester as there are no slums here." This may be true, as he says, that there are no slums in Winchester, nevertheless there are many families who have children who are not in a position to give them the watchful care so essential to their proper bringing up because the heads of the families are busily engaged as bread winners. These children deprived of paternal care would be wanderers about the streets but for this playground and the one on the Chapin school lot. The fact that about 1400 children visited Manchester Field last week and enjoyed themselves with the various apparatus shows how popular the playground is. But for this attraction it is safe to say that the greater part of these children would have been trying to find pleasure and recreation on the streets, and this nothing-to-do-ness is apt to breed mischief, and this in turn is apt to lead to something worse. Mr. Caldwell and Miss Rea, the attendants, find but little trouble in keeping order, as they are respected by the children who know that what they say must be obeyed. On Saturday afternoons Miss Homer, who has charge of the Chapin school playground, assists on Manchester Field. The care exercised by these watchful attendants is seen from the fact that not a single accident has happened during the entire summer.

The swings, the rings, the slide and the basket ball court are busy every minute that the playground is open to the children. The sand box is a feature that the little tots enjoy immensely, mothers or their nurses being present to oversee their charges and watch the contentment of the little ones. The swings for babies is also popular and always has a waiting list. That the playground grows in popularity is shown from the attendance of last week which was the largest in its history.

Next week Friday marks the closing of the playground for this season. On that day there will be a program arranged which will include a game of basket ball by the girls. Every Tuesday afternoon, there have been games of basket ball, and girls or thirteen years or thereabouts are invited to come and take part in the games.

The playground is a success, it grows in popularity and it is hoped that it will grow in a larger variety of apparatus.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Colonel Rossignol Mack Cleary in which he was ably assisted by the Weber Light Opera Company in Bedom at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in a new, sketch written by Mr. Ross entitled "Just Like a Woman." It was produced for the first time in New York last week and made one of the biggest successes of the season, so far as vaudeville was concerned, for the Boston House.

There will be the principal features on an exceptionally strong bill with a number of new features one of which will be the Aurora Troupe of cyclists who arrived in this country a short time ago and made a great sensation.

The week will also mark the return after a long absence of J. K. Murray and Clara Lane, who have just returned from a successful tour of the Pacific Coast and who will appear in a new singing and talking comedy.

Others will be Felix Adler, the plain clothes man; Flannagan and Edwards in a sketch "Oh and Oh," Harry Richards and Co., in a comedy sketch, Ray and Rogers; Whittier, the ventriloquist who looks like Roosevelt and the Pelotz, a European Novelty Company.

LAST CONCERT.

The last concert to be given on Manchester Field this season will be by Calderwood's Cambridge Band, Saturday at 3.30 p. m. The program will be as follows:

March	King of them all	H. C. Miller
Overture	Jolly Robbers	Suppe
Waltz	Betrothal	Louise Ganne
Selection	Prince of Pilsen	Gustave Luders
Cornet Solo	Favorite	Hartman
	Mr. M. G. Sypher

THE LARGEST THEATRE IN BOSTON.

The new National Theatre at Tremont and Berkeley streets, Boston, which has been in construction more than a year, will be opened to the public on September 18th. This great house with a seating capacity of nearly 3500 will be the largest auditorium in the East. It has 300 seats more than the Boston Theatre and is larger than the new Boston Opera House. It is the ambition of the Management to make this the greatest popular priced place of amusement in the country and it is claimed that owing to the enormous capacity it will be possible to give a bigger show for the money than any other house that might be available.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the postoffice at Winchester a second-class matter.

As an exchange observes: "After all nothing seems more preposterous to the average holder of a public office than to have another man to aspire that same office!"

Stoneham has the unfair system of discounts on the prompt payment of tax bills. Everyone would pay these bills promptly if they had the money, so that the well to do reap the benefit, while the man who has to scratch has to make up the difference.

Woburn is receiving considerable attention from the large number of cases of infantile paraysis in that city, there having been nine cases and three deaths. There in also reported to be one hundred pigs in Woburn suffering from the disease, which is declared to be contagious.

Mr. Winfield F. Prime has taken out nomination papers for Representative for this district, which includes two wards in Medford. For many years there has been an arrangement whereby the choice of a candidate alternated in each section of the district for two year periods. Mr. Fay of Medford, who has served for two years, now proposes to annul that arrangement by seeking a third term. It is a mistake for him to try to do so; he has had his two terms and he should now recognize the rights of Winchester. Medford's interests are now looked after by a Senator and Representative from that city, which ought to be sufficient, while for the past two years Winchester has been practically unrepresented in the Legislature. This is a large and fast growing town and should have representation at the State House every year, as important matters are continually coming up that require constant attention of a representative who is in sympathy with the town and can look after its interests. Therefore we hope that the understanding be continued and that Winchester will have a representative in the Legislature. Mr. Prime has been a member of the Legislature, previous to taking up his residence in Winchester some years ago.

A VILE PRODUCTION—SHOULD BE SUPPRESSED.

August 21, 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is a great surprise and shock to me to find an advertisement of The Girl in the Taxi in the STAR of last week, with an illustration, obviously furnished by the management, of a young man kissing another man's wife in a private dining room.

The Boston Common of the same day has this to say about the Girl in the Taxi. "The Boston Theatre will open the evening of the 21st with a sufficiently malodorous play, that—as last year—has been carefully selected to indicate the particular policy of the house as it has been conducted under its present management for the last two seasons."

"When it appeared last season, attention was called to the fact that "The Easiest Way" had been suppressed by Mayor Fitzgerald, although it has a splendid warning against the social evil. But the Girl in the Taxi and other salacious plays were permitted to run, presumably, because the managers of the theaters where they appeared had a better understanding with the authorities than the manager of the Hollis Theater.

Whatever the conditions under which it is possible to present in Boston one of the vilest productions of recent years, it certainly ought not to be possible to have it advertised, with an illustration of the most doubtful situation in our Winchester paper.

I hope it will be possible to introduce into the STAR the same kind of untrammelled criticism of objectionable plays which one finds in The Common and the New York Life.

Charles Zueblin.

A PLEASANT EPISODE.

With the exception of Sunday July 9th the pulpit of the First Congregational Church has been occupied this vacation season by Rev. Clyus Richards II, D. D., lit. pastor of the First Church of Nashua, N. H. Last Sunday being the final one in which Dr. Richardson was to officiate, at the close of the sermon a happy surprise came to the Doctor when Deacon Swett came forward and addressed the preacher in terms commending the able manner in which he had served the church assuring him of the hearty appreciation of the entire congregation, thanking him for his able and attractive presentation of instructive gospel messages and expressing the hope that at another vacation season he might be pleased to be with us.

Dr. Richardson expressed his gratification in receiving such recognition of his service and thanked all for the cordiality with which he and his wife had been welcomed into the homes of the parish.

After the benediction the entire congregation came forward and each personally took the Doctor by the hand and gave him assurance of warm regard and the benefit derived from his ministrations.

Doctor Richardson spent the entire vacation in our midst. He has visited the sick in their homes and called upon such as were in the hospital. Has officiated at funerals and in many ways displayed his interest in the welfare of the community. His cordial, genuine, hearty greeting for all ages has won to himself the character of a gospel minister of the highest type.

IS RESERVOIR FISHING CRIMINAL?

Attorney General Swift's Opinion—Judge Johnson's Decision For Defendants.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The newspapers have announced under heavy head lines, "Park Police After North Reservoir Anglers," and "Prominent Winchester Men Wanted in Court." The names of the alleged criminals have been well advertised and such reputations as the Winchester men possessed before they were arrested have been more or less smirched by the action of the Metropolitan park police in arresting heretofore respectable citizens for fishing in the town reservoirs after the town has voted many times favoring just such well regulated, healthful fishing as the "prominent Winchester men" wickedly indulged in.

The arrests were brought about by the action of the Winchester Water Board who no doubt considered it their duty to act as they have acted in bringing criminal suits against their own townsmen for fishing in the reservoirs, notwithstanding all the votes of the town, to say nothing of the practice of former water commissioners and of the town itself) favoring such fishing. Since the town passed its last vote almost unanimously on June 30th favoring fishing and requesting the State Board of Health to formulate rules and regulations governing the fishing, a great many people have fished in the reservoirs unmolested, or at least have not been arrested by the park police who under agreement with the town are obliged to "enforce such reasonable rules and regulations as the town may make governing skating, boating and fishing." Most of the fishermen have been out of town men. For several years the town has, in fact, been maintaining valuable fishing preserves for the benefit of poachers from other towns, Winchester fishermen have not dared to fish in their own reservoirs owing to the dread of arrest and the trouble arising from subsequent court proceedings if they did not accept the opinion and follow out the dictates of the present Water Board regarding the right to fish in the reservoirs. The Winchester fishermen have been more bold since the last town meeting, therefore quite lately the Water Board have "put on the lid" and requested the services of an extra park policeman to specially guard the reservoirs against fishermen early in the morning and late in the afternoon which is the time the black bass bite the best. In this manner, Winchester men have been lately trapped and arrested by park policemen but no one from out of town has been troubled though I have seen many out of town fishermen taking fish from the reservoirs. A short time ago I saw two Stoneham men take eleven large bass and a large pickerel out of the North reservoir before breakfast. Another party had eight bass which weighed 14lbs. I have seen men from Malden, Medford, Boston, Somerville and elsewhere fishing in the reservoirs but the Winchester shores and Winchester fishermen seem to receive the most attention from the park police of late, hence the recent crop of Winchester criminals. I will say for myself that I did not "sneak up" to the North reservoir but went up in my auto in the most public manner and left my machine on town territory while I fished as I believed I had a perfect legal right to fish in the reservoirs under existing laws. Until this summer, for since Attorney General Swift gave an opinion on the subject in March) I have not fished in the reservoirs for several years.

This season I have not only angled to catch fish (and caught good strings) but have also angled or late to be caught myself to bring about a test case to settle once for all who owns and controls the Winchester reservoirs, the town, the state, the Metropolitan Park Board or the Winchester Water Board. I was certainly a peaceful and willing follower of the very polite park policeman from Malden who arrested me at six o'clock in the morning, who to all appearances did not like his job of detecting and arresting well behaved, cleanly fishermen, "the followers of Isaac Walton" as the first Winchester water board styled their townsmen who liked the "gentle art" of fishing. No fishermen were arrested in those good old days as they behaved themselves and took out a permit.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you kindly give me space for a few words on the above subject? With an epidemic of the awful disease just over our border, we must all unite in doing what human power can to protect ourselves.

Citizens should carefully watch their children as to symptoms of illness and at the first evidence of paralysis should immediately confer with Dr. Buckley, Inspector of Animals. If any member of the family is stricken with an illness that is accompanied by fever, the family physician should be summoned at once, for the first infantile Paralysis is like putting out a fire, in that the very beginning is the time to do good.

Little can be done after the paralysis appears. Inability to pay the doctor must not prevent this, for the Board of Health will furnish medical attendance to all such cases where people can not pay the physician's fee.

Remember that the disease appears in many forms and that no age is exempt.

Our physicians are all widewake to the gravity of the situation. Suspicious cases will be promptly reported and as promptly isolated and quarantined.

All Woburn milk except one small dairy beyond Montvale has been excluded from Winchester. Our Milk Inspector has visited every dairy in Burlington sending milk to our town looking especially for cases of paralysis among pigs, rabbits and hens and Dr. Buckley has done a similar work in Winchester.

The Board of Health will do all it knows how to do to prevent the disease gaining a foothold in our midst, and it it does appear, effective measures will be taken to control it. Inconvenience to individuals and expense to the town treasury will be made secondary to the protection of the community.

Respectfully,
Clarence J. Allen, M.D.
Sec. Board of Health.

George Nelson Rogers and Annie O'Connors, both of No. 15 Irving street were married at East Boston on Tuesday.

REPRESENTATIVE QUESTION.

Winchester, August 24, 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

During the summer of 1916, the state will be divided into new representative districts and it seems certain that after that time Winchester will be no longer in the same district with Wards 3 and 6 of Medford. The population of the 27th Middlesex Representative District, as at present made up, will by that time be so large that it seems out of the question that it can continue unchanged. We hope that the increase of population will be such that Winchester will be entitled to a Representative of her own, so that thereafter there will be no question of dividing the office with any other place.

Following the custom of selecting a Republican candidate for two years from Medford and then for two years from Winchester, the candidate, this Fall would be a Winchester man as Mr. Fay of Medford has already served for two years, but a number of prominent Medford Republicans have suggested that as the district will continue for only four years more, it will not complicate matters for the future if the candidate is selected from Medford this year and then from Winchester for the three remaining years.

Such an arrangement, which has received very general and definite endorsement in Medford, would make it possible to re-elect Mr. Fay so that the district may profit by his two years of experience in the Legislature and upon the important Ways and Means Committee, and at the same time provide an opportunity for some able man from Winchester to represent the district for three years instead of two. It is, of course, a distinct advantage to the district as well as to the state that a man should be kept in the Legislature as long as circumstances will permit since it is well known that members of any legislative body become increasingly effective by reason of length of service.

This suggestion from the Medford end of the district has been presented to a considerable number of prominent Winchester Republicans and to the members of the Republican Town Committee and it has met with very general approval and as a result, Mr. Preston Pond, who, undoubtedly, would have received practically unanimous support in Winchester had he allowed his name to be presented at the caucus, has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Fay and it is hoped there will be no Republican candidate from this town. Certainly no one need vote for a Winchester candidate if there is one, merely because it is Winchester's turn, since it seems to be quite evident that it will be far better for Winchester to accept the suggestion made by Medford and to postpone the taking of her turn until next year.

MEDFORD PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Medford Private School will begin the new school year, Wednesday, September 27, 1911.

The school consists of a primary and a grammar department with a course in French. The grades are similar to the grades of the public schools, and the Newton plan of study is closely followed.

The house, at the corner of Governors and Hall avenues, especially designed and built for the children, has proved most satisfactory for their use and comfort.

An early application is desirable as the number of children is limited. Address, Miss Grace M. Swett, 49 Governors avenue, Medford.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. SELECTMEN'S MEETING

August 21, 1911.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. All present.

Messrs. Skillings and Brown of the Water Board were present, relative to the placing of new water mains on Church street, before that street is rebuilt. After an extended discussion on the subject, it was agreed that the work to be performed under the direction of the Board should continue as originally outlined.

Mr. Nugent having introduced the question of a better bridge on the railroad over Cross street, the matter was referred to the Supt. of Streets to investigate and report at next meeting.

Mr. Hinds, town engineer, submitted a detailed report on granolithic sidewalks which have either been asked for or already laid out by the Board to be built. His report was referred to the sub-committee on highways and bridges in conjunction with Supt. of Streets.

Partial report of Mr. Joslin relative to poles of the Postal Telegraph Co. submitted through Mr. Daly, and further time being asked for, it was granted.

Petition from the Edison Co. to erect two poles on Foxcroft road, also on Calumet road, between Cambridge and Salisbury streets. Hearings to be held later.

Application from residents on Euclid avenue for electric light on the street. Referred to Town Engineer.

Letter of C. B. Kelley relative to grade on Foxcroft road and sidewalks on the same street. Referred to Supt. of Streets.

The question of a new catch basin to be built on Eaton street, under the direction of the town engineer, was laid over until next meeting.

Warrants drawn, $15.72 and $67.10.

G. H. Lochman, Clerk.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Marriage licenses have been issued by the town clerk during the past week to the following: Salvatore Fiore and Lucia Borrelli, both of 79 Swanton street; Leslie E. Roper and Edith G. Tarly, both of 817 Main street; James E. Pettingill of Malden and Frances J. Sutermiester of Cambridge street; Oscar Lundlud and Esther Borgstrom, both of 14 Lochwan street.

Hanging on the side of the water works shop on Vine street is an interesting curiosity recovered from a water pipe by Supt. Dotten yesterday. The big "fish" is nothing more than a huge tangled mass of roots, but its 25 feet of length made it rather formidable when pulled from its resting place. The 16in. main on Bacon street has two 12in blow-outs near the Bacon bridge. The roots started into one blow-out pipe through the open end, and had grown almost up to the gate at the main. A slight seepage of water through the gate furnished food for the creeper. The root was composed mostly of poison ivy, although other vines and trees fed also from the pipe. The combined strength of three men was needed to pull the root from the pipe, and it looked not unlike some strange reptile, with its shaggy brown back and white under side.

Mr. Hal McCall, youngest son of Hon. S. W. McCall is ill with an abcess in his head at his home in Portland, Oregon.

Madam Cleveland is the guest of her son, Francis D. of Sheffield road.

Mrs. E. E. Murphy and children of Washington street have gone on a trip to N. S. Mr. Murphy will join them next week.

Mr. E. C. Wixom, master of the High school, returns from his vacation Saturday.

Mr. William C. Ash and Dr. J. Earle Ash of Philadelphia, have been the guests of their brother, Horace W. Ash of Fairview Terrace, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Plummer of Winthrop street are stopping at Calumet.

Mrs. A. S. Lewis was a guest on Wednesday at the society wedding of Mr. Brainerd Mears and Miss Margaret Whitney at Williamstown.

The Misses Marguerite and Kathleen Welch of Medford are spending their vacation with their aunt, Mrs. John Sullivan of Holland street.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Among the strong indorsements of prohibition in Kansas is that of Bishop Multspangh who, as dean of the Cathedral in Omaha and rector of the most important church in Minneapolis, has ample opportunity to compare the results of high license and local option with prohibition. He speaks unqualifiedly in favor of the Kansas plan of state wide outlawry of the liquor traffic. Surely after fifteen years he ought to know and his testimony is valuable because he is not a radical but is essentially conservative.

Members of the local union are reminded that the county, state and national conventions are near at hand. All dues must be paid in to the state union not later than October 1, and county dues still earlier. Have you paid yours to the local treasurer? And did you add a subscription to "Our Message" in order to keep informed about the work in Massachusetts? Twenty-five cents is not much and every member ought to read the state paper if not the Union Signal. Of course, if you are a live W. C. T. U. member you will want both and most folks have what they really want very much.

September to is Temperance Sunday and the churches are asked to observe it by having a temperance sermon and by giving an opportunity to sign the pledge. In many places the day is given much prominence and people are impressed by the close relation of religion and morals thus exemplified. Of course in some pulpits freedom of speech is hampered because of the presence of distillers and brewers in the pews, but generally speaking it is no longer unpopular to be in favor of temperance. When total abstinence becomes fashionable the saloon will go.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The fourth season of the Castle Square under John Craig's direction begins next Friday evening, September 1. The box office will open Monday morning at nine o'clock for the sale of seats.

The opening play will be "The Rose of the Rancho," David Belasco's romantic drama which has never been given in Boston at popular prices. Its plot concerns the fortunes of a Mexican maiden and an American visitor, and its acts pursue their way amid the most romantic of scenes and a number of striking sensational hairbreadth escapes. "The Rose of the Rancho" was first produced on any stage in Boston a few seasons ago, and this production of it at the Castle Square is its first return since then.

The cast will do full justice to the play. The role of Juanita, who gives her romantic nickname to the play, will be acted by Mary Young, and it will bring out all her powers. Keating, Jack Lorar, will give Mr. Craig an effective character, while Don Luis, his rival, will be in the hands of Morgan Wallace, who becomes a regular member of the company. Other principal roles will be played by George Hassell, Walter Walker, Al Roberts, Robert Middlemas, Gertrude Binley, Mabel Colcord and Florence Shirley.

CORONATION PICTURES.

Continued success is the reward of the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple. They reproduce in colors with all the reality of life, the ceremonials and processions of the recent great event in London, and they bring to us the actual scenes and incidents exactly as they were. Many things have happened recently to demonstrate their increasing popularity. Mrs. Jack Gardner went one afternoon with a friend intending to spend only a few moments, but remained the whole two hours, bought three tickets on her way out, and came back later to purchase seven seats for a single performance. John Hays Hammond, the special ambassador to the Coronation, was an interested spectator recently, and expressed his delight. These are but a few instances of many that might be cited. The entertainment is given twice a day, at 2.30 in the afternoon and at 8.15 in the evening.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Winchester Beats Strong Notre Dames 2-1.

Winchester made her eighth straight win last Saturday on Manchester Field when she defeated the strong Notre Dames with (Oakes O'Conner the crack south paw in the box. Winchester should have won by a larger score as they out batted the visitors nine to one but their hits were scattered. Young Whittaker pitched a remarkable game, and came very near was credited with a no hit, no run game. Ambrose the first man up in the first inning being the lucky man to hit Whittaker safe, he getting a single over second base. After that Whittaker had the visitors at his mercy, and struck out thirteen men.

Whittaker pitching like a Mathewson

The Notre Dames scored their only run on a misunderstanding of the ground rules. After Ambrose singled in the first the visitors went out in one, two, three, order up to the seventh. Conroy first man up got a base on balls, was sacrificed to second by Slattery, and was given third and home on a passed ball which went into the crowd, when he was only entitled to third. In the ninth the visitors went in to do or die with the score two to one against them. O'Conner first man up got a base on balls. Then came one of the finest plays ever seen on Manchester Field. Ambrose hit a wicked grounder that looked good for two bases to the right of Doherty at short stop, who by a fast sprint and a clever pick up, threw to Kenney at second and forced O'Connor.

Doherty making a wonderful stop.

Conroy flied out to LeDuc, in centre. Then Whittaker tamed Slattery. Winchester scored one in the third. Flaherty opened up with a fine single, went to third on a wild pitch. On the hit and run Whittaker hit to Conroy at second who threw to Doyle getting Flaherty at the plate. Murray then drove out a fine two bagger scoring Whittaker, but was thrown out trying to make third. With two out in the eighth good clean singles by Thornton, Kenney and LeDuc netted Winchester one run and the game. The features were the fast, snappy fielding of the visitors, the remarkable pitching of Whittaker, the clean hitting of Flaherty who got a hit every time at the bat, and the wonderful stop of Doherty's.

ANDREW J. LLOYD CO.

IS RESERVOIR FISHING CRIMINAL?

At the district court where I was summoned to appear on Thursday, the 17th, I found ten other Winchester citizens who also had been arrested and charged with the "criminal offence of violating a regulation of the State Board of Health by fishing in the Winchester reservoirs." None of the alleged criminals, except myself, knew anything about the laws governing fishing in Winchester's private two hundred acre reservoirs, therefore it was agreed that I should go ahead alone and dispute, if possible, the serious charge brought against me, the decision in my case to govern the other cases. As all the other prisoners were strangers to me, I felt as if I were a "lone fisherman" with only a forlorn hope of landing anything worth keeping from such a dismal place. There was no dispute regarding the facts in the case but there was much presentation of law on the subject after I had testified as to the history of fishing in the reservoirs and the different votes the town had passed favoring well regulated fishing for Winchester citizens since the water works were established. Many documents and records were presented to Judge Johnson's attention by counsel, Mr. Philip Coyle of Cooledge & Hight, Boston. The most important paper was a certified copy of an opinion written by Attorney General Swift regarding the right of the state board of health to regulate fishing in Winchester's private reservoirs, the Attorney General claiming that the town of Winchester alone had the right to say who should fish or not fish. This opinion was as follows:—

Boston, March 7, 1911.

Henry P. Walcott, M. D.,
Chairman, State Board of Health.

Dear Sir: By a communication dated February 25th you seek my opinion upon certain questions respecting the rights of the State Board of Health in the matter of a petition which has been entered by certain inhabitants of the Town of Winchester, requesting that the Board cause suitable rules and regulations to permit fishing in certain reservoirs owned and used as a source of water supply by the Town of Winchester. The facts as presented by the communication of the Board and the papers annexed thereto, so far as material, appear to be substantially as follows:

Under the provisions of St. 1872, c. 265, and St. 1873, c. 277, the Town of Winchester was authorized to construct, own and maintain reservoirs in the territory lying along the easterly side of the town within the limits and in the town joining towns of Medford and Stoneham, and subsequently did construct, and now owns and maintains three reservoirs on small streams which are the headwaters of certain tributaries of the Aberjona River or Mystic Lake. One of these reservoirs, known as the North Reservoir, is situated partly in Stoneham and partly in Winchester; another, the South Reservoir, is wholly within the limits of the City of Medford, and the Middle Reservoir is situated chiefly in Stoneham but partly also in Winchester and Medford. The water in the first reservoir constitutes the water supply of the persons subject to the jurisdiction of the Board of Winchester as appears by the petition. [illegible] and the water in the second reservoir [illegible] and the water in the third reservoir [illegible] Upon the petition of the Water and Sewer Board of Winchester, the Board of Health has granted permits to said Board to fish in said reservoirs, but said Board has always refused to grant the same," and that a petition presented to said Board by the same petitioners, requesting that permission to fish might be granted under such rules and regulations as said Board should deem sufficient for the protection of the water, was refused by the Winchester Water and Sewer Board. The petition then prays that the State Board "cause to be prepared and to establish such rules and regulations under which or during the use of such waters may be permitted and said Winchester Water and Sewer Board, or such other board or boards, as legislative or municipal, as in [illegible] of this Board be deemed expedient, be directed to grant such permits in accordance with such rules and regulations."

The jurisdiction of the State Board of Health in the premises is founded upon the provisions of R. L., c. 75, sec. 143, which, as amended by St. 1907, c. 467, sec. 3, provides as follows:

"Said board may cause examinations of such waters to be made to ascertain their purity and fitness for domestic use or their liability to impair the interests of the public or of persons lawfully using them or to imperil the public health. It may make rules and regulations to prevent the pollution and to secure the sanitary protection of all such waters as are used as sources of water supply. Said board may delegate the granting and withholding of any permit required by such rules or regulations to state boards and commissions and to boards of health, water boards and water commissioners in cities and towns, to be exercised by such selectmen boards and commissioners, subject to such recommendations and direction as shall be given from time to time by the state board of health; and upon complaint of any person interested said board shall investigate the granting or withholding of any such permit and make such orders relative thereto as it may deem necessary for the protection of the public health."

While the duty of the State Board of Health under this and the preceding section (sec. 142), which vests in said board the general oversight and care of all inland waters and of all streams and ponds used by any city, town or public institution or by any water or ice company in this commonwealth as sources of water supply, is primarily to prevent pollution and to secure the sanitary protection of waters which are used as sources of water supply, it has, by reason of the amendment contained in St. 1907, c. 467, not only the right to delegate power to grant or withhold permits to boat, fish or cut ice upon sources of water supply, but also the duty, upon complaint, to investigate the granting or withholding of such permits, which partakes of the nature of an appellate jurisdiction; and, in the case of a great pond, a petition like the present would probably require some action upon the part of the board in the nature of a review of the proceedings of the state or local authorities to whom had been delegated the granting and withholding of any permits required by the rules and regulations of the board, and a consideration of their action with respect to the withholding or granting of any particular permit or permits concerning which complaint was made by the petitioner.

In the present case, however, upon the assumption already made, the Town of Winchester, in its corporate capacity, owns the shores, the bed and the waters of all three reservoirs; and, while the State Board of Health may restrict their use because they are sources of water supply it can lawfully, without the consent of the town or of the authorized agents of the town in the premises, who may be assumed to be the Water and Sewer Board of Winchester, to require any use thereof which is not necessary for the purpose of protecting them as such sources of water supply. In the case of a great pond a rule which permits fishing or boating either [illegible] an existing public right or restricts one which for a time has been prohibited [illegible] but, here, the ponds in the [illegible] are not great ponds [illegible] and which [illegible] may be [illegible] to protect the purity of water [illegible] and [illegible] as may be necessary for the protection of the purity of water supplied to the inhabitants of the town. [illegible] but the rights of boating as the Town of Winchester, or of its agents may see fit to make [illegible] and to [illegible] Laws which [illegible] the rights of [illegible] and the taking [illegible]

[illegible] question is not that the State Board of Health has the authority to require the Water and Sewer Board of Winchester to issue permits for fishing and that the regulation of boating or fishing or all use of the reservoirs in addition with it is not directly required to preserve the purity thereof, is for the Town of Winchester to establish or determine.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) James M. Swift,
Attorney-General.

It will be seen that the above opinion is dated March 7th, 1911. I possessed a copy soon after it had been written. The opinion was given on request of the State Board of Health on the occasion of an appeal to the State Board by George W. Apsey, Charles B. Bird and myself from a decision made by the Winchester Water Board November 21st, 1910, refusing to grant fishing permits to thirty three Winchester citizens who petitioned for them in regular form, the three gentlemen being a committee representing the cause of the petitioners. Knowing of the existence of this opinion in the hands of the State Board of Health, I made the motion, almost unanimously voted in town meeting June 30th, 1911, which "requested" the State Board to formulate sanitary fishing rules for the guidance of the town. I knew, according to the Attorney General's written opinion, that such rules would not be binding upon the town, except in an advisory way, but hoped that coming from such a source the rules might be made acceptable to the Winchester Water Board as well as to the town. Soon after the June 30th vote was passed in town meeting, the Winchester Water Board requested in writing a conference with the State Board of Health regarding the proposed fishing rules "requested" by the town. It was hoped that the conference would lead to some sort of rules being recommended which would be satisfactory to all concerned but nothing [illegible] shape of rules was developed at the conference, the Water Board sticking close to the old idea that no fishing rules could be enforce by the town of Winchester outside town territory. At the conference however, the opinion of the Attorney General, as above printed, was made known to the Water Board. The [illegible] opinion was explained and a copy was given the Board for what it was worth to convince the members that the town of Winchester alone had power to regulate fishing in its reservoirs (unless the manner of fishing polluted the water supply), and therefore, according to the opinion of the Attorney General, the old State Board of Health's regulations of April 1st, 1909, under which criminal action has been brought by the Water Board against Winchester citizens, were null and void. It would be supposed that such an opinion, coming from such a source would prevent the Water Board from thereafter arresting respectable citizens for fishing in the reservoirs on the ground of violating discredited State Board of Health regulations which the Attorney General had declared to be illegal. The Water Board knew all about the opinion which has caused Judge Johnson to reverse his former decisions in Winchester fishing cases but they gave it no consideration whatever and were perfectly willing that their own townsmen should be arrested and found guilty of breaking a Board of Health rule which did not legally exist. Either the Winchester Water Board did not understand the meaning of the clearly expressed opinion or they did not know that Mr. Coyle and myself had knowledge of the opinion and could make use of it in court to disprove the criminal charge brought against Winchester citizens at the instigation of the Water Board. If the members of the board were ignorant of the scope and meaning of the opinion no fault can be found if they ignored it but if they understood its meaning and then ignored it without giving their fellow townsmen the benefit of the Attorney General's opinion it seems to me a little like "striking below the belt." I did think that the Water Board after knowing the opinion of the Attorney General regarding Winchester reservoir fishing, would give up its mistaken position that it controlled the situation through the old State Board of Health regulation of 1909, which regulations might apply to "great ponds" belonging to the state but not to private reservoirs such as Winchester fortunately possesses, but the Water Board seems not to have given up one jot or one tittle of its former position on account of the Attorney General's opinion on the subject. Hence the courts have got to decide the question.

In conclusion, let me say I have no personal feeling or animosity against any individual whatever on account of my arrest and trial for alleged criminal violation of a state law. In the decision of Judge Johnson will clear the atmosphere so that all can see the way to make reasonable, healthful town regulations to govern fishing in our large and beautiful reservoirs without injury to the purity of our water supply. I shall be glad I was arrested, tried and proved innocent.

Court proceedings are a most disagreeable way to bring about results but if a good result is brought about in the present instance, I shall be satisfied.

Arthur E. Whittier.

FAVORED MORE CONSIDERATION.

The House has adopted, 283 to 27, the conference report on the campaign publicity bill. The report already has been adopted by the Senate and the measure will go to the President at once.

Representative McCall, the only Republican to oppose the measure, said he believed in the publicity requirement, but thought a corruption law should be more carefully considered.

As finally adopted, the bill stands practically as it was amended by the Senate. It requires that a candidate for the Senate or House, either in general elections, primaries or nominating conventions, shall file statements of their expenses not more than 15 days nor less than [illegible] days before the election. Expenses of candidates for the Senate are limited to $5,000 and those of candidates for the House to $2,500, and candidates are required to say what positions or honors they have promised in an effort to influence votes. Personal traveling expenses and official fees do not have to be listed.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Press Bible Question Club.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Judah Carried Captive to Babylon. Jer. xxxix.

Golden Text—Be sure your sin will find you out. Num. xxxii:23.

(1.) Verses 1-2—When a historian gives the day, the month, and the year an event took place, and associates his facts with some other well-known fact, how much weight does that give to the credibility of his story?

(2.) How long did the siege of Jerusalem last before the city was captured?

(3.) What were the chief means by which the city was taken? (See 2 Kings xxv:3.)

(4.) Verse 3—What was the real reason for the downfall of Judah and the capture of Jerusalem?

(5.) When a nation gives itself up to a life of sin how much risk is there in prophesying its downfall unless it repents?

(6.) If the "princes" of the soul memory, conscience, will power, and the reverence of God, forsake their position at the gate of the citadel, what other princes are certain to take their places?

(7.) Verse 4—Sinners are generally very brave when in health and prosperity, but when trouble, or death, stares them in the face what generally happens?

(8.) Was there a time, and when, that Zedekiah could have taken such steps as would have kept him on his throne and made himself and people prosperous and happy? (See 2 Chron. xxxvi:11-13.

(9.) What is the Golden Text for to-day, and what is the proof that sin will finally destroy happiness and true prosperity?

(10.) Verse 5—Zedekiah fled from the enemy but was overtaken; when does the time come in the life of a sinner when his habits have become like his shadow, which he cannot outrun?

(11.) Verses 6-7—What had been the crime against Nebuchadnezzar of which Zedekiah was guilty? What would be the penalty of a similar crime to-day?

(12.) What was Zedekiah's sin against God, and that of the other bad kings of Judah who had preceded him?

(13.) What was Zedekiah's punishment?

(14.) See Jer. liv:3; Ezek. xii:13, where the fate of Zedekiah is foretold, and compare with v 7 and point out a striking fulfillment and explanation of apparently contradictory prophecy.

(15.) Verse 8—Why is it in God's moral government that the innocent often have to suffer, as well as the guilty?

(16.) Verses 9-10—What class of people did they carry away to Babylon and what class allow to remain in Judah?

(17.) What part of a man's nature does sin destroy, and what part does it leave?

(18.) Verses 11-14—What did the King of Babylon do for Jeremiah, and what is generally the final lot of a man of God?

(19.) Verse 15—What good had Ebed-melech done to be so signally favored of God? (See Jer. xxxvii: 7-13.)

(20.) What reason is there to think that God never forgets a good deed done by one of his children? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Always some one in the office from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M. We advise those intending to visit our office to make appointments in advance by telephoning to Winchester 302-1, or evenings to Winchester 264-6. Among the many properties listed with us are the following:

WEST SIDE, JUST COMPLETED

WITHOUT DOUBT the following property is one of the best bargains ever offered in this town. Located on one of the best streets with lot of land of about 10,000 sq. ft., having southern and western exposure. Unusually large living room with beamed ceilings, fireplace with birch mantel, French door opening to a lounging porch in rear. Dining room panelled and beamed, mahogany finish. Good sized den with beamed ceilings, finished mission with lavatory; modern kitchen with sanitary cement floor. Second and third floors have seven chambers and three baths, the master's room being of unusual size, has private bath and sleeping porch adjoining, large fireplace and two commodious closets. Hot water heating. This house was built by the day and should appeal to anyone in search of a first-class home of this size. Price $13,000, $5000 cash.

A RURAL HALF-ACRE

MODERN 8-ROOM HOUSE, situated in one of the most attractive spots in Winchester. Open plumbing, hot-water heat, electric lights, all hardwood floors and three fireplaces. Small shop building capable of being transformed into a garage or small stable. Grounds handsomely planted, large white pines, white, red and black oaks and hickories. Garden stocked with hardy perennials. Price $8500; $3500 cash.

WEDGEMERE

A VERY ATTRACTIVE HOUSE of 10 rooms and bath is now nearing completion in which are incorporated many unique, but practical ideas, every little detail which might facilitate the labor of housekeeping is incorporated in this house. Hot water heat, electric lights, combination gas and coal ranges, large closets and two fireplaces, laundry, vegetable closet and toilet in basement. Price $8,900, $1,500 cash.

READY OCTOBER FIRST

ONE OF THE MOST ATTRACTIVE HOUSES at moderate cost is being erected on the East Side in select neighborhood; three rooms on the lower floor, four and bath on the second floor; one on the third. Heated by hot water, fireplaces, open plumbing, small panel glass doors between the hall, living-room and dining-room lend materially to lend an air of brightness and spaciousness to this very attractive home; 4500 sq. ft. of land, price $5700; 1/2 cash. Plans and further particulars furnished upon application.

The alarm from box 38, Oak corner of Holland streets, on Sunday night was false. It seems that there was a disturbance on the Plains in which the police took part arresting one of the disturbers, and for revenge one of his sympathizers pulled in an alarm from the box. Thus the innocent firemen were the sufferers.

Last Sunday night the Italians employed at the stone quarry just over the Winchester line at the Highlands had a celebration and to make it emphatic set off a number of bombs, rockets and other explosives. The affair being in Woburn our local police were powerless to act, but upon the information that the Italians were making big holes in the air and disturbing the peace of Winchester the Woburn police quickly put a stop to the noise.

VOL. XXXI. NO. 9. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1911. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

GALA TIME AT ST. MARY'S FIELD DAY.

A Successful and Charming Event that Gave Pleasure to Many.

St. Mary's Parish Field Day was a great success both socially and financially. The entire arrangements for the day were in charge of Rev. Walter J. Roche, assisted by a large committee representing every section of the town. Elaborate preparations had been made and the spacious grounds about the rectory were a picture to behold under the numerous electric lights so kindly furnished by Mr. Sanderson.

The sports in the afternoon consisted of children's events and some close finishes were witnessed. In the morning a base ball game was played on the town field between the altar boys of St. Raphael's Church of West Medford and the boys of St Mary's Church, in which the visting boys were victorious by the score of 5 to 3.

The results of the childrens races, under the charge of Father Roche were as follows:

Three-legged race—Won by J. McCarron; E. Murphy, second.

Potato race—Won by H. Crampton; E. Murphy second.

The general committee of the day was headed by Daniel Murphy, chairman, with the following aids: Daniel O'Leary, jr., M. C. Ambrose, J. V. Blackham, Neil Doherty, Albert Thorne, Eugene Scully, Edw. Maguire, Edmund Gendron, C. O. Smith, David Miskell, Patrick Noonan, Edward Shea, John Cullen, D. F. O'Connor, M. E. O'Leary, Timothy Leahy, James J. Fitzgerald, James Murphy, Daniel Lydon, J. W. Donahue, Dennis McKeering, Wm. Jay Smith, G. R. Brine, John J. McDonald, Michael Maguire.

The parish had been set apart into four districts, the aim of each being to make their returns as large as possible. The Centre Table, colors red, white and blue, was in charge of Mrs. James Murphy, assisted by Mrs. Edw. Fleming, Mrs. Frank Eaton, Mrs. Dr. McCarthy, Mrs. Frank Corcoran, Mrs. John McNally, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, Mrs. Daniel Lydon. Misses Frances Nolan, Mary Murphy, Lena Tighe, Margaret Crampton, Dorothy McCraven, Lillian Monahan, Katherine Feeney, Minnie O'Leary, Katherine Sheridan, Marie Fox, Nora Rogers, Agnes Regan.

Attached to the table was a very attractive feature, a fish Pond which Mrs. McNally had charge of.

The Cutter's Village table, colors pink and green, was in charge of Mrs. Daniel Murphy, assisted by Mrs. Isabelle Thorne, Mrs. Wm. Hargrove, Mrs. John O'Melia, Mrs. Patrick Noonan, Mrs. Eugene Scully, Mrs. John Dooley, Mrs. Patrick Hennessey, Mrs. John O'Hearn, Mrs. John McMahon, Mrs. Michael Haulon Mrs. Patrick Martin, Misses Helen Doherty, Rose Doherty, Emily Thorne, Nellie Doherty, Katherine Thorne, Mabel Coty Margaret O'Hearn, Annie Carney, Minnie Dowd, Katherine Connelly, Agnes Cullen, Josephine Noonan, Mary Doherty, Frances Noonan, Grace Doherty, Alice O'Donnell.

The Hillside Table, colors red and white, was in charge of Mrs. John McCarron, assisted by Mrs. Patrick Nelson, Mrs. Timothy Donovan, Mrs. Wm. Vayo, Mrs. Thos. Kelley, Misses Rhoda Foley, Katherine Regan, Mary Haggerty, Delia Kelley, Mary Higgerty, Elizabeth Cullen, Nellie O'Connor, Margaret Cullen Mary Foley, Mary Haggerty, Margaret Kerrigan, Annie Daly.

The Wistaria Table, East side, color, purple and lavender, was in charge of Mrs. P. J. Kennedy, assisted by Mrs. John F. O'Connor, Mrs. Frank Keehn, Mrs. Owen Flaherty, Mrs. James Brine, Mrs. Thos. Cullen, Mrs. Thos Fallon Mrs. John Creamer, Mrs. Michael Noonan, Mrs. John McLaughlin, Misses Lillian Kane, Mrs. Kenney, Julia Fitzgerald, Mary O'Leary, Lena Sachs, Katherine Kenney.

The Japanese Table, was in charge of the West end Club Assistants, Miss Margaret Maguire and the following aids dressed in costume: Misses K. Noonan, Monahan, Mary Doran, Mary Danahy, Elizabeth Fallon, Agnes Murphy, Marion Sullivan, Mildred Hart, Ed. Patricia Keehn, Marie Mathews, Margaret O'Leary, Norma Benet, Mabel Hargrove. The mystery attraction of this table was in charge of Mrs. Wm Jay Smith and Miss Josephine Brine and the following aids: Misses Catherine Martin, Alice Kenna, Amy Noonan, Catherine Lehan, Winifred Welsh. Two special attractions on the West side table were a photograph of the White House, presented by Mrs. Wm Taft, and a blackthorne stick, a souvenir of his recent European trip, was the gift of the Hon. John F. Fitzgerald.

The auto attraction of the day was greatly enjoyed. Autos being furnished by F. J. O'Hara and Wm. C. Welsh and conveying parties about town for rides.

Dancing was enjoyed throughout the day, music being furnished in the afternoon by Fallons Elite orchestra of Stoneham and in the evening by the National Band of Woburn, and the party came to a close at 11:30 p. m. Pleasant good nights were exchanged while the Pastor, Rev. Father Merritt, extended his thanks to all his guests and children, trusting to meet them all at Our Next Lawn Party.

The sincere thanks of the Pastor and his assistants are extended to Mr. Sanderson, James J. Fitzgerald, Eastern Felt Company, F. J. O'Hara, Wm. C. Welsh, Police Officers, Merchants of Woburn and Winchester and all men and women and children who in any way assisted in making Our Field Day one grand success.

Over $2,000 was realized from the affair.

A PARALYSIS CASE.

First Case Occurs on Upper Main Street.

Winchester has one case of infantile paralysis, and is preserving a strict quarantine of the premises and the household upon them.

Helen Murphy, 19 months old, daughter of John Murphy, 700 Main street, was reported to Dr. C. J. Allen, chairman of the board of health Tuesday morning by Dr. Harold A. Gale, attending physician as a suspicious case.

Dr. Allen notified the state board of health and Dr. Philip A. E. Sheppard and two assistants responded immediately and confirmed the suspicions of the local doctors, diagnosing the case as one of anterior poliomyelitis.

The quarantine of the entire household with the exception of the father, for a period of six weeks has been ordered. Mr. Murphy has left his home, not to return until the quarantine has been raised. A wire fence has been built around the back portion of the premises for the purpose of allowing the mother and a well child to obtain fresh air and exercise without the possibility of leaving the property or of anyone from the outside trespassing thereupon.

HENRY B. HARRIS, Mgr.

HASTE TO CHURCH NO EXCUSE.

An exceptional plea was extended by a Winchester man last Friday who was arrested for over speeding his automobile on the Revere Beach Parkway last Sunday.

The gentleman said he was speeding to get to church and thought that he was unjustly apprehended.

The judge was unable to see any benefit to humanity in the defendant's reaching church by overspeeding and fined the gentlman $10 and costs.

FAVORABLE TO MR. FAY.

The following Winchester gentlemen signed Mr. W. B. Fay's nomination paper for a third term in the Mass. House it being understood by them that Winchester on Mr. Fay's retirement will have a three-year term.

Samuel J. Elder, Preston Pond, Frank L. Ripley, Ralph E. Joslin, Charles F. A. Cutnier, Robert Coit, Herbert H. Nickerson, Marens B. May, Herbert S. Underwood, Arthur W. Hale, Frank E. Barnard, Schuyler F. Herron, Clarence C. Miller, Wm. A. Kneeland, George C. Coit.

WINCHESTER VS BAY VIEWS

The Winchester base ball team has for its opponents next Saturday, the fast Bay View team of South Boston. This team has been defeated here before this year and comes determined to break Winchester's winning streak. Consequently a good game is predicted, as the Bay Views are considered the strongest team in South Boston.

This game will be to play off a three-each team having won one game.

A game of base ball will be played on the afternoon of Labor Day, when Winchester team will as yet be opposing some unknown opponents.

WINCHESTER PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Winchester Private School will reopen Wed., Sept. 6th. This school is for boys and girls from five to fifteen years of age. Pupils are prepared to enter grades in the Public schools or other private schools. The aim of the school is individual attention.

Parents desiring further particulars will please communicate with the principal, Miss Ella M. Emerson, A. B., 28 Church street. Tel 923-W.

THE WINCHESTER REPRESENTATIVE SITUATION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is a far cry to 1916, especially in matters political. The chairman of the Winchester Republican Town Committee undertakes in last week's STAR, as I understand his communication, to justify the nomination this year of a representative from Medford, in lieu of nominating a Winchester man as we undoubtedly could, simply because "an arrangement" has been made in behalf of Mr. Fay between certain prominent republicans and members of our Republican Town Committee concerning this year's nominee and next year's nominee all predicated on what is going to happen in 1916.

WINFIELD F. PRIME

In the vernacular of the street, this is "going some."

Winchester voted in November 1910, by a vote of 691 yeas to 289 nays, for direct nominations of representatives by the people. Since then, a republican legislature had enacted into law the direct primary for all state officers by all political parties.

In short, public opinion has conclusively shown its condemnation of these little "arrangements" and of the machinations of delegates, committees, etc.

It is not my purpose to discuss the wisdom or unwisdom of the direct nomination law. It is here, and I hope the Republicans of Winchester will deal honestly and fairly with the question.

I acknowledge the usefulness of political committees, and believe the local Republican Committee to be honorable men; but, in common with many other voters, I believe they have mistaken their function, which is to elect rather than to nominate the party candidate. It successful as I expect to be at the primary I shall welcome their co-operation in earnest effort to elect the whole ticket but I hardly think the intelligent republicans of this town need to have any "arrangement" made for them to have Winchester represented in next year's Legislature by a Medford man when we could have a Winchester man for the asking. Your correspondent has referred to Mr. Preston Pond's candidacy, so I take this opportunity to say that I have first hand information as to Mr. Pond's honorable ambition to go to the Legislature and he would have had no more loyal supporter in the primary than the writer; but as he shrunk from a contest with the Medford man he was induced to become a party to the aforesaid "arrangement."

My ambition and motives are no less honorable even though I am willing to submit my candidacy to the people instead of submitting it to the chairman of our town committee and the gentleman from Medford, for "arrangement."

While I regret the necessity of a contest, I shall not run away from it, and am in this one at the urgent solicitation of good, loyal Republican friends, when no other local candidate appeared in the field.

The rule of alternating between Winchester and Medford every two years has now been followed for sixteen years, not because of any binding agreement to that effect, but because it appealed to fair-minded citizens as the best method of exemplifying representative government by the people of this particular district.

The rule was recently invoked in former representative Barnard's case when he secured but a single year, the preceding year having been taken by Mr. Parkhurst, a Winchester representative who retired after one year's service. The two years next before Mr. Barnard's term were the property of Mr. Bancroft, Winchester's representative.

It is not to be assumed that every Winchester Medford district contains a man of whom have ambitions and aspirations for the office, and who would have entertained the nomination of any respectable Winchester candidate at this time; that no one is authorized to make any "arrangement" for them concerning the succession to Winchester one year hence for a term of three years. They concede that Winchester may name the representative this year and that the problems of the future be dealt with as they are met, with the probability that Ward six of Medford will present a candidate two years hence. As Ward six is much the larger of the two Medford wards now in this district, may there not be a good deal of difficulty about delivering the goods to Winchester one year from now for a three year term, by the prominent Medford Republicans referred to by the chairman of our town committee?

The voters of ward six, Medford, may desire to take a hand in "arranging" matters in 1912, and when the summer time of 1916, for which our chairman has already provided, arrives, we may find that the Legislature may desire to make a few "arrangements."

Your correspondent solemnly informs us that Mr. Pond has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Fay. Important, if true: but Mr. Pond is a gentleman with too keen a sense of honor, and too much intelligence to try to make Mr. Fay his political legatee. This retirement in favor of another should be entitled to the same weight as the other "arrangements" spoken of by your correspondent, when he says in substance that all other candidates should take to the woods.

Respectfully,
WINFIELD F. PRIME.

MR. FAY'S POSITION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Medford, August 31, 1911.

As there seems to be some misunderstanding as to my position in the matter of presenting my name as a candidate for a third term for the Winchester-Medford District, I should be glad to have you print this letter in the STAR.

Having been urged by some of my friends to be a candidate for a third term I consulted with a large number of people both in Medford and Winchester in reference to the matter, but did not decide to become a candidate until I had received assurance from a considerable number of well known Winchester Republicans, (including the person understood by us to be the Winchester candidate upon whom substantially all the Winchester people agreed) to the effect that they considered this a fair suggestion and thought that when the situation was understood the Winchester Republicans generally would be willing to have the nomination go to Medford this year provided Medford would concede the nomination to Winchester for the following three years.

After consulting with Medford people I became a candidate with this understanding. If I am nominated I shall consider that Medford and Winchester Republicans approve of this plan and that it is agreed by the District that this suggestion shall be carried into effect. While it is true that changes in the caucus laws have so altered conditions that there is no one now who can make or enforce political agreements between different towns (since the conventions have been abolished which formerly made these agreements and also saw to it that those made by earlier conventions were lived up to) yet, it would be very unfortunate if it should prove that under this new law towns and cities grouped together in a single district could not in some way provide for a fair and wise arrangement to be carried into effect thoughout a series of years.

It seems that the only way in which such matters can now be determined is by having the proposed agreement fairly stated in advance and submitted to the voters at the caucus. This is what I understand will be done in the present instance.

If the voters of the 27th Middlesex Representative District do not approve of this suggestion which has been made and do not think it best for the District that the nomination should go to Medford this year and the three following years to Winchester, they will make it clear by their votes.

If I am nominated by the Caucus, it will be understood that I have accepted this suggestion and intend in my heart to carry that spirit out, and if elected will conduct myself in the legislature during three years.

Respectfully yours,
WILTON B. FAY.
No. 49 Wyman street

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator knows a certain woman who has a morbid horror of dirt. She fears especially to soil her hands and The Spectator is told that whenever she touches anything she washes her hands, sometimes as many as twenty times a day. She never touches a door knob except in her own home; she makes all sorts of excuses to wait for somebody else to open the door. This woman never thinks of handling a library book that has been used by others. It has quite frequently been pointed out to her that most people here in Winchester and elsewhere enjoy good health without such solicitude in regard to cleanliness, but that makes no difference to her.

A reader of the STAR recently sent The Spectator a card made into a blotter, signed by a dozen grocery firms of Delaware, Ohio. It is the strongest temperance argument The Spectator has seen for some time. Here it is:

"Anyone who drinks three glasses of whiskey a day for one year and pays ten cents a drink for it, can have in exchange at any of the firms whose names appear on this card three barrels flour, twenty bushels potatoes, 200 pounds granulated sugar, one barrel crackers, one pound pepper, two pounds tea, 50 pounds salt, 20 pounds rice, 50 pounds butter, ten pounds cheese, 25 pounds coffee, 10 pounds candy, three dozen cans tomatoes, ten dozen pickels, ten dozen oranges, 10 dozen bananas, two dozen cans corn, 18 boxes matches, half a bushel beans, 100 cakes soap, and 12 packages rolled oats, for the same money, and get $15.50 premium for making change in his expenditures."

A young lady who has been engaged in library work for several years has kept a record of the queries propounded to her by patrons of the institution. Below The Spectator gives a few of the most interesting. Where did the phrase "United we stand, divide we fall," originate?

What relation are the present crowned heads of Europe to King George of England?

What part did Middlesex County take in the election of President Lincoln?

Where is the sword which Cornwallis surrendered to Washington?

The oath of office of the King of England in the time of King John and today?

A book giving the most approved methods of making hay.

When were knives and forks first used?

Pictures of the figure-heads of vessels with an account of their origin.

The position of a library worker must be something like the position of editor of the STAR, for both are called upon to answer all sorts of questions, and both like to do it, too.

A woman, who clipped an article from a newspaper file in the public library of a large city and was arrested for the offense, has sued the library trustees and the librarian for $10,000 damages. She admits clipping the paper, but says she was agitated over the contents of the article and did not realize what she was doing. A few people outside of libraries and newspaper offices are able to realize the seriousness of such an act. Men and women of intelligence and respectability, who would not dream of mutilating a book not their own by cutting its pages will with the greatest calmness and assurance slash columns from bound newspaper files if given opportunity, entirely regardless of the fact that while a book may be replaced a newspaper of a past date very likely cannot be duplicated. A while ago The Spectator permitted a gentleman to consult a file of the STAR. Later it was discovered that he had sliced a column and a half from an issue. The Spectator is pained to say it is the truth that very few persons are to be safely trusted alone with bound files.

A lady from the west is visiting in Winchester and the other day The Spectator had the pleasure of an introduction. He was very much interested in the lady's story of how a tramp had set fire to her house and burned it to the ground because when he asked her for food she tinctly told her that the ham sandwiches which she offered were not rich enough and that unless something daintier were offered he would make his threat good. The moral is that all housekeepers here in Winchester and elsewhere should keep a few special delicacies, such as jelly, cake and pie, on hand to conciliate any itinerant epicure who may apply for food. Why couldn't the same thing happen here in Winchester?

A little miss of The Spectator's acquaintance was asked to sing and a song was named. After a few moments in thought she said: "I can't get the wind to sing."

An 8-year-old lady here has just had her first ride in an automobile and she informs The Spectator she hopes to live to go up in an airship.

A little Winchester Miss, on her first visit to the farm of her grandfather up in New Hampshire, was served with a bantum egg. "I guess the hen that laid this egg was crowded off the nest before she was finished," she remarked.

With the opening of the public schools and the coming of fall and winter evenings, the wise mothers of Winchester will make it a special point to come closely in touch with their children's reading. This means that the mother should know what the children are required to read in the way of school work and also what they are recommended to read by their teacher. It means, moreover—The Spectator believes this fully as important a not more important—that the mother should learn how the taste of the son or daughter is developing in the line of reading. A tendency in the right direction should be encouraged. If mistakes are being made, they cannot be corrected too soon. A child's taste in reading, whether a right or wrong one, develops very rapidly. As a rule, when the tendency is one to be deplored, it results from the lack of opportunity to become familiar with good literature. The average child here in Winchester knows what is good in books. This, of course, comes from a sense of instinct. He recognizes what is true in much the same way that he can tell whether a person is well disposed toward him or the reverse. Clean-cut action appeals to him and he delights in those flights of the imagination that are provided by the masters of fairy love. Parents perplexed over this matter can find at the Winchester public library most helpful suggestions as to the reading suitable for children of different ages. It would be well for them to consult with one of the child's teachers, but The Spectator wants to emphasize that the person with whom it is important to talk over the matter is the child himself. His view point must be gained and his desires understood.

Some individuals pride themselves on never making the same mistake twice, and at the same time constantly make new ones.

When some men whom we know gossip, they call it "discussing matters."

Newsy Paragraphs.

In referring to the strikes in England and the labor turmoil, Thomas A. Edison, the inventor says:—"These labor societies threaten to become the tyranny of the 20th century. They simply repeat the despotism of the past which inspired their existence. Any individual who wishes to work, no matter for what wages, should be free to do so, and England's energetic measures to insure such liberty is a healthy sign of her basic common sense. France was at fault when she didn't take the same stand in quelling the late state railway disturbances, instead of contenting herself with a change of cabinet."

Considerable curiosity is felt here concerning the attitude of Mr. Tuck and Mr. John Carter towards the candidacy of Governor Foss for a second election, and whether or not they will vote for him if he should be nominated. These popular Winchester gentlemen are strong friends and supporters of Bryan of Nebraska, but Foss is not, and just how this situation will affect Democratic votes in Winchester this fall is the thing that is puzzling the politicians.—[Woburn Journal.

WINCHESTER VS NO. WOBURN.

North Woburn has been granted the permit for Library Park for Labor Day morning, Sept. 4th, and Manager Rupp has arranged for the strong Winchester team to come here. This is decidedly a point in Manager Rupp's favor in being able to bring such a drawing card here. The Winchester team has played all its games at home this season and the North Woburn team was forced to pay a large guarantee for the game.

It promises to be one of the best games of the season here. The North Woburns have been playing pretty fast ball lately, defeating the Silver Lakes Saturday by the score of 3 to 2.

The Winchester team has been playing phenomenal base ball Saturday, by defeating the strong Notre Dames of South Boston, it completed a string of eight straight victories. The team as a whole are fielding fine and batting well.

The principal feature of the games has been young Walter Wuttaker, the Somerville High star. Only 17 years of age, he has fooled the best batters on semi-pro teams in the state, by his wonderful headwork and curves. His principal ball is a remarkably fast breaking drop.—Woburn Times.

A Straightforward Talk About

MODERN VACUUM CLEANING

Speaking broadly the housekeepers of this community are informed only to a limited degree about "The Colgate System of Modern Vacuum Cleaning" and the progress it is making and has made.

My purpose here is to implant the right idea about this system of Modern Cleaning in the minds of as many women as possible.

I intend to do this by telling you what "The Colgate System" is; how inexpensive it is and its numerous advantages over the broom, also over all other processes of vacuum cleaning.

If I succeed, together with the aid of my present satisfied subscribers, the end of this year will see a great many women availing themselves of the economy and advantages afforded by this Modern System.

But this will be merely an incidental result.

My real purpose is to add to the present subscribers, as many of their friends and neighbors as possible so that, by systematic arrangement of subscribers, I may be able to reduce vacuum cleaning rates to a minimum, making it advantageous for every household holder to have their home vacuum swept regularly — either weekly or monthly.

"The Colgate System," is vastly different from all other processes of vacuum cleaning, insomuch that it deals entirely with small appointments, of from 75c and upwards, thus making it possible for patrons to have their homes vacuum swept weekly or monthly.

Most other processes deal only with appointments, of from $3.00 and upwards, thus making these other methods of vacuum cleaning too expensive to apply regularly throughout the year.

By analyzing the preceding paragraphs you will realize that, by this Modern System, your home will be cleaned regularly throughout the year, and at no more expense than to have it cleaned only occasionally by any other process of vacuum cleaning.

If you are interested in my mission of reform, you will search it out and when you have found it, I have no doubt as to what method, of doing your regular sweeping and cleaning, you will decide upon.

I trust that this talk may have given you some new ideas about the extent to which you can apply Modern Vacuum Cleaning and that you will make a further insight by asking those who are enjoying its advantages.

Facts which the patrons of "THE COLGATE SYSTEM" have found to be true

That the wear and tear on rugs, etc., is less than by beating and sweeping.

That the dust about the home is greatly reduced, thus eliminating much dusting.

That the rugs always look bright and clean and are also free from the germs of the carpet beater.

That the confusion, caused by taking rugs up to be beaten, is entirely eliminated.

That the home can be vacuum swept in one quarter of the time used by the old method.

That in a number of instances, "The Colgate System," is actually taking the place of a maid. The housewife preferring to do her own cooking.

That it is absolutely the least expensive method of procuring perfect sanitary conditions, throughout the year, in home or office.

CHILD TRAINING.

Pity the Young Person who is Considered a Prodigy.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

August 25, 1911.

Dear Sir: Recently there has been some public discussion about the unusual degree to which certain young people in this section have acquired knowledge in advance of others of similar age and educational advantages. Ava contribution in the consideration of this topic, the following editorial from the July number of the School Bulletin, published in Syracuse, New York, may be of interest. The writer, Mr. C. W. Bardeen, is well known to school people as an educational author and publisher. For over forty years he has been a keen and sympathetic student of educational movements and his opinions have generally been sustained by the test of time.

Yours very truly,
Schuyler F. Herron.

Precocious Children.

The editor of The American Magazine sends us advance pages of the number for July containing an article on New Ideas in Child-training, with request that we comment on the same editorially. The gist of the article is that by keeping continually at the intellectual training of a child he may be got into college at ten years old or thereabouts, like young Sidis. An Iowa boy learned the alphabet at two; a clergyman has a daughter a sophomore at Radcliffe and began her education by teaching her "several" languages at three; a Harvard professor's son was graduated from Tufts at fourteen and at sixteen is studying at Cornell for Ph. D.; a surgeon's daughter's education began virtually as soon as she was born, and she learned type-writing at three, wrote a play at five, and published a book of poems at seven; and so on.

All this does not seem very interesting even it true. A good deal of observation and reflection have confirmed our belief in the old saw that precocious children are like early roses, concocted in the morning and stupid in the afternoon. In his early days the editor of the School Bulletin was looked upon as mildly precocious, having learned to read and write before he can remember and entered the High school a day or two after he became ten years old; and the maxim was certainly true of him. When he found one of his grandsons beginning to read at three he protested so vigorously that the same boy at post five cannot read at all. Box trees trimmed to the shapes of vases and birds have gone out of fashion in gardens, why should not little minds have a chance to grope about this big universe for themselves and make their own discoveries for a while? "We learn by to-day's the little girl to repeat the Lord's Prayer in English, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew," says Dr. Beiloc of his child three years old. "When Nobody was six," says Prof. Weiner, "I set him to learning languages and history. When he was seven I engaged a tutor from Harvard to give him lessons on chemistry. Between seven and nine I myself taught him algebra, geometry, and trigonometry." Winifred Sackville Stoner's nurse "while putting him to sleep would scan Virgil and other classical authors, instead of crooning the usual childish lullabys." Though not yet nine years old this last child "can carry on a conversation in five languages—English, French, Spanish, Latin, and Esperanto."

The fundmental mistake all through this article is the assumption that education consists in book knowledge. Book-knowledge is the smallest part of education, not even a reliable indication of it, often a hindrance. Let a boy begin to read books at three and instead of seeing things instead or giving his own imagination free wing, he will follow the grooves of other people's often unhealthy imaginations. What the child wants primarily in these years is to grow, and the parent is narrow who sets a fixed pattern for him to grow by. Granted that these children also play and seem healthy and enjoy life, as these parents are so eager to claim intellectually they are being hampered, not broadened, and they get false views of knowledge. Conversing in five languages at eight! That is easy enough it the vocabulary is limited; any child can learn to call for bread and butter and say she is sleepy in five languages, but how few of us can really converse in any language, even at sixty. Write plays at five! Hundreds of children do that, though their parents are too sensible to call them plays. Publish a book of poems at seven! Thousands of children make up verses at seven and are rightly encouraged to, but fortunately the parents are few who call the rhymes poems and print them.

As for graduating from college at fourteen, how little anybody knows of college life who thinks such a boy has had it. What wise college life to us who look back upon it forty years after, the recitations, the examinations, the diplomas. No, it was the groping after the serious things of life in company with a hundred other fellows of our own age and preparation, all seeking for the best and trying to construct a high ideal and live up to it. Norbert Wiener in his first year at Tufts, eleven years old, "wrote a philosophical essay on 'Critical Monism' that was highly praised by the late Professor James." Poor little fellow! And that sort of thing was about all he got out of college life, which ought to be a storehouse of memories of healthy companionship.

When a child is known to be surrounded at home with an unhealthy moral atmosphere, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children intervenes. Why should it not find such parental ideals so inimical to a child's welfare that it feels warranted in removing the child to wholesome surroundings? —School Bulletin.

THE PRIMARY LAW.

What Political Party Do You Train With?

The voters of both parties at the joint primaries to be held Tuesday, September 26, the sixth Tuesday before state election, will find conditions somewhat changed to those of earlier years in the past. The voter will be handed a ballot prepared and provided by the secretary of the commonwealth and no other ballots shall be received or counted.

Section 13. When, in a primary, a voter seeks to pass the guard rail, he shall be asked by one of the ballot clerks with which political party he desires to be enrolled, and the ballot clerk upon reply shall distinctly announce the name of such political party ballot.

The voter's selection shall be checked on the voting list used by the ballot clerk and such list shall be returned to the town clerk in towns, for preservation during the next succeeding five calendar years.

The party enrollment of voters on such voting lists, and all subsequent party enrollment of voters, shall be transcribed each year to the voting lists used at subsequent primaries, providing the names of such voters have been entered, in cities and in towns, in the annual register prepared from the assessors' lists.

Section 14. No voter enrolled under the provisions of this chapter shall be allowed to receive the ballot of any political party except that with which he is so enrolled, but he may establish, change or cancel his enrollment by appearing in person before the town clerk in towns, and requesting in writing to have his enrollment established, changed to another party or cancelled; provided, that such change shall not take effect until the expiration of ninety days after the voter so appears, and in case of cancellation the voter shall not be entitled to vote at any primary held under this act until the expiration of one year from the date of cancellation.

No voter enrolled as a member of one political party shall be allowed to receive the ballot of any other political party, upon a claim by him or circumstances enrollment, except upon a certificate to of such effect from the election commissioners or board of registrars, as the case may be, which certificate shall be presented to the presiding officer at the primary and preserved as part of the records of such primary.

Sections 15 and 16 provide for the counting of the votes, the secretary of the commonwealth notifying the successful candidates. In the case of a tie vote by all the voters of the commonwealth, the vacancy shall be filled by the state committee. In case of a tie vote for any office candidate the vacancy shall be filled by the ward and town committees.

The polls at every primary shall be open not less than nine hours in cities or two hours in towns.

The nomination of candidates for nomination at primaries shall be by nomination papers. In the case of senatorial and representatives the number of signers must equal in the total five voters of each ward or town in the district, or county, but in no case shall more than 250 names be required.

From and after the year 1912, none but enrolled voters of the party represented by a candidate shall be entitled to sign the nomination papers of the candidate.

"ACCOMMODATION" BRIDGE NO MORE.

The old arching toothbridge that once spanned the Middlesex canal on the Brooks estate is a thing of the past. Laborers with iron bars attacked the bridge about two weeks ago, separated stone from stone and one of the last visible relics of the waterway changed from a historical landmark to a memory only. During the first half of the 19th century it was in its greatest usefulness as a canal bridge, and since then has been an interesting feature of West Medford scenery, and a picture post card subject.

Real estate development of the Brooks land made necessary some disposal of the old bridge. In an effort to preserve it a small park was proposed, surrounding the bridge. Boston avenue, as extended, passed beneath the old arch and in order to make the avenue free from obstruction and for other apparent reasons in public improvement and progress the sentence of destruction was passed on the bridge.—Medford Mercury.

DENTAL WORK IN THE SCHOOLS.

Mass. Society Tells of the Work Being Done.

We have been much interested in reading the printed report of the Dispensaries Committee of the Massachusetts Dental Society presented at the recent annual meeting by Dr. Henry H. Piper, Chairman, of Somerville. The work done is classified under the following heads:—1. Hospital dispensaries. 2. Social service dispensaries. 3. School dispensaries. 4. Incidental work of the dental schools. 5. Charitable work of the individual dentist.

Under topic three the following extracts may be of special interest to our readers:

"So far as can be learned the school dispensaries of Massachusetts, strictly judged, number but three. They are at Somerville, Revere and New Bedford. The Somerville dispensary was established in March, 1910; the Revere in April, 1910 and the New Bedford in March, 1911. But, with these must be joined dispensary work at Winchester, established in April, 1910, which for enthusiasm, intelligence, method and efficiency, is not surpassed by anything the State can show, and a similar work at Norwood, which, however, is about to be centralized, in a room which is being fitted up at an expense of $500.

"The dispensary at Somerville is under the control of the school board. It is centrally located in a room in one of the grammar schools, is open three forenoons a week, is furnished with two chairs, two dental engines, a sterilizer, and material. Twenty-one dentists render services and at each clinic two dentists are in attendance who furnish their own small instruments. Several young women volunteered their services, and one from this group is present at every clinic to make re-appointments with the children and to keep the records. The selection of patients is made by the teachers, and the result has been satisfactory. The children are taken from the grammar schools in turn, and in each instance reappointments are made until the work is completed. The record for the past year (Sept., 1910, to May, 1911) is as follows:

Fillings (not including 92 treatments), 303.
Cleaning cases, 133.
Minor extractions, 119.
Receipts, $59.50, the charge being 50 cents for the first filling and 25 cents for subsequent fillings.

"The superintendent of schools and the school board warmly support the dispensary and through their efforts in consultation with the dentists, the conditions are gradually being perfected.

"The dispensary at Revere is in the High school building. The Revere Woman's Club contributed $150 toward its equipment. It is open Thursday afternoon of each week from 2 to 5:00. Four dentists give each a half day a month, and a member of the Woman's Club gives her time each week as an assistant to the dentist on duty. Six children receive attention at each clinic.

"Appointments are made by the clerk in the office of the school committee through the principals of the schools, but before any child is sent to the clinic the parent must sign an application requesting the service. Each child pays at the office before entering the operating room, 15 cents, which covers all the work which may be done that day."

"The dispensary at New Bedford is in New Bedford resembles the Somerville and Revere dispensaries, but it differs in certain particulars. It has a room in the office of the Board of Health, fitted up at an expense of $500 furnished by the city and is open to the dentist on duty. Six children receive attention at each clinic.

"Appointments are made by the clerk in the office of the school committee through the principals of the schools, but before any child is sent to the clinic the parent must sign an application requesting the service. Each child pays at the office before entering the operating room, 15 cents, which covers all the work which may be done that day."

"The work at Winchester has been elaborately developed. It differs radically from that at Somerville, Revere, and New Bedford in that the service, except examinations, is rendered at dentists' offices. The school nurse here plays a most important part. The following are a few of the regulations governing the dentist and the nurse:

"Pupils will be selected by the school nurse after consultation with the teacher and principal of the building. Not more than three cases will be taken to a dentist on his appointment.

"The school nurse will investigate each case as to the ability of the parents to pay the usual dental fees and in particular she will inquire whether the pupil's teeth have been filled previously and by whom.

"A charge of twenty-five cents pays for all the work for each pupil at each appointment.

"The school nurse will arrange to take each child to but one dentist. On the first visit the child must be provided with a tooth brush, and will be taught how to use it.

"Each dentist will keep a record of each child on card furnished by the school department for the purpose, and will hand the same to the superintendent at schools when the work has been completed, and for all the children treated at the end of the school year.

"The school nurse is to arrange for talks by dentists in all the schools, the talks to be brief and to consist of pertinent suggestions and specific directions for the care of the teeth.

"Addresses are to be made by dentists before bodies of older people, principals, teachers, etc.

"One cannot read the discussions which have been going on at Winchester without feeling how valuable—I had almost said how indispensable—a school nurse may become in dental dispensary work."

In connection with the foregoing we may add that for the last year or so a half our local dentists have each given one half day every school month to this work. We have known of the valuable service rendered and have not surprised that Dr. Phipps' report so highly. It may be noted that in Winchester the cost of the equipment has been much smaller than in the other places that the charitable aspect has been rendered less prominent, and that the pupils are led to feel a personal relation with the dentist who attends to each. It is believed that this feeling will encourage further visits to the same dentist when the children are mature and able to pay regular prices for their dental work.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the postoffice at Winchester a second-class matter.

The extensive publicity that is given in Woburn to some cases of infantile paralysis, is simply talking Woburn down. It only alarms the inhabitants and keeps people away from that city. A number of Winchester residents will not now go near that city, and will not even ride in the Woburn cars because of the scare. The real danger appears to be all in the publicity end of the situation.

Agreement Terminated.

In an editorial the Medford Mercury says:

"The indications are that there will be two candidates for the Republican nomination for representative from the West Medford-Winchester district,—Rep. Wilton B. Fay of Medford and Winfield F. Prime of Winchester. This year the nomination under the law is by direct vote, thereby terminating any arrangements or understandings that have existed. Any aspirant for the nomination has the moral as well as the legal right to run, from whatever part of the district he may come. This is the position taken by the Medford candidate and by many of his Winchester and Medford friends."

According to this editorial, the leaders of Medford Republicans have decided to abrogate the understanding that has existed for so many years, the pretext for doing so being the new primary law. It is well to know this so early in the game, as it gives the Republican voters of Winchester a chance to sit up and take notice. However, before deciding to sever political connections, it would have been only fair on the part of Medford Republicans if what the Mercury says is true, to have given at least a year's notice of what they intended to do and not spring it on Winchester after their candidate had served his two years. Representative Fay stands well in Winchester, and the above editorial is unfortunate unless the writer was absolutely sure that the statement voices the opinion of the leading Republicans of Medford.

MRS. WINN LAID AT REST.

Impressive services were held over the remains of the late Laura Mabelle Winn, wife of ex-selectman Frank W. Winn, at her beautiful home on Euclid avenue last Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The funeral was attended by a large gathering of friends and acquaintances of the deceased, both from this and surrounding places, and included the employees of the Winn Watch Hand factory of which Mr. Winn is one of the proprietors.

Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Reading Congregational Church, formerly pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town, conducted the service, coming to Winchester from his summer home at Machias, Maine. He spoke tenderly of the fact that Mrs. Winn had previously been a member of his Sunday school class, that he had performed the wedding ceremony, and touched feelingly upon her life and virtues, both as a mother, an artist and a member of Winchester society, one whose death had created a distinct sense of loss to the whole community. His every word expressed personal sorrow at the termination of the life of this young woman, whom he had known since childhood.

The gifts of flowers were extremely beautiful, the bier being banked with great bouquets of roses, lilies and green, all testifying to the love and esteem in which the departed was held.

During the service selections were sung by the Weber Quartette of Boston including, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

The pall bearers were Mr. Arthur F. Shattuck of Detroit, Mich., Dr. Benjamin Lewis, Mr. Walter H. Dotten and Mr. H. Earl Richardson. The interment was in Wildwood cemetery, the remains being laid at rest on a woody knoll facing the beautiful home on the east side hills which she loved so much.

MR. McCALL'S REASON FOR FAVORING MR. FAY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In compliance with your wish, I am entirely willing to state how I shall vote upon the representative question at the Republican Caucus. I am in favor of Mr. Fay, not because I do not have a very good opinion of Mr. Prime, whom I have known for many years and respect highly, but because I think that to nominate Mr. Fay is the thing to do under present conditions.

I am struck with the suggestion that a concession of the nomination to Medford this year would result in the nomination coming to our town the succeeding three years. Under such an arrangement Mr. Prime or Mr. Pond or some other Winchester man would have a chance at nomination three years in succession. Mr. Fay has made an excellent Representative. From the standpoint of the purely local interests of our town it has never had a better one and he has also done excellent work for the State as a whole. His two years of service will add to his efficiency if selected for another term and it seems to me that we are fortunate that he is willing again to serve us.

Sincerely yours,
S. W. McCall.

LANE PARTY LEAVES NEXT WEEK.

Mr. Charles A. Lane has planned one of the largest fishing parties for this fall that he has yet guided to the pleasure grounds of northern Maine, and no less than twelve couple will enjoy an outing of from two to four weeks at the well known Marr Camps. The fame and enjoyment of Mr. Lane's fishing parties has made them a feature of both summer and winter, and this well known gentleman is never at a loss for a gathering of friends to accompany him and participate in a royal good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane will leave town next Thursday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bradford of Cambridge street. On the 13th the following will join his party: Mr. and Mr. E. H. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Goss of Melrose. Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Pray of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kitheld of Swampscott and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goodwin of Worcester will join this party on the 20th, and Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway and Mr. and Mrs. James W. Russell, jr., will leave on the 25th.

The Marr Camps are located at Indian Pond, Maine, on the head waters of the Kennebec and are famed for their hospitality and excellent sport.

MARDI-GRAS AT REVERE.

Everything is in readiness at Revere Beach for the Mardi-Gras carnival, one full week of fun and frolic and pageants of all nations beginning next Tuesday, Sept 5, and continuing every afternoon and evening until Saturday, Sept. 9, inclusive. The committee of managers of the various amusement enterprizes along the beach have been hard at work for weeks and when the results of their labors is seen, the public will have many genuine and most satisfactory surprises. While there will be aquatic and athletic sports every afternoon, the big feature of the week will be the evening reception to the king and queen, Mr. Charles L. Ridgeway, proprietor of the Nautical Gardens has been elected king and he has chosen Irene Hile for queen. They will appear on a royal float and be escorted by the greatest mardi-gras procession ever seen at the North. There will be magnificent, electrically lighted floats representing the United States, Canada, France, Germany, Ireland, Scotland, Great Britain, Japan, Cuba, China, Sweden, Italy, Russia and Turkey and many foot features, banner bearers, one hundred horses and six bands of music. Every night will be a special night. Tuesday will be militia night, Wednesday, Lexington minute men's night, Thursday, Boys' Brigade night, Friday Veteran Firemen's night and Saturday night, automobile night. There will be special prizes every night. Gen. William A. Oakes, M. V. M., retired, has been selected chief marshal of the parades. It will be worth while going to Revere Beach during Mardi-Gras week.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Taylor of Washington street are stopping at Manomet.

BASE BALL.

One of the Best Games Ever Seen on Manchester Field.

The Winchesters laid low the Bennett A. A. of Somerville claimants to the state championship on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon, to the tune of three to one. It being their third defeat out of twenty games. It was one of the best games of the season, abounding in fast plays and sensational fielding, no less than four double plays being made. It ever a pitcher deserved a no hit, no run game that pitcher is Walter Whittaker. He had his fellow townsmen at his mercy, among whom was Knox, his catcher on Somerville High and Johnny Norton, captain of next years team. But for an unfortunate error in the ninth after two men were out he would have been listed among the no hit no runs pitchers. The Winchester team gave him excellent support all through the game and outhit the vistors nine to two.

"Stub" Earley making that sensational catch.

The Bennetts looked good to score in the first as three men reached first on base on balls, but fast fielding and a strike out retired them without a run. In the fourth C. Martis first man up struck out, then Johnny Norton landed on one of Whittaker's fast ones and drove it to deep left centre which looked good for three bases, but "Stub" Earley by good judgment and fast running got the ball on his finger tips, making one of the finest catches ever seen on Manchester Field.

In the seventh with Somerville rooters howling like mad, J. Norton got a base on balls and stole second, but Whit gave them the laugh when he struck out Cummings, Melvin, and Knox in succession. In the ninth Haley first man up struck out C. Martis fouled flied out to Murray who made the catch right over the players on the visitor's bench. J. Norton hit a hot one at Kenney who muffled and reached first safely. Leroy batting for Cummings beat a slow one to first. Then came the visitors only clean hit by Melvin who hit sharply over second base. The ball getting by Badger allowing J. Norton to score their only run. Knox wound up the game, going out Whittaker to Thornton. Winchester got busy in their first innings scoring two runs. Badger first man up drove out a two-bagger to left held. Went to third on Earley's single, Murray hit to short stop and was out at first. Badger tried to score on the play but was caught at the plate on a fine throw by Haley to Knox. Earley scored on Thornton's hit to C. Martis who threw badly to first, Thornton going to second. Kenney drove out a fine single scoring Thornton. Doherty ended the innings going out C. Martis to Haley. Winchester did not score again till the seventh. Foley got a base on balls, stole second. Flaherty flied out to left and Whittaker flied out to right. Badger rapped out a two-bagger to right, scoring Foley.

Murray almost reached home in the eighth.

The visitors pulled off a pretty play in the eight. Murray, first man up, singled, went to second on a steal. Thornton drove out a single to right held. Leroy, by a perfect throw to Knox just nipped Murray at the plate.

Then Knox threw to C. Martis getting Thornton trying for second. The features of the game for the visitors was the playing of J. Norton at short-stop and the catching of Knox. For Winchester, the sensational fielding of "Stub" Earley, the catching of Flaherty, Whittaker's pitching, and the all-round work of the whole Winchester team.

MEDFORD PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Medford Private School will begin the new school year, Wednesday, September 27, 1911.

The school consists of a primary and a grammar department with a course in French. The grades are similar to the grades of the public schools, and the Newton plan of study is closely followed.

The house, at the corner of Governors and Hall avenues, especially designed and built for the children, has proved most satisfactory for their use and comfort.

An early application is desirable as the number of children is limited. Address, Miss Grace M. Swett, 49 Governors avenue, Medford.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The first meeting of the local Union will be held Friday, September 8 at the home of Mrs. George H. Hamilton, the president, at 31 Vine street. A full attendance is requested as there is some important business to be considered. Delegates for the fall conventions are to be appointed and plans for the coming season for the Loyal Temperance Legion must also be laid. A new secretary must be appointed to fill the place of the present incumbent who leaves very soon to make a new home elsewhere. The next meeting being her last on duty in that position.

The meeting will be held as usual at 3 p. m., and members are asked to bring their thimbles.

"The Temperance Cause" is the title of the Bulletin of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, a very demure looking sheet that surprises the reader by being full of jokes as well as good temperance information. A recent number is most valuable because it gives the position of every town and city in the state on the license question, but a preceding number is full of stories to enliven meetings of temperance societies that sometimes err on the side of over-seriousness. John D. Long, former Governor, is the president and he is well known to be gifted with a sense of humor.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The attraction at the Boston Theatre for a limited engagement beginning Labor Day Matinee, Monday, September 4th will be the return of Klaw & Erlanger's massive production "The Round Up." The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round Up." It is the great American play of the hour. The magnitude of this production is such that it can only be played in a few cities in the largest theatres. Its present times [illegible] Season [illegible] [illegible] from Boston that a special [illegible] has been established for the exhibition of hand [illegible] of all orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed stamped envelope, receive immediate attention. Reports Indicate That Deserters Will Return

DEMOCRATS FIX UP SLATE

Insurgent Candidates Fight Democratic Machine—The Tariff to Be an Issue in the Fall Campaign—Protection Creates Opportunity For Labor

From all over the commonwealth reports come to Boston that there will be a great change in the vote cast for governor this fall. The voters have been thinking very steadily for a year now. It is said by those who have made a critical study of the situation that the Republicans who voted last fall for Eugene N. Foss for governor because of his declaration that his election would make a heavy cut in the cost of living have found out that they have been buncoed. They say that prices are as high today as they were last year at this time, and in a number of instances even higher. It seems to be evident that they have come to the conclusion that prices are high not because of the tariff, but almost solely by reason of the fact that the supply is not equal to the demand. Republicans denied that the election of Mr. Foss would make any difference whatever in the prices of the necessities of life. Voters either did not believe them, or else decided that they would see for themselves whether Mr. Foss was telling the truth, or not. Quite likely the governor will insist that he has not been given sufficient time in which to regulate prices. Nevertheless, he declared flatly that his election last fall would be the signal for prices to take a drop. A number of articles are higher in price today than they have been for a great many years, and dealers in farm products say they will go still higher by reason of the drought this summer and the short supply.

The Machine Is Still Supreme

The Boston Journal on Saturday printed a list of Democratic candidates for the state ticket which it says is backed by the Democratic state committee. The statement is also made that "The governor is responsible primarily for the slate from beginning to end. He selected David I. Walsh as his running mate, after two or three others had received encouragement. Edward D. Saxton is the present choice of Governor Foss for secretary of state. The governor asked him to run, and Mr. Saxton, feeling Republicans had not done their duty by the old soldiers in selecting a successor to William M. Olin, changed his registration from Republican to Democratic, and consented to accept the Democratic nomination." The other newspapers print similar lists, and declare that they are officially endorsed. Nevertheless, there are other candidates who seek the nomination. George W. Anderson and Joseph J. Leonard are out as Democratic candidates for attorney general. Frank J. Donahue is the Insurgent candidate for nomination to be secretary of state.

George W. Anderson has been a leading Boston lawyer for a number of years, and has served on the Boston school board. Frank J. Donahue is a newspaper writer, and was the legislative candidate for secretary of the commonwealth when Representative Albert P. Langtry, Republican, was chosen by the general court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Secretary Olin.

All the Republican candidates for governor have filed their nomination papers and the contest is now on.

The Tariff as an Issue

It is expected that the tariff will be a prominent issue in the campaign this fall. How protection works in some instances is interesting. In 1890 a new industry was born in the United States. It was the manufacture of tin or terne plates. This industry was fostered by increasing the tariff on tin plate from 1 cent a pound to 2.2 cents per pound. Democratic members of the congress which passed the McKinley act of 1890 declared that it was impossible to establish the tin plate industry in the United States. Republican members were so certain that it could be done that they incorporated in the act a provision that on and after Oct. 1, 1897, tin plates lighter in weight than sixty-three pounds per hundred square feet should be admitted free of duty unless it should be made to appear to the satisfaction of the president that the aggregate quantity of such plates produced in the United States during [illegible] Oct. 1, 1897. The [illegible] better than that every year. Previous to that date, however, the Democrats, having secured control of both branches of congress and the president, passed an act in 1894 cutting the duty on tin plates to a figure ranging from .7 cent to 1.1 cents per pound. A Republican congress in 1897 placed the duty at 1.5 cents per pound.

Tin Plate Industry Grew

Nevertheless, the growth of the industry continued. The production in 1890 was only 2,250,000 pounds. In 1891 is was over 42,000,000, while in 1892 it had increased to 123,606,000 pounds. The increase during the Democratic years was slower, yet in 1897 it had reached the enormous figures of 732,000,000 pounds. The last year given, 1907, showed an increase to 1,153,097,000 pounds. During all this time the importation of tin plates was rapidly decreasing. The imports amounted in 1890 to 1,036,000,000 pounds. In 1908 the imports had decreased to 140,739,000 pounds, and in 1909 to 117,000,000 pounds.

The department of commerce and labor announces that the imports for the present year will fall below 100,000,000 pounds. In the case of tin plate an industry was established without raising the price of the product, notwithstanding the fact that originally a duty of 2.2 cents a pound was placed upon imports. In 1884 the price of tin plates was 3.6 cents a pound. In 1892, with this duty on the product, the price of tin plates was 2.9 cents per pound. In 1897 the price was 2.3 cents per pound and in 1898 2.2 cents per pound. In 1908 the price was 3 cents per pound.

Thousands Are Given Employment

Not only that, but the United States has now become a large exporter of tin plate. In 1898 we exported 20,827 pounds; in 1899, 206,000 pounds, and 2,400,000 pounds in 1902. In 1910 exports to foreign countries were slightly over 26,000,000 pounds and 34,750,000 pounds additional to noncontiguous territory. For the eleven months ending with May, 1911, 99,300,000 pounds valued at $3,835,406 was exported from the United States, while for the same period the imports amounted to 91,557,586 pounds valued at $2,892,119. This shows an excess of exports over imports of 7,678,284 pounds. In other words, a great industry furnishing employment to many thousand men has been built up in this country without cost to the consumer.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

As next week will mark the opening of the regular theatrical season in Boston, a splendid programme of all-star vaudeville features has been arranged for B. F. Keith's Theatre, one that is remarkable alike for the number of novelties that it contains and for the number of acts that are new to Boston. G. Malasso, the famous French pantomimist and producer will present his remarkable terpsichorean spectacle, "Paris By Night," in which a large company of skilful dancers and mimics take part. Still another big novelty will be the Great Bell Family, Mexican musicians and singers, who give a complete show by themselves. Mrs. Gene Hughes and Co. in "Youth," will be still another headliner. Walter and Georgie Lawrence, late of "The Commuters," will appear in a new musical comedy entitled "Just Landed;" and still another novelty will be the Grey Twins in their exhibition of ancient Roman wrestling. Other big features will be Leo Carrillo, the mimic and entertainer, Ruby Raymond, in a new act, Marie Fenton, "the blonde in black," and La Toy Bros., acrobatic comedians.

CENSUS FIGURES.

A recent census bulletin gives some interesting comparative statistics on the population of Massachusetts. The population of Massachusetts under the thirteenth census of the United States, 1910, is 3,366,416, an increase of 20 per cent. in the past decade. Since the first census the population of Massachusetts has multiplied nearly nine times. Of the thirty three cities in the state, Marlboro is the smallest, with a population of 14,579. Brookline is the largest town in the state, with a population of over 25,000. New Bedford shows the highest percentage of increase during the last decade, namely 54.8 per cent., and Taunton the lowest, 10.4 per cent. Chelsea shows a decrease of 4.8 per cent. The total land area of the state is 8,039 square miles. The average number of persons to the square mile is 428.8. In density of population Massachusetts ranks second among the states, being surpassed only by Rhode Island. Suffolk county has the highest density, 14,340.9 persons per square mile, and Dukes county the lowest, 42.1. Worcester county has the largest land area 1,556 square miles, while Nantucket and Suffolk counties have the smallest land area, 51 square miles each, of the counties in the state.

ANOTHER QUOTATION
From the recent Saturday Evening Post Article. We should like to call to your Attention as Expressing Present and Future Plans of the WINCHESTER LAUNDRY.
"If you should go into a laundry representative of the ideals held by members of this association, you would marvel at the things you would see.
"You would find the air as pure and sweet as outside the building—the steam and odors carried off and fresh, cool air supplied by a highly efficient ventilating system.
"You would see that the floors are dry and clean, for the progressive laundry owner is a student of sanitation and hygiene.
"Machines nearly human in their dexterity and their light touch and careful handling of the clothes, would astonish you."

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXELL

IV.—Fighting Fear In Cloudland

[Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely. Copyright in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.]

FEW aviators will admit that they have any fear in flying. Yet I venture to assert that there isn't a man using an aeroplane today who does not feel a sinking sensation either just before he mounts his seat or shortly afterward or many times after he gets well into the air.

The late Leigh Johnstone exhibited less fear than any man I have ever known, yet he admitted to me that he frequently found himself on the verge of panic while performing some of his most dangerous evolutions. He, however, was the type of man who kept absolute control of himself, and he never allowed this feeling the upper hand. He unconsciously illustrated this power of control when shortly before his unfortunate end he told me one day of a plan he had of turning a back somersault in the air.

"I want to get up about 5,000 feet," he said, drawing a diagram on a piece of paper. "Then I will begin the somersault. The machine will go backward a certain distance until it loses the support of the air. Then it will drop straight down for about 3,000 feet. During that drop I shall manipulate my levers so that they will bring her right side up again, and I will glide to the ground."

Johnstone was perfectly serious about it. He admitted that he was afraid of it, but he was determined that he would do it.

Captain Thomas S. Baldwin is probably a seasoned a veteran of air perils as is any one today. For many years he went up at the world's fairs and expositions, doing the trick that has been the meaning of the word fear. Yet a friend of mine once assisted him if he ever felt nervous now, he replied:

"Of course to death every time I take my seat. Some days my toe hangs asleep, while I get her started. I am all right and the fear vanishes. But I am a lucky guy. I hear the motor going."

Different Forms of Fear.

Some men feel their greatest fear at the thought of the engine stopping suddenly and without warning. I have never been troubled by this, though I have had it happen to me several times. Each time, however, I managed to get down safely, and I have always felt that there was a good chance in favor of the aviator if he keeps his head and takes as gradual a slant downward as is needed to give him control of his machine.

I know several men, though, who have never got over their nervousness at the thought of volplaning, as they term coasting down without power. The slightest sound in the engine that hints of trouble puts them in the same panic that the thought of the fall of my aeroplane puts me when I am out for altitude records.

As a man mounts higher and higher into the air the familiar objects of earth fade from his sight and he becomes overpowered with a sense of being absolutely alone—of being cast adrift and dependent entirely upon his own resources and upon a power plant which he knows may fail him at any moment.

Up and up he climbs, and soon he enters the region of the clouds. He seems to be whizzing through an immense void with neither sides nor top nor bottom, and the unreality of it all and the immensity of it oppress him and the nerves begin their unpleasant little tremors that tell of approaching fear.

Then above the clouds he bursts into the glaring, brilliant sunlight, and here again he meets conditions that increase the nerve tremors. Sudden gusts of wind catch him. They are quick and dangerous just above the clouds on a sunshiny day, and they give no warning of their approach, so it means every faculty on edge to prepare for all kinds of contingencies, and the strain begins to tell. So one grits one's teeth and sits tighter and looks to the whirling propeller or the anemometer or anything to take one's mind off the loneliness and the vastness and his own impudence in coming up so high into a region in which he has no rights.

When Fear Laughs at You.

Up near the top of the climb, when the last few mad minutes of plunging and rising, pitching and rising, begin, fear seems to laugh at you for trying to keep it away from you.

Now the nerves are gone. They jump and strain, and you fancy you hear and see things, and then your fears concentrate on a noise behind you, and suddenly you realize that you are gone—the tail has come loose! It is rattling on its broken wires now, and at the next plunge it will be wrenched off completely and leave you helpless in the one awful straight drop down to the earth that is lacking under the clouds thousands of feet below you.

You take a quick glance over your shoulder and find the tail in first class shape. Something else is wrong. Your engine has developed a new note. It is missing. Then it picks up again, and you grit your teeth and shove her nose upward once more.

Finally the engine is overhauled before the aviator can realize it. It throws him back. Every nerve and every faculty is worked to the utmost to overcome the danger, and there is only a Rembrandtlike passing sensation of awful horror.

A Flight of Torture.

But once in awhile we do get caught under circumstances that make flying a long continued torture, and one of these times that I shall never forget occurred to me during the meet at Lanark, Scotland, a day or two before I made the world's altitude record. I rose gradually in big circles and was, I should say, 2,500 or 3,000 feet high when I suddenly heard above the sound of the engine an unusual and most disagreeable flapping sound at my left.

Circling along the front of the plane on that side, I was horrified to see that something was loose and was being torn this way and that by the pressure of the air, through which I was going at a rate of about sixty miles an hour. I was suddenly overwhelmed with the stupefying realization that the only thing it could be was a piece of the fabric with which the framework of the tail was covered and which gives the supporting surface of an aeroplane. To the layman the full import of such a realization cannot be understood in its full force. Briefly it meant that the cloth which alone held me in the air had begun to rip on that side, and I knew that at the tremendous speed at which I was going it would take only one good grip of the wind under such a small opening to tear the entire fabric from front to rear, whip it off the frame and leave me absolutely unsupported on that side to go crashing below.

All this flashed across my mind in an instant, and I made up my mind to turn about and try to get back to the aviation field.

I came down in as easy curves as I could because I did not want to put any extra strain on the torn fabric, and I kept my eye glued on that vibrating piece of cloth, fascinated, held spellbound by the problem of whether it would continue to vibrate without tearing until I got down another one hundred feet or so to comparative safety, or whether it was merely waiting until the last moment to give a final shrieking rip as though in a fiendish desire to tantalize me with false hope as long as possible.

I know that cold sweat stood out all over my body, and it was only by instinct that I worked the controls of my machine, for my entire mind was focused on that little flapping shred and all my thoughts revolved about that one question of whether it would hold long enough to let me get a little closer and have a chance for safety in the fall if the rip did come.

Blessing of Something to Do.

As I look back on it, I believe I never even noticed the jolting of the wheels when at last I touched the ground. Dumbly and by instinct again I had shut off the power on landing, bringing the machine to a full stop.

I sat in my seat as my mechanics came running up, and with my eyes still glued fascinated to the spot where I had seen the flapping cloth I waited for them. When one of my men came near I shouted to him to go over there and see what was hanging to the plane.

"I do not see anything," he said.

"Isn't there a shred of the cloth hanging there?" I asked.

He ducked under the plane and soon came up, holding in his hand a little piece of string four or five inches long.

"It wasn't a piece of cloth," he said, "it was just a bit of string that got caught in a bolt here."

Do not get the idea from what I have said that an aviator is more or less constantly engaged in fighting fear when he is in flight. As a rule, a man in an aeroplane is far too busy to think much of fear, especially when he is taking part in some meet. There are pylons or turning posts to be rounded, grand stands and inclosures to be avoided, outlines of ships to drop bombs upon, circles and squares to land in for accuracy and all such details that keep a man's mind fully occupied. The earth is near and flashes by at the rate of a mile a minute, and, more than likely, there are other machines in the air at the same time, and the rules of the "road" must be followed or there will be disqualification if not total smashup. So the aviator is too fully occupied in guiding his machine according to the rules to think much about the danger he is in, yet, oddly enough, it is in this very competitive form of flying that he is in most peril. In working by himself he is least in danger, yet he is likely to be more in fear, for he has more time to think of his peril and not enough to occupy his mind and so quiet his nerves.

Panic From Nothing to Do.

Before I had gone very far into aeroplaning I had an experience in the air which illustrates the point that the many things a man has to do while flying and think about for safety's sake, as a rule operate to keep his mind away from fear.

I had been well up in my Blériot several times and had felt very little nervousness when a friend in England invited me to accompany him and a party of guests on a balloon trip. As the ground sank away beneath me I tried to feel some of the thrills that I had felt in my good Blériot. But they did not come. There was no nervy handling of the motor, no stinging feeling of the wind, no sensation of power or control. Nature, nothing to keep me from fear that I was doing one of the work and that skill and courage were necessary to success.

It seemed that we were only hanging suspended by a fine thread to that all of us were only waiting for that thread to snap and the whole outfit to go crashing below to the far distant earth and to destruction.

I could not get out of my mind the sense of suspended fate—of helpless waiting for something awful to happen. I had never experienced it in my Blériot. There all was action. Muscles, mind, nerves were constantly occupied with the glorious battle.

I found myself looking at the ropes that suspended the car. They were all too thin and weak, it seemed to me, for the weight of such a party. I felt my nerves going fast. I felt the need of fighting something, of working, levers, of directing the thing, of doing something or other that would give me a chance. I was in a cold sweat, and my knees and teeth actually trembled. I knew it was silly, yet I could not help it. I was in a complete funk. The awful stillness, the oppressive calm, the sense of nothing to do and nothing to be done—all so different from the inspiriting struggle in a fighting aeroplane increased my panic every minute, and I was never before nor have I ever since been so glad of getting back to Mother Earth as I was when we stepped from the basket.

Review.

Golden Text—Depart from evil and do good; seek peace, and pursue it. Ps. xxxiv. 14.

The following review may be used as a complete lesson, or as a review of the nine preceding lessons. The date, and title of each lesson, where found, Golden Text, and one question from each lesson follow:

July 2. Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Sennacherib. Isa. xxxvii. 14-38. Golden Text. God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Ps. xlvi. 1.

(1.) Verse 15. Is it the privilege of every man to succeed all his haters, including those that give him trouble before the Almighty God, and if so what is the answer to so doing?

July 9. The Suffering Servant of Jehovah. Isa. liii. 1-12. Golden Text—The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. Isa. liii. 6.

(2.) Verse 12—What proportion of the kings of the ends of the nations look to, and honor Jesus as the Saviour of the world?

July 16. Manasseh's Wickedness and Penitence. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 1-20. Golden Text—Cease to do evil; learn to do well. Isa. i. 16, 17.

(3.) Verse 12—When the son of a good father becomes a bad man, can he ever be cast off?

July 23. Josiah's Devotion to God. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 1-13. Golden Text. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth. Eccl. xii. 1.

(4.) Verse 3—If a boy is not converted by the time he is twenty years of age, what are the chances of ever becoming a true Christian?

July 30. The Finding of the Book of the Law. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 14-28. Golden Text—Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Ps. cxix. 11.

(5.) Verse 19—Did Josiah rejoice any of the laws of Moses, and if so which? (See Matt. v. 38-44.)

Aug. 6. Jeremiah Tried and Acquitted. Jer. xxvi. Golden Text—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? Ps. xxvii. 1.

(6.) Verse 1-2—May all persons today with the goodness and ability of Jeremiah hear the voice of the Lord as plainly as he did?

Aug. 13. Jehoiakim Burns the Prophet's Book. Jer. xxxvi. Golden Text. The word of our God shall stand forever. Isa. xl. 8.

(7.) Verses 1-2—What advantage is it to us that men like Jeremiah wrote the history of God's dealings with his people, and that we have these records in the Bible?

Aug. 20 Jeremiah Cast into Prison. Jer. xxxvii. Golden Text—Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. Matt. v. 11.

(8.) Verses 1-2—When sin is working wreck and ruin, how do you explain that men live on in their disobedience to God, as Zedekiah did? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Aug. 27. Judah Carried Captive to Babylon. Jer. xxxix. Golden Text. Be sure your sin will find you out. Num. xxxii. 23.

(9.) Verses 1-2—When a historian gives the day, the month, and the year an event took place, and associates his facts with some other well-known fact, how much weight does that give to the credibility of his story?

VOL. XXXI. NO. 10. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1911. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

CHARLES F. CHURCH BURNED

Timely Discovery of Fire Saves His Life.

Mr. Charles F. Church was badly burned last Friday night at his apartment No. 516 Main street, and that his injuries were not fatal was due to the prompt work of rescue by the firemen. The house is located in the Lingler block in the centre, its entrance being through the open court in the center of the group of buildings.

A few minutes after eleven o'clock police officer Thomas F. McCauley, who was trying the store doors about the centre was at O'Connor's drug store when he noticed smoke in the direction of the railroad crossing. His first impression was that Sanderson's store was on fire, but when he ran out into the street he saw it came from the roof of the apartment over Holland's fish market. He ran to the apartment adjoining, occupied by Mrs. David Polley; and awakened her several roomers, then he went to the other side and aroused Mrs. John H. McCarthy. Officer M Cauley thought that Church's apartments were vacant, as he had been away, but it appeared that he had returned unknown to anyone during the evening.

When the other occupants were getting out they were attracted by the sound of breaking glass, and Church was seen hanging out of his window. Officer McCauley had meanwhile rung in the alarm and was in the centre to direct the apparatus. The women screamed to the first arrivals on the scene that Church was in his room, and as the building was filled with smoke his chances seemed slim. Ladders were raised at once from both the inner court and the outside, one squad of firemen going into the room through the smoke and another over the roofs from the front.

Church was found unconscious hanging out of a front window and was taken to the street. Meanwhile Irving S. Dane, hearing the cries that a man was burning to death, stopped a passing automobile and asked the driver to take him for a doctor. This was willingly done and Dr. Brown of Main street was on the scene almost as soon as Church had been taken out. He and Dr. Sheehy attended him. He was found to be painfully burned about the face, neck, shoulders and arms and was in considerable pain, the fresh air having somewhat revived him. After receiving the attention of the doctors he was taken to the Choate Hospital at Woburn.

It appeared as though Mr. Church had been smoking in bed and in some way set the bedding on fire. He managed to reach the front window through the dense smoke and break through the glass before losing consciousness.

The fire was confined wholly to the room in which it started, not much damage being done outside burning the bedding, although the flames had commenced to run up the wall when the firemen arrived. That Mr. Church was not more seriously burned or even burned to death was due to their prompt work of rescue, as until he broke through the window it was not known that he was in his room.

His condition is reported as favorable to a speedy recovery.

EXCITING RUNAWAY.

On Sunday evening, the horse and buggy of Mr. Wilton B. Fay of Medford, was standing in front of Mr. George C. Coit's house on Hillside avenue. The horse pulled off the top of the hitching post to which he was tied and started off down the street. The top of the post was dragged by the carriage frightening the horse and the taster he ran, the more frightened he became. When nearing the corner of Winthrop street he was going at such speed he was unable to turn the corner and consequently plunged over into Dr. Lowell's yard, where he fell down, the carriage turning completely over. Mr. W. L. Tuck rushed over and held the horse down until the owner appeared, when it was found that the horse was only slightly bruised and the carriage and harness somewhat broken. Fortunately nobody was in the carriage or a serious accident would undoubtedly have resulted.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

At a meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association held recently, the Hospital committee recommended engaging the Houghton house on Pine street at a yearly rental of $500 and taxes of $110. A second proposition was to take the Tyler house on Main street for five years. This house is considerably out of repair and it is estimated that it will take $5000 to place it in suitable condition for hospital purposes. The taxes would also have to be paid. This property belongs to Mr. Thomas W. Lawson and he generously offered the use of the house free for five years, the taxes to be paid by the Association.

To settle the queston, a meeting of the directors will be held at the headquarters in Waterfield building, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 12.

SPORTS CLOSE PLAYGROUND.

The Winchester playground on Manchester Field closes tomorrow after one of the most successful seasons since its opening. Last Friday afternoon about two hundred children participated in the program of sports and races which marked the final days for this summer. Attractive prizes were presented to the winners of the various events by Park Commissioner Charles A. Lane, which added much to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

The winners were as follows:

50yd dash for boys, 1st Elmer Gray, 2nd Roy Nowell, 3rd J. McGurdy.

Potato and spoon race for girls, 1st Beatrice King, 2nd Mabel Gray, 3rd Margaret Leahy.

Obstacle race for boys, 1st J. Boyle, 2nd J. O'Laughlin, 3rd J. Murray.

Of considerable interest to the spectators was the game of basket ball between two teams of the girls—the Reds and the Greens. The Reds won the match by the score of 10 to 2

Reds—Margaret Erskine and Frances Fitzgerald, goal throwers; Helen Fitzgerald and Helen Butler, guards; Emily Melaugh, Rita Goodwin and Mabel Hargrove, centers

Greens—Helena Crawford and Alice Flaherty, goal throwers; Katherine McGuire and Mildred Harrold, guards; Beatrice King, Elinor Melaugh and Elise O'Connell, centers.

The prizes awarded consisted of silver cups for the girls and watches and silver and bronze fobs for the boys.

HAMILTON—GANNON.

Thomas J. Hamilton of 24 Loring avenue and Mary A. Gannon of the Parkway were united in marriage on Wednesday evening.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter J. Roche at St. Mary's Parochial Residence at 7.30 p. m. Mr. Arthur McGonagle of Dorchester, a cousin of the groom, was best man, and the groom's sister, Miss Annie E. Hamilton, was bridesmaid. The bride was gowned in white net trimmed with Irish lace over messaline and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore grey mess lite trimmed with Irish lace and black velvet.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the residence on Loring avenue which was attended by about three hundred guests. Dancing was enjoyed on a platform erected on the lawn adjoining the house, an orchestra of five pieces being in attendance. At the close of the reception the couple were taken to the railroad station in a buggy by friends of the groom and given an enthusiastic send-off.

Many handsome gifts of cut glass, silver and furniture were received from the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, who, upon their return from their wedding trip will reside in Winchester.

The groom is well known in Woburn having played base ball with several Woburn teams during the past season. He is also a prominent member of the Loring A. C. of Winchester.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 5th, 1911.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present Messrs. Boutwell, Belcher, Pond and Daly.

Mr. F. E. Rowe was present in regard to condition of sidewalk on Vine street; Referred to the Supt. of Streets to report.

Voted, that the petition of the Edison Company for location of one pole on Foxcroft road be laid on the table for the present.

Signed petition of the Edison Company for location of 2 poles on Calumet road, subject to direction of the Supt. of Streets.

Warrants drawn for $3119.16 and $3279.50.

Presented by the Town Engineer, the new book for recording data of dust suppression and also for issuing permits to open streets.

G. H. Lochman, Clerk.

MRS. LYDON LOSES SUIT.

A verdict for the plaintiff in the suit of Nellie Lydon, widow and administratrix of the estate of John J. Lydon against the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., for damages for the death of her husband which occured Nov. 28, 1905, on account of a shock of electricity received by him was set aside by the full bench of the supreme court today. He was working with others in removing three moths from a red oak tree through which one or more wires of the defendant passed at Mr. Pleasant and Highland avenue.

The court says the case is a hard one but it feels compelled to say that there was no evidence warranting a finding that the deceased was in the exercise of due care when he was killed.

Mr. Lydon was employed by the Tree Department.

REPRESENTATIVE QUESTION.

An Earnest Contest Being Carried on in the District.

The question as to who will serve this district in the lower branch of the Legislature, has not undergone any change since last week. Mr. Fay of ward three Medford and Mr. Prime of Winchester are the Republican candidates, and their contentions will have to be fought out at the primaries to be held September 26. The holding of primaries is a new feature this year, and it is difficult to predict just how the new law will work out. It will be necessary in order to vote at the primary to announce what party a voter desires to be a member of. Having done this, a ballot of that party will be given him to vote with. These ballots will be furnished by the State.

The candidates having the highest number of votes at the primaries will have their names placed upon the official ballot to be used on election day. Aspirants for office can, as in the past, if they so wish, take out nomination papers and have their names placed on that ballot. The only question of uncertainty regarding the successful working of the primary is the amount of interest taken by the voters in attending and declaring themselves. The Town Clerk will open the primary during hours that he thinks most convenient for the voters, and the polls may be kept open two hours or more, but not less than two.

Regarding the Winchester-Medford situation there seems to be much interest all over the district. Reports come to Winchester that many of the voters of ward six of Medford are not very enthusiastic over giving Mr. Fay of ward three a third term, as it postpones for four years their opportunity to choose a candidate.

Ward six is considerably larger than ward three. This feeling, if it exists, will only be known after the primaries have been held, although Mr. Prime has been informed that it is quite strong and that he has been assured of many votes. In the past it has been the custom to give Winchester two years, ward six two years, then back again to Winchester, then ward three and so on, so it will be seen that ward six has a real grievance, and does not look upon the proposed move with much enthusiasm.

There are two more candidates for the office—Mr. Callahan of Winchester who will run independent and a gentleman from Medford who will be the candidate of the Democratic party.

Regarding the success of Mr. Prime or Mr. Fay, friends of both candidates are hopeful of success. However, this much can be said, many Republicans of Winchester are not in favor of giving Mr. Fay a third term, believing that the selection of a candidate properly belongs to Winchester.

MASON—IRELAND.

Miss Eunice Ireland of Washington street, was united in marriage Thursday evening at North Conway, N.H., to Dr. Nathaniel R. Mason of Boston. The parlors were decorated with wild flowers and greenery and masses of foliage.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. David Adams Pearson of North Conway assisted by Rev. N. Alexander Merritt, jr., of New Brunswick, N. J., a classmate of the groom at Yale. Benediction was pronounced by Rt. Rev. E. M. Parker, Bishop Coadjutor of New Hampshire. Dr. John T. Williams of Boston was best man.

The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Stephen Ireland of Worcester, was gowned in white chiffon over white messaline with court tram, trimmed with rare lace and beads. She wore a veil caught up with lilies of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

At the conclusion of the wedding breakfast and reception Dr. and Mrs. Mason left by automobile for a bridal tour.

The bride is a recent graduate of the Charlesgate hospital. Dr. Mason is a Yale man of the class of '97 and the Harvard Medical school in '01 after which he served several appointments in hospitals. In August, 1904, Dr. Mason entered upon private practise.

The bride is the daughter of the late Rassellas W. Ireland of Winchester, and she resided with her mother on Washington street.

PLAY ROVERS SATURDAY.

The Rovers, the all-College team which played here so acceptably last month, will again meet the local nine on Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon. The previous game was won by the Winchester team, but a fine exhibition of base ball was put up by the visitors, and as it was their second game as a team they have improved considerably in the meantime, and one of the best games of the season is looked for tomorrow.

The line-up of the Rovers will be as follows:—Frye p, Donahue c, Hann 1b, Gibson 2b, Coon 3b, Wingate ss, Babson lf, McCarthy cf, Hoey rf.

WINCHESTER FAITHFULLY REPRESENTED.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I note in your editorial column of August 25th the statement that "for the past two years Winchester has been practically unrepresented in the legislature." I think this remark does an injustice, unintentionally, to Mr. Fay. Having had an opportunity to observe something of Mr. Fay's work as a legislator during the past two years I desire to record my belief that the interests of Winchester have been faithfully and efficiently taken care of by him. During many years prior to his first nomination and election, Mr. Fay was active in politics and many Winchester men have reason to appreciate the service rendered to them personally, and to the Republican part, by him. In this way he acquired a wide acquaintance with men in public life and occupies a singularly effective place in the councils of the party. In the eyes of Republicans, at least, this should not be a demerit. His district, Winchester included, has had the benefit of this acquaintance and influence.

In his first session Mr. Fay was made a member of the committee on ways and means, and this year has been on the committee on Counties, etc.

In the session just closed Winchester has had three important matters before the legislature, viz.: The bill to give the State Board of Health jurisdiction over the Aberjona river and its tributaries; the bill relating to the Grade Crossing Abolition, and the bill to ratify and confirm the action of the town in adopting the Park Act, so-called, and all of them, because of unusual circumstances, called for special work to secure their admission and prompt passage, particularly the last named. Mr. Fay was, in my opinion, in each instance singularly efficient.

It is true in the legislature as in congress that the longer a man serves the more influential he becomes, and it is an advantage to the Town of Winchester to have a representative who can take an influential position in legislative matters. Mr. Fay should be even more efficient the coming year. For myself, I should prefer to keep a man in the House indefinitely, without regard to residence, if found able and willing to serve. But if rotation must be observed then the arrangement by which Mr. Fay is to receive a third year, and a Winchester man three successive years, is of advantage to the town.

In any event, as there is to be a contest, let the facts be correctly stated, so that the voters may make their choice understandingly.

Yours very truly,
Ralph E. Joslin.

WINCHESTER ORCHESTRAL ASSOCIATION.

Season 1911—12.

The Winchester Orchestra will begin the work of its third season Monday, October 9th, when the first of the regular weekly rehearsals will be held. The first concert takes place Tuesday, December 5th and a most interesting program is being arranged by the Music Committee.

Nearly all the old members of the Orchestra have signified their desire to continue in the organization and several new players have made application for membership. The standard of work required by the committee is being raised each year and Winchester may count on three excellent concerts this coming season.

The Executive Committee would be glad to have all former subscribers, who have not already sent in their names, do so as early as possible, in order to complete the membership list and arrange for the drawing of reserved seats well in advance of the first concert date.

There are a few Associate Memberships still unhilled; application for them may be made to the Secretary, Mr. Sylvester Taylor, or to members of the Executive Committee, viz., Messrs James H. Dwinell, William C. Newell, Preston Pond, William D. Richards and W. H. W. Bicknell. Associate Membership dues are $5.00 for the season and entitle the member to two reserved seats at each of the three concerts to be given. Members desiring extra seats, should apply for them before October 1st.

W. H. S. NOTES.

An informal meeting of the boy's athletic association was held at recess on Wednesday. Harold Meyer, vice-president of the association, introduced Mr. Clifford A. Watson, who immediately made himself popular with the boys in a short talk he gave before the meeting.

The first foot ball practice was held Wednesday afternoon. Several candidates reported to Mr. Watson and Capt. Emery. Among those who reported were: Ill and D. Dunstan, Hall, Elliot, Small, Rogers, Farnsworth, Stanbridge, L. Clark, Cutting, Neiley, R. Thompson and I Symmes.

WINCHESTER PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Winchester Private School will re-open Wed., Sept. 13, 1911. The school is for boys and girls from five to fifteen years of age. Pupils are prepared to enter grades in the Public schools of other private schools. The aim of the school is individual attention.

Parents desiring further particulars will please communicate with the principal, Miss Ella M. Emerson, A. B., 28 Church street. Tel 623-W.

MR. FAY SHOULD WITHDRAW.

Bad Feeling Engendered by His Candidacy.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

From the articles published in your issues of the STAR for the last two weeks on the Republican Representative situation of our District, and from what I learn in talking with Republicans about the same, it is certain that bad feeling has been engendered by the "arrangement" referred to in said articles and this condition is to be deplored when one recalls that for the many years (over forty) that Winchester and Arlington and Winchester and the two Wards in Medford have been banded together in a single Representative District, never before has the two year agreement been infringed upon; and it seems to the writer that the present is a poor time to stir up dissension within the Republican ranks, there being a Democratic Governor and a Legislature dangerously near Democratic control.

It is particularly unfortunate that Mr. Pond after circulating his nomination papers and having them completed for filing should have withdrawn the same, especially as he was assured by many of the Republicans voters from our town (and the writer was one) that he would have no opponent and the field would be clear for his nomination and election; the present candidate, Mr. Prime himself, called on Mr. Pond and assured him that he would not be a candidate and pledged his support to him if he was to be a candidate, and had Mr. Pond carried out his original intention Winchester would have had its Representative in accordance with the agreement and custom which has existed ever since the District was formed.

Had the men of our town who made the "arrangement," attempting to give our present Representative a third term, been on their job, as Winchester has a larger Republican vote than the two Wards in Medford, thus controlling the situation, it they should have insisted that Mr. Pond have the office for the coming three years, in fact for the next four years, of the present term, (if the theory be true that three years service is better than two, then must it be equally true that four years service is better than three) and I submit that such a course would be entirely justifiable after reading the editorial in the Medford Mercury, which would repudiate all agreements, and when one recalls the fact that Winchester could have had the Representative for the past sixteen years, had she taken the tactics that the above editorial advocates.

It is the understanding of the writer that the so called "arrangement" made for Mr. Fay's return this year carries with it the support and pledge of those making it of Mr. Pond's candidacy for the succeeding three years. This is causing dissatistaction and ill feelling, for by this "arrangement" what becomes of the promise and pledge that was made when Mr. Fay ran his first term, that if Ward 6 whose Republican vote is larger than that of Ward 3 (the Ward in which Mr. Fay lives) would then support Mr. Fay, that Ward 3 in turn would support a Ward 6 man as candidate for Representative in 1913, and by this same "arrangement" how are other Winchester men left, who have an honorable ambition to serve our town in the Legislature.

The writer has talked with three Winchester Republicans who would like to represent the District in the Legislature, each of whom did not hesitate to express his dissatisfaction with the so called "arrangement" as being most unfair and prejudicial to their interests in this particular.

Mind you I have no quarrel with Mr. Fay; I quite admire his part of the "arrangement" and if Winchester had no candidate this year he would have the cordial support of the Republicans of our town as in the past; but Winchester has a candidate in Mr. Prime. Mr. Prime has the support and endorsement of the Republicans generally of Winchester; he is a man not without Legislative experience, for he was chosen a member of the Legislature when living in Boston and in the opinion of the writer, Mr. Prime, if nominated and elected, will render efficient service to the District and State. A Boston paper stated last week that Mr. Fay was an enthusiastic supporter an I a member of the Committee to boom Mr. Cushing of Boston for the Speakership of the next House, and Mr. Fay gave as a cogent reason why he should be given a third term that Mr. Cushing was chosen Speaker of the next Legislature that he (Fay) would receive appointments on prominent committees. Important if true, but appointments to prominent committees as a reward for political activity in behalf of a chosen Speaker must yield to efficient service by any member.

Mr. Fay at the present time is a member of the Republican State Central Committee, which committee is trying more than ever at this time to allay dissatisfaction where it exists in the party, and if he would be true to his duty and not belie his obligation to that office he will withdraw his nomination as a candidate for the Legislature for a third term. By so doing he will put an end to the ill feeling which the so-called "arrangement" has created and restore the political situation in our Representative District to its heretofore unruffled condition.

Let the Republicans of our Representative District now, as they have in the past, fight the fight; let us keep the faith.

Respectfully yours,
Fred Joy.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Mabel Hendrix of Otego N. Y., teacher of English at the High school, is at her home for an indefinite period owing to the illness of her father, who is not expected to recover. Her position is being filled by Miss Marion E. Sweet of Wellesley, '07, for the past two years in charge of English in the High school of Phoenix, N. Y.

Miss Shirley T. Brown of the High school teachers of Latin, Algebra and Speaking, has not taken up her duties owing to sickness. She is expected to resume work the latter part of the month, and her position is filled for the present by Miss Myrta Little of Westville, N. H., recently a teacher in Radcliffe. Miss Little is a graduate of Colby, '08.

Miss Carrie L. Mason, principal and teacher of grade 6 at the Wyman school, has not resumed her duties owing to sickness. She expects to return shortly to her home at Riggsville, Me., with Miss Mary J. Hills, who is on leave of absence. Miss Mason's place is being taken by Miss Marion A. Frost, a graduate of Bridgewater Normal School, '06, and a teacher at that place since her graduaton.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A little youngster of The Spectator's acquaintance had been in swimming and when his mother asked him if he had disobeyed her he falsified the truth whereupon his mother cautioned him against fabricating. "Why do you encourage me to tell falsehoods?" was the startling question the little fellow put to his mother. When asked what he meant by such a question as that, he said that mothers encouraged their little boys to tell lies because they ask them every evening if they have been in swimming during the day.

Are there any human icebergs? Of course there are. No community in this broad land of ours is free of human icebergs. The Spectator agrees with Cardinal Gibbons that "there is nothing more repulsive or chilly than the human icebergs who go about chilling those about them with their cold, haughty demeanor." Every reader of The STAR knows the sort of man or woman to whom reference is made. Enthusiasm in a human iceberg is to him an awful disease against which he is to guard himself. He would as soon think of jumping into Spot Pond as he would think of putting his arm about his fellow or of planning something on purpose to make that fellow happy. He is absorbed in himself and does not see why anybody else should wish consideration or attention. In his presence a person of generosity feels as if an extinguisher had been placed over his head. It is bad enough to run into such a man in the light. But it, entirely unsuspecting, one meets him face to face the result is about as happy as when a steamship in the dark hits an iceberg. Don't be an iceberg. Be a center of good nature and good cheer.

On more occasions than one citizens of Winchester and other communities have complained to The Spectator about the growing independence of the younger generation in their attitude toward rights of property and the comforts and conveniences of society. The Spectator thinks he may safely say that the young people of today are less regardful of the rights of others than were those of a quarter century ago. The Spectator does not believe that the new juvenile law met with the success that its promoters hoped for when they suggested it. The idea of it was to prevent making criminals of boys through court arraignment, but there seems to be just as much danger in that direction by allowing the young people to go unrestrained, and with a full knowledge of the inability of the officers of the law or of private individuals to inflict punishment upon them. It has come to such a pass that the law does not allow a man to protect his own property. The Spectator might cite here a case in a nearby town where a man was fined $50 for ejecting from his premises a boy who was caught in the act of robbing fruit trees. Of course there was a technical violation of the law, but it seems hard that a man has no right to protect his own property, and that when he does complain to the authorities and ask for protection the marauders are tenderly nursed and admonished and allowed to go free to commit the same identical crime. The Spectator believes that if parents could be made to suffer for the acts of their children there would be a different story. There would be more discipline in the home, of which every person will concede there is a lamentable lack at the present time and the bad boy would receive his punishment at home the proper place for its administering. The Spectator is convinced that the present juvenile law is working more harm than good. Police officials and those who make a study of sociological problems do not believe it, either, and the best the more ardent advocates of the law can say is that we will have to await the future to see whether or not it will be as successful as had been hoped for. From the present standpoint it has not been the wonder which its promoters had wished.

A reader of the STAR sends The Spectator a poem the caption of which is "The Folly of Pride." He does not claim its origination. It is excellent and The Spectator is going to reproduce it here as requested:

If a man who was climbing a ladder should scorn
Each rung as he left it below,
Should break it or crush it, and say to himself
"It is upward I'm striving to go,
And the rung that I've passed is a useless thing now,"
You would pause as you went through the town
And laughingly say to the man, "You are up.
But how will you ever get down?"

Then, supposing that man should make answer to you
"My friend, I am up here to stay;
Had I thought I should ever have need to come down
I shouldn't have thrown them away.
What is a rung that's beneath me, I ask,
When once I am up at the top?"
You would laughingly shout as you went on your way
"Well, I won't be here when you drop!"

How is it with you? Are you climbing today?
Do you scorn the old friends that you knew?
Do you turn from them now with a tilt of your head,
Because they no longer help you?
Should adversity come, for the friends of your youth,
You would look and to them you would call;
But you threw them away in your pride when you rose,
And I say will not be there when you fall.

"Did you know that Winchester was once under water?" asked a man of another the other day. "It simply goes to show that you can't hold Winchester down," was the reply of the other with much civic pride.

A gentleman tells The Spectator the story of a certain little lady who had a severe cold. She held up a rose to the nose of her mother and asked:—"Does the rose smell sweet, mother?" The mother replied in the affirmative and asked her daughter if she couldn't smell it. "No mother," came the answer, "my nose is dead."

A very sacrilegious woman informs The Spectator (who is an ardent church man, be it known) that the Bible is most helpful to her because the baby sits on it at the table, and it saves the price of a high chair.

A gentleman who has lived in about two dozen towns gives The Spectator to understand that the meat on sale in Winchester markets cannot be equaled anywhere. Winchester has a great many things to be proud of but her marketmen are the best there is and The Spectator is glad he lives in such a community.

The Spectator agrees with his friend the philosopher that there might be more well-doing if there were less ingratitude.

A physician gives The Spectator to understand that while the death rate of persons under 40 years of age has markedly deceased since 1880, the death rate of persons over 40 years of age has markedly increased. He explains this to The Spectator as follows: "One reason is that science has done comparatively little against the non-communicable diseases. Then medical science has nursed along weak constitutions which in earlier periods would have succumbed in infancy or adolescence, and has carried them across the boundary of middle age, but has not been able to assure them a ripe old age. A third reason, of course, is the increasing complexity of life, which brings heavier burdens and stresses and overwhelms some persons as soon as the impetus of their youthful vitality is spent. A fourth reason is that people do not replenish this vitality and prepare for the problems of middle life." There is really nothing cheaper than the attainment and preservation of good health. Fresh air and sleep are nature's free gifts, and healthy activity a normal impulse of the blood, while it costs less to eat properly than to overeat.

NEW SCHOOL LAWS.

The following new school laws may be of interest to our readers although they will not modify the previous customs in our school department:

Chap. 232.

An Act Relative to the Display of the United States Flag on Schoolhouses.

The school committee of every city and town shall provide for each schoolhouse in which a public school is maintained and which is not otherwise supplied, a United States flag of silk or bunting not less than four feet in length, and suitable apparatus whereby the flag shall be displayed on the schoolhouse building or grounds every school day when the weather permits, and on the inside of the schoolhouse on other school days. Failure to observe this law for a period of five consecutive days upon the part of the master or principal in charge of the school at the time, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five dollars for each period of five days of such negligence, unless such failure is caused by the school committee in not providing the said master or principal with a flag, in which case the said penalty shall be imposed on those directly responsible for the failure so to supply the said master or principal. Said penalty shall be imposed by any court of competent jurisdiction within the commonwealth.—Approved April 5, 1911.

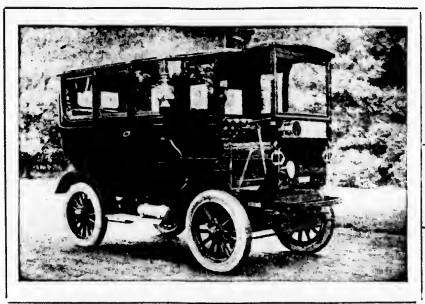

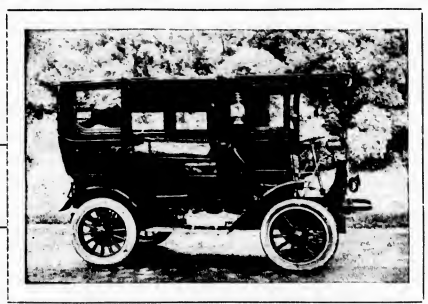

Chap. 241.

An Act to Define the Duties and Powers of Superintendents of Schools.

Section 1. The superintendent of schools employed in accordance with section forty-six from both divisions of section forty-four of chapter forty-two of the Revised Laws, shall, under the direction of the school committee, have the care and supervision of the public schools, and shall be the executive officer of the school committee. He shall assist the school committee in keeping its records and accounts and in making such reports as are required by law.

Section 2. The superintendent of schools shall recommend teachers to the school committee, and shall also recommend text-books and courses of study to the school committee.—Approved May 13, 1911.

D. L. Woods, a clerk in the war department, furnishes the following statistics in relation to the pension roll: "A total of 2,275,806 were enlisted on the Union side in the Civil war, and all but 19,000 were less than 21 years old. The war was won by boys. To be more specific, 1,000,000 were between 18 and 21, 500,000 were 18, 300,000 were 17, 165,000 from 14 to 15, 50,000 were 13, 225 were 12, 58 were 11, and 25 were babies of 7 years. The war closed 50 years ago. If the average soldier was 2 at his enlistment and 25 at the close of the rebellion, he is only 71 years old now, and his wife may be much younger."

John T. Cosgrove reports the sale of the house at No. 6 Blind Bridge street, owned by Jonas A. Laraway, to P. E. Fitzgerald.

A lot of small boys, perhaps twenty-five in number, were noticed last Friday afternoon playing cards on the Playground. We understand that this is a common practice among a number of young and older boys, poker and other games of chance being played daily. The boys play on the outside strip of grass between the drive and railroad fence, a portion of the field over which the local park board has no control. While these boys may have a right to play cards, irrespective of their age, the Playground is hardly a proper place, especially to play for money. It is hard for the police to stop this card playing, as they may be seen by the boys in plenty of time to stop and scatter.

The new iron fence at the railroad station was finished last Thursday, and on the evening of that day an automobile backed into one end of it, bending it badly out of true. On the same evening something happened to the two Joaer rails in the middle of the fence, they being pushed to the ground.

Newsy Paragraphs.

M. Frank Eastman, aged 64, deputy sheriff of Middlesex county for 18 years and one of the heaviest taxpayers of Melrose, dropped dead at his home in Melrose, shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

The cottages owned by Mr. A. C. Stearns at Great Diamond Island, Portland harbor, narrowly escaped being burned Saturday night. That evening marked the close of the season there, and as a fitting climax to that event a dance was given in Elwell Hall. Shortly after midnight fire broke out in this building and owing to lack of water it was completely destroyed. Showers of sparks settled on the roofs of the near cottages and it looked as if they were doomed to destruction, but when all hope had been given up a heavy storm accompanied by hail and rain set in drowning out the flying sparks. Mrs. Stearns and daughter were in one of their cottages at the time, and were making all haste to save what they could. A fire-boat sent from the mainland, because of low tide, could not approach near enough to the shore to be of service.

America's Best Music Library.

Growth of the "Allen A. Brown Musical Collections" at Boston Public Library. How the Generosity of a Hub Business Man Provides for Music Students' Needs. Finest All Around Music Library in the Land.

Boston, Sept. 9, 1911.

Adding to the Hub's facilities for musical education Allen A. Brown, a Boston business man who some years ago gave to the Public Library the "Allen A. Brown Collection of Musical Literature," has returned from his annual European trip during which he picks up works which he thinks may interest his city's musical people. Mainly in consequence of Mr. Brown's enlightened purchasing for the community's benefit the New England capital is able to offer to the thousands of music students who register each year at its Conservatory and at the various other schools and colleges of the vicinity the advantages of the best all around musical library in America.

Other collections excel in possession of exceptional treasures. The Library of Congress at Washington has certain rarities and freaks of musical literature which no other library has. The New York public library not only has a creditable working music library but some very expensive treasures of antiquity which it owes to millionaires' munificence. Other public institutions have begun to collect in this field. Yet for general, comprehensive usefulness the Allen A. Brown collection is said on good authority to be the best of its kind. Although it contains its share of unique and curious works the additions, as the Public Library trustees have recently noted, are "chiefly prompted by a desire to keep the Library abreast of musical progress here and in Europe."

Mr Brown in 1895 turned over to the Library his collection of 6,656 musical scores, manuscripts and books. Since then he has made additions at the rate of two or three hundred works a year until the department, with accessions from other sources, now numbers more than 12,000 volumes. Gaps are all the while being closed up. Thus Mr. Brown's purchasing this summer has been largely in the interest of a partially filled Russian alcove. The modern Polish and Russian composers, as everybody knows, are taking a prominent part in European music, hence the determination that they shall be adequately represented at Bodwell with full scores. Many of the Russian works thus secured have never been played in the United States. Other treasures secured in 1911 include full scores of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" and Leoncavallo's "Mala."

Mr. Brown's contributions of recent years to the Library's equipment have comprised such valued collections as one of 175 manuscript scores of masters of the Italian school, with works by Rossini, Meyerbeer, Bellini, Cimarosa and others; forty symphonies of Haydn in manuscript (copied by Dedievez), and many other rarities which he has been so fortunate as to secure. Recognizing the essential kinship of the musical and histrionic arts Mr. Brown last winter presented the Public Library with his remarkable collection of 3,500 volumes relating to the stage. These benefactions obviously entitle him to a place among the philanthropists whose generosity has helped to make Boston a leading musical centre and the foremost seat of musical education in the United States.

The needs of a city which entertains thousands of music students appeal to influence Mr. Brown more than any other one consideration. Director George W. Chadwick of the New England Conservatory of Music, where upwards of 2,800 pupils acquire professional education in music, frequently makes suggestions to the donor of the Brown collection concerning works which would be useful to students of musical interpretation or composition. These suggestions have usually been followed.

The Allen A. Brown Music Library, in consequence, favorably located as it is in commodious rooms at the Public Library building in Copley Square, serves as a Mecca for serious minded music students from September through June. It is a recognized "big brother" to the convenient and well selected working library of about 2,700 works at the New England Conservatory building a few blocks up the avenue. The music school has at hand for quick consultation the various standard things, the Breitkopf and Haertel complete editions of Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Mendelssohn and Palestrina, English cathedral music, modern orchestral scores, modern operas in pianoforte score and all the customary reference books and magazines. It has a few unique possessions such as the original manuscript sketch of Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande," bound in vellum, the gift of Eben D. Jordan, Esq., and the wonderful choral library of the famous Boylston Club containing more than 400 vocal works. Whenever a student's investigations carry him beyond the information available at the Conservatory Library it is only a few steps down to the most complete musical library in America. Of the many people who use the Brown collections in the course of a year a large proportion consists of Conservatory students.

Returning from Europe Mr. Brown confirms a report that it is increasingly difficult for an American to secure important original musical works because of the exorbitant prices asked. The French composer Missonet's scores, for example, can not be bought at any price to-day. Such institutions as the Boston Public Library are, therefore, fortunate when they have had the services of men like Mr. Brown who began to amass musical treasures before the present future of collecting began.

A GREAT AID IN TEACHING.

"Cheerfulness is an important factor in the teaching of young men and women," said H. E. Hubbard, one of the most prominent commercial educators in Boston. "Efficiency depends largely on cheerfulness, and cheerfulness on sunlight and fresh air. Remembering this we planned the Bryant & Stratton school building on broad lines, leaving a large open area in the centre for the entrance of sunlight and fresh air and, even though the students may not be conscious of it, the advantages of such an environment are undeniable."

The plan of individual teaching adopted first by the Bryant & Stratton school, offers each pupil an opportunity entirely independent of any other. His instruction and graduation are a personal matter, depending entirely upon ability and application.

This school does not send solicitors from house to house seeking pupils, as is the custom with many schools. Its patronage comes unsolicited. The superior intelligence of its pupils in general does not respond to such methods.

The loyal expression of the thousands of graduates from this school serves as its highest recommendation and is worthy of the consideration of those who would profit by the experience of others.

WHY NOT IN CALIFORNIA.

"Give the women of California a square deal. They want the ballot. Why? Because those who obey laws should have something to say as to their making.

Because those who pay taxes to support government should be represented in the government.

Because those who have charge of the home and the children must be able to protect them.

Because business working women need it for their protection. Women have full suffrage in Australia, New Zealand, Norway, Finland, Zurich (Switzerland) Portugal, Iceland, the Isle of Man, Tasmania.

Women have municipal suffrage—in England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Canada, Natal (South Africa) British Honduras, Denmark, Sweden and Kansas.

Women have full suffrage in Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, Idaho, Washington.

Why not in California?"

Why not in Massachusetts? Why not in every state? Why not all over the world where women are realizing their helpless condition because of political restriction. Why must all this splendid effort women are making to secure simple justice be needed to accomplish that end, when it might be utilized, in cooperation with the efforts of earnest men, on equal terms, for the world's betterment in so many other directions? Truly a difficult question to answer.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

In consequence of the present epidemic of infantile paralysis which has appeared in Woburn the following words by Dr. William C. Hanson acting secretary of the State Board of Health are not out of place.

Dr. Hanson says that there is no cause for alarm or an impression that there has been an undue spread of the disease.

One of the doctors of the State Board has been to Woburn and reports that while all neccessary precautions for the spread of the disease must be taken that the public have no need to fear a serious epidemic.

The local department bulletin says that while infantile paralysis is becoming more common and more widespread of late years, one must bear in mind that there is a possibilty that this is because the disease is better known and more frequently recognized, especially in obscure cases.

The figures given by the past few years are as follows:

1907,	234 cases
1908,	139 "
1909,	923 "
1910,	553 "
1911,	111 cases to date.

MAINE BOYS.

Their Prominent Parts in the Affairs of the United States.

Contributed.

Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the House at Washington, inquries significantly, in connection with the death of Senator Wm. P. Frye, what is the training which Maine gives to her boys? He says:—"When I first came here, Maine had four representatives in the House. In the 55th Congress one of them was Speaker, another was the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, another was chairman of Naval affairs, and the fourth was chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds and they had a vast deal to do with the running of the House,—more than was pleasant to the rest of us, but greatly to the credit of the State of Maine." Many years ago Hon. George Evans of Hallowell, Maine, was a United States Senator. It was said, that Daniel Webster with all his wealth of understanding and splendid reach of intelligence, declared that Evans was an uncomfortable match for himself in the discussions of the great matters which came before Congress. The clearness of view, the easy grasp of complicated relations and the statesmanlike presentation of great truths in eloquence and power, clouded and eclipsed Webster's own great successes. The above mentioned city in memory serves,—was the birth-place of the family of Lovejoys, one of whom was a valant advocate for righteousness in Congress, for several years. A brother was the Lovejoy, in Alton, Illinois, who in the defence of his office building, when he dared defy the power of slavery was shot, and his printing press thrown into the street in 1837. Another brother was an eloquent preacher in the city of Cambridge, Farmington, Maine, was the birthplace of John S. C. Abbot, and Jacob Abbot, the former, the author of a life of Napoleon First, and the latter the author of several volumes of history, very valuable and attractive which Abraham Lincoln declared were the source of all the historic knowledge he had. Jacob Abbot, wrote also some excellent books, upon practical, moral and religious topics, which had a wide popularity for generations ago, and are remembered with praise and gratitude. General Oliver O. Howard, who was a native of the town of Leeds, in Maine was distinguished in the Civil war for valor, patriotism, and a quick understanding of movements and the purposes of the enemy. At Gettysburg and Atlanta and the battle of Seven Pines, where he lost an arm, he showed high soldierly qualities. As other remarkable soldier from Maine, who, by General Grant, was made a Major General on the field of battle, the only instance of the kind in the war, was J. Lawrence Chamberlain of Brewer, afterwards Governor of Maine.

When the War came on he was a professor in Bowdoin college and without any military training was made Colonel of the twentieth Maine Regiment. He fought in twenty-six battles and was wounded very seriously at Petersburg where Grant conferred upon him the above merited distinction. He was one, if not the hero, of little Round-Top at Gettysburg. As the rebels pressed up to that point with terrific yells and confident persistence, the twentieth Maine was ordered down over the rocks and through the small oak tree to meet the assault, when some one cried out, "our ammunition is gone, Colonel." Then, said the resourceful soldier, "give them the cold steel,"—and the valant warriors went down the declivity with effective might, and with others sustained the defence of the hill, while Barksdale below wounded and dying, wrote with blood on his handkerchief. "Tell my wife we died fighting like hell." At Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville and the Wilderness the contest was severe and terrible and the final scenes were centering at Petersburg, where for months the odds of the contest seemed to flit from side to side.

On the rebel side, at one time there was an array of the southern army, a line of artillery and infantry, formidable and compact. The commanding general wanted it broken and swept down. It was a frowning promise of difficulty and death. After a thoughtful consideration of the frightful problem, it was concluded, it anybody could do the work, it was General Chamberlain, who, with his men, was ordered to the dreadful ordeal. Noise and smoke and shouts and horror and groans and death began and sustained the onset, and a murderous bullet struck General Chamberlain, who went on toed into the battle. He put his sword into the ground before him and steadied himself with it, that his men might not be discouraged by his fall. His brave men pressed on to a grand success, in their work of breaking and removing the obstructing line. It was known that Chamberlain had fallen and two men with a stretcher were ordered to bring him out. They found the General and were ready to take him up. He said "It is likely that it is all up with me. You take the other wounded men out and leave me." They replied "That they had been ordered to find and bring out General Chamberlain, and they must do it." At the hospital a skillful physician named Holbrook of Palmer, Mass., did what he could for the time and sent the wounded man up to Washington, and I am told that General Chamberlain now resides in Portland, Me., and is 87 years of age. A simply magnificent man.

Something ought to be said of the consummate speaker, Blaine, who in a service of six years and all the turmoil of contending men in the House of Representatives in Washington never made one error in parliamentary rulings. While not a native of Maine, he spent most of his active life as a citizen of that State. He missed the high honor of gaining the Presidency, while a change in any one of six matters would have given him that distinction. The day of election was a very rainy one. The Delmonico banquet, the alliterative of Dr. Burchard, the three dreadful R's, the vote of the Prohibitionists, the offence which Utica, the home of Roscoe Conkling felt, because Blaine called him a "turkey gobbler" and the action of John Y. McKane. We hope Maine will sustain her high place by sending able men to sit in the councils on the nation. How she trains her boys must be some wise and honorable way.

Professor Charles Zueblin's communication in the STAR two weeks ago regarding a questionable play being given at a theatre in Boston, was caustic and, no doubt, deserved. The suburban papers rely upon the censor in Boston for the suppression of harmful productions and as this one met with his approval, we supposed it was proper to advertise it. The Editor of the STAR exercises a watchful care over everything that is to appear in its columns, both as regards news and advertising; but we regret to say there are times when we are mistaken. Humanity is bettered by such men as Professor Zueblin.

Edwards & Poor are installing the hot water heating for the Kelley & Hawes new garage and stable.

The regular annual meeting of the Athletic Association will be held in the Assembly Hall at recess on Monday. Every boy is requested to be present.

Mr. Gene B. Farrow and family returned yesterday from Weymouth, N. S., where they had been spending their vacation. Mrs. Farrow and children had been there since July. Mr. Farrow joining them two weeks ago. They all had a fine time among the genial Nova Scotians who provided for them the best the land afforded.

Miss Maud Swan of Taunton, formerly of this town, was visiting friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McEwen and family returned Thursday from Maine, where they have been spending the summer.

New electric lights have been placed on the east side of the tracks at the station.

Parents should note that the telephone of the Principal of the High school is 69AW, as given in last week's STAR. The office of the Superintendent of Schools is in the Prince school. His hours are from 8 to 12 a. m. and 1 to 5 p. m. daily and from 7 to 8 p. m. Thursday evenings.

Mrs. L. C. Pattee has returned to Winchester from Masconia Lake, Enfield, N. H.

James Higgins, pitcher for the all Woburn nine surprised even his Brother Painters by his exhibition of whitewashing on Manchester Field, Monday afternoon, but remember Jimmie is a good man with the brush.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy W. Witherell are the parents of a little daughter, Edith Blanchard, born on Monday.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Miss Helen Ware will begin the second week of her engagement at the Hollis St. Theatre next Monday evening in George Broadhurst's new play "The Price." There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. "The Price" is a modern drama in three acts and Henry B. Harris has selected the company to support Miss Ware with such care that an absolutely perfect performance of the play is given.

The stage settings are in perfect accord with the unusual play and its performance.

Those who remember Helen Ware as Annie Jeffries in "The Third Degree" will realize that as an emotional actress she has power excelled by few players on the stage today.

The company is composed of players of established repute and includes Harrison Hunter, Jessie Ralph, Warner Oland, Margaret McWade, George W. Barnum and Gertrude Dalton.

Thus Saith The Teacher.

The following was written by one of our public school teachers, and no doubt will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all the teachers and also many others who have returned this week from the country and seashore:

Vacation now is over, and I'm back to school again,
Back to days of "plans" and programs, back to work with book and pen.
Two days of the school year over, and I'm planning for the third,
Here I sit with pen and pencil, have not written yet a word.
As I plan for forty children, plan the work that they must do
Somehow country scenes are mingled with the things of nearer view.
As I plan for mathematics, I can see a silvery lake,
How the waters sparkle' glitter' and the sunset colors take!
When I turn the pages over for the grammar we must learn,
I can see a woodland pathway with the golden-rod and fern.
Lists of words, that for our spelling must be used to-morrow morn,
Find me listening to the bird-songs and the rustling of the corn.
Ah! Vacation with its quiet, and the restful outdoor days!
Summer skies! and woodland beauties! we can always sing your praise!
We would ever keep within us pictures of these scenes so fair,
Brightening up the dreary moments, when the days are full of care.
And, though hard to leave the freedom of the summer out-door air,
There's a pleasure in true service,—pleasure which we all may share.
Let us meet the work before us, with new zeal and courage true,
Doing with a loving service what this year shall bring to view.

CHAPIN PLAYGROUND.

One of the happiest places in Winchester this summer has been the yard of the Chapin School building, which, a year ago, "The Fortnightly" equipped as a "Supplementary Playground," furnishing swings, a slide, a basket-ball court, covered sand boxes and various movable games and providing a "Director."

Five swings have been added to the equipment this year and Mrs. Walker and her assistant Miss Holmes, have won the hearts of children and visitors, alike. The courteous conduct of the boys and girls even while playing enthusiastically, has spoken loudly for the playground principles taught in many ways by these ladies. During the term of the Vacation School, the pupils enjoyed their morning recesses on the Playground, and the afternoons saw many of these children return with friends of all sizes.

Often parents would come with their little tots, and it was good to see their pleasure in hearing the babies laugh in the nursery swings, as they dug in the sand or watched brothers and sisters play games.

Much interest in base ball was shown by the girls as well as boys; basket ball was well liked; quoit and a bean bag game were played by teams besides the usual way: group and singing games were used successfully and stories had eager listeners.

After the close of the "Vacation School" the Playground was open both morning and afternoon, and there was a combination of work and play. It was most gratifying to see the great interest in raffia, sewing and cane-seating, and also to find the work well done. Thirty-one chairs were re-seated.

The morning attendance on Chapin has been from forty to seventy-five children and the afternoon attendance has varied from fifty-five to one hundred and twenty-five; the boys always outnumbering the girls.

From many sources come expressions of appreciation and gratitude, and it was with reluctance that the Chapin Playground was closed last Friday noon. Later that day on Manchester Field, the boys and girls enjoyed the "Meet" arranged by our local "Park Board" and the Directors who have carried on that Playground most successfully this year.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The Maine election that is to settle whether the prohibition law is to continue will be held next Monday, September 11th. Many unions are to observe it as a day of prayer and as September 10 is Temperance Sunday there is likely to be a strong incense of petition in favor of the outlawing of the saloon.

MEDFORD PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Medford Private School will begin the new school year, Wednesday, September 27, 1911.

The school consists of a primary and a grammar department with a course in French. The grades are similar to the grades of the public schools, and the Newton plan of study is closely followed.

The house, at the corner of Governors and Hall avenues, especially designed and built for the children, has proved most satisfactory for their use and comfort.

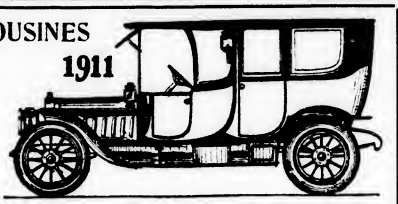

An early application is desirable as the number of children is limited. Address, Miss Grace M. Swett, 49 Governors avenue, Medford.

GIVE OTHERS A SHOW.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I see by your last week's paper that the Republican Town Committee is to be the same next year as for the past years. Why don't we have a change? Six years ago I got fourteen men on the voting list and two men to take out their naturalization papers. I tried to get Mr. Coit to help, but he never took any interest. I have told him about one man who wants to get out his final papers, but that is all the good it does. Let's have some new blood in the committee; about all it does is to make up lists of delegates to conventions, sending the same men right along. Why not give some others who are willing and do work, a show?

William J. Stevenson.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION.

Mr. Theodore P. Wilson,
Winchester STAR.

Dear Mr. Wilson:—Let me express my appreciation of your putting my letter in the STAR. It was rather a stiff communication, and I think it showed fine courage on your part to print it on the editorial page.

With continued good wishes for your success in conducting a community organ.

Yours cordially,
Charles Zueblin.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends who helped me in the diamond ring contest.

SPECIAL OFFICER AT TRACKS.

Chief McIntosh of the Police Department, has arranged that an officer will be assigned to duty at the railroad station when pupils are going to school from 8 to 8.30 in the morning and from 12.45 to 1.15 in the afternoon and when they are going home at 11.45 a. m., and 3 p. m.

This additional provision for the welfare of our school children will lessen the fears of many parents and will be generally commended. The presence of the officer will lead pupils to exercise greater caution in the ordinary passage across the tracks and in any emergency will be of particular service.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The romance of "The Rose of the Rancho" will be succeeded by the farcical humor of "Her Husband's Wife" at the Castle Square. This play was originally produced in New York by Henry Miller last season, and it made an immediate success. It will be given by Mr. Craig at the Castle Square for the first time in Boston, and it promises to create a genuine sensation.

The cast will be as clever as the play is lively. Two of the principal roles, that of a wife, and a society woman, will be played by Gertrude Binley and Mary Young. The husband will be acted by John Craig, and in the other leading characters will be Morgan Wallace, Walter Walker, George Hassell, Al Roberts, Mabel Colcord and Florence Stanley. "Her Husband's Wife" is certain to be an event of the season at the Castle Square.

BASE BALL.

On Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon the Winchester's defeated the Bay Views in the rubber game, six to nothing. The visitors were unable to hit Whittaker safely and did not get a safe hit until the sixth inning, and only two more the rest of the game, making three in all. It was Winchester's seventh straight victory. The Winchesters played their usual fast game in the field. In the sixth Flaherty pulled off a double play that was worth going miles to see. Fitzgerald reached first on a safe hit. Walsh hit a pop foul which didn't go more than fifteen feet in the air to the right of homeplate. Flaherty dove under the ball and threw to first doubling up Fitzgerald. At the bat Winchester pounded the ball all over the field driving Conley the star pitcher out of the box, and touching McCarthy their south-paw up quite freely. Winchester scored one in the first on a single by Thornton and a slashing three bagger by "Dropper" Kenney which landed in the river by the Band stand. In the third they scored one, two in the fifth, one in the sixth, and one in the seventh. The features of the game was the excellent work of Winchester's stat battery, Whittaker and Flaherty, the hitting of Thornton, Kenney, and Flaherty, who got three hits in four times up, and the sharp fielding of the whole team.

Winchester played a doubleheader on Labor Day. In the morning they tourneyed to Woburn for a game with No. Woburn. In the afternoon they played the All Woburns on the home grounds losing both games. As usual the "Holiday Hodoo" was in evidence. Winchester for some reason or other can't seem to win on a holiday no matter who they play. In the morning Winchester was weakened by the loss of Doherty their crack short stop on account of death in his family. It not being Whittaker's turn to pitch was also a great loss. Trotman, a likely pitcher, was in the box and pitched good ball for three innings. In the latter part of the third and the first part of the fourth the support he got from the local boys was enough to discourage any pitcher. He was taken out in the fourth and Whittaker replaced him with the score tied one out and two on bases. From that on Whittaker held the N. Woburns in check, they getting only three hits off him. In this inning Winchester suffered another loss when Flaherty had a finger nail torn on his right hand and had to quit, making another big swtt in the team. Winchester started in like a winner having a lead of three runs to nothing. In the third and fourth innings as the umpire says he might they liked up and No. Woburn took the lead five to three. There is no doubt in the judges' stand was transferred from Squantum to Library Park that some of the Winchester players would have been awarded a prize for going up in the air the highest, such batting, fumbling, and throwing has not been committed by the boys all season. The only redeeming features of the game was the pitching of Neil Doherty, who after Winchester had him going like an ships came in sight and the crowd got on the playing field and delayed the game half an hour while it gave him a chance to settle down and get his spit ball working, which looked the local boys, and the hitting of Flaherty who tripped out a two-bagger and a single in his only times at bat. Manager Rupp was so anxious to win he ran the bases on Neil Doherty in the fifth and was put out at third on a bonehead play, then took his wrong turn at the bat in place of the weak hitting Crocker which was clearly in violation of the rules, but it got him nothing as Whittaker gave him the laugh when he fanned the air.

In the afternoon Winchester met the All Woburns, a big husky lot of fellows, with Higgins a clever south paw in the box. They played a clean snappy game and held Winchester to their first shut-out this season. Higgins seemed to be their tower of strength with his fast shoots and drops which the local boys could not fathom and only got four safe hits and eleven of them fanned the air. Winchester played their usual snappy game in the field, making several fast plays, one a double in the fourth. With one down and a man on second and first the batter drove a hot one down third base line which Murray made a fine stop of and touched the bag for a force out, then threw to LeDuc at first getting the batter. In the third W. Kenney hit a sharp grounder to right field which Foley got with each hand and shot the ball to first for a putout, robbing the batter of a nice single and completing a play seldom seen. LeDuc broke up a squeeze play by coming in fast and fielding a bunt to the plate and getting the runner. The loss of Flaherty in this game was greatly felt; with his hitting and throwing the result might have been different. Whittaker pitched a fine game and kept the hits well scattered and through no fault of his did Winchester lose. It is doubtful if any pitcher be he boy or man can equal Whits record this year. Before coming to Winchester he won 8 and lost 1 to Somerville. High, and has won 10 and lost 2 for Winchester, a total of 18 wins and 3 lost.

NINETY-INCH BALLOT.

Congressman McCall who has been writing a magazine article on the initiative, referendum and recall, has some very practical exhibits of what the practice of such reforms mean at the election booth on election day. Some of these he will take with him to Massachusetts, where there is some agitation to establish similar legislation to help along the intelligence of the voters.

One especially interesting exhibit is from South Dakota and is the ballot used by the voters of Hughes Co. in November of 1910 and in which the voter was to express his "yes" or "no" with respect to six laws passed by the legislature and which were referred to the voters for final approval.

The ballot contains nothing but these laws, which were printed in fine type about five newspaper columns across the whole ballot, having a length of 90 in. or 7 1-2 ft.

The laws proposed made some very hard reading and additionally it made the voter read what amounted to a whole page of newspaper it not more in less than five minutes. Here was legislation by expedition indeed. And as Mr. McCall said:—

"The laws as proposed in themselves are sufficient to make the wisest of statesmen pause to understand them, to say nothing of the obvious confusion they would throw the voter in as he tries to pass upon them with intelligence, but with instantaneous reading and judgement."—Washington correspondence in Boston Record.

STRONGER FOR IT.

Candidate Joseph H. Walker seems to be "up against the machine" in his political aspirations and does not hesitate to say that "Active organization men are generally against me, and as a fact their opposition is helping me as much as it is hurting me in the campaign."

Here are the reasons given for opposition:

"Because he favored direct nominations which weaken the power of the organization.

"Because he criticised Senator Lodge for his attitude in Canadian Reciprocity.

"And "because he ventured to run for governor without a course of training as local mayor, governor and without first getting the permission of those same organization men."

There is little doubt but what Speaker Walker is stronger to-day than a few weeks ago and it is just such "machine" politics as this that is driving the Republican party in the National, State and local elections. The rank and file of voters do not care to be led by those in control of offices and it is to them that Speaker Walker is now making his appeal.—Natick Bulletin.

PRIMARY NOMINATIONS

Papers Are Filed by Both Parties In the State

HARVEY N. SHEPARD LEFT OUT

Democrats Are Charged With Deserting Him, but Make Denial—Mayor Fitzgerald and the Fire Department —New England Industries in Danger

The primaries in this state will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 26, for the nomination of candidates of both parties to be voted for at the state election on Tuesday, Nov. 7. The papers of all the candidates for state offices on both tickets were properly filed with the secretary of the commonwealth with one exception. That was the case of Harvey N. Shepard of Boston, Democrat, who was understood to be the machine candidate for attorney general. Through some oversight, not enough names were secured in Essex county to validate the nomination of Mr. Shepard. It is understood that this matter had been left by Mr. Shepard to his Democratic friends and they failed to secure the requisite number in Essex county, although in three other counties the required names were secured and filed. The list filed from Essex county lacked a considerable number of fulfilling the requirements.

Some of the friends of Mr. Shepard feel that he was intentionally thrown down after he had been invited to be a candidate and encouraged to believe that the leaders desired his name to go on the ticket. Just what was behind the scheme of the leaders in allowing Mr. Shepard to fall by the wayside has not yet developed. At any rate, a sore spot has been left where there was no necessity for one. George W. Anderson was one of the other candidates, and it is said that the leaders will now unite on him, as he has filed a sufficient number of names to enable him to go on the ballot. Joseph J. Leonard of Boston is also a candidate.

Political Experts Are at Sea

Political experts seem to be all at sea in regard to how the state-wide primaries are going to operate. Only in a few cases they have a pretty definite idea of who are to be the party nominees to be voted for at the state election. Under the convention system it was possible to make a fairly accurate prediction in this respect. As this is the first time the voters will use the state-wide primaries system, the experts do not feel at all certain what is going to happen in any case where there is a contest, and they do feel that the results will depend a good deal upon the size of the attendance at the primaries. While the three candidates for governor on the Republican ballot are each claiming the nomination, the best posted political prophets are still in a state of uncertainty as to the outcome. After the system has been in vogue for a few years it may be possible to judge of the issues of a contest in advance, but it does not seem possible to do that today.

Mayor Fitzgerald Is Determined

There seems to be a good deal of dissatisfaction in Boston over the attitude of Mayor Fitzgerald on the subject of the fire department. While he was in Europe there was a strong agitation in favor of more men in the department, on the ground that it was woefully undermanned. As a matter of fact, it was not a new subject at that time, for many months before he went abroad the mayor was asked by prominent business organizations of the city to bring the department up to its needed quota of men. Nothing came of the agitation while he was abroad, but when he returned he denied the contentions of the business organizations. Instead of doing anything to remedy the conditions, he announced that he would appoint a committee of five to investigate the department and report as to its needs. He has appointed four members and asked the board of fire underwriters to appoint a fifth man. This body has now declined to do so, on the ground that the whole subject has been thoroughly canvassed by the National Fire Underwriters and the report issued, which they say is unquestionably in the hands of the mayor at the present time. It is said that the mayor is much disappointed at the refusal to appoint, and his next move is awaited with interest.

Harris Warns of Perils

Congressman Robert [illegible] Harris of the Fourteenth district has sounded the alarm in regard to the [illegible] policy now [illegible] Democrats. He [illegible] that [illegible] Democrats would prefer to make the campaign in the state this fall on local issues alone. The more the tariff is discussed in this state, the more the purpose of the southern Democrats will become apparent to the workers of the commonwealth. Republicans say that when the Republican party has been in power, it has treated the south with as much fairness as the north, so far as protecting its industries are concerned. Nevertheless, when the Democratic party secured a lease of power in 1892 it seemed intent only on cutting off the protection from northern industries and placing it on those of the south.

High Food Cost Universal

The politicians in Massachusetts have been much interested in the last few days in the dispatches from France, describing the riots there over the high prices of food. This information shows conclusively that the cost of living is not a problem confined to the United States, and that it has nothing to do with the tariff. Prices are shown by recent consular reports to be high, not only in free trade England and Holland, but also in every other civilized country. As the Massachusetts commission on the cost of living reported last year, it seems to be due to varying elements, one of which has been the short supply, which has not equalled the demand; a more elaborate mode of living; the enormous amounts of gold produced, and a decrease in its purchasing power. Thus far, the election of Governor Foss seems to have had absolutely no influence whatever upon the cost of living, unless it has been to increase it. Prices today on many articles of food are higher than they were last fall at the time of his election.

DISTRESSFUL CONDITION.

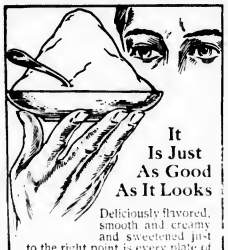

Dr. Theodore Smith, the pathologist of the State Board of Health, went away from Woburn astonished at the state of public mind which could tolerate such conditions as exit in North Warren street, says the Woburn News. He expressed himself as being distressed at the methods of quarantine employed; and gave it as his conclusion that cases of infantile paralysis were not sporadic but that the disease was epidemic in Woburn.

Dr. Smith said that the prolonged wet weather had been of great benefit to the community in preventing the further spread of the disease but that a spell of hot weather even at this late stage in the season might be followed by many recurring cases.

Dr. Smith was extremely reticent about talking for publication, feeling the seriousness of his responsibility towards the state board of health. What the nature of his report to that body will be, is perhaps, faintly outlined by his impressions voiced before leaving Woburn, and it is possible that his findings may be accompanied by some practical recommendations.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another all-star vaudeville show is announced for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, one that abounds in novelties and with the same wealth of headline features that is making the current week memorable in the annals of this popular resort. Rose Coughlan, one of the cleverest actresses on the legitimate stage, will appear in a new romatic sketch entitled "Between Matinee and Night." One of the most pretentious novelties in all vaudeville is Joseph Hart's "Bathing Girls," a tabloid musical revue in which a dozen scenes of dazzling splendor are unfolded, a host of pretty girls take part in lively songs and dances. Ray Cox, "the girl from Dixie," will bring her famous imitations, including "The Baseball Girl." A genuine novelty will be Stately and Birbeck in their great transformation act, and other big features are Wynn and Rawson, the rah rah boys; Ali Grant and Ethel Hoag, "Something doing all the time;" Joe Kelsey, the nirthful man; and Heyden Brothers, acrobats.

ANOTHER QUOTATION

From the recent Saturday Evening Post Article. We should like to call to your Attention as Expressing Present and Future Plans of the WINCHESTER LAUNDRY.

"If you should go into a laundry representative of the ideals held by members of this association, you would marvel at the things you would see.

"You would find the air as pure and sweet as outside the building—the steam and odors carried off and fresh, cool air supplied by a highly efficient ventilating system.

"You would see that the floors are dry and clean, for the progressive laundry owner is a student of sanitation and hygiene.

"Machines nearly human in their dexterity and their light touch and careful handling of the clothes, would astonish you.

ARE FOUNTAINS SANITARY.

People Don't Know How to Use Bubble.

A Wakefield man complains of the unsanitary condition of the drinking bubbles in that town, and conditions there hit Winchester so nicely, that we reprint his complaint taken from the Wakefield Item:

"I wish," said a Main Street business man yesterday, "that you would publish something in the Daily Item that would give some people (yes, 95 per cent. of the people) some idea as to how to drink from the fountain in the square."

This business man called attention to a situation that has been often observed by the press representative of whom he made the request and by many others.

Are the new "sanitary" drinking fountains in this town or any other—really sanitary?

Is there not reasonable ground that the new law passed in this state a few months ago is fattening the bank accounts of the manufacturers of the drinking fountains and of "sanitary" cups at the expense of the public health?

Some noon or evening when you have a few leisure minutes, or when you are waiting for your car, watch those who go to the fountain in the square to quench their thirst and observe how they go about it.

The Main street business man was not exaggerating when he declared that 95 per cent. use it improperly and in a manner that endangers the health of those who may come afterwards.

The gist of argument when the new law was passed was that people affected with tuberculosis or other contagious diseases used the common drinking cups and made infection liable.

The bubbling fountain is supposed to eliminate this danger. But does it? Nine out of every ten place their lips close over the outlet, as if drinking from a bottle, and then turn on the water. They do not remove their lips from the outlet until they have loosed the flow of water, with the result that any mucous or filth, such as tobacco juice, is drawn with the receding stream into the pipe and may be forced forth into the mouth of the next person who will probably drink in the same manner.

It is not a very clean subject to discuss but it is a question of vital importance and the spade must sometimes be called a spade.

Not only does the danger exist in this form, but the same person who claps his mouth over the whole outlet many also leave germs on the outside of the cap. Allowing that public drinking places have or do breed contagion, is the old drinking cup any worse than this? Before, the average person rinsed out the cup or dipper before using it. Now he cannot be careful if he wishes, unless he takes along a piece of sterilized gauze and a bottle of disenfectant.

The proper way to use an intermittent bubbling fountain (that is, one in which the stream of water is turned on by the drinker but no cup used) is to first turn on the water and then drink from the stream itself.

Up on the common, conditions are worse than in the square. There is a fountain of the stationary cup style—worse by far than the fountain with the cup and chain, for it cannot be rinsed.

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

V.—Bumping the Bumps In the Air

(Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely. Copyrighted in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.)

To the man on the ground flying in an aeroplane looks like the smoothest sailing in the world.

Under ordinarily favorable weather conditions the air craft seems to skim along on a perfectly even keel and without the slightest deviation from a straight line, and that is possibly one reason why the average man thinks that the life of the aviator must be one constant succession of pleasant and exhilarating experiences.

Air conditions 500 feet from the earth are vastly different from those 5,000 feet up. The lower layers of the atmosphere are endlessly smooth and easy to sail upon and offer none of the unpleasant surprises which we get as we go higher and higher. There is nothing in the first 500 or 1,000 feet to look out for except the vagaries of the wind, and these can usually be pretty well forecast from the indications on the ground before starting and from the conditions met in the first few minutes of flight.

But up above that, in the realm of the scudding mists and the drifting fringes of clouds, where one dashes out of a warm air current into the coolness of suspended moisture, one meets surprise after surprise and is forced to be always on the alert, with brain calm and hands and body ready for instant action at the first sign of an aerial hillock or rayine.

"Bumping the Bumps" In the Air.

Have you ever on a warm summer's evening gone to a pleasure resort, paid your nickel or 10 cents through a little box office window, got into a little car with six or seven other persons and for several minutes thereafter coasted up and down a series of artificial hills and valleys at a thrilling speed? In other words, have you ever tasted of the excitements of "bumping the bumps?" Well, "bumping the bumps" is just what we do when we climb for height; we engage in aerial rough riding. Sometimes we do it voluntarily, but most of the time the "bumps" come with the complete and sudden surprise that spells disaster for us unless we are on the alert to cope with its difficulties.

I think I may claim without boasting that I have done more altitude work than any man now living. Twice I have set the world's height mark, and in my practice work I have made several climbs which to me were even more notable than those which were officially recorded and on at least two of these my barograph registered higher than the then world's record figures. I was preparing myself for work that should be officially recorded in open competition, and in this preparation I have had experiences with the "bumps" of the air which I shall not soon forget and which have taught me always to expect the unexpected in the upper strata of the atmosphere. As I write I have before me several barograph records of my various flights and the thin tracing of the pen points on one or two of them recalls to my mind the experiences through which I passed while making them, and one in particular I pick out as being a souvenir of as strenuous a day's work as I have ever done.

It was a little faint into the heart of the heavens, made because of my long cherished desire to go up to the 10,000 foot mark, and it gave me my hardest fight with the "bumps" in the air. The weather was ideal for climbing. It was cold, but the air was fairly still, and the first few thousand feet of my ascent were made smoothly and without much difficulty in a steady rise that was almost mechanical in its exactness.

The barograph record is interesting in showing the progress of this flight. For those who do not know it may be well to explain that the barograph is an instrument which registers altitude, and by means of a pen point filled with indelible ink it records the variation in a constant line on a piece of paper which is moved around by clockwork.

Story Told by Barograph.

This barograph record shows that in the first fifteen minutes I rose to a height of 4,500 feet. The increasing difficulties of the climb are indicated by the fact that at the end of the next fifteen minutes I was only about 7,500 feet high, but the line traced by the pen up to this point is fairly steady, and only when it passes the 7,000 foot mark does it begin to waver. It was during this part of my flight that the strain began to tell upon me and the steadiness of my climb was interrupted by frequent descents.

In the next few minutes I got myself together better, for the line shows a sudden jump of nearly a thousand feet in about five minutes, and then it is plain to be seen that my troubles began, for the line from 8,500 feet to the topmost limit, which was gratifyingly close to the 10,000 mark, is little more than a blur. It shows that the pen point was vacillating up and down and up and down, and I shall not soon forget the plunges and jumps—the bumping the bumps—the rough riding—that caused this line to take such an appearance.

I had set out to make 10,000 feet, and when I was sure that I must be somewhere near there I looked at my barograph and found that it registered merely a thousand feet short of my mark. I had almost reached the limit of my strength. It seemed impossible to make the Blerlot climb any higher, so I shoved her nose up at an angle that threatened destruction if any thing went wrong, but the motor only spat protestingly and dragged her for word horizontally without seeming to pull her up inch by inch.

I decided to see what an increase of speed would do. According I headed the nose of the Blerlot downward, and with the engine running at its utmost I took a deep plunge into the space below and kept plunging until my speed must have been somewhere near 100 miles an hour. Then with this tremendous impetus, I headed the machine upward again at a good angle and was rejoiced to find that I not only climbed above my starting point, but that the propeller seemed able to hold me there without difficulty.

Time after time I tried this extremely dangerous expedient, and at the end of each rise I found myself a little higher than I had been before, and, after all, I found that I was able to hold the advantage thus gained.

Attended by Shrieking Fiends.

I cannot explain adequately just what the strange impression was that my ascent, by these aerial hurdles, on the down-ward slope I seemed to be hurtling into eternity, entranced as I neared the earth and attended by all the shrieking fiends of the air. The wind screeched past my ears. Maddening shreds seemed to whip into my eyes with knife edges that sometimes seemed as though they were cutting into the flesh. Every square inch of my body felt as though it were being gripped by unseen hands that were literally lifting me from my seat, so great was the pressure of the air as I rushed through it. I had to hold my breath and shut my eyes, for it was impossible to inhale in the terrific rush of the wind past my mouth, and to have held the eyes open would be to have courted blindness temporary at least.

When I turned upward I went at an angle little short of suicidal. Had anything failed it would have been impossible for me to get the machine on an even keel and head her downward. There would have been no alternative but a backward drop to inevitable and awful destruction.

For about twelve minutes, as shown by the barograph record, I continued this desperate means of attaining my goal. Finally I looked at my barograph and saw, as I thought, that the needle had reached the 10,000 mark. I thought of nothing then but of ending the strain and getting to earth again as quickly as possible. So I headed her downward and dropped at such terrific speed that the indelible ink in the pen point could not flow fast enough to make a mark, and my barograph record shows no trace whatever of my descent. It is for this reason that I doubt whether any human being ever lived through such a fall, for I know of no other barograph record on which the same conditions can be found.

The first part of this upward climb was smooth and easy, with one exception. That exception, which illustrated another phase of the rough riding in the air—of jumping the aerial bumps—came as I burst through the clouds and into the sunlight above.

Here we always expect to find gusty winds. The clouds seem to have the effect of breaking up air currents, just as hills and valleys will do on the earth, and the change of temperature from the cool moisture of the mist to the dry heat of the direct sunlight has a tendency to create whirlpools and vortices that are mighty nasty things to fight in an aeroplane.

Holes In the Air.

Still another phase of aerial rough riding is due to the holes in the air. I have heard a great many people ridiculc this expression, and they have been surprised when I have asserted that these "holes" really do exist and that they are a constant menace to the aviator.

I met them first very early in my experience when I began practicing altitude flying at my private grounds at Benullen, in England. My first experience with them was a complete surprise to me. I was flying comfortably and easily at a height of about 3,000 feet. It was toward sunset, on a perfectly calm summer afternoon, and not a breath had disturbed me from the time I had left the earth.

So smoothly had my climb gone on that I had relaxed my vigilance and was sitting back comfortably, really enjoying the flight, when suddenly the Blerlot seemed to drop from under me and I felt myself falling straight for the earth. For a hundred feet or more, I should say, we fell, and then the Blerlot landed on a cushion of air and I landed on the seat of the Blerlot with a bump that jarred me.

Fortunately I was headed slightly downward at the time and was able to recover my equilibrium, but the shock of the surprise was sufficient for one day of flying for such a novice as I was at that time, and I came to earth at once.

When Glenn Curtiss made his famous flight from Albany to New York he was several times almost thrown from his seat by these sudden drops through "holes" in the air. So serious an impression did it make upon his mind that, I am told, he has since had the back of his seat made with little curved metal braces that go over his shoulders and hold him firmly down upon his chair.

Must Watch Constantly.

The philosophy of the hole in the air? It seems that many conditions of sun, clouds and earth will bring about different conditions of air over practically the same locality. In one place there will be a rising warm current and next to it a cold current that falls toward the ground. An aviator in flying through the warm current adjusts his machine and his mind to the conditions met with in that particular phase of atmosphere. Suddenly he passes from this rising current to the falling cold air. Instantly the sustaining power of the atmosphere is decreased, the machine plunges downward and continues to do so until the aviator recovers himself sufficiently to adjust his machine to the changed conditions met with in the atmosphere of lower temperature. So, too, there are whirlwinds and vortices formed and sometimes between the warm and cold currents go lots of extremely rarefied air that offer practically no support for a flying machine.

These things are, as I have said, usually met only by the men who fly very high above the earth.

Still, the man who flies close to the ground will frequently encounter hills and valleys in the air, not so great nor so suddenly presented as these "bumps" and "holes" that I have described, but yet unpleasant and disconcerting enough to put his nerves on edge and give him an uncomfortable sensation for days afterward.

Any flying is not the smoothest and easiest kind of traveling, especially when there is "rough riding" to be done, when there are aerial "bumps" to be "bumped."

"HAD ANYTHING FAILED THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN NO ALTERNATIVE BUT A BACKWARD DROP TO AWFUL DESTRUCTION."

Daniel and His Companions; a Temperance Lesson. Dan. 1:8-21.

Golden Text: It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Rom. 14:21.

(1.) Verse 3—Who was Daniel, and how did he get to Babylon?

(2.) What did Daniel propose for his food?

(3.) What are the advantages and disadvantages (1) of a meat diet, (2) of a vegetable diet?

(4.) Is there any reason to believe that God originally meant man to be a meat eater?

(5.) If meat is necessary for strength, how do you account for the strength of the horse and the elephant, as both are vegetarians?

(6.) Is there any reason to think that the craving or desire for meat is an artificial one?

(7.) What evidence is there that a purely vegetable diet would increase the health and the longevity of the people?

(8.) Verse 9—Had God in some supernatural way raised the prince of the eunuchs to love Daniel, or in any other way prepared Daniel for favorable success?

(9.) Verse 12—Is there any reason to think that the experience of Daniel's friends would be true of others?

(10.) Verse 15—Which people are the healthier, those who have abundance of rich food and who eat all they can or those who take plain food and eat only enough to give them sufficient strength for their work?

(11.) Verse 17—Why should God be one to answer prayer and another not to do so?

(12.) What is meant by the common expression, "Some healthier, the result of vegetable people who eat vegetables to make ends meet?"

(13.) Take one hundred persons who drink nothing but water and an other hundred persons who drink intoxicating liquor and compare their probable condition as to real health, wealth, etc., together.

(14.) Who were Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah?

(15.) Verses 14-15. What was the result of the test made upon these three Hebrew young men, in eating a strictly vegetable diet, and drinking nothing stronger than water?

(16.) Should this test from experience bind our conscience, and cause us to eat and drink as they did? Why or why not?

(17.) Verse 16—What in our day are the chief evils of gluttony, and what are the chief evils of drunkenness?

(18.) To what extent would the world be better if the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage could be stopped? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(19.) Verses 17-21—What were the special gifts of God to Daniel and his friends? Are such gifts given to any one in our day?

(20.) What is meant by the expression, "Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams," or to say "Daniel knew by the Spirit and by the word?"

(21.) Were the Lord and wisdom of these four young men acquired, or the gift of God?

(22.) Where do you draw the line as to the possibilities of present spiritual or supernatural powers?

THE REPRESENTATIVE SITUATION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

During the past week I have been interested to examine the records to see if your correspondent was correct when he said, "That for many years (over 30) . . . . never before has the two year agreement been infringed upon."

The record of representatives holding office from the District of which Winchester was a part for the past forty years is as follows:—

1801	6th Mid.	Chas. Haywood	Win.

1911	"	W. B. Fay Ward 3	Med.

It will be observed from the foregoing that there seem to have been several changes in the rule during the past forty years and that the rule, as it existed from time to time, has been infringed upon.

It will also be observed that the present 27th Middlesex District has been in existence but five years and that consequently I was in error when I said in an earlier letter that there were but four years more of the present district still to run. My statement was made upon what seemed to be satisfactory authority after I had been informed that the facts had been verified from the records at the State House. However that there are five years more is quite apparent when the date mentioned by me is noted since there will be five sittings of the legislature before August 1916. West Medford and Winchester were first parts of the same district in 1897 and the year the district was represented by Mr. Manchester who the preceding year had represented the district made up of Winchester and Arlington.

The second year a representative was chosen from Medford and the office has alternated every two years since that date. It will be observed that during the fifteen years that Winchester and West Medford have been joined, Winchester has held the office for seven years and is entitled under a strict division to three more and that in the same way Ward 3 which has held it for four years is entitled to one year more and Ward 6 which has also had it for four years is also entitled to one additional year.

If your correspondents are correct when they insist that the most important thing in the choice of a candidate is to see to it that Winchester is represented one half of the time and that the other half of the time is equally divided between Ward 3 and Ward 6 of Medford, it is evident that the suggestion made that the candidate to be elected this year from Ward 3 will best provide for this division.

If Ward 3 is to have one year of the next five it obviously will be better to have it go to that Ward this next year so that the present representative may serve the district for a third term. It seems equally clear that if Ward 6 is to have one year that it will be better to have her take that single year at the close of the period for which the district is formed and thus give Winchester her three years in succession.

I am unable to see how anything has been done or suggested by the gentleman referred to by your correspondent that is "Unfair and prejudicial" to the interests of any Winchester Republican who would like to represent the District in the legislature.

It is quite clear as your correspondent states, that if Mr. Pond had not withdrawn there would have been no other candidate from Winchester this year and it must be equally certain that in that event he would have served two years and there would have been no opportunity for these other persons to represent Winchester for at least four years.

As the matter is now left if the caucus adopts the suggestion that has been made, it will be open to any one in Winchester to run for the Legislature from Winchester next year with the opportunity to serve for three years.

I fail to see how these other people will be any better off if the candidate from Winchester is nominated this year. I presume he would be renominated next year and thus there would be no chance for any Winchester man for at least four years.

I am sure that no one in Winchester needs to be told that Mr. Pond is not a party to any agreement that carries with it any pledge of support to himself or gives him any personal advantage over any other candidate in Winchester.

I believe that Mr. Pond would make a most admirable representative and I hope that if the caucus takes this action that he will be a candidate next year but I know of no trade or pledge by anybody to support him. It is very clear that if he had been seeking political advantage for himself rather than doing what he believed was the best thing for the district that his action would have been quite different.

PATRICK GRAHAM GRAY.

Patrick Graham Gray passed away at his home on Everett avenue Tuesday morning after a long illness. His death was due to heart trouble, with which he had suffered for the past three years. For over three weeks his condition had been such that no hope was entertained for even a partial recovery.

Mr. Gray was one of the town's best known citizens, having made his home here for the past twenty one years. He was 56 years of age. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from St. James Episcopal Church, North Cambridge. Rev. E. M. Paddock officiated and the remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation.

Patrick Graham Gray was born at Carlton Place, Ontario, March 28, 1855, his parents being Patrick and Mary (Peden) Gray. He is survived by a widow and two children, Rev. Harry G. Gray, rector of Trinity Church, Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. William Henry Knox of Jackson, Mich. He was the head of the firm of P. G. Gray, provision brokers, with offices at the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

In social life Mr. Gray was always active. He was a vestryman, president of the men's club and a member of the music committee of St. James Episcopal Church of North Cambridge, a 32d degree Mason, affiliated with DeMolay Commandery, the Royal Arch Chapter and William Parkman Lodge; he was a member of Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum; a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Exchange Club of Boston, Belmont Country Club, and a past president and member of the Winchester Boat Club.

Mr. Gray enjoyed a large circle of friends, his unfailing geniality winning both young and old, all of whom learn of his death with the deepest sorrow.

The bearers at the funeral were representatives of Masonic bodies and were: William Little, Geo. E. Morrill, Ralph E. Joslin, Eugene Wilde, Benj. T. Morgan, and Jere A. Downs. The honorary bearers were: Chas. T. Whitten, Dr. M. A. Cummings, F. D. Cleveland L. E. Griffin, Joseph Palmer, E. Starr, C. F. Jones, and A. Somerton.

Mr. Dallinger the former organist of St. James Church, had charge of the music, and a male quartette rendered "Abide With Me," "The Day is Past and Over," and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

Among the mourners was Rev. F. Harper Gray, of Toronto, Mr. Gray's brother.

BOWLING NEWS.

The winter bowling tournament at the Calumet Club will start on Oct. 14th. The entries must be in the hands of the bowling committee by Sept. 24th, at which time the ratings for this winter will be assigned the bowlers and the teams made up.

It is expected that a mixed bowling tournament will be held at the Calumet Club this winter, beginning about Jan. 1st.

The Metropolitan bowling league will have ten teams from each district entered this winter instead of the usual single team. This league will be composed of select bowlers from each, as it will save about the number of men the clubs have to roll. The new alleys in Medford Club, will be much bet in the best this year.

DUTY—WILSON.

Mr. Frank Duffy, driver of the ladder truck at the centre fire station, one of the best known members of the fire department, and Miss Annie Wilson of Jamaica Plain, were quietly married at that place on the 6th inst. They will make their home at No. 639 Main street.

PROGRESS OF A WINCHESTER GIRL;

According to "Musical America," Newark, N. J., will be the scene of a brilliant musical season this winter, the new symphony auditorium opening there early in October. Some of the artists booked include Mesdames Gadski, Louise Homer, Emmy Destin, Eleanora DeCisneros, Schumann-Heink, Tetrazzini and Dorothy Temple. The last named is in private life Miss Dorothy Temple Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Brown of Highland avenue, and she possesses a voice of exceptional merit.

The Musical American for September says of Miss Temple:

Following her Middle West tour in October Dorothy Temple, the soprano, will appear as soloist with the New York Trio on December 2 at the Symphony Auditorium in Newark, N. J. During the present month she will be starring in recital in Wilkinsport, Pa., under the auspices of the Choral Club.

This talented young artist is receiving much favorable comment for her singing in her native city, and has been a brilliant concert star for this season. She returned from Europe last season with the imposing title, "Distinguished Academician of the Royal Philharmonic Academy of Rome."

Miss Temple is endowed with a soprano voice rich in quality and of wide range. She has the command of color and enunciation which we are beginning to appreciate at their full worth, realizing that there is something more to be desired in a voice than mere ability to produce tones. She is blessed with further assets to a concert artist, namely, personal charm and beauty.

Miss Temple will make her headquarters in New York this season, and when she is not devoting her time to concert work she will do some teaching, limiting it, however, so as not to interfere with the preparation of new programs for her recital work.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

Agreements have been drawn through the Edward T. Harrington Company's office in Winchester for the sale of about 2 acres of land running from Washington street to Highland avenue, north of Lebanon street owned by A. F. Shattuck et al. The purchaser, Mr. E. W. Comfort of Winchester intends to live on this property and will probably build a residence on Highland avenue.

The following leases have also been negotiated during the past week: The house No. 88 Church street, owned by Charles M. Comfort has been leased to Philip T. French.

The house corner of Highland avenue and Cutting street, owned by Mrs. J. L. Ayer and Mrs. J. E. Goodenough has been leased to George S. Bartlett of Cambridge.

The half of double house No. 5 Mason street, owned by Harrison Parker to E. H. Burton of Winchester.

The house No. 48 Cutting street, owned by the Cutting estate has been leased by A. A. Beauchamp of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jose and Mr. and Mrs. Chivers and daughter Marguerite, of Challis, Idaho, are the guests of Mrs. M. Lally and family of Nelson street. Mrs. Jose is a sister of Mrs. Lally and it was their first meeting in twenty-three years.

THE REPRESENTATIVE CONTEST.

Has Somebody Blundered, Or Worse?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It was not my intention to ask for any further space in your columns regarding the pending contest; but recent information seems to warrant this communication.

Error, if it be such, should be corrected, and deception should be exposed.

It is a fact that the pledges of support for the continuation in office of the present representative have very generally been obtained in Winchester on the representation "that as the district will continue for only four years more, it will not complicate matters for the future if the candidate is selected from Medford this year and then from Winchester for the three remaining years."

The fact is that five (not four) different Legislatures must yet be elected under the present apportionment, so that, should the "arrangement" made by the present representative and the chairman of our republican town committee be carried out it will be ascertained when next year's nomination is to be made that somebody had erred in their calculation, and as there was then (in 1912) four years remaining, it would be better for the man with experience to take the whole four years, or, in lieu of that, divide the four years evenly between Medford and Winchester, as four is so much easier to divide than to give Winchester three years and have a one year remnant left over. No wonder that Sunday afternoon conferences are necessary to frame up these "arrangements," nor is it surprising that the agile representative's horse pulled off the top of the hitching post and started for home when he thought it was time to be going with such a bargain.

Constitutions and statutes are easily circumvented by the politicians, but the voters usually want to be correctly informed.

The Massachusetts Constitution, Art. XXI of Amendments, provides that the house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members, which shall be apportioned every ten years to the several counties after each state census, and it further provides that the county commissioners of each county (other than Suffolk) shall divide the county into representative districts.

The Legislature of 1906 (Chapter 497) apportioned to Middlesex County forty-eight representatives, and the Middlesex County Commissioners, by a decree entered on the first Tuesday of August 1906, and filed with the Secretary of State August 16, 1906, decreed that the Town of Winchester and wards three and six of Medford should constitute the 27th Middlesex Representative District for the ensuing ten years, viz: 1907 to 1916, both years inclusive.

Mr. Howard of Medford had then served one year as representative from our district, and he served his second year (1907) under the new apportionment.

Mr. Parkhurst served in 1908, Mr. Barnard in 1909 (thus giving Winchester its two years) and Mr. Fay has served in 1910 and 1911. There yet remain the years 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916 to be divided between the two towns under the present apportionment, unless we are to suffer it to be so "arranged" as to give it all to one man. Some of our townsmen (distinguished and otherwise) may feel that the present representative should have the remaining five years, or seven in all, but I trust the majority of my fellow townsmen will not feel that their interests are being sacrificed in choosing one of their own number to serve in the House of 1912. Let future years and candidates be dealt with as they come along.

While the "arrangement" never had much to recommend it as an equitable division of a supposed remainder of four years, it would now appear to be knocked askew by the fact that the promoting artists have five years instead of four to provide for.

BASE BALL NEXT WEEK.

The Winchester Base Ball Club will close the season on Sept. 23rd. On that date they will meet the strong Martin Mill team of Lowell. This team is composed of last semi professional players in and around Lowell, and are all employed in the mills. Mr. Martin of Wednesday avenue is captain of the ball club and has to say will give the local boys a hard game. They have leased some of the best teams about Lowell and have a fine record this season. Mr. Martin takes great pride in his ball team and has chartered two special cars to convey it and will employees to root for a victory over Winchester. After the game the prizes offered by the local merchants will be awarded to the Winchester players who have played in ten or more games and lead the team in batting, fielding, and run getting.

Come, and show your appreciation for good fast ball in Winchester, and incidentally to root for the home team who have done so much for your pleasure this season.

COMING EVENTS.

Sept. 16, Saturday, 3 p. m. Dance at Winchester Boat Club.

Sept. 20, Wednesday. The Winchester Mother's Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at 3 p. m. in Assembly Hall, High School.

BASE BALL.

Sept. 16, Saturday. On Manchester Field at 3.30 p. m., Winchester vs Rovers.

GIFT FOR WHITTAKER.

The base ball fans about town, and in fact all of those who have enjoyed the games on Manchester Field this summer are contributing for a gift to Mr. Walter Whittaker, the crack pitcher of the team.

It is the intention of those who are in charge of the matter to secure a suitable sum, purchase the gift, and have the presentation made on the field at the close of the last game of this season.

Mr. Whittaker has pitched exceptionally good ball and given a fine exhibition of the game during the summer. As he is strictly an amateur no compensation for his work has been made and the large number of spectators at the games feel that he certainly deserves some token of their appreciation.

Among those who have contributed to date are the following:

THE PRIMARY.

The Selectmen have issued the call for the direct primary which is to be held in the Town Hall on Tuesday, Sept. 26, from 4 to 9 o'clock in the afternoon and 9 o'clock in the evening. Heretofore the call for the caucus has been issued by the Town Clerk, but under the new primary laws the Selectmen are required to do so.

The hours designated by the Selectmen give ample opportunity for every one to vote, and that the new system be given a fair trial it is to be hoped there will be a general turnout of voters to record their preferences.

WINCHESTER PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The Winchester Private School will re-open Wed., Sept. 20, 1911. The school is for boys and girls from five to fifteen years of age. Pupils are prepared to enter grades in the Public schools or other private schools. The aim of the school is individual attention.

Parents desiring further particulars will please communicate with the principal, Miss Ella M. Emerson, A. B., 25 Church street. Tel 623-W.

aug 25,4t.

BASE BALL.

Owing to the rain of last Saturday the game between the Rovers and Winchester's was called off. The two teams will play this Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field at 3.30. The Rovers are composed of college players and a good, fast game may be looked for.

THE MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The first meeting of the Mothers' Association after the break of the summer, will be held next Wednesday at 3 o'clock in the High School Assembly Hall. There will be a speaker to awaken a further interest in the Boy Scout Movement. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and their friends.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The Winchester Visiting Nurse Association, at a meeting held on Tuesday to determine on a location for its proposed hospital, decided not to take either of the two houses suggested.

The matter was left in the hands of the Hospital Committee for further consideration.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A prominent medical man gives The Spectator to understand that health authorities in some sections in their laudable endeavor to guard against the spread of tuberculosis disease have frightened people out of their wits. He thinks that tuberculosis has come to be regarded as so readily communicable from the sick to the well that the establishment of a dispensary for consumptive persons in a neighborhood is dreaded almost as much as would be a smallpox hospital. He points out that half a century ago there was no such fear of tuberculosis. The sufferer, he informs The Spectator, was an object of humane sympathy and not of selfish dread. Modern science is doing a great deal to ameliorate disease and increased attention to sanitation bids fair to prevent practically all the spread of contagion. So that while tuberculosis is a thing to be dreaded, there is really no cause for any persons being panic-stricken because of its presence in their midst.

A leading citizen, a gentleman who has held town office, very sensibly concludes that we have far too many laws on the statute books of the Commonwealth. He calls attention to the fact that laws are passed that have no real value and that the statute books are overloaded with a mass of confusion that works chaos, rather than intelligence. The Spectator is inclined to hold that the Winchester gentleman's view of the matter is not greatly exaggerated. Every few years the statutes have to be sifted out and codified and at these periods the worthlessness of many of the laws become apparent. There is altogether too much legislative attention given to special matters which affect only the interests of some particular petitioner who has a personal axe to grind and laws are crowded on top of each other which have no relation to the community's welfare. The road to special legislation is altogether too easy and The Spectator hopes Winchester's representative on Beacon Hill will do his part to effect a change of system.

A little miss of about five years whom The Spectator might name displayed remarkable frightiness one day recently. A neighbor presented her with a banana. She immediately asked permission to eat it but the good neighbor asked her if she didn't think it would be well to take it home and show to her mother. "No," replied the little one, "don't you suppose my mamma's ever seen an orange before?"

A minister of a church in an adjoining town and who is well known in Winchester recently gave The Spectator to understand that the use of tobacco is a matter for the individual conscience. That certainly is the opinion of most laymen. The Presbyterian general assembly recently debarred against the use of tobacco by clergy or laity but in the opinion of The Spectator a religious body may make such rules for the conduct of its membership as it chooses and no outsider has any right to complain. It does seem to The Spectator, however, that such a regulation as this were better left to the members themselves.

The other day The Spectator saw a woman pass along the street who was sensible. She had taken advantage of a sensible shoe with wide toes. She was comfortable, but she had to sacrifice beauty to be so. Certainly it is possible to combine beauty and comfort, and somebody is going to hit it the way.

The little daughter of a certain man has a pet hen that has few equals in this section. Recently a neighbor's cat appropriated one of the nests in the hen house for her three kittens. When the kittens were three days old the cat entered the house acting very strange and an investigation revealed that the hen had the three kittens under her wings and refused to let the cat go near them. A very remarkable incident.

Once upon a time there lived here in Winchester a worthless boy. Every morning a friend of The Spectator's could hear his folks trying to get him out of bed to eat his breakfast, and to get to his work in time. The Spectator is therefore glad to hear good reports about the boy. He has lately been advanced by his employer, and is coming out all right. There is one good thing about a worthless boy; once in a while he comes out all right.

A well known young man returned this week from his vacation spent in Vermont and one day while out riding in his uncles' wagon met a girl walking in the road. He invited her to a place on the seat, and she accepted. She had on one of those broad-brimmed hats, and this hat scratched the young man on the neck until he was compelled to use liniment when turned to the farmhouse. As the young man is an ardent churchman he is perfectly reliable.

A very hearty laugh at the pointed query of an interesting four year-old girl was enjoyed a few days ago by a number of person waiting on the platform of the railroad station for the departure of a train. The little lady had been gazing intently at a Pullman observation coach and after a brief mental contrast of the more pretentious car with the ordinary passenger coach which she was about to take asked of her mother. "Mamma, what kind of a car is that one with the beautiful windows and pretty plush covered chairs?" "That is a parlor car my dear," was the reply. "Well, I guess ours must be a kitchen car, then, isn't it?" was the suggestive question, which as yet has not been answered to the child's satisfaction.

The other day The Spectator was shown a piece of cloth made from banana fiber. Of course it will be a long time before such a cloth can be procured here in Winchester or in fact in Boston. The cloth is an experiment and the specimen The Spectator saw came from faraway China. Stalks about a year old are used. These are softened by steaming over boiling water, then green outer skin is removed by passing through a machine having two blunt sides, and the fibers are freed from moisture and made less adherent by being wrapped in a cloth and pounded with a hammer, after which they are pulled apart and spun into threads for weaving. The ultimate fibers of the banana are about 15 inches long and very strong, and the pale yellow cloth is exceedingly tough and promises to be very desirable. Made in yard wide rolls five yards long, the small amount of the cloth so far made has been sold at about $1.25 a yard.

A gentleman tells The Spectator an interesting story of his college days. It was in a western town and rumor had it that the college men were carrying concealed weapons and this information reached the ears of the local police. The chief at once issued stringent orders that the practice should be stopped. One day a group of college boys passed a policeman, and one of the students in so doing put his hand in his hip pocket. Then, as it recollecting himself in time, he hastily withdrew it and looked sheepishly at the policeman. "What have you in your pocket?" the latter asked sternly. Instead of answering, the student and all his companions, as if panic stricken, started to run. After a chase all the students were corraled and ordered to deliver up whatever they had in their hip pockets. Meekly they obeyed. Each one carried a corn cob. The remarks of the policeman cannot possibly be recorded.

THE ORIGINAL ASA LOCKE.

A little later in the season than this 76 years ago, the original Asa Locke of Locke's Hill Woburn, now Winchester a big, strong, and highly successful farmer and hunt taiser, "honest as the days were long," might have been seen any frosty morning away up near the top of an apple tree in his orchard, barefooted, picking the great round rosy cheeked Baldwins and carefully depositing them in the basket pendent from his collarless neck while his four stalwart boys were cutting stalks down in the field, talking, or driving the cows to pasture over yonder hill, or getting ready for the ample, plain, and wholesome breakfast awaiting them on the kitchen table. That day or the next, barrels of Asa Locke's juicy Baldwins were sold in Quincy and Faneuil Hall Market in Boston; Asa's pocketbook bulged out as he returned home and that was how the old family became rich, influential and honored.—Woburn Journal.

WAS WELL KNOWN IN WINCHESTER.

In the death of deputy sheriff M. Frank Eastman, Melrose loses one of its first and most public spirited citizens, says the Malden News. For years he has been a potent factor for good in the public life of our city where he was honored most deservedly again and again. Always square and upright in all of his business dealings he was a citizen of unimpeachable honor and integrity. His sudden taking away is a great loss to Melrose.

Mr. Eastman who was cousin to Mr. Arthur E. Whitney, was well known in Winchester among the legal fraternity and business men as well as in Masonic circles. The tribute of the news is eminently truthful and well expresses the common thought of all who knew Mr. Eastman. Would all communities had more citizens of the Eastman type.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Advertising in the STAR pays the business men who use it, and those who do not use that form of trade-making have no logical argument when they say it will not pay them. The STAR is read by Winchester people who buy, and the reliability of its news columns has a decided influence on the confidence in which its advertisers are held. There is no better time for the non-advertiser to change his views and methods than now.

Attention is being called to a feature of the new primary law that may not be generally understood by voters. That is those who fail to attend the caucuses this year and are hereby not enrolled as members of any party, are disqualified from signing nomination papers next year. That as the Boston Advertiser points out is liable to mean a mass of useless signatures on papers in 1912, with the consequent risk of invalidating some of them and interfering with the chances of candidates at the subsequent primaries.

The Boston & Maine railroad has been sued for $2,000 in an action of tort by J. Frank Holland, a minor who sues through his next friend, John H. Holland of Winchester. Holland alleges that on July 12, 1911, while a passenger in one of the company's trains he was severely injured while about to alight owing to negligence and carelessness on the part of the company. The company is also sued for $2,000 by Norah E. Holland of Winchester, who makes the same allegations as above.

The damage was confined wholly to the rear of the building.

Winchester citizens should not fail to do their duty by the primaries. This year, for the first time, they have an opportunity to help nominate candidates for county offices and for state officers. The vote should be big, because it will show that the voters appreciate their opportunities and responsibilities.

ABOUT CHURCHES.

The largest membership of any church in the United States is that of the First Presbyterian Society, Seattle, Wash., which on the 1911 Year Book records 4576 members. It has five Ordained Clergymen as Assistants to the Pastor in Chief, Dr. Matthews.—Boston Transcript.

In the year 1794 the Town of Canaan, Somerset county, Province of Maine, the site of which was subsequently covered by the towns of Canaan (modern) Skowhegan and Bloomfield, settled a Presbyterian Minister, but after a struggle of 10 years in 1794, dissatisfied with its creed, the people cast off the yoke and embraced the Arminian doctrines of the Congregationalists, and the Presbyterian organization was disbanded in 1794. In 1807 a Congregational church was founded in the Town.

So liberal were its tenets, slack its discipline, and easy going generally, that Mr. Samuel W. Coburn of Bloomfield said in 1870, quoting substantially from Miller's "History of Baptists of Maine," afterwards reproduced in Rev. J. W. Hanson's "History of Canaan":

"Everybody belonged to this church, as no experience was required by the Articles of Faith, and only a moderate morality was a necessary qualification to membership."

The above is written merely to suggest the inquiry whether, or not, the experience of the Canaan and Seattle churches, in the matter of membership, has any bearing on the oft-quoted saying: "History repeats itself."—Woburn Journal.

AND IT WAS A SCARE.

The scare in this city over the alleged presence of a disease that generally rages among children, and named by some people "Infantile Paralysis," having petered out before it fairly began, the Board of Health late last week removed the ban on baseball, teas, whist parties, dances, singing schools, and all public gatherings, and everybody is now kindly permitted to go when and where he pleases, and cut up and frolic and have fun and good times just as though the deadly disease had not been here at all. There was not a death from it; no spreading of it by personal contact; and nobody, but a few alarmists, had the least thought or fear that it was contagious. Dr. S. W. Kelley set that question to rest. We repeat, there was not a single well authenticated case of "Infantile Paralysis" (Spinal Meningitis) in this city during the two weeks it was said to "rage" here. Briefly, it was merely another case of the devil shearing the hog—"great cry and little wool."—Woburn Journal.

BLASTING NUISANCE.

As a result of complaints received from residents by the local board of selectmen as to disturbances caused by the heavy blasting at the plant of the Winchester Rock and Brick Co., the board has been in communication with the Winchester town fathers. The latter state in substance that they agree with the local board in considering the nerve-racking detonations a nuisance, but as the plant of the concern is just across the Winchester line in Woburn, they have no jurisdiction. The state police, however, have taken up the matter and it is to be hoped that they will devise some means of abating the nuisance, which has been a constant cause of great annoyance to Stoneham residents who live in the south-westerly section of the town.—Stoneham Independant.

THE PRIMARY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Chapter 559, Acts of 1911, make it clear beyond a doubt that the question of hours in the primary is left to the discretion of the Selectmen. This being the case, why should not the hours be made most convenient for all. Voters on the outskirts of the town, voters working in Boston and voters employed elsewhere, find it difficult to vote before going to their work, but do find it convenient to vote after their work is over. As representing a number of voters, I respectfully ask your Honorable Board to fix the hours of the primaries from an hour in the afternoon to 9 o'clock in the evening. The convenience of counting votes should not be to the detriment of the voter.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

After a sensational three year's tour of the globe, during which period he has covered himself with fresh laurels in every civilized land under the sun, Harry Houdini, the world famous jail breaker returns to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Since his last appearance here Houdini has demonstrated that it is practically impossible for bolts, bars, locks, and stone or iron walls to hold him captive. During his stay in Holland Houdini escaped from a cell in the Amsterdam city prison. At the recent Chicago aviation meet he plunged head first from an aeroplane into lake Michigan with both hands and feet shackled together. Rising to the surface with his limbs freed, Houdini swam to shore. As he does this extraordinary feat the bell will be rung promptly at 8 p.m. Among the other features will be Lydell & Kissen in their comedy sketch "The Sportsman and the Vaudeville Comedienne," Francis, Dayne & Co. in "The Spanish Prisoner," Ward & Vokes, singing comedians, and other big features yet to be announced.

MAY BE OF VALUE TO YOU.

In its Crop Report for August, recently issued, the State Board of Agriculture includes an article, by Henry M. Howard, of West Newton, on growing beans, corn, tomatoes, lettuce and spinach as market garden crops. This report, which also contains reports of crop correspondents, a summary of crop conditions, figures from the United States department of agriculture, Crop Reporter and much other valuable matter, can be obtained by applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, Room 136, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list to receive these publications in future.

Mr. Howard is a practical market gardener of wide experience and he treats these crops in a practical manner, giving full directions for their planting, culture, harvesting, etc. This bulletin completes the list of market garden vegetables, on which the Board has had many articles during the past few years. These articles will now be collected into one bulletin, on Vegetable growing, and issued as Bulletin No. 5 on Massachusetts Agriculture.

LIGHT STATUE IS VIOLATED.

While some drivers have taken notice of the law requiring the carrying of lights on vehicles, there is still a very evident violation and expectations are that warnings will soon be sounded as to a rigid enforcement. Since the law has become effective, it is a rather interesting fact that not many such vehicles are included within the action of the law that have been seen along the highways. That is, [illegible] their doors it seems [illegible] night time. PRIMARY NOW TOWN AFFAIRS

The new direct primary law, as it has been construed, makes the direct primary a town and not a party affair. Instead of each party holding a caucus of its own, one caucus for all parties is provided for under the new law and when the voters go to the polls they will declare their party connection and receive the ballot of that party.

In past years each caucus has had its own staff of officials but this year the regular staff appointed for the state election will be called into service.

The usual state and county officials and the local representative and senatorial candidates will be nominated and the caucus will also elect one member of the republican state committee, one member of the democratic state committee, delegates to the republican and democratic state conventions and republican and democratic town committees.

The candidates for the other offices on the state ticket are:

Republican

Governor—Louis A. Frothingham, Boston; Joseph Walker, Brookline; Norman H. White, Brookline.

Lieut. Governor—Robert Luce, Somerville.

Secretary of State—Albert P. Langtry, Springfield; Russell A. Wood, Cambridge.

Treasurer and Receiver General—Elmer A. Stevens, Somerville.

Auditor—Herbert W. Burr, Boston; John E. White, Tisbury.

Attorney General—James M Swift, Fall River.

Democrat

Governor—Eugene N. Foss, Boston; Thomas L. Hisgen, West Springfield.

Lieutenant Governor—David I. Walsh, Fitchburg.

Secretary of State—Frank J. Donahue, Boston; Edward O. Skelton, Boston.

Treasurer and Receiver General—Augustus L. Thorndike, Brewster.

Auditor—Charles B. Strecker, Brookline.

Attorney General—George W. Anderson, Boston; Joseph J. Leonard, Boston.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Kansas wheat ribbonners prepared and filled 963 comfort bags to supply the sailors on the U. S. S. Kansas, lately gone into commission. The National superintendent of Soldiers and Sailors' work, Mrs. Thatcher, had personal charge of the distribution and the current "Union Signal" gave a good description of the occasion. It is quite the thing for the W. C. T. U. women of a State to furnish comfort bags for the State's namesake and many enjoy doing such work. Winchester has for several years made a dozen of the comfort bags each year and they are invariably gladly received. In the bags sent out by the Union in addition to the articles for mending, etc., there are a Testament, a White Ribbon songster, a pledge card and some temperance leaflets besides a personal letter from some member of the Union. These letters often bring grateful responses although sometimes the writer prefers to give no address. Members of the Union who cannot attend meetings might like to help by making one or more comfort bags. If so, full directions may be found in this number of the Union Signal or may be had on application to Mrs. Loverng, local superintendent of the work.

The reports from the field are most encouraging. Texas prohibition forces were beaten in the late election, but it was a Pyrrhic victory for their opponents as only 5000 majority or a total of 150,000 votes cast was claimed in spite of the "nets" efforts.

ADULTERATED FOOD.

Up to August 15 judgments were rendered in the courts on reports by the Agricultural Department in conformity with the food and drugs act of Congress in 1000 cases. An alphabetical list of these cases is published arranged under four heads—food, beverages, medicated soft drinks and drugs. Under the foods head it appears there have been most violations with respects to misbranding and adulteration in citrus fruits extracts, notably lemons, while eggs, milk and butter also figure largely. Many frauds are shown in tomato ketchups and in alleged olive oil. In beverages the judgments fall most upon coffee, waters, beer, wine and whiskey. Offenders in drugs are very largely quick headache cures.

In the Assembly Hall on Monday morning a beautiful silver cup was presented to the school by the girl's athletic association to be used as a trophy for the winner in the girl's class basket ball games. This was purchased with the money left after their successful basket ball season last year. After this purchase, however, there was still a large sum in the treasury so a note of fifty dollars, signed by the treasurer of the association, was also presented to the school. This is to start a fund which is to be used for new risers in the centre section of the gymnasium. The girls deserve much praise for their successful season which has made these gifts possible.

The regular meeting of the boy's athletic association was held in the Assembly Hall at recess, Monday. James Flinn, captain of the basket ball team appointed Lloyd Clark for his manager and this appointment was approved. Then came the election of officers for the coming year. Harold Farnsworth was elected president and Harold Meyer was re-elected vice-president. The meeting was then adjourned until Tuesday when Raymond Shawbridge was elected treasurer and Kenneth Park secretary. The meeting was again adjourned and on Wednesday

The foot ball practice has been progressing rapidly under the coaching of Mr. Watson. On Tuesday the signals were tried for the first time and are now working well. Out of the twenty odd candidates who have so far reported, the "W" men from last year are Capt. Emery, D. Wheatley, Ball, D. Thompson, Flinn, and Elliot. Among the new candidates are Small, Johnston, Meinke Neiley, Symmes, Rogers, Dover, R. Thompson, Cutting, and Strawbridge. Elliot is the most probable candidate for full back and Flinn by reason of the ability he displayed last year will undoubtedly hold the position of quarter. D. Wheatley and Meinicke are the most prominent candidates for the other positions of back field. Capt. Emery, as formerly, will play center.

FITZGERALD—ADAMS.

Mr. John F. Fitzgerald, a well known employee of the Winchester Laundry Company, and Miss Margaret E. Adams of Melrose were married on Tuesday evening by Rev. Fr. Millerick of the Catholic Church at Stoneham. Mr. Joseph McDonough of Stoneham was best man and Miss Vera McWhortet of Melrose bridesmaid.

Following the ceremony a reception was held by the couple at their new home No. 153 Washington street, attended by a large gathering of friends.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

The One Patient in Winchester Doing Nicely.

Winchester, Mass., Sept. 12 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The one case of Infantile Paralysis we have is doing well. The fact that it developed no paralysis has led some people to suppose a mistake was made in the diagnosis and considerable pressure has been used in an effort to have the family released from quarantine. It should be understood that, just as there may be "walking" typhoid or a very mild case of diphtheria each able to convey the disease in a severe form, so we may have a case of infantile paralysis so light as not to develop paralysis but which is none the less infectious. The following letter from Dr. Sheppard explains the situation.

I am often asked if the popular fear of this disease is unwarranted. I do not believe in becoming hysterical over this or any other disease, but I am sure that a wholesome fear is a mighty valuable asset for a community to possess for it is a great aid to the health authorities in controlling the situation. It a similar fear of tuberculosis, world wide in extent, could be aroused many thousands of lives could be saved annually.

Very truly yours,
Clarence J. Allen. M. D.

State Board of Health,
Boston, Sept. 9, 1911.

Dr. C. J. Allen,
38 Church street,
Winchester, Mass.

My dear Dr. Allen:—Referring to your letter of a few days ago and to your telephone communication of this morning in regard to the public health measure you are enforcing in the case of acute endemic poliomyelitis in your town, I can only say that, to my mind, you are doing perfectly right. Establishing an absolute quarantine as a precautionary measure is a very wise move in our present state of knowledge.

In the case in question I made a diagnosis, as you will remember, of Pertussis, and Herpes Zoster, complicating Acute Epidemic Poliomyelitis, on the grounds that I went over with you and Dr. Gale at the time. That the child has not developed any actual paralysis is not sufficient reason to change my diagnosis, since, as you will remember, I tried to point out that there is a class of cases in acute epidemic poliomyelitis that gives all the ear-marks of an acute infectious process with fever and sometimes pain, etc., but, for some unknown reason as yet, does not cause sufficient destruction of nervous tissue to bring about any paralysis. This is the so-called abortive type of acute epidemic poliomyelitis spoken of by Wickman. Failure to recognize this type of the disease often leads to errors in diagnosis, or lack of diagnosis. The disease has been proved to be infectious, and there is every evidence that points in the direction of its communicable nature. It is possible that any type of the disease, including the abortive, may form a nidus for spreading the infection in a community where proper precautions are not taken.

If there is anything more that I can do for you that would be of any assistance, please command me.

Yours very truly,
Philip A. E. Sheppard, M. D.,
Special Medical Investigator for the Mass. State Board of Health.

MR. FAY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR PASSAGE OF BILLS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Mr. Joslin's letter in your issue of last week referred to the work done by Mr. Fay in connection with certain laws affecting the interests of this Town which were passed by the last legislature. The laws passed at the last session of the Legislature in which Winchester is particularly interested are three in number and are entitled:

1 Chap. 291 "An Act to provide for the protection of the public health in the vicinity of the town of Winchester and Stoneham and the City of Woburn."

2 Chap. 568 "An Act to confirm certain proceedings of the town of Winchester relative to the laying out of Public Parks."

3 Chap. 496 "An Act relative to the abolition of the grade crossings in the Town of Winchester."

These are all practically local measures and I do not understand that any work of Mr. Fay is responsible for their passage. There was no opposition to either of the first or second named acts either before the committees to which they were referred or before the Legislature, and while there was opposition to the act relating to the grade crossing argument it came from our own citizens who made known their objections to the Railroad Committee (of which Mr. Fay was not a member). This committee, after hearing the citizens in favor of and opposed to the bill and the suggestions which were made to overcome in part at least the objections, reported the bill favorably and thereafter there was no opposition whatsoever.

As I understand it the work was done by the Town Counsel who prepared the petitions with the bills to accompany them and presented them to the Legislature whereupon they passed automatically and doubtless would have passed even if Mr. Fay had been absent during all of the time they were pending.

It seems to me that Mr. Fay's work in connection with these matters is not a sufficient ground for his seeking to annul the understanding with our Medford neighbors which has been faithfully lived up to for so many years.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Punchard left yesterday for Peoria, Ill., where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Punchard will remain until December.

On Wednesday afternoon the fire department was called to box 35 for a fire in an Italian bakery in the block at the corner of Swanton and Holland streets owned by Margaret Fitzgerald. The bakery is operated by Louis Flowers, and an oven heated oven apparently was the cause of the fire, the roof of the building over it catching. One line of hose was used, besides several hand chemicals. The damage was confined wholly to the small shed.

A woman came very near being struck by an in-bound express at the centre on Wednesday afternoon shortly before four o'clock. She was standing at the gates as an outward freight train was passing, and turned and started down the walk towards the station, walking almost on the stone curbing. The engineer of the express whistled repeatedly, arousing everyone in the centre, but the woman did not hear it. As the locomotive reached her the engineer drew back into his cab, evidently expecting that she would be struck. As it was it appeared that the locomotive brushed her skirts sending them flying up into the air and half turning her about. With a grab at her clothes she started to run, not stopping until she reached Common street. Almost everyone who witnessed the incident expected she would be killed.

Mrs. Gordon R. Danforth, daughter of Mrs. Irvin Hilton, is seriously ill with typhoid fever. Her condition has reached the crisis and the turning point is anticipated hourly.

A class has been organized for advanced sloyd for the High school boys, meeting on Tuesdays from 3 to 5 p. m. An advanced sewing class has also been organized for the girls of the school, with lessons Tuesday mornings.

It is reported that the condition of Miss Carrie L. Mason, who is absent from the school teaching staff on account of sickness, is still unfavorable.

The school registration taken last Monday shows an increase of 86 pupils over the first day of school. The total is now 1640 pupils.

Mrs. James E. Corey is ill with the grippe.

David E. Bailey, Chester A. Hawatt and Robert J. Patterson will give the first of a series of dancing parties in Mechanics Hall, Woburn, Sept. 22, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Crawford and daughter, Georgianna, of Wildwood street, returned from their Jamaica trip Tuesday morning.

Cooking classes have been organized in the Public Schools as follows: Every day at 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. Monday evening, 7:30 to 9. Tuesday afternoon, 3 to 5. Other afternoon and evening classes will be formed if a sufficient number of pupils enroll. All interested should advise the Supt. of Schools, Schuyler F. Herron, by telephone, office 107-W, residence 650, or go to the High school cooking room at the hours stated.

Miss Eunice Homer and Miss Hazel Corey are taking the three years course in Household Arts at the Framingham Normal School. This course is so popular that over one hundred girls had to be turned away.

At the adjourned meeting on Thursday of the boys athletic association of the High school Dean Wheatley was elected purchasing agent and Warren Goddu, hockey captain.

In Good Housekeeping Magazine, for October, are eight portraits of American young women from paintings of three well known artists. Six of these portraits are the work of Dana Pond of Winchester. This brilliant young artist's fame is as widely recognized abroad as in this country, for he spends much time in Europe where he has painted many notable people. Besides his work as a successful portrait painter Mr. Pond is a valued instructor in one of the art schools of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William B French and Miss Margaret French, have returned to Winchester after passing the summer at Great Chebeague Island in Casco Bay, Maine.

MR. FAY'S POSITION IS NOT NECESSARILY WEST MEDFORD'S POSITION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We hope that Winchester Republicans are not to be made parties to the purchase of any political gold bricks in the representative contest to be settled in the primaries September 26.

The statement put out in Winchester to the effect that the voters of the 27th Middlesex District in nominating the present Medford representative for a third term are thereby agreeing that the nomination may go to Winchester the three following years may be effective for the purposes of the present Medford candidate, but we know of many Medford Republicans who dissent and who object to having their nominations made for them four years in advance.

We make this statement at this time in order that our position may be known concerning any future nominations.

REV. P. I. OSBORNE

Pastor of Second Congregational Church who has Resigned.

REV. MR. OSBORNE RESIGNS

Rev. P. I. Osborne, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Cross street, in a letter read at the morning service last Sunday, announced his resignation to take effect next Sunday. While it was known that Mr. Osborne was occupying the pulpit only while he was completing his education at the Boston University, yet the announcement that he was to sever his connection with the church so soon was received with surprise and regret, as he made many firm and true friends among the church people during his all too brief pastorate, besides materially increasing the membership.

He leaves here with his family next Wednesday for Cheboygan, Michigan, where he has accepted a call to the First Methodist Church of that place. This church has a membership of 200 and a Sunday school of 250.

Following is Mr. Osborne's letter:

To the Second Congregational Church of Winchester, Mass.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:—In the life and experience of every home there comes a time when sacred and binding ties must be broken. Those of us who are the younger members of our family distinctly remember when our eldest brother, having attained his majority, felt that the time had come wherein he must enter the wider circle of life more immediately and directly. The home, though very dear to his heart and life, was not in a position to provide adequate employment for his expanded powers. In consequence he went out from the home with the worthy and noble ambition of rendering service to mankind. Though obliged to be away from home, there was no place in all the world so dear to him. So figure so aptly illustrates my feeling and intended course of action at the present moment as does this one. This church is that home, and I, its pastor, am that elder brother. During the past two years the most sacred and tender ties have bound us together, ties which we hesitate to break asunder. There is a larger place in the great world beyond which I have been called to fill, a place that will make my influence more far reaching and my powers more productive or good. The door opening into that larger place of Christian activity stands ajar. I hesitate upon its threshold; but a voice urges: "this is the way, walk ye therein." It is the voice of conscience, the voice of duty, the still, small voice, and though loath to do so, nevertheless I must obey. But just a word ere I go

As a church you have never failed to manifest the parental and filial feeling toward my wife and myself. That tandy feeling and interest has again and again taken tangible expression in kindly word and helpful deed. As a family we desire to express our grateful appreciation for your many benedictions and benefactions which have made us not only happy, but have also caused us to look up with stronger faith and more implicit confidence into the face of Him who prompts every pleasant word and inspires every kindly act. We trust that we are leaving you as happy and as prosperous as we found you. Our parting exhortation is that you push forward the work of this excellent church, and allow not the Master's Kingdom to suffer at your hand. That the work may succeed as it should there is urgent need of larger interest, of greater self sacrifice, of more thorough consecration, of a more fixed and unswerving purpose concerning the welfare of Christ's Kingdom on the part of every member of this church family. May every one of us be not only ready and willing to meet the demands of Christ concerning us, but may we in very truth fulfil the personal duties and discharge the obligations, and fulfil in our way the will of God in the extension of His work of grace in this His church, in this His community, and in this His world.

The vacant chair will again soon be occupied, and with your renewed consecration and newly plighted faith, and unceasingly prayered assistance the work will go forward with power and success. Be ye faithful unto death and He will give you the crown of life, and will ultimately unite us, we trust, an unbroken family in His kingdom above, whence we shall go out no more forever.

Respectfully and Affectionately,
P. I. Osborne.

CONVENTION OF KNIGHTS OF SHERWOOD FOREST.

The second annual convention of the Knights of Sherwood Forest of Massachusetts was held in Lowell Tuesday, and was largely attended by delegates from all over the state. The delegates convened in Foresters Hall, Middle street, and after a lengthy business meeting, the supreme officers for the coming term were elected.

A feature of the meeting was the address of welcome by the mayor and the response by the commander general of Boston. In the afternoon the delegates were entertained by the local conclave of the order at Breezy Point, Willow Dale, and the homeward start was made quite late.

Mayor Meehan, in his address, said in part:

"From personal knowledge I feel that practically all of the fraternal organizations are founded on principles of truth. I have never yet known a good member of one of these organizations who was also not a good citizen. Citizenship and, in fact, all of the other worthy institutions of mankind, is founded upon such principles as you incorporate into the basis for your being."

Remarks were also made by prominent members of the order.

Cause for congratulation was the splendid condition of the treasury considering that the order had been in existence only a little over a year. Another pleasing feature was the rapid growth in membership.

The following officers were elected and installed: A. J. Connolly, Boston; supreme commander, re-elected; M. J. Phalen, Lynn, supreme vice commander; Joseph Sabourin, Lowell, supreme adjutant general, re-elected; William F. Merson, Winchester, supreme paymaster general, re-elected; K. E. Young, Boston, supreme sergeant major; P. J. Hughes, Natick, supreme inspector general; H. D. Palmer, Boston, first assistant supreme inspector general; P. T. Lafolley, Boston, second assistant supreme inspector general; Robert L. Melzor, Boston, supreme quartermaster general; Harry F. MacLeod, M. D., Dorchester, supreme surgeon general; C. J. McCarthy, Boston, supreme drill master; J. J. Clark, Boston, assistant drill master; Joseph A. Lawrence, New Bedford, first officer of the guard; P. J. Hennessey, Winchester, second officer of the guard; trustees, Frank McNeil, Winchester; J. A. Bakstrang, Natick and A. W. Lovejoy, Boston, auditors, J. F. McNelly, Winchester; P. R. Monahan, Lowell; W. J. Healy, Lynn; Philip Hendricks, Esq., Boston, supreme advocate general.

Among those from Winchester who attended were: John C. Chamberlain, P. J. Hennessey, J. B. Hook, Frank R. McNeil, James Wheeler, John F. McNelly, Jas. J. Callahan, Wm. F. Merson.

The convention proved most enjoyable to the large number of attendants.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The first meeting of the local Union for this season was held last Friday at the home of the president, Mrs. George H. Hamilton and was well attended. The nearness of the Maine election made the topic of the Maine law very pertinent and several selections from the magazines dealing with the subject were read. It was decided to engage Mrs. Heffron as teacher of the Loyal Temperance Legion and plans were made for the better carrying on of that work.

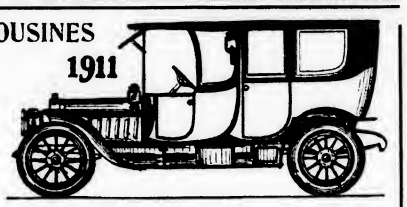

Delegates to the County convention at Bedford, September 26, were chosen and Mrs. Hamilton and Miss Elliott were appointed delegates to the convention of the State W. C. T. U. to be held October 17 20, at Holyoke.

Complimentary resolutions about the retiring secretary were read but it was decided to postpone the appointment of her successor until the October meeting, which will be held Friday the 13th, an ominous day.

Maine's election has certainly attracted much attention this week the conflicting reports giving courage first to one and then to the other. The latest report at this writing is a small majority for the retention of prohibition in the constitution and all W. C. T. U. workers will rejoice.

SUMMER HOME OF MR. ALDEN BIGELOW BURNED.

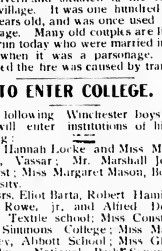

The bungalow at Antrim, N. H., summer home of Mr. Alden Bigelow, of Francis Circuit, this town, was burned to the ground on Monday. Mr. Bigelow with his family had spent the summer at Antrim, as has been his custom for several years past, and had returned to Winchester a few days previous to the fire, and the news by telephone was a great surprise and shock to the family. Nothing was saved. The house was fully furnished throughout, besides a large stock of wood. It was an old land mark of the town, being originally the town tavern and situated in the centre of the village. It was one hundred and forty years old, and was once used as a parsonage. Many old couples are living in Antrim today who were married in the house when it was a parsonage. It is supposed the fire was caused by tramps.

TO ENTER COLLEGE.

The following Winchester boys and girls will enter institutions of higher learning:

Miss Hannah Locke and Miss Madge Hovey, Vassar; Mr. Marshall Jones, Amherst; Miss Margaret Mason, Boston University.

Messrs. Eliot Barta, Robert Hamilton, Frank Rowe, jr. and Alfred Dover, Lowell Textile school; Miss Constance Lane, Simmons College; Miss Marion Parshley, Abbott School; Miss Gladys Spaulding, National Park Seminary; Miss Endora Sykes Framingham Normal School.

The Winchester Stone Company, a duly organized corporation, having its place of business in Winchester, West Side, having applied for permission to use, handle and store dynamite, the Selectmen will hold a hearing on said petition in their room, in the Town Hall building, Monday evening, October 2nd, 1911, at 8 o'clock, when all parties interested may be heard. Such hearing being required by the statutes.

By order of Selectmen,

Mr. Prime, if you are elected to the Legislature will you work and vote to ratify the National income tax amendment?

As it requires only a few more states to vote on this great question to make it a law, Massachusetts may give the deciding vote and your vote will be a very important factor on this question, that is sure to come before the Legislature of 1912.

GLOBE THEATRE.

The lovers of necromancy have a treat in store for them when Howard Thurston, the world's master magician, comes to the Globe for a two weeks engagement, beginning Monday Matinee, Sept. 18th, with Matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Although only 35 years of age, Thurston has taken the foremost position in the ranks of the profession in which Herrmann, Houdini and Kellar won lasting distinction. He has appeared in every part of the civilized globe, and by creating new and unique novelties, his entertainment is one to be remembered.

Mr. Thurston will introduce a number of new illusions, among which is his spectacular act, "The Great Abbott Detroit Auto Mystery," a creation of his own fertile brain. To produce this wonderful feature a cast of six people and a large touring car are used. Those who have seen this act say it is the most mystifying illusion of the century.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 11, 1911.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present Messrs. Boutwell, Nugent, Pond and Daly.

Water lund bonds No. 61 to No. 71 due Nov. 1st, 1912, coupon bonds have been surrendered to the Town in place of a registered bond, and the bonds above mentioned were destroyed by burning in the presence of the Selectmen and the Town Treasurer.

Voted, that the petition of the Edison Company for location of poles on Foxcroft road, be referred back to the company.

Matter of repairs to sidewalk on Cliff street as asked for by Mr. Marshall, referred to the Supt. of Streets to do.

Voted, to write the Arlington Gas Light Company that on all future petitions to be applied for to lay mains, extentions or connections through the streets of this Town, it is hereby ordered that all such petitions must be accompanied by engineers plans showing locations desired, the size of pipe to be laid and such other detail as the Town Engineer may deem advisable. All work to be done under the direction of and satisfactory to the Supt. of Streets.

Mrs. Jennie F. Marble asked for change in gutter on Lincoln street near Highland avenue, for entrance to garage.

Voted, that the arc lights on Main street near Mt. Pleasant and on Washington street near Mt. Vernon street be changed according to plans of the Town Engineer.

Voted, that in the opinion of the Board no necessity exists at the present time for a light on Euclid avenue, and that the petitioners be so notified.

Voted, that the petition of W. H. Herrick and others for building of the upper end of Herrick street, be referred to the Town Counsel and the Town Engineer.

Petitions of the Edison Co. for location of poles on Foxcroft road easterly from Wedgemere avenue, be referred back to the Town Engineer.

Petition of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. for permission to attach wires to poles of the Edison Company on Yale street, referred back to the Town Engineer.

Petitions of the Edison Company and N. E. Tel. Company for location of poles on Hancock street, referred back to the Town Engineer.

Petition of Edison Company for location of four poles on Salisbury road, referred to the Town Engineer to report.

Voted, that the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. be instructed to install two new police boxes, one on Cambridge street corner Church, and one on Highland avenue corner Mt. Vernon street.

Voted, that the polls for the primaries be open from 4 30 to 9, in the afternoon, Sept. 26, 1911.

Warrants drawn for $1945.89 and $1029.57

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Beverly of Graustark," a dramatization of Geo ge Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same name, will have its first production at the Castle Square on Monday. As it title suggests, it is a sequel to "Graustark," but it tells a complete tale in itself. Its scenes are laid in a mythical kingdom, and in incident and action is of the class of "The Prisoner of Zenda," equalling that famous drama both in humor and in romance. It all concerns the fortunes of an American heiress who is traveling through Europe. On the way from St. Petersburg to Graustark, she is waylaid by a band of outlaws, and the leader having saved her life at the risk of his own there after plays a large part in the remaining acts.

The play as a whole is filled with incident and picturesque emotion, and its sentiment and love romance are among its most attractive features. The production on the Castle Square stage will be an event, and the cast will be carefully selected and well arranged. John Craig, Mary Young, Gertrude Bingley, Morgan Wallace and George Russell will all have important roles. "Beverly of Graustark" will be given for only one week.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

The constant change in program and additional views make frequent visits to the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple a pleasure. The seventh week beginning on Monday will find all the original popular features retained, together with many other pictures that disclose the scenes of the Coronation ceremonies and the beautiful scenic display of various parts of Great Britain. Not in many years has such a novelty, both scientific and historical, been seen in Boston as this, and there is therefore every reason why the longest possible engagement should be its reward. Two performances are given daily, with descriptive lecture by Eugene Farnsworth and special orchestral music.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Unitarian Church.

Joel H. Metcalf, Minister. Residence, 3 Crescent Road.

Sunday 10.30 a. m. Public service of worship with preaching by the pastor. Subject, "The Lord's Prayer."

12 m. The Sunday School will meet in Metcalf Hall. There will be no regular lesson, instead Mr. Metcalf will give a stereopticon talk on "Patriarchal Life in the Jordan Valley," showing the Bedouin Life of to-day, which illustrates the customs of the Old Testament times.

These lectures are to be continued until October 15, when the regular lessons will begin.

The subjects are illustrated by beautiful slides from Underwood & Underwood.

The National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held in Washington, D. C., from October 23-26.

Arrangements have been made for a large reduction in railroad fare and hotel accommodations which will make the trip a very reasonable one. It is hoped there may be a large delegation from the Winchester church. A special train will go from Boston.

Contrary to expectations Mr. Metcalf was able to occupy his pulpit last Sunday. He was booked to sail from Liverpool on the Arabic on August 29. But owing to the strike the sailing was delayed for three days. As this made it doubtful whether he would arrive in time to preach he sent a cable to that effect. The passage however, was such a favorable one that by Thursday evening, too late for an adequate notice in the STAR, he was able to send a wireless message saying he would arrive on time.

He reports his summer trip to have been a great success, having visited seven cities with his party of 22 people and taken them in all about 12,000 miles. With the exception of 3 days in Venice the weather was not too hot for comfort.

READING FAIR.

The annual fair and cattle show of the Quannapowitt agricultural association known as the Reading fair which takes place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week Sept. 19-21, at the Reading Wakefield fair grounds combines a first class horse show with all the features of an old-fashioned New England fair with a special Grangers and woman's work exhibit.

Gov. Eugene N. Foss and the horse show by 40 prize winners from all parts of the state will be the big attraction on Tuesday the opening day. 20 classes including a tally-ho race of a mile and driving by Gov. Foss's twin daughters will be among the features. Among the strings of horses to be shown are those of Maurice Dammond, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft of Cambridge, R. G. Tower of Lexington, Harry L. Pierce and L. L. Richardson of Leominster, J. Harry Coulter of Cohasset, M. F. Murphy of Boston, besides several four-in-hands, tally-hoes and park tours.

Grangers day Wednesday will afford a fine chance to see old fashioned plowing and drafting matches in the morning with a big work horse parade at noon. In the afternoon the first of four $200 purse races will be held including a 2.21 and a 2.23 trot or pace, mile heat races with a free-for-all and a 1.18 half mile matinee. A special match race between High Ball 2.03 1-4 owned by Sam Hastings of Wayland and Wilkesheart 2.06 1-4 two of the fastest trotters in New England will conclude the horse racing program for the day.

Thursday the closing day has an exhibition parade of prize winners on the track scheduled for the morning with a local horse show and an auto parade. Five horses will be run off in the afternoon at 2.30 and a free-for-all mile heat event for $200 purses, the 1.12 and 1.15 trot or pace half mile matinee classes for $50 and $25 purses with a special farmers race owners to drive. In all more than 100 horses from the local driving clubs are entered and keen sport is assured.

The Reading, Lexington and several other local granges entered a contest for a prize and a woman's exhibit will also be a new feature. The exhibit of cattle, live stock fruit, vegetables and the midway with its novelties promises to excel all previous years.

PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in any of the real estate of Sibella Taylor, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, Daniel E. Taylor of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, has presented to said Court a petition, representing that he as the husband of said deceased, is entitled to take five thousand dollars and one-half of the remaining personal, and one-half of the remaining real property of said deceased, that the personal estate is insufficient to pay the said five thousand dollars and that the whole amount of the estate of said deceased does not exceed in value the sum of five thousand dollars over and above the amount necessary to pay debts and charges of administration, and praying that the whole of the real estate which is described in said petition may be assigned and set out to him by the Court according to law, to provide for said deficiency at a value of twenty-five hundred dollars, or at such other value as may be fixed by said Court.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the fifth day of October, A. D. 1911, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each person interested who can be found within the Commonwealth, fourteen days at least before said Court, and by causing the same to be printed in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, once in each week, for three successive weeks, the last publication to be one day at least, before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this thirteenth day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

CONVENTION OFFICIALS

Congressman Harris Expects to Make a Great Address

ELDER A1 PLATFORM BUILDER

Republicans Plan Big Convention—Governor Foss and the Garment Workers—Attempt to Put Frothingham In Hole Fails—Democrats Seek New Campaign Issues

The Republican state convention to be held next month promises to be one of the most interesting in recent years. It will be the first held since the passage of the state-wide primaries law, and for that reason alone will be watched with unusual interest. Congressman Robert O. Harris of the 14th district will be the permanent chairman and preside during the convention. Mr. Harris is one of the ablest men in the congressional delegation from this state, and his address is likely to be the keynote of the state campaign. As a lawyer, and as a judge of one of the high courts, Congressman Harris had a rare experience in redrawing a district which had been so recently captured by the Democrats. He has taken note of the attitude of the southern congressmen toward New England industries, and that attitude has surprised as much as it has displeased him. He found them openly boasting that when their opportunity came they would take away every shred of protection from New England. They insist, however, on a protective tariff for sugar and other products of the southern states.

With Hon. Samuel J. Elder as chairman of the committee on resolutions, the party platform is certain to be correct and Republican. Mr. Elder has the rare ability of both speaking and writing well. The convention will be held in Tremont Temple, Boston, Wednesday, Oct. 1, at 10:30 a. m.

The State Convention Delegates

Under the new primary act, the convention will consist of delegates elected at the regular primaries on number not less than one for each ward and town, the members of the state committee, the United States senators from Massachusetts, who are members of the party, the nominees of the party for all offices to be filled at the state election, and in years in which no elections are held for such offices, the members of the senate or offices who are members of the party. It will be seen from the list just quoted that the new law makes a radical change in the old convention system which consisted entirely of delegates elected at the primaries.

Lieutenant Governor Frothingham Is Vindicated

Governor Foss has been having quite a time over some republican papers which it was alleged had been stained by Lieutenant Governor Frothingham and Attorney Gen. Swift for the extradition of Louis Brooks and Nathan Berkman from Massachusetts to Hebron, Conn., at the request of Samuel Schlarlipf of the latter place. They were charged with conspiracy to destroy property of the firm run by Schlarlip, by working among the latter's strike breakers in his factory to induce them to quit work, and with having caused damage to his property. The application for extradition charged a conspiracy to ruin Schlarlip. It has turned out that Lieutenant Governor Frothingham had nothing to do with signing the extradition papers, but that they were signed by Governor Foss after he returned from his recent trip to California.

After the extradition papers had been issued, the garment workers of Boston began to protest, and Governor Foss withdrew them. When the papers were received, it was then discovered that they were signed by Governor Foss, and not by Lieutenant Governor Frothingham as had been alleged. It looked to some of the people at the state house as if an attempt had been made to put Lieutenant Governor Frothingham in a hole for an act of Mr. Foss.

Foss Has Not Made Good

Last year Mr. Foss made his campaign almost entirely on the increased cost of living, charging the Republican party with being responsible for that condition. Since then the greater part of the intelligent people of the country have come to realize that the increase is world-wide, and the Democratic argument carries little [illegible] as he has not made good on his promise of what he would do if he were elected on the cost of living issue.

Trying to Placate Labor

He will undoubtedly try to placate the labor element which has not been entirely satisfied with his treatment of them during his term of office. At a recent meeting on Boston common in favor of woman suffrage, Miss Margaret Foley made a sharp attack upon the administration of Governor Foss for his delay in signing the fifty-four hour bill for women and children. Miss Foley claimed that Governor Foss acted as he did because he knew that these women and children could not go out on the stump; nevertheless she said they would, and would feel him. In the course of her remarks, she said that the governor was elected by the working community of people on the condition that he would sign the eight hour bill pertaining to men in government employ. Governor Foss did sign that bill, but Miss Foley declares that when the fifty-four hour bill for women and children came before him, he hesitated. She says that he took considerable time, and it was not until he was strongly urged by labor men that he signed it, and then would only do so on condition that shorter hours for women and children would not again be asked for many years. She declared he did this because he knew there was not a voter among the women and children; but there would be a time when he would be dealing with women as voters, and that at that time the women of Massachusetts would not forget the fifty-four hour bill.

A GRANITE BOMB.

Jack Frost Hurled It Down Into the Yosemite Valley.

Delicate frost tracings on the window panes seem to be the work of fanciful and harmless sportiveness, but the hand that forms them is capable of greater deeds and of other kinds. Mr. J. Stanton Chase, in "Yosemite Trails," describes an experience that must have been wonderfully impressive to the spectator. He had been spending some weeks in exploring the Yosemite valley and the "great rocks," like El Capitan, that wall it in.

Standing one day of late autumn about the middle of the valley, I was startled by a report like a cannon shot, which filled the whole valley with echoes that roared and boomed, replied and multiplied, in a long continued, glorious tumult.

As the deafening sound died away in sullen mutterings under the visor of El Capitan I was able to distinguish the point of attack by the long, clattering descent of a vast quantity of rock.

The night had been a cold one in the valley, and on the seven to eight thousand foot levels of the upper rim the temperature must have dropped almost to zero.

Frost, working quietly with his Archimedean lever, had just succeeded in shifting from the shoulder of the sentinel a trifle of fifty tons or so of granite. For near a thousand feet the bowlder fell sheer, swift and silent; then, striking the cliff, it burst like a bomb, shattered into a myriad flying shards and splinters and dislodged a smother of fragments that trickled down to the valley in a stream that lasted for minutes.

Then from the spot where the bowlder had struck dust began to rise into the sunny air, slowly building up and burgeoning like a summer cloud and every bit as snowy. It was the dust of granite, powdered instantaneously by the terrific shock.

REGULAR MEETING
First Monday Evening of Each Month, 7 to 9.

It is holiday the following evening.

"Thousands are hacking at the branches to one who is striking at the root." Whenever an ordinary mortgage is placed on the home it is hacking at the branches. When the mortgage is to the Winchester Co-operative Bank it is striking at the root; it is bound to be paid. Whenever you adopt the ordinary method of saving you are hacking at the branches, and it becomes a special effort. When you adopt the Winchester Co-operative Bank method, you strike at the root; it is regular and systematic.

A new series of shares is issued at the regular monthly meetings in May and November.

Booklet describing the operation of the Bank will be mailed on request and explanation in greater detail to those calling at this office.

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

VI.—When a Man Takes to Flying

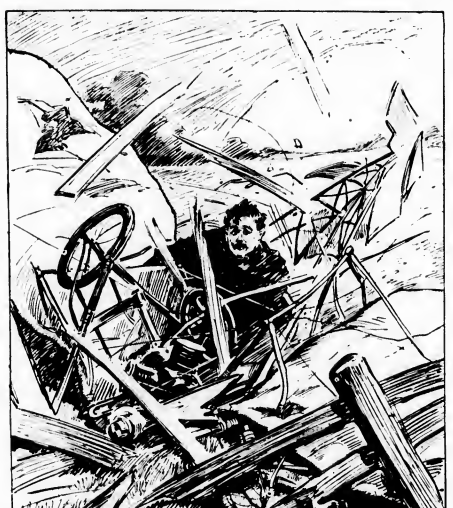

[Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely. Copyright in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.]

WHEN a man takes to flying he enters upon a career which is the most troublesome and yet the most fascinating that has ever been opened up for human beings. He invades a realm for which nature never intended him. All of his instincts teach him that to ascend high above the earth is to court death and that to trust himself to so flimsy and so breakable a thing as an aeroplane is to go to the utter extreme of recklessness and daring.

My admiration is unbounded for those first men who actually rose off of the ground in their crude heavier than air machines and defied nature with their new found toy. Each of us who has followed has had to prove his nerve and his skill, but we know when we start to learn that the machines we trust ourselves to are right, that they will fly if properly handled and that there is no very great secret about it at all because it has been done before a circle to the left, and almost before I knew it I was back at my starting place and had stopped the engine.

Then Grahame-White explained to me that a Bleriot always has a tendency to steer to the left when it is running along the ground. This is due to the downward thrust of the propeller and the greater effect of the air pressure on one side than another. After being instructed to steer with my foot lever until I got going at full speed I started off again. This time at the first sign of a pull toward the left I thrust out my right foot and headed for the other way. Once more I had to do this, and then I attained full speed and was able to keep on in a straight line down the course.

Feeling with the utmost confidence that the tying of the wheel would make it impossible for me to rise from the ground, I had not the slightest nervousness as to the outcome of my journey, and I thoroughly enjoyed my dash down that mile of level earth at a rate of about thirty or thirty-five miles an hour. But again I was destined to a great surprise—a surprise and we need merely do as our predecessors did. But those first men dashed absolutely into the unknown.

"I FELT THAT THE HEAVENS WERE TUMBLING ABOUT MY EARS."

Not long ago Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, the veteran balloonist and aviator, investigated the subject and as a result he declared that every beginner in aviation smashes up $2,000 worth of property before he can get a certificate of competence, and one can easily imagine the risk to life and limb that is constantly run while these dodging flights are being made. In my own case, when the mechanics let go of my machine for my first flight, it looked as though I were going to disprove this statement, but it was not many seconds thereafter before I showed that, if anything, Captain Baldwin's estimate of cost was altogether too low.

My First Lesson In Flying.

My first lesson was taken from Grahame-White at Pau. His Bleriot was equipped with an Anzani motor, for it was before the Gnome had been placed upon the market, and it was probably fortunate for me that my machine did not have the greater horsepower developed by the later type of engine.

I learned as did most of the men who have made a success of the work. The controls were explained to me, and I made a thorough study of the theory on which the machine operates. I knew what to do to make the monoplane go up or down or steer to right or left, and I knew how to warp the wings to preserve my balance—that is, I knew them in theory, though I had, of course, never tried them in practice.

"Now," said Grahame-White, "you are to take a run along the ground and see if you can steer the machine. The wheel is tied so that you cannot go up into the air, and all you are to do is to keep going straight and shut off your engine when you come to the end of the field."

So my engine was started, and when the propeller got going at a fair speed I gave the signal to the mechanics who were holding the machine to let go, and I felt myself dash forward smoothly over the ground. I believed that all I had to do was to leave the machine pretty well alone and it would go in a straight line until I stopped the engine, but in this I was destined to meet with a great surprise, for instead of going straight ahead I found myself going around in that taught me to fly much as one teaches a boy to swim by throwing him in the water and letting him strike out for himself.

I Find Myself In the Air.

At the end of the mile straight away on the course was a road crossing the field at right angles and at an elevation of several feet above the rest of the ground. Without thinking much about this road and feeling perhaps that so slight and so gradual an embankment was not a serious obstacle, I went dashing merrily on and up the slope toward the highway.

A few minutes later my utter astonishment may be imagined when I suddenly realized that I was not upon the ground at all, but was sailing gracefully through the air at a height of about eighty feet above the earth.

The explanation is simple enough to me now. When the front of my machine took the slope of the embankment it rose until the slant of my planes was exactly what was necessary for the impact of the air to get under them and give the required lifting power for the machine to fly. In other words, the embankment did for me what I might have done for myself had my wheel not been tied, and it sent my machine upward into the air as gracefully and as easily as though it had been expressly operated for that result by the most skilled aviator.

For the first few minutes my astonishment was so great that I did absolutely nothing but sit motionless and let the Bleriot take its course. Then I pulled myself together and tried to remember everything that Grahame-White had told me about how to manage the machine.

My one thought was to get back to my starting point, for by this time I had gone beyond the smooth fields and was flying over rough and dangerous ground that would have meant instant disaster had I landed upon it. So, in order to turn, I thrust my left foot firmly forward, and I shall never forget my thrill of triumph as I found the Bleriot gradually sweeping about in a wide and easy circle to the left that soon brought me again back to the smooth fields and facing toward the place of rise from which I had come.

An Unexpected Disaster.

As I was wheeling my starting place I shoved my wheel gently forward, as I had been instructed to go to come down, and a few moments thereafter I landed as lightly as a bird feeling that my first flight had indeed been a triumph unmarred in any way and entirely disproving the discouraging things I had heard about the difficulties of learning to fly.

I landed with the wind and going at a speed well up between fifty and sixty miles an hour, and not twenty feet from where I touched the ground was a high fence. Into this I crashed at full speed. I felt a sudden jar and heard the loud noises of splintering wood all about me—so loud indeed that I felt that the heavens were tumbling about my ears. Then I felt another jar as I fell to the earth, and when I had recovered my senses sufficiently to examine the wreck I found that there was not much left except the seat and me. For the seat I had no very high regard, but I was mighty glad and grateful to find that I was able to get up and walk about with only a score or so of sore spots distributed over my body.

I must have been an awful sight to behold. From the very beginning of my flight, unaccustomed as I was to hurtling at such a rate through the air, the wind had lashed my eyes as though with whipcords, and my eyeballs had become sore and inflamed. The oil from the engine had been dashed back on to my face, and there it had mingled in grimy brotherhood with the water that streamed from my eyes under the lashing of the wind.

It took me a long while to get used to this pain caused in the eyes by the rushing air, and during the next few weeks when I began flying with the Gnome engine I got a double dose of lubricating oil in my hair, all over my face and down my neck.

I flew with the first Gnome engine ever put upon the market. It was a short time after I had taken my initial lessons from Grahame-White and when I was in the school run by Bleriot himself at Pau.

It was a vastly different matter to start a flight with this new motor. Instead of having an easy run along the ground and lifting at a speed of about thirty miles an hour, as I had done with Grahame-White's Anzani, I now found myself rushing along at nearly fifty miles an hour almost as soon as the mechanics let go of the machine. Here my poor eyes got a lashing which I shall never forget and which daily nearly blinded me until I became accustomed to flying at this tremendous speed.

I Go In For High Flying.

From the very first the one phase of aviation that held a really powerful fascination for me was altitude climbing. No sooner had I tried my bedraggling wings than I looked longingly into the upper air and wanted to climb as far as my engine would carry me.

On the third day of my practice at the Bleriot school with the Gnome motor I decided to take affairs into my own hands, and, disregarding all the advice that had been given me, I headed the machine upward and climbed close to a thousand feet, when suddenly, one after the other, three of my cylinders went bad, and I was forced to coast down to the ground again. It was the result of some minor defect in the new engine, and when it was repaired I took my equipment with me to my place at Beaulieu, in England, there to practice a bit and then try for my certificate, or aviator's license.

I became proficient in a remarkably short time. When I felt that I could pass inspection I had the officials of the English Aero club appoint a day when I should try for my certificate. An official came up to wish me good luck just before my me hanics started the propeller, and I asked:

"What is the English height record?"

"Pauhan has it," he replied. "It is 977 feet."

"Well," I said as I turned away, "I am going to try to beat that."

I started off in wide circles, and the first two times I passed over the heads of the officials I saw one of them wave a red flag, the signal for a naval officer with a sextant to take my height. Higher and higher I went, but I was surprised not to see the flag wave after that, and I came to earth again.

"How much did I do?" I asked the navy officer.

"Ten hundred and forty feet," he replied. "You have broken the English altitude record, and I think you will go twice as high if that fuel unfortunately the man who was to signal me with the flag got mixed up somehow, and I only took your height on your first and second circles."

This love of altitude work has been my constant passion ever since. Merely to get into an aeroplane and fly no longer has any fascination for me. I want to climb. I want to keep going up until I am sure that I am higher than any man has ever been before in a heavier than air machine, and though not long ago I almost decided to give up aeroplane work I can feel the desire growing stronger upon me, and it would not surprise me if I tried for another record soon.

Eternal practice and unfailing patience are necessary when the average man takes to flying. Day after day he must go out "grass cutting," as they say at Mineola when the novices roll along the ground or take only short, low hops into the air. This is not exciting and it will seem to the would-be pilot that he is making slow progress, but, as a matter of fact, he is training his mind and his muscles to work in unison and by instinct, and the flights alone is worth all the trouble it takes to acquire it once it is secured. It may be months before the earth. It may not be needed very often, but, like a gun in Texas, when it is needed it is needed badly.

The directors of the Winchester Boat Club are considering enlarging the hall of the club house and the locker room. The increase in the membership during the last two seasons has taxed the capacity of the club to its limit, there being no more lockers available and a decided demand for increased hall space for the dances and entertainments. Messrs. Charles A. Gleason, Schuyler F. Herron, James H. Gerlach and T. Price Wilson have been appointed a committee to consider the matter.

A new police telephone box has been placed on Brown & Stanton Block near Abare's drug store. The large telephone pole on the corner which formerly supported the box has been removed, making a much better appearance for the square.

MR. FAY'S RECORD APPROVED

"Practical Politics" for September 16 has the following to say of Mr. Wilton B. Fay's candidacy for re-election as representative from the Winchester-West Medford District.

"It is to be sincerely hoped in the interests of the district and the commonwealth, that the district will see fit to let Medford have the nomination again this year that the valuable services of Rep. Wilton B. Fay may be retained for another year, in which, by the way, he promises, it returned, to land at the head of the ways and means committee.

WILTON B. FAY
Candidate for Representative to the General Court.

Leading republicans of Winchester see the wisdom of keeping Rep. Fay on the hill for one more year and this should be easily arranged through the willingness of Medford to let Winchester have the nomination for the three following years. The district will be the beneficiary of such a course as no man reached high water mark in legislation until his third year. . . .

"There isn't a harder worker in the whole political population of the state than Mr. Fay. Ever since he has been a member of the house he has had a place on the committee on ways and means. This committee has always enough to do, but this year it has been more than ever burdened with work, owing to the necessity of digesting the reports of Gov. Foss' experts on the various appropriations asked for by the state departments. The Walker act under which these reports came into existence went into effect this year for the first time. It virtually doubled the work of the committee, forcing on it double hearings and long drawn out sessions. At all of these hearings Rep. Fay proved himself again this year a man who wanted to know just how the money of the state was to be expended. Very little gets by him without being subjected to the careful analysis of a trained financial mind. Rep. Fay's long training as an accountant leads him to discover flaws that might otherwise escape notice.

Rep. Fay is a member of the Republican State Committee and has been since 1908. . . . . He has a mind of his own and the Medford man can fight for what he believes to be right. Rep. Fay has long been prominent in Republican politics. . . Besides being a member of the State Committee he is prominent in the Republican Club of Mass. As a tribute to his ability to raise the sinews of war he is on the finance committee of the state committee and has been treasurer of the eighth district congressional committee for ten years. For five years he was chairman of the republican city committee of Medford. . . . He represented his congressional district as an alternate delegate to the national convention of 1908."

CITIZENS ENDORSE MR. FAY.

The undersigned, Republicans of Winchester, endorse the candidacy of Mr. Wilton B. Fay for the Legislature, believing, first, that the services already rendered by him make it advisable that he be retained in office another year, and second, that by so doing, Winchester will be conceded a like term of three years for such representative as it may select at the close of Mr. Fay's term.

DOWNS—BRIGHAM.

Miss Alice Whitney Brigham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eustace H. Brigham of Crescent road, and Mr. Kenneth Erskine Downs, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Downs of Brookline, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday evening at seven o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich of the Congregational Church of Taunton, a former pastor of the family at Marlboro, and was witnessed only by the immediate families.

The ceremony was performed in the living room of the house, the couple standing before a curtain of clematis and ivy which dropped from the ceiling. Miss Maud W. Downs, sister of the groom, played the wedding march for the entrance of the couple. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Paul H. Foster of Jamaica Plain was best man, and Miss Nancy S. Brigham, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride wore white satin, trimmed with duchess lace. Her veil was caught with a spray of lillies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers. The maid of honor wore pink messaline with an over dress of blue marquesette and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A reception was held from eight to nine-thirty, about one hundred and fifty guests attending. Mr. and Mrs. Downs were assisted in receiving by their parents and the Misses Downs and Brigham. During the evening music was rendered by an orchestra and a collation was served. The ushers were Mr. W. Hector S. Kollmyer of Brookline and Mr. William B. Whitney of Melrose.

The residence was most attractively decorated for the wedding, hydrangeas, clematis, palms and cut flowers being used in all of the rooms with a simple and pleasing effect. The couple were lavishly remembered by their large circle of friends and the gifts made an attractive display, including besides much silver and glassware a number of checks.

They will reside in Burton Halls, Cambridge, being at home to their friends after January first. The groom is well known to Cambridge residents through his connection with the Harvard Trust Co., of that city. He is a graduate of Harvard, '04.

The Wistaria girls will hold a meeting next Tuesday evening at Miss Nellie Sullivan's home to make preparations for their annual dancing party.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Roach are spending two weeks in Vermont.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

Agreements have been signed, through the Edw. T Harrington Co's. Winchester office, for the sale of a modern three suite apartment and 3700 sq. ft. of land, on Boston avenue., Medford Hillside, to Fannie S. Hall of Winchester, who purchases for investment. Israel P. Rice is the grantor.

Mrs. Carrie H. Spaulding has rented her furnished house, corner of Highland avenue and Myrtle terrace, to Mr. Charles P. Hall of West Newton.

Sarah E. Foshick has leased her house No. 41 Myrtle Terrace, to James S. Allen, jr., a Boston attorney. Edw. T. Harrington Co. were the brokers.

TINKHAM—BRACKETT.

Announcement has been made of the marriage on Thursday, Sept. 14th, of Dr. Oliver Goldsmith Tinkham of 527 Beacon street, Boston, and Miss Hazel May Brackett of this town, daughter of Mr. Walter F. Brackett of Stoneham, by the bride's brother, Rev. Charles P. Wellman of his home in Dorchester.

On account of the recent death of the bride groom's father, Dr. O. W. Tinkham of Weymouth, cards sent out for the church ceremony last Tuesday were recalled, and the wedding was private.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my thanks to the many kind friends who assisted by word and deed during the last illness of my wife, and also for the many tokens of remembrance and expressions of sympathy at her death.

Benjamin Edwards.

Eighteen new voters were registered last evening.

IRVING STEVENS PALMER.

One of Winchester's Best Beloved Citizens Passes Away.

Irving Stevens Palmer, one of Winchester's most known residents, passed away on April 19, 1911. Tuesday morning, at the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston, where he had been taken last week Thursday suffering from an attack of hemorrhage of the heart. His condition from the time of the first attack up to his death showed constant improvement, plans having been made on Monday for his early removal from the hospital to his summer home at Marblehead Neck. His death was a great shock to his family and friends alike.

IRVING S. PALMER

Mr. Palmer was stricken following a Board meeting at the Bunker Hill Branch of the American Trust Co., he complaining upon his return to his office of considerable pain. His physician was called and he was removed to the hospital. He was almost 73 years of age and was prominently identified with the social life of Winchester and of Marblehead, where he spent much of his time.

Irving Stevens Palmer was born in Novara, 1838, to Goffstown, now Manchester, N. H. He was the son of William and Abigail Eaton Palmer. On account of the early decease of his parents he was brought up and educated in the Boston public schools by his uncle, the late Stevens G. Palmer of Newbury street. He came to Winchester in 1856 with his uncle, living in the house at the corner of Church and Common streets, now occupied by Dr. C. J. Allen.

During his early life he served an apprenticeship in the leather business, and later was associated with Mr. Barker, formerly a resident of Woburn, in oil and tar products of North Carolina. Most of his early business training was under the able instruction of his uncle and in 1871 he associated himself with his father-in-law, the late Harrison Parker, in the mahogany lumber and veneer manufacturing industry, established by Harrison Parker in Woburn (now Cutter's Village) in 1853. Later the mill was removed to Boston and Charlestown, where the present large plant of Palmer & Parker Co. is located. Mr. Palmer, with his brother-in-law, Harris B. Parker, 2nd, formed the firm of Palmer, Parker & Co., which in 1906 was incorporated as Palmer & Parker Co., of which the deceased was treasurer.

He was twice married. First, on May 25, 1868, to Miss Eugenia E. Parker, who died Dec. 11, 1894, and later on Feb. 5, 1902 to Miss Frances M. Logan, who survives him. He leaves one son, Mr. William I. Palmer of Glengarry.

Mr. Palmer was a member of the First Congregational Church of this town, William Parkman Lodge of Masons, of Woburn Royal Arch Chapter and Boston Commandery, K. T. He served his country faithfully and well with the First New Hampshire Volunteer Light Battery until wounded and obliged to return home after the battle of Fredericksburg. He was a member of A. D. Weld Post, 148, G. A. R. He was never active in public life, although he served on the Winchester Water Board from 1878 to 1881, during the building of the South reservoir. Although not a member of the Calumet Club at the time of his death, he was one of the early presidents of the Winchester Young Men's Club, out of which the former organization was formed. He was a member of the Eastern Yacht Club, a charter member of the Corinthian Yacht Club, a member of the advisory board of the Bunker Hill Branch of the American Trust Co. and a trustee of Warren Institute of Savings of Charlestown.

Mr. Palmer's Winchester residence was on Dix street. He lived happily, generally beloved and respected, both here and in Marblehead, where he had been a summer resident for the past 31 years.

The funeral services were held from the residence yesterday afternoon at 2.30, conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Reading Congregational Church, a former pastor of the deceased.

The services were largely attended by many friends of the deceased and representatives of social and business organizations with which he had been connected. Mr. Newton spoke lovingly of the life and virtues of Mr. Palmer and during the services the selections "Crossing the Bar" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" were sung by a mixed quartette. The gifts of floral offerings were most impressive tokens of the high esteem in which Mr. Palmer was held.

The services at the grave in Wildwood Cemetery were in charge of William Parkman Lodge of Masons. The temporary pall bearers were Messrs. Samuel J. Elder and John F. Wilson of this town, Charles R. Lawrence of Boston, Fred K. Brown of Lexington and Frank D. Sawyer of Arlington. The Masonic bearers were Messrs. James P. Boutwell, Henry J. Winde, Benjamin T. Morgan and Fred V. Wooster of William Parkman Lodge, and representing the Boston Commandery, K. T., were Messrs. George F. Parker and George G. Stratton.

A NEW WORKER IN THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The first Congregational Church has entered deliberately on a campaign whose object is to develop the splendid talent powers of that institution into a more aggressive and far reaching activity. As a step in that direction a pastoral assistant has been secured in Mrs. Margaret Lovejoy Weber of Des Moines Iowa. Mrs. Weber has held for eight years a somewhat similar in Plymouth Church of that city. By endowment, training and experience she is eminently fitted for this line of work which will concern primarily the children and younger people. Besides possessing a personality naturally pleasing and attractive to young people and beyond a wide experience in organizing and training them, Mrs. Weber is an accomplished musician and choir director. She has met most gratifying success as a music supervisor in city schools, as an instructor of supervisors in the Normal School and as a lecturer in summer schools; as a discoverer of voices of promise and as a teacher of voice her record is remarkable. Of late she has specialized in the oragnization and direction of church and festal choirs. In Des Moines she has maintained a church choir of seventy with a waiting list of applicants always on file and a children's chorus of 150 voices. In all, she has had from five to six hundred young people constantly [illegible]

The [illegible] ideal of her music at work in the [illegible] is spritual a[illegible] religious. It is a [illegible] ministry in other words it is not music that she is working for in the least; it is life strong, high-minded, whole hearted, enthusiastic life. Music in her conception is a noble and exceedingly effective means, but still only a means to that end.

Mrs. Weber has already organized a large chorus choir which will sing each Sunday morning and it is expected will also before long appear each week at a Sunday afternoon service to be inaugurated. She will give individual instruction to members of the choir in breathing, voice and reading when needed or desired. In addition to this a vocal training class open to all children between the ages of eight and fifteen will be established. From this class a children's chorus and a boy choir are to be formed.

A social and religious society of youth ranging in age from twelve to seventeen is being organized which also will be under the supervision of the pastoral assistant.

Mrs. Weber's daughter, Miss Harriet L. Weber, is secretary to the minister and is in charge of his office at the church.

MR. JAY B. BENTON
The Intrepid Air Pilot who Enjoys Sailing Through the Skies

BENTON DESCRIBES JOURNEY.

Night Balloon Trip That Proved Exciting and Dangerous.

Drifting over New York city at dawn, crossing Long Island sound at an altitude of 8500 feet and then descending to the ground in seven minutes to find themselves in Auburndale, part of Queensborough, L. I., after a night flight from Pittsfield, were the chief incidents in the balloon trip of William Van Sleet of North Adams, Jay B. Benton of Winchester and John J. Van Valkenburgh of South Framingham, made primarily, to qualify the latter for a license as a balloon pilot.

Van Sleet, who acted as pilot, and Benton, who is a seasoned aeronaut, declared after landing that the flight was one of the most interesting in their experiences, while Van Valkenburg was delighted as having his final trial flight prove so successful.

"It was a flight full of incident from start to finish," declared Benton after his return to Boston Sunday night. "We were supposed to start before midnight Saturday in order to qualify Van Valkenburgh, for the rules state that the night flight shall be started before midnight and ended after sunrise, or started before sunrise and ended after midnight.

"Van Sleet had been in upper New York state fishing and his automobile was put out of commission by heavy rains and mud. At 11.30 Saturday night he had failed to appear and we were in a quandary. He reached Pittsfield at 11.40, after a wild ride over from North Adams, and we immediately prepared the Springfield, the balloon in which the flight was made, for the start.

"Hustling as best we knew how, we cast of at five minutes before midnight and were 1000 feet in the air when the clock struck the hour.

The wind was taking up west-of-south, and being unable to see the ground below, we attempted to generalize on our course by means of maps and the compass. Owing to the drift, however, we were unable to tell with any degree of certainty and thought we would strike the Hudson between New York and Albany. Apparently we passed over western Connecticut after leaving Massachusetts

"The lights of New York city appeared to us as the sun rose and we drifted directly over it at a height of a mile, seeing the vistas of the avenues and cross streets, the moving wagons and the early risers on the streets below, and could distinguish many of the larger buildings.

"As we struck the North river the wind swung us southward, while the rising sun expanded the gas in the aerostat until we read 85[illegible] feet on the barograph. At this height we could see the greater part of Manhattan, while Long Island was partly obscured by a [illegible] [illegible] we landed with [illegible], being greeted by a mounted policeman and a man with a wagon, apparently the only persons who saw our approach and our flight over the city.

"We found we had landed in Auburndale, which is about eight miles from Oyster Bay, the home of former President Roosevelt. We landed about 5.25 making our time in the air 5 hours, 30 minutes, in which we had covered about 125 miles.

"The balloon was immediately deflated and taken to the station by the wagoner who received us, and after a hearty breakfast we returned. I see no reason why Van Valkenburgh will not be granted his pilot's license, as he has fulfilled every requirement. It was a glorious trip."

Newsy Paragraphs

Wednesday we received a very pleasant visit from Dr. J. L. Hildreth, a new comer to Winchester, who has made his future home at 55 Fletcher street. Dr. Hildreth, who has been one of the leading practitioners of Cambridge for many years, is father-in-law to Mr. Charles E. Barrett, cashier of the local National Bank, and is one of those genial and hearty men whom it is a pleasure to meet and know. During his college days one of his classmates and chums was Deacon Charles E. Swett of this town.

An Author's Reading will be given in Jordan Hall on Tuesday, Sept. 26, at 2.30 o'clock, for the benefit of the California campaign to secure the passage of the Equal Suffrage Amendment to the Constitution, to be voted on Oct. 10 next. Josephine Preston Peabody, author of "The Piper," Inez Haynes Gilmore and Walter Byrnes, Phi Beta Kappa Port at Harvard in 1911 will be the readers. A short play with music will also be given by members of the "Over Night" Company. This offers an excellent chance for the believers in justice to women to contribute their mite in aid of the cause and the splendid work the California women and men are doing.

Cooking classes have been organized for out of school hours, more especially for girls not attending school, at the High school. The classes meet on Tuesday afternoons from 3 to 5 o'clock and on Thursday evenings from 7.30 to 9. There are sections doing elementary and advanced work in both classes.

PRIMARIES AND POLITICS.

Winchester, Mass., Sept. 19, 1911.
EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For several weeks the newspaper discussions and private conversations concerning the approaching primaries have been almost exclusively confined to a consideration of whether this man or that man should be nominated, and almost no attention is being given to the fundamental and far-reaching importance of what is one of the two most noteworthy innovations in political methods in recent years, the other being the adoption of the Australian ballot.

Caucuses and conventions have so long prevailed in the United States that they seemed to have established for themselves an impregnable position, but the primary movement has already made such headway that it is likely soon to become very generally adopted. It may not yet be in its perfected form, quite likely not; experience will be the best guide as to desirable changes in the law, in case any are needed. In the meantime, instead of guessing as to how this new procedure is to work out, it may be worth while, to allay for a brief spell our high fever over individuals, and endeavor to acquaint ourselves with the conditions now confronting us.

Probably most persons have followed to some degree, at least, the operation of the primaries in such states as have adopted this nominating method, accordingly it may be profitable to call attention to an analogous practice, less familiar to most readers, the one prevailing in England (using England for the sake of brevity, for what is true of England is true of the entire United Kingdom of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland).

In England the nominating machinery is one step simpler than the new Massachusetts law. With us there comes first the nomination paper to put a man's name on the September primary ballot, then the voting in the primaries to determine the regular candidate for the November election. In England all that is necessary, both in parliamentary and in municipal elections, is to file a paper signed by ten legal voters of the district, to put a man's name on the ballot for election—to intermediate primaries to sift out from a number or consolidate the one regular or other candidate.

It must be a pretty friendless man who could not get ten voters willing to sign his nomination papers, and one would expect under this easy system to find a multiplicity of aspiring politicians seeking election to public office. And yet, what are the facts? At the parliamentary election of December, 1910, to choose the 670 members of the House of Commons, in one of the two leading parties there was only one candidate to run in each district, and in the other there were two. It would be a long story to explain clearly and satisfactorily why this result, itself inappropriate to call attention to, is usually obtained, which is to say that only one candidate is put in nomination, and he the strongest and best qualified available. Other and equally important features are these. First, no attention is specially given, no particular importance is attributed, to locality; the most desirable man is sought out, irrespective of geographical considerations. Second, the rotation theory absolutely does not exist; the idea is never suggested that about once in so often the office should be passed around. Experience in public positions, just as in private business, is deemed to be an advantage rather than a fault.

In our own country we have some excellent examples illustrating these principles. In the present Congress there are only six members of the House of Representatives who have served longer than Mr. McCall, and these six include such Republican leaders as Messrs. Cannon, Payne and Dalzell. The two most prominent Democrats, Speaker Clark and Chairman Underwood, have been members two year's less than Mr. McCall. What is the secret of the prominence of Mr. McCall and these others? Partly native ability, of course, but native ability does not make a place for itself in two years or four; repeated re-elections have enabled them to win for themselves positions of leadership. One has only to read Mr. McCall's recent matchless book, on The Business of Congress to realize how important is extended experience.

The eighth Congressional district consist of Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Woburn, Arlington, Belmont and Winchester, with a population of 246,871, to which Winchester contributes 9,3 9. Suppose the other members should say to Winchester, "Come, now, you little but of a town, on the geographical rotation basis, with less than one-twenty-sixth of the population, you are entitled to the Representative only one term every forty-three years. But here your townsmen is about to complete twenty years of continuous service. [illegible] a good [illegible] to [illegible] Washington. For Mr. McCall is not specially the representative of Winchester or even of the Eighth District. He really represents (with others the State of Massachusetts,—and furthermore, not simply the Commonwealth, but in a larger and truer sense he shares in the government of our entire country. So, similarly, the members of the State legislature are to only a slight, almost infinitesimal, degree called upon to consider legislation of purely local application; they are legislating for Massachusetts in the main, and only exceptionally for individual communities.

It, then, the somewhat similar procedure in England has anything to teach us -out of its own successful solution of political practice—it is this —efficient government, which is what we all desire, can best be secured by disregarding insistence on geographical considerations, and by abandoning the vicious theory of rotation in office.

Charles F. A. Currier.

JOSEPH WALKER FOR GOVERNOR.

Joseph Walker, son of the late Congressman Joseph H. Walker, was born in Worcester, July 13, 1868. He graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy in 1886, from Brown University in 1887 with the degree of A. B., from the Harvard Law School in 1890, with the degree of LL. B. He also holds the degree of A. M. from Harvard University. At Brown he was president of his class and manager of the varsity crew. He has been president of the Brown Alumni Association of Boston and vicinity. His adopted town of Brookline has honored him with the office of moderator, with six years on its school committee and eight years as its representative in the Legislature. For three years he has been Speaker of the House of Representatives. He has been chairman of the Brookline Town Committee, a member of the Republican State Committee, a member of the State Board of Charity and president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts in 1907 and 1908. He is a member of the Loyal Legion. Mr. Walker is married and has five children, three sons and two daughters.

CRAWFORD—MACDOWELL.

Mr. Thomas Fenton Crawford, son of Mrs. Philip Crawford of Vine street and Miss Grace Evangeline MacDowell, daughter of Mrs. Albert E. Pratt of 103 Mt. Vernon street, were united in marriage on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The ceremony was private, being witnessed only by members of the immediate families. The residence was decorated in white and green for the occasion, ferns, palms and white asters predominating.

The couple were attended by Chester F. MacDowell, brother of the bride, who was best man, and Miss Bertha E. Reek of Norwich, Conn., was bridesmaid. The bride wore a dress of satin crepe de chine over messaline, with crystal trimmings, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Reek wore silk crepe de chine of a pea green shade, trimmed with point lace and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds.

The couple entered to the wedding march played by Mr. Roland Davies. The bride was given in marriage by her step-father Mr. Albert E. Pratt.

The ceremony was performed under a floral arch in the parlor, which was especially attractively decorated.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held until ten o'clock, about seventy-five guests attending. The ushers were Messrs. Frank W. McLean of North Somerville and Roland Davies of this town. The couple were the recipients of many handsome gifts, among them being a handsome satin brass clock from the officers and teachers of the Baptist Sunday School where Mr. and Mrs. Crawford were teachers.

Upon their return from a wedding trip they will reside at No. 11 Orchard Street, Medford Hillside.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The annual convention of the Middlesex County W. C. T. U. will be held Friday, September 29 at Bedford. In addition to the morning and afternoon sessions there will be an evening lecture, illustrated by the stereopticon. An unusually interesting program has been arranged and it is hoped many of the Winchester members will go.

The Woburn W. C. T. U. is to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary on Monday, September 25, from three to five at the Congregational Church, opposite Montvale avenue, where the cars stop. The members of the Winchester Union are cordially invited to join the Woburn Union in its celebration. The W. C. T. U. is indeed becoming an old institution in these parts and were the records of its beneficent activities known to all many would be surprised to know how many of the forward movements in sociology at work have been begun or assisted by white ribboners. The Woburn Union has had different work to do from that done by the Winchester Union, as the open saloon has frequently compelled the concentration of its efforts in opposition thereto.

Maine is apparently still on the fence, the majority on either side being too small to give satisfaction to those who wished for a positive expression of the mind of the people. One thing is clearly proved, where a state is so nearly divided on a question, the enforcement of the law is difficult. To that extent the advocates of local option have a strong argument, since the cities are for license and the country towns for prohibition. There is, however, no great danger of the repeal of prohibition even if it is taken out of the constitution. The stay at homes were too numerous to make it at all a determinative vote.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the postoffice at Winchester a second-class matter.

On page three will be found an interesting and instructive communication from Professor Currier on the new primary law. The Selectmen's meeting can be found on page seven, while local news appear on all of the eight pages.

Come to Manchester Field Saturday afternoon and "holler" for the Winchester ball team which has afforded so much pleasure to the stay-at-homes this summer. The louder the noise the more the boys will appreciate it. This will be the last game of the season. Come!

The STAR urges every voter to attend the initial meeting under the new system, and do his part, as all good citizens should, toward making the new law a success and demonstrating that the people are the real governors. The degree of interest shown will determine its success or failure.

As near as we can surmise the Winchester-Medford agreement was terminated because the Republican voters of West Medford feel that they are not now dependent upon Winchester Republicans for the success of candidates that they may now put forward. West Medford has grown very fast during the past few years and its voting strength is about equal to that of Winchester's. The arrangement was all right when the preponderance of votes was at this end of the district, now it looks as if we might receive a crumb occasionally.

For Representative.

A good deal of energy has been wasted during the present political campaign in discussing the proposed retention of the old arrangement or agreement whereby the West Medford and Winchester Republicans have alternated in the choice of a representative from the 27th Middlesex district.

Since the submission last November to the voters of the 27th Middlesex district of the question of direct nomination of candidates for representative, and its emphatic acceptance by a vote of 1360 to 301, whatever arrangement may have existed between the two ends of the district, as agreed upon by former Republican conventions, has been rendered null and void.

The old convention system, under which the "alternating" agreement had been made and under which, for the protection of the less populous portions of the various legislative districts such agreements were often a practical necessity, was thus expressly rejected by the voters of the 27th district.

This year the candidates for representative are to be nominated, under a new system, directly by the voters of each party; and the majority of the voters of each party have the moral as well as the legal right to say who shall be their nominees, without the intervention or imposition of any agreement by former conventions or present committees.—[Medford Mercury.

The writer of the above editorial knows whereof he speaks when he says that the understanding that has existed for so long between Winchester and the two wards in Medford is a thing of the past. A few weeks ago the STAR on good authority also informed the Republican voters of this fact.

The new primary did not "render null and void" the agreement, and the voters never for a moment supposed that it would. It could have continued under the new scheme as well and as satisfactorily as it did under the old caucus system.

The talk that if Winchester will return Mr. Fay for another year we will be given three years, is not now worthy of consideration. Mr. Fay and his friends can make promises, but they will not be able to carry them out and they know this to be true. We believe that if the endorsers of Mr. Fay's candidacy had known some weeks ago that Medford Republicans were to repudiate the long standing agreement, they would have had nothing to do with the plan to give Medford another year. As there were two parties to the understanding that has existed for so long a time, it should have been discontinued only after reasonable notice to the voters of Winchester had been given. It is a sudden turn-down to Winchester, and will not help Mr. Fay's chances for success. The voters were not so much opposed to giving him a third term as they were nettled at the manner in which Winchester is being treated in breaking off of the agreement.

REPUDIATION OR POLITICAL HONOR?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Medford Mercury in its editorial of last week entitled "For Representative" says: "Since the submission last November to the voters of the 27th Middlesex District of the question of direct nomination of candidates for representative, and its emphatic acceptance by a vote of 1360 to 301, whatever arrangements may have existed between the two ends of the district as agreed upon by former Republican Conventions has been rendered null and void."

It is stated by some of the Republican politicians, of West Medford that owing to the rapid increase of population in Ward 6 in the last few years, that the Republican vote of the two wards of Medford within the district is now larger than the Republican vote of Winchester. This situation coupled with the sentiment expressed in the above editorial unveils the gloved hand of said politicians, for, now that they believe themselves strong enough numerically to outvote Winchester, they intend (forgetful that Winchester has allowed the West Medford end of the district equal representation during the past sixteen years) to repudiate all agreements for a division of representation for the remainder of the term five years that they remain in the district and to have the naming of the Representative, here is the issue, here the castor is thrown squarely into the ring, and I trust the Republican voters of our town will accept the challenge, attend the primary next Tuesday evening and show by their votes for Mr. Prime, Winchester's candidate for Representative, that the word "repudiation" is not in our political lexicon.

Our distinguished fellow citizen, Mr. Elder has recently said in writing of Mr. Prime's qualifications for Representative "Brother Prime would make an excellent member," and our Representative in Congress, Mr. McCall, recently wrote of Mr. Prime as follows: "He is admirably adapted for the job."

STATEMENT BY MR. PRIME.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the light of Mr Coit's letter in last week's STAR, and his admission that he was in error in his earlier letter, when he stated there were but four years more of the present district still to run, he should be exonerated from any imputation or insinuation of deception, if there be any such in my communication of last week.

When my letter was written I had no knowledge that he intended to correct the error in any public manner; but possibly he had had no opportunity. As the matter seemed to be of considerable moment to the voters, I deemed it to be my privilege or duty to state the facts.

I do not know who was primarily responsible for the mistake made by our chairman, for, unfortunately, I am not in his confidence; but, if anybody finds in my communication any intimation that he, knowingly, was a party to deceit, let me say such was not my intent.

We should find it possible to differ in the choice of candidates without doubting the probity or sincerity of the other, and I am not aware of ever having done any man an injustice, or shown any mean streak.

I have heretofore expressed, and now re-affirm my belief in the integrity of all the members of our town committee, but they, like other mortals, are liable to make mistakes, and I believe events of the near future will prove that some of the committee made a mistake in attempting to make a nomination in behalf of the Republicans of Winchester. Let the voters attend to that.

Kindly give this letter the same prominence which you gave my letter of last week.

MRS. BENJAMIN EDWARDS.

Mrs. Minnie L. Edwards, wife of Mr. Benjamin Edwards of Edwards & Poor Co., died at her home, No 6 East street, on the 18th inst. Mrs. Edwards had been afflicted with tuberculosis for about two years and had been for a considerable time at the sanitorium at North Reading. She returned to Winchester some six weeks ago, her condition at that time being such as to give no hope to her friends or even a partial recovery.

Mrs. Edwards was born in Moncton, N. B. Besides her husband she leaves five young children, two sisters residing in Woburn and two brothers, one of Woburn and one of Beverly. She was but 34 years of age.

The funeral services were held from the residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, being private. Rev. D. Augustine Newton of Reading officiated and the burial was in Wildwood cemetery.

Mrs. N. T. Apollonio has returned home to Milton, Mass. She was the guest of Mrs. Anthony Kelley of Fletcher street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gleason will leave next week for a trip to the White Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Beverly have been in town calling on friends.

Mrs. Mott Cummings has returned from Bowdoinham, Me.

Mrs. Anthony Kelley has returned home from New Hampshire.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

September 22, 1911.

To the Republican Voters of Winchester, Massachusetts.

Dear Sirs:—At the Caucus to be held Tuesday, September 26th, 1911, my name will appear on the ballot as a candidate for member of the Republican State Committee.

The present member, Mr. Wilton B. Fay of Medford, has held the position for four years and now seeks a fifth term, as well as being a candidate for a third term as Representative in the Legislature.

His candidacy for either or both positions is beyond precedent in the District he represents, and I ask you to carefully consider whether or not such a condition should obtain.

I have no desire to criticise him as I consider him a friend, but I feel his personal ambition to hold two prominent State offices should not be encouraged, as such ambitions are a detriment to our party and tend to show we are lacking in capable men.

I am deeply interested in the financial and material welfare of our District and having previously served two years in the Legislature I feel well qualified to serve as Committee man.

If elected I shall try to merit your confidence.

I am,
Sincerely yours,
Edwin F. McKnight.

45 Milk St., Boston.

At the Primary to be held on Tuesday, September 26th, the name of Edwin T. McKnight, of Medford, will appear on the ballot as a candidate for Member of the Republican State Committee from the Sixth Middlesex Senatorial District.

The present member has held the position for four years and now seeks a fifth term. Two or three years is the rule. Unless a man has special and remarkable qualifications the usual term ought to be enough. The present incumbent is also a candidate for the nomination for a third term as Representative in the General Court in the 27th Middlesex District. Personal ambition may be praiseworthy, but there is and ought to be a limit.

After strong and persistent urging Edwin T. McKnight, of Medford, has been prevailed upon to stand for membership in the Republican State Committee. He is a successful lawyer, a member of the firm of Eaton & McKnight; has had a wide experience in politics, having served in the Boston City Council and was for two years in the Legislature from Ward 21, Roxbury, serving on important committees. He has been a valuable member in the Board of Aldermen of the City of Medford during the present year. Three years ago he reorganized the Medford National Bank and formed the Medford Trust Company, which has been a success from the start and of which he is president. He is heavily interested in the real estate and financial development of the District and is connected with many organizations and Associations formed to promote the prosperity of the State and her citizens.

Mr. McKnight stepped aside for Rep. Fay last year, when his friends were urging him for the place and he feels as previously stated that as Mr. Fay has held the office more than the alloted time, and is a candidate for another important office, that it is only justice that some equally good man should have one of the offices now held by Wilton B. Fay.

He is still a young man, progressive and dead in earnest, not tainted with any of the deadly isms, but stands for that true Americanism which calls for progress and the square deal for all. He is a strong, brainy man, just the man who should be drafted for the hard political work of the Republican party which is to ahead.

We strongly recommend that you vote for him at the Primary.

MR. POND OR MR. PRIME.

Winchester, September 21, 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In common with a large number of Winchester Republicans I favored the nomination of Mr. Preston Pond for member of the next General Court. He has spent nearly his entire life in the town, was trained in its schools, has been active in all good works and has served the interests of the town diligently and faithfully. He is a man of admirable capacity. His success in business has given him leisure for public service free from interference by the pressure of private affairs.

It is true that he is not a public speaker, but with all respect to my own profession and to public speakers generally, I think the need at the Legislature is for business men rather than for orators. He has never been an office seeker and does not seek this office, but his nomination would probably have been well nigh, or quite, unanimous.

During the summer an opportunity arose to change the present system by which at the end of two years a Representative must retire in favor of another part of the District. No one familiar with State House affairs can fail to recognize the great advantage which the long terms given by cities to their Representatives assure them over the suburban towns and the country generally. If a man must retire at the end of two years he can never hope for the Chairmanship of a prominent committee, or for the largest influence and usefulness. Of course two years is better than one, but three years is far better than two.

A number of Medford people of prominence waited upon the Winchester Town Committee with the proposition that the present excellent Representative, Mr. Fay, who had served for two years, should be given a third term and that the next three years be given to Winchester. No contest was threatened or suggested. Mr. Fay, I understand, repeatedly said that under no circumstances would he contest the seat if Mr. Pond, whom he understood to be Winchester's choice, preferred his nomination to come at the present time.

Mr. Pond's course throughout was, I think, such as to commend itself to everyone. He did not insist that his nomination should come this year, but was willing to receive it next year and to assist in establishing a three-year precedent.

It seems to me that it will be in the highest degree unfortunate if this disinterested and public-spirited action on his part deprives the District of his services, at least for four years, and perhaps indefinitely. This is exactly what the present contest means. It is not, in reality, a contest between Mr. Prime and Mr. Fay, between a Winchester man and a Medford man, but between Mr. Prime for a two-year term and Mr. Pond of some other Winchester man, for a three-year term. It is also a contest for the establishment of the three-year as against the two-year system.

These are facts which are to be borne in mind in voting upon this nomination.

A question has been raised whether Medford would be bound by the arrangement, and if so whether it would stand by its agreement. Of course no one knows precisely how the system of direct nominations will work and no one has the right now, in fact no one has ever had the right, to bind the voters of any given section or party. On the other hand I have no doubt whatever that the arrangement, if ratified by the Republican voters of Winchester, will be carried out to the letter. Next year, and for the two subsequent years, Winchester is quite certain to vote solidly for its own candidate, and that is enough, with its preponderance of voters, to secure a nomination. More than this, it is certain that the large number of influential Medford citizens who have proposed this arrangement will live up to it scrupulously and make Winchester's position absolutely secure. It is inconceivable that any considerable body of Medford voters, in case Medford receives this third term, will attempt in any way to prevent Winchester from having a like period of three years.

The Winchester Republican Committee has been criticized for having entered into this "arrangement" which has been characterized by other and more objectionable terms. It is not a difficult matter to stir up feeling and perhaps secure votes by charging that somebody has usurped power. We ought to remember, however, that the voters cannot be called together every time question of party policy comes up and that somebody must be authorized to act for them subject to their ratification. It would be most unfortunate if, under the present system, everybody's hands were tied until everybody could act. Opportunities for wise and useful "arrangements" must frequently be acted upon at once, or not at all. In this instance, no one could make a recommendation unless the Town Committee did, and what it has done amounts simply to a recommendation. It merely did its duty in presenting a plan which it believed would be for the benefit of the town and the district.

Very much the same situation arose in 1897, when we got rid of the old one-year system which had existed between Arlington and Arlington. Arlington having had its turn, the nomination came to me. I had served six years and was ineligible. I had come out as an unopposed nominee in 1897. It was, however, "arranged" that Arlington should have it for another year and then Winchester for two years. No formal agreement was made and no one ever thought of charging the Town Committees with unfair or improper conduct. Arlington of course lived up to the understanding.

With regard to Mr. Joy's mention of "three Winchester Republicans who would like to represent the District in the Legislature" a word should be said. I have no doubt of their qualifications for the place because Winchester is fortunate in having many men of ability who would serve the town in the Legislature with credit, but I appeal to them and to their friends to consider whether their own interest or that of the town will be served by splitting whatever period Winchester is entitled to into one year or two year terms. There is no surer way to deprive them and it of their fair and proper influence in the Legislature.

When the next apportionment comes it is strongly to be hoped that Winchester will form a district by itself and that the claims of many of our strong men will be recognized. But then, as now, I hope long terms rather than short ones will be given.

As Mr. Joslin has pointed out, Mr. Fay has been a most excellent member and Winchester has been as well represented as it could have been in the Representative lived on this side of the Medford line. Mr. Fay has for many years done admirable, untiring and effective service to the party and will be a prominent member of the coming Legislature elected I feel.

Nothing in what I have said is intended to disparage Mr. Prime. He is a lawyer with a good practice and would make a good member, but my preference is for Mr. Pond and for the adoption of the three year system. I have not consulted with him concerning this letter indeed have had no communication with him at any time with reference to the Representative situation.

Respectfully,
Samuel J. Elder.

RE-LOCATION OF STREETS.

An adjourned hearing was given last Friday by the county commissioners in the selectmen's room at the Town Hall on the matter of relocating street lines in several places in the town. The most important of these was at the Arlington-Winchester line on Cambridge street opposite the Country Club house.

A dangerous curve exists at this place. The Winchester selectmen appeared in favor of cutting into the high banking along the Langley estate so that the view would not be obstructed, while the representatives of the town of Arlington contended that by taking it off the other side and putting the cut back into the centre of the street would do away with the danger. The commissioners took the matter under advisement and all concerned in hearing till Thursday morning of this week.

The hearing Thursday morning resulted in all the matters under petition being held for an adjournment to Friday, Oct. 27th, at 9:45 a. m. in the selectmen's room at the Town Hall.

Plans were shown of the widening of the northeastern corner of Church and Cambridge streets to conform with the south corner, which will probably be done. Petitioners were present regarding the location of the bounds of Ridge street and the widening of it to 50 feet. It was proposed to widen the northerly end on the east side and the southerly portion on the west side. This was another lot until the adjournment.

The portions of Cambridge st et at the Elder ledge and Country club will be staked out to conform with the plans submitted, two being shown for the latter widening, one with a taking on the west and another with a taking on the east. Mr. S. S. Langley and counsel, Mr. Charles Dutch, were present in opposition to an east side taking, as were the board of Selectmen of Arlington. This plan will involve the greatest expense, but will flatten the curve, while the west taking will make the curve greater, but be considerably less in cost. The Winchester Selectmen were in favor of a taking on the east side, and as the matter rests the towns of Arlington and Winchester appear to be attracted on opposite sides. This matter will also be further considered at the adjournment.

12 m. The Sunday School will meet in Metcalf Hall. There will be no regular lesson. Mr. Metcalf will give an illustrated address on "Jerusalem as it is." One of Underwood & Underwood's remarkable set of slides will be used. A few years ago this firm sent an expert photographer to the Holy Land to take pictures for these views. They also have some of the finest colorists of stereopticon slides in the world. Members of the Parish as well as members of the Sunday School, are invited to remain to this service.

The regular work of the Sunday School will begin the first Sunday in October.

The Ladies' Friendly Society, a branch of the Alliance of Unitarian workers, has some new plans which, it is believed, will increase the interest in the work very greatly. The meetings this winter will begin at 1 p. m., when luncheon will be served, after which the business meeting, addresses, etc., will be held. All ladies of Winchester interested in the Unitarian Church are cordially invited to join.

Beginning the first of October Mr. Metcalf will begin a short series of sermons on the spiritual significance of Dante's Divine Comedy. Oct. 1, The Inferno. Oct. 8, Purgatorio. Oct. 15, Paradiso.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NOTES.

John Flaherty driver of Hose No. 1, is enjoying his vacation sight seeing around the surrounding towns. He will visit Providence, R. I., next Saturday for a few days as a guest of the Providence Fire Department.

Let Winchester get in the first stages of motor driven fire apparatus by getting an auto and combination wagon, immediately. We all know that a chemical will put out about 80 per cent. of all our fires and it will help to bring the fire insurance rate down.

It cost the town of Arlington $1,200 for gasolene for 3 months for their auto chemical.

Come West Side, get busy for an auto chemical; you are getting to be quiet a residential place for all the fire apparatus on the east side of the track, and be held up for 2 or 3 minutes by a train it will happen. Get busy before it is too late.

Chief D. DeCourcey, with the help of the permanent drivers of the central fire station in their spare time, had built a cupalo for Hose No. 3 of Swanton street which they put in place last Saturday afternoon and have installed a bell which will summon all firemen in the Plain district when there is a fire. Hats off to our hustler Chief.

The tower striker of the central fire station, which had been a feature to the fire department for a number of years, was taken down and given a good cleaning two months ago, and its work is first class since.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

Six weeks of unbounded popularity are thus far the record of the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple, and there would seem to be as many more in store for them. They interest both the curious seeking entertainment and the scientifically inclined, for aside from their spectacular display of the great processions and ceremonies attending the Coronation of England's King and Queen, they are notable as an example of the latest results in modern color photography. They are given twice a day at Tremont Temple, at 2:30 in the afternoon and at 8:15 in the evening, accompanied by lectures and orchestral music.

GLOBE THEATRE.

The second and last week of [illegible] Successor of Keller," [illegible] Thursday, will begin on next Monday afternoon. Seats for all performances are now selling. There will be the usual Monday, Wednesday and Saturday matinees at popular prices.

Following Mr. Thurston's engagement on Monday afternoon, Oct. 2, Billy B. Van and the Beaumont Sisters will come for two week's engagement in a brand new musical comedy, "The Lucky Hoodoo."

"The Lucky Hoodoo" is said to be one of the funniest comedies that the auctioneer "Billy" has ever had.

As evidence of what has been promised by the Globe "High Class Attractions at Real Popular Prices," we begin to announce as coming shortly, Cattrell's Countess in Viola Allen's remarkable play, "The White Sister," and that funniest of all Cartoon comedies, "The Newly Weds and Their Baby."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It is a noticeable fact that John Craig is to appear at the Castle Square next week in "Why Smith Left Home," the work of George H. Broadhurst, who is known also as the author of "What Happened to Jones" and "The Wrong Mr. Wright."

Mr. Smith left the bed-ridden home until the end of his days and then he gave it to his company with Mrs. Smith for acting deserted honeymoon. Why this queer evidence was performed is what Mr. Broadhurst tells us, and the successive situations are persistently comic.

"Why Smith Left Home" is one of the few American farces that have succeeded in Londonizing, and in this country it has been played again and again during the past dozen seasons. At the Castle Square Mr. Craig will appear as John Smith.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of Patrick O. Gray, late of Winchester, in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Elmon M. Gray, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her, the executrix therein named, without giving a surety on her official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said county of Middlesex, on the eleventh day of October, A. D. 1911, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, or to serve a copy hereof, or to deliver a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, fourteen days at least before said Court.

MASSACHUSETTS MANUFACTURERS

They Are Greatly Disturbed Over the Tariff Situation

SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS FEARED

Threats of Attack on New England Industries — How Manufacturers View the Situation—Wages in Danger—State Election to Be Significant

The manufacturers of Massachusetts are very deeply stirred over the attitude of the southern Democratic members of congress toward northern, and especially New England industries. As is well known, whenever the Democrats control congress, a large majority of that Democratic membership is from the south. Republican members of congress from Massachusetts cannot recall a time when the southern Democratic members showed such animosity against New England manufacturing industries as they are now showing. During the second session southern members [illegible] declared to congressmen from this state that when they had the opportunity they would deprive Massachusetts and New England of every shred of protection. They took this position when the farmers' free list bill was under discussion and avowed their purpose with perfect openness. Notwithstanding the fact that they decided to take the protective duty off shoes, they refused to allow the duty on rice or sugar, southern products, to be touched.

It is this spirit of hostility to New England that is alarming the manufacturers of this section. They feel that if the Democrats should retain their hold upon the lower house of congress in 1912, and at the same time carry enough normally Republican states to control the senate, and in addition should elect their candidate for president, the industries of the country would be in a perilous situation.

The Peril of New England

[illegible] be disposed to resist such a cut in their wages even though they might see that, from the manufacturer's standpoint, it was a necessity of their continuance in business. Cotton manufacturers in this state say that cotton manufacturers of the south are as much stirred up over the tariff program of the southern Democrats as those in the north. One of these latter, in a communication to a southern congressman, declared that it is admitted the cotton industry is really suffering and depressed as never before in its history, but that some congressmen say this is due to over production—too much supply, too little demand. Then he added:

Tariff Slashing No Benefit

"How will letting in more foreign made goods under a lower tariff help that condition? Will it enable us to manufacture at a profit? Will it give regular employment to our operatives who now suffer on account of shutdowns and curtailment? If not, who will benefit by it? Will it not be the foreign manufacturer and the foreign operative? Will not the operatives who remain in the mills and accept the revision downward want to know why it should be deemed legislatively necessary to slash the duty on cotton goods when, as a class, the manufacturers themselves have operated for the past two years with no profit, and many at a loss, without cutting wages?"

The situation as regards cotton manufactures is no different from what prevails in the woolen industry. In 1908 we imported more than $19,000,000 worth of goods [illegible] ... unless they could cut wages sufficiently to meet the foreign competition.

Shoe Manufacturers Are Alarmed

So far as boots and shoes are concerned, the situation is exactly the same. Under the reduced duties imposed by the [illegible] act, our imports of boots and shoes have increased enormously since 1907. English and German shoe manufacturers have copied American styles so closely that none but an expert can detect the difference, although they are not nearly as good. These shoes in very large quantities are being imported into this country. Every pair of these foreign shoes sold in this country means so much less work for the American shoemaker. Under the circumstances it is not to be wondered at that Massachusetts manufacturers are much disturbed over the outlook for business should the Democrats elect their candidate for president, and congress in 1912. The election of a Democratic governor in Massachusetts this fall would greatly strengthen the courage of Democrats throughout the country.

Who "Bosses" the Democracy?

Last year the Democrats made a great deal of talk about "bossism" in Massachusetts, and denounced Senator Lodge and some others as "bosses." Republicans are now pointing to the fact that the Democratic party is more boss-ridden today than the Republican party ever thought of being. They insist that three men absolutely boss the Democratic organization in Massachusetts. These are Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and Martin M. Lomasney. The Democratic leaders outside of these three men are absolutely obedient to orders from the "bosses." Republicans say that the little Democratic "boss" takes his orders absolutely from one of the three big "bosses." In Boston, when Fitzgerald or Lomasney issues an order to his lieutenants, there is no such thing as insurgency. Insurgency would mean being read out of the Democratic party for good and all. That has been seen a good many times the last half dozen years. During the session of the legislature it seemed to be capable of demonstration that Martin M. Lomasney was the king of "bosses." Nothing that he really wanted was refused him by Governor Foss. Lomasney demanded that Chairman Charles Warren of the civil service commission should not be reappointed, and he was not. A Boston machine Democrat was appointed by Governor Foss to succeed him. It is said by those who ought to be in a position to know that Fitzgerald [illegible]

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

[illegible] Mann, the [illegible] comedian, will present his latest success, "Elevating a Husband," at the Hollis for two weeks, beginning next Monday, September 25. The play is by Clara Lipman and Samuel Shipman. Miss Lipman is Mrs. Mann in private life, and she has won enviable fame as dramatist and actress. One of her notable plays was "Julie Bon-Bon," in which she and her husband jointly starred several seasons ago. "Elevating a Husband" is an American play, with the scenes laid in New York city at the present time.

Mr. Mann is surrounded by an admirable company of players, including Emily Ann Wellman, Charles Halton, Marie Howe, Jessie Carter, John E. Kelley, Edward E. Horton, Sterling H. Cheseldine, Marion Holcombe and Douglas J. Wood. The tour is under the direction of Werba and Luescher, producers of "The Spring Maid," "Little Miss Fix It," and other notable successes.

There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Harry Houdini, the celebrated jail breaker who has successfully defied the police and prison officials of every clime to hold him captive, will begin the second and positively last week of his engagement at B. F. Keith's Theatre on Monday. During the coming week Houdini will attempt to escape from several new and unusually ingeniously contrived shackles. Aside from Houdini, the bill will abound in novelties. Les Marquards, two eccentric dancers from the Folies Bergere, will be seen in some new and startling whirlwind dances. Wilfred Clarke, the well known Anglo-American comedian, will present his latest farce, "The Dear Departed," and the Florentine Singers, a troupe of eight grand opera soloists, headed by Marion Littlefield, will sing the most popular operatic airs. Others will be Jarvis & Harrison, the [illegible] and the girl, Ralph Smalley, the cellist of the Boston Symphony orchestra, Tim Cronin, the [illegible] and Bert Melrose, the clown [illegible] tables and chairs.

Shake off the grip of your old enemy, Nasal Catarrh, by using Ely's Cream Balm. Then will all the [illegible] be driven out of [illegible] ... Sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

BETTER SERVICE NOW.

In an address on "Peculiarities of Massachusetts Street Railways" before the Saugus Board of Trade last week, Hon. Frank P. Bennett, jr., of that town, remarked that he believes that the recent merger of the former Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. of this section with the Old Colony company south of Boston will put the new Bay State Street Railway Co., as it is now known, on a paying basis.

Mr. Bennett feels that the merger of the Old Colony and Boston & Northern systems into the Bay State Railway company will be a good thing for both systems. It has not been possible for these roads to merge heretofore, he explained, although they were conducted by the same people, because there was no connecting link between them. When this was finally established there was no murmur of protest against the merging by anyone. Officials of the company say that it will be possible to operate lines more economically now and promise better service to their patrons everywhere on the system.

Mr. Bennett also noted that the Bay State has profited by years of experience with heavy snow falls and now sets aside a snow removal fund each year. At one time a succession of heavy storms in the winter was a big factor in cutting down the profits of the company until no dividends could be paid and the directors found it difficult to pay even 2 per cent on preferred stock.

Mr. Bennett pointed out the fact not generally known that, according to State statistics, out of 81 railway systems in this State 41 paid no dividends last year, and of the remaining 40 few have paid over 5 per cent., and some have succeeded in paying dividends only because they have not charged off depreciation of plant. Because of this, the speaker explained, that the ordinary business man is beginning to feel that it is hazardous to invest his money in street railway stock, as he feels that he ought to be assured of at least 6 per cent. earnings on his money. To remedy these conditions Mr. Bennett believes that the only feasible method will be to make all these small systems feeders to a larger system. This plan has worked exceedingly well in western Massachusetts, he explained, and it has been at least possible to make the systems more profitable.

MAINE BOYS.

"Montague" is writing and the STAR printing some excellent articles on "Maine Boys," the scene being brief notices of some of the men who made the State of Maine a power in Congress. Last week mention was made by him of George Evans, General Chamberlain, Owen and Elijah Lovejoy, Gen. Howard, Blaine and others. He gives Hallowell as the native town of the Lovejoys, which is wrong; they were born and bred in Albion, Kennebec County. Owen was a resident of Princeton, Illinois and represented the 5th Illinois Congressional District many times, his last election occurring in November, 1862, his death following the next winter, or early spring. For his foolhardiness in defying public sentiment at Alton, Ill., a pro-slavery hotbed, Elijah Lovejoy deserved his fate. George Evans drank a quart of Cognac brandy a day, and was still one of the ablest statesmen in Congress. Dr. Evans of Cornville, Maine, was a leading physician in Somerset county 60 years ago, and on the brandy question could go his brother George one better every day. General Chamberlain became soured against the Republican party and lost political influence. He was a gallant soldier, and stood next to Gen. O. O. Howard, the Christian soldier of Maine.—Woburn Journal.

WANTED.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to state through your valuable paper to the following "Progressive Republicans."

Wanted:—I am asked by the Manager of the Progressive Republican League at Washington for names of Progressive Republicans in Massachusetts, and have sent on many. BASE BALL.

Winchester defeated the Rovers for the second time this season last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field. With as strong a team as he could get together, composed mostly of Harvard varsity men, Manager Wingate felt sure of a victory. "Chick" McLaughlin, Harvard's first strong pitcher, was in the box, and what the Winchester boys didn't do to his fast shoots was a caution. They batted the ball to all corners of the field, getting twelve safe hits off him, three of which were for extra bases.

The Rovers fielded rather loosely at times, making several errors which proved costly. At the bat they were unable to do anything with Whittaker. Walter Whittaker pitched one of the finest games ever seen on Manchester Field. He allowed the visitors only four safe hits, gave two bases on balls and struck out twelve. He struck out "Chick" McLaughlin three times, and in the seventh inning struck out C. McLaughlin, Hahn and T. McLaughlin in succession. Fine work for a seventeen year old boy.

The Rovers scored their only runs in the second after two were out. With men on second and third, Porter drove the ball to deep left, which should have been caught, but an error of judgment let it go for a two base hit, scoring two runs. After that the visitors only got two men as far as second base. In the ninth Whit wound up the game by striking out Ball, a former Boston National League man. Murray, first man up for Winchester, drove out a slashing two bagger over Hoye's head in left, and with some loose fielding of the visitors Winchester scored two runs in the first. In the third with the score two apiece, Murray led off with a single, only to be doubled up with O'Connor, who hit to Wingate, who threw to Gibson, at second forcing Murray, Gibson throwing to Hahn getting O'Connor at first. Thornton followed with a two bagger. Kenney got a base on balls, LeDuc drove out a fine single to right, scoring Thornton, and put Winchester in the lead. Doherty was third man out, fouling to Porter.

Winchester clinched the game in the fourth. Foley, first man up, went out Gibson to Hahn, Flaherty reached second on an error. Whittaker singled. Murray drove out his third hit scoring Flaherty and Whittaker, Murray going to second on the throw to the plate. O'Connor singled, scoring Murray. O'Connor stole second. Thornton flied out to center. Kenney drove to Coon at third who got O'Connor trying to make third, for the third out. Winchester scored two more in the seventh. Thornton reached first on an error. Kenney and LeDuc struck out, Doherty [illegible] Foley doubled scoring Thornton and Doherty. Flaherty was third man out [illegible] McLaughlin to Hahn. The features of the game were the batting of the local boys, the fine work of the school boy battery, Whittaker and Flaherty, and a fine play of Doherty who recovered a hard drive well back of third, which bounded off Murray's shins, and throwing the latter out at first. "Doc" O'Connor fielded finely at second base.

MIDDLESEX, SS.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of Mary M. Chapman, late of Winchester in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by John W. Chapman who prays that letters of administration with the will annexed may be issued to him, or some other suitable person, no executor being named in said will.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the fourth day of October, A. D. 1911, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator knows a gentleman and the former has been making an effort to learn the secret of the happier view of life which keeps this gentleman serene and imperturbed in the midst of turmoil and upheaval. The Spectator entertains the supposition that it is partly due to a gift of nature, and partly a habit of cultivating poise and the exquisite art of being comfortable and true to the better instincts. It is a miserable sort of confession, but the most of us Winchesterites drop somewhere in this category at times.

Nervous, tired—and irritable!
Crossed, disappointed—and irritable!
Worried, tired—and irritable!
Half sick, dispondent—and irritable!
And the story is not half told!

Even though fairly—sweet tempered, ordinarily, we permit the disagreeable pest of irritability to take possession of our better, more companionable selves. If dinner happens to be late and we wanted it early, irritability only destroys appetite when it does come and its grim shadow settles in every chair, like an evil genius. If we feel abused at the beginning, when the cloud wears away, it leaves a trail of regret. If we could be made to pause sometime in the midst of one of our periods of irritability and ask "What is it all about?"—wouldn't we feel foolish, and then and there be ready to break down the old walls? The little grievances pass along so quickly, leave us so weakened, and just around the corner there is peace waiting. If we would only think in time and not make it so hard for peace to gain an entrance! Don't let irritability and crossness poison home life.

While making a tour of Winchester the other afternoon The Spectator made a special observation of the fruit trees and he noted that some hands that pick fruit do not care a great deal whether they break off the branches of the trees or not. After some people have finished picking the fruit, they have about finished the trees, too.

The Spectator wonders how many Winchesterites having gold fish in their homes know that gold fish are supposed never to sleep.

The other day The Spectator asked his barber what is the thickness of a razor edge. The barber informed him that while he had never measured a razor edge he understood that it was about one-millionth of an inch.

The Spectator is quite a chess enthusiast and there are about a dozen gentlemen just as enthusiastic over the game as he is. Chess is a very old game, but it has hardly yet been determined whether it should be classed as an mere form or entertainment or as a science. The Spectator would invest it with the latter dignity. In its essential feature chess was played in Hindustan almost as far back as history runs. From there it spread to Persia and thence to Arabia. The Arab introduced it into Spain in the 8th century, and it was then gradually adopted in the other countries of Europe. As a player and a writer, Benjamin Franklin was the first American to bring it into Province. It furthers mental discipline of value.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Round Up" which for various reasons has made a special appeal to Boston audiences will enter upon the fourth week of its engagement at the Boston Theatre Monday night. It is one of those good, wholesome things and unlike so many plays of the day leaves no bad taste in any one's mouth. There are some feature in "The Round Up" which it is hard for one to forget after once seeing it—such as the quaint make up and the rollicking humor of Sheriff Holmes, the procession of the cowboys at the wedding and that famous combat with the Indians.

The spectacular features are unique and hold the absorbed attention of the audience as the descent of the mountain trail by the mounted Indians and the coming of the morning after the battle.

Matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday.

ON WEDGE POND

An unusual opportunity is now offered to residents of Winchester to secure a house lot in the most beautiful section of this town, only four minutes from the center.

The old Prince estate on Vine Street, on the shore of Wedge Pond, has been graded and subdivided into nine beautiful lots varying in area from 8,000 to 15,000 square feet. A very low price, with easy terms, has been placed on this land, in fact as low as that asked for it 20 years ago. For particulars and plans call at the Winchester office of

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Misses Jennie and Mabel McIsaac of Salem street and Miss Bessie McNeil of Bridge street have returned from a vacation spent at Halifax, Mass. The young ladies are planning to spend a week at the White Mountains.

It is rumored that last Saturday night the police were called to investigate a prowler in the vicinity of Highland avenue, and that later a call was made to investigate an assault in the same neighborhood. It is also rumored that the first call was false a young man waiting for a young lady in the vicinity and that the second call was the result of a few of his chums playing a joke on him after he had met her. At all events it is reported that both complaints are satisfactorily settled.

Patrick Donahue, aged 52 years, dropped dead Sunday noon on the door steps of the home of his sister, Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, on Sheffield circle. Mr. Donahue appeared to be in good health up to the time of his death. A sudden attack of heart trouble is given as the cause. He leaves one sister, Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, with whom he made his home. The funeral was held Wednesday morning with services at St. Mary's Church, Burlington.

While Robert Abittan was driving the horse and carriage of Chas. M. Burt of Sheffield road down Church street Sunday evening the animal took fright at an automobile and ran away. The runaway had reached that part of the street which is torn up for the electric car tracks and was passing an automobile, which had drawn as far as possible to the side. The horse struck the automobile, Abittan taker being thrown out and badly bruised. The horse ran through the centre and up Main street, being caught by John Leonard of Harvard street and Edward Sibley of Glenwood avenue, very cleverly. The horse was not injured, but the carriage was badly damaged.

The winter bowling tournament at the Calumet Club will open, it is expected, on the 2nd of next month. No less than sixteen teams have entered this season, the largest number of teams in any tournament in the history of the club. An attractive schedule has been prepared by Judge Littlefield, chairman of the bowling committee, carrying the games up to the 23rd of January. It has been decided to crew of the large number of teams entered to postpone no games this season except for team meetings. At the close of the winter tournament it is planned to hold a mixed tournament for ladies and gentlemen at the club. It has been deemed inadvisable to attempt to have two teams in the Mystic Valley League this year as was first proposed, owing to the inability of some of the clubs in the league to provide the alleys necessary for the additional game.

VOL. XXXI. NO. 13. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1911. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

BASE BALL PRIZES AWARDED.

Successful Season Ends—Whittaker Given Gold Watch.

The last game of base ball for this season was held last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, closing the contest among the players on the Winchester team for the prizes in fielding batting and runs. The contest was very keen during the last few weeks.

In addition to the competition prizes, Walter Whittaker, the young pitcher of the team, was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain by Mr. James P. Boutwell, chairman of the Board of Selectmen. The gift was in appreciation of Whittaker's work during the season and was purchased with a fund raised by popular subscription among those who had witnessed the games.

WALTER WHITTAKER.
Star Pitcher for the Winchester Ball Team.

About $75 was subscribed, all of the base ball fans contributing, for Whittaker has made himself more popular than any other man who has yet pitched ball in this town. The watch was handsomely marked with a monogram and accompanied by a gold fob chain.

At the close of the game Whittaker was carried on the shoulders of the crowd to the front of the grand stand, where the presentation was made. It was a pity that the inadequate police protection made it impossible for hardly anyone to hear or see the presentation, and the conditions in this respect have been the only draw back to the games this summer. The crowd of about one thousand persons packed into and around the stand so close that it was with difficulty that the presentation was made.

The local team has played 22 games this season, Whittaker pitching 14 and winning 12. In addition to his clever work in the box he has played a remarkably fast and clean game.

The prize for the best batting average was won by Flaherty, and was a close race between him and Thornton. In fact at one time during the final game the latter actually passed him, but Flaherty captured the fine sweater offered by Henry B. Winn with 12 points to the good.

The prize for runs, offered by John F. O'Connor, was easily won by his brother, Dr. James H. O'Connor, who proved the best run getter on the team.

The fielding prize, $5, was offered by the STAR, and was handily captured by George LeDuc, who was 20 points over Whittaker, his closest follower.

Following are the averages at the close of the season :

THANKS FROM WHITTAKER.

Somerville, Mass., Sept. 26, 1911.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Dear Sir :—Will you kindly publish in your next issue the following letter

I want to thank the citizens of Winchester for the beautiful watch and fob which was presented to me at the close of our last game. I want to thank the management and citizens for the loyal support which they gave me. I have enjoyed playing on the team very much and I hope that it will be possible that I shall have the opportunity of playing with the Winchester Base Ball team again.

Very truly yours,
Walter E. Whittaker.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE W. STUDLEY
Who Celebrated The 50th Anniversary Of Their Marriage At Their Home Tuesday.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Studley Observe Fiftieth Milestone.

Having completed the golden circle, Mr. and Mrs. George Willcutt Studley celebrated their fiftieth marriage anniversary on Tuesday evening, September the twenty sixth at their residence on Grove street.

A reception was held from eight until ten o'clock, in which they were assisted in receiving by their daughter, Miss Mary Waters Studley. About one hundred friends called to offer their congratulations.

The rooms of the residence were artistically decorated with greenery, golden rod and flowers in profusion; music was rendered and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Studley was born in East Boston in 1842, being the daughter of William and Mary Waters, they being among the first settlers of the island from the north end of Boston.

Mr. Studley was born in the north end of Boston in 1839, his parents removing to East Boston later. He has been a resident of Winchester for the past twenty years, and was formerly in the publishing business, and at one time was the proprietor of Ballou's Monthly Magazine, which was very popular thirty years ago.

It was a very enjoyable occasion, they being the recipients of many beautiful gifts, and received the congratulations of relatives and many friends of Winchester, Boston and surrounding towns.

TRAVEL TALK.

The many friends and admirers of Miss Janet Richards will rejoice to know that they are again to have the pleasure of hearing her in Winchester in one of her incomparable "Talks."

Miss Richards has had an eventful and most delightful summer in Europe, and she will come prepaired to tell not only of her experiences but also of general conditions and happenings across the seas.

The talk will be given in the small Town Hall, Tuesday evening, October tenth, at 8 o'clock.

The tickets are seventy-five cents each and may be obtained from Mrs. J. H. Damell, Mrs. D. N. Skillings, Miss Althe Dunham, and Miss Mary Richards.

SWINDLER CAUGHT.

A man entered Gargas Bros. fruit store yesterday forenoon representing himself as a brother of Dr. Smith of No. 400 Main street. He ordered several boxes of cigars and some fruit, saying that his brother was to be married last evening and that he wanted the stuff for the wedding. He took three boxes of the cigars with him and ordered the rest sent.

As Mr. Gargas could find no Dr. Smith in Winchester, much less at No. 400 Main street, he reported the matter to Officer Hargrove. The Officer telephoned Chief McIntosh, who boarded an Arlington bound electric and instructed him to search towards Medford.

The officer immediately took a Medford bound car and found his man near the Medford line. He brought him back to the centre and he was identified by Mr. Gargas.

At the police station he gave his name as George Smith and said he lived at Houlton, Me., having been in Boston but one day. His clothes were all Boston made however and in his hat were the initials G. McB, which he said stood for those of a man with whom he had traded hats, a George McBride. Under the questioning of Chief McIntosh he admitted that his real name was Guy McBride and that he lived at present in Somerville, having worked in a drug store in that place. He was further identified as the same man who swindled a fruit dealer in Arlington out of some cigars in a similar manner on Tuesday night, and may be further connected with similar affairs in surrounding towns.

Smith, or McBride, stated when arrested that he had been asked to purchase the cigars and fruit by a man at No. 400 Main street whose name he did not know, the same being for a Dr. Smith. He failed to explain why he was walking to Boston with the three boxes however.

He will appear in the Woburn court today.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT TO WINCHESTER VOTERS.

A "STAR" reporter interviewed Mr. W. F. Prime relative to the recent strenuous contest in the primaries for the representative nomination in this district, and found the Winchester candidate in a most cheerful mood over the result.

He said : "I wish to extend sincere thanks to all my Winchester friends for the splendid vote given me at the primary. While, owing to circumstances beyond my control in the Medford portion of the district I lost the nomination, I feel that my personal [illegible] for the contest. Politics sometimes leave hard scars on the loser, but in this instance I am happy to say I have nothing but the most kindly feeling for all, including those whose judgement led them to contribute towards the success of my opponent. Numerous friends in Medford and Winchester are now advising continuation of the contest by taking out nomination papers, but no determination has yet been reached in this matter."

Two to One at the Winchester Primary.

New System of Voting Draws a Big Crowd to Polls.

Notwithstanding the various opinions expressed by the voters at large, the new caucus primaries brought out the largest caucus vote in the history of the town on Tuesday. In fact the vote was larger than that polled at several regular elections.

The interest was intensified by the contest for the Republican Representative nomination between Winfield F. Prime of this town and Wilton B. Fay of Medford. Mr. Fay won out in the district by the narrow margin of 45 votes. Mr. Prime received 765 votes in Winchester to Mr. Fay's 588. Mr. Fay received 418 votes in Medford to Mr. Prime's 193. The comparison of the actual Republican vote for this office is interesting. Mr. Prime polled eight more votes in the two Medford wards than Mr. Fay did in Winchester, but the actual Republican vote was 58 more in Medford than in Winchester. The town vote was 553; Medford 611.

The total number of ballots cast was 628 1 defective, 562 Republican, 62 Democratic and 3 Progressive Democratic.

The first man to vote under the new primary system was the editor of the STAR, Theodore P. Wilson, who voted the Republican ticket. He was followed by Dr. Charles F. McCarthy, a Democrat. The first half hour showed a vote of about 100, equalling that of the fall election last year. In fact the total vote at the primaries was about one-half of the total at the election.

Frothingham received a large majority over Walker, and White about one-third of Walker's vote.

Fay defeated McKnight for State Committee by 84 votes—288 to 204.

The Democratic vote totaled 62, with 3 Progressive Democratic ballots. Foss received 62 Democratic votes and 3 Progressive votes. Kelley, the Democratic Representative candidate, received 52 votes.

Owing to the law providing that the ballots should not be touched until the close of the polls, it was one o'clock before the count was finished, as the polls closed at nine o'clock.

Mr. Fay received 1040 votes in Medford and McKnight 797. In the following towns Fay defeated McKnight : Stoneham 303 —280; Woburn 257—110; Wakefield 215—101.

Mr. Prime is much pleased with the large majority vote given him here in Winchester but is somewhat disappointed at the vote in wards three and six which he expected would be much larger than it was. He declares that this was because of a story that had been circulated in these wards that Winchester voters would not support him. In view of the fact that Mr. Fay had a lead of only 48 over Mr. Prime in the district, he was asked if he would take out nomination papers. He replied that he had not made up his mind what he would do, but would decide in the next few days.

Wednesday, October 4. Winchester H. S. vs. Milton H. S. at Milton.

CLOSE OF BALL SEASON.

On Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon the Winchester base ball team closed their season with a victory over the fast Martin Mill Club of Lowell, amid the greatest of excitement. With the score 4 to 1 in Winchester's favor, in the ninth inning, and two out, a missed third strike by Flaherty for the third out, paved the way for the Lowell boys to score two runs and come within one of tieing up the score. It was a hard fought game from start to finish, the mill boys being one of the fastest and cleanest teams that has visited Winchester this season. They started in with a rush in the first. Fahey, first man up, struck out, Jenkins hit to deep centre for a triple. Grady got a base on balls, Buckley hit to right for a single scoring Jenkins. A beautiful throw by Foley to Murray at third got Grady. Sharkey flied out to LeDuc. In the second Whittaker performed the remarkable feat of striking out Allen, Vaughn and Regnier on ten pitched balls. In the third Foley made another fine play, throwing Jenkins out at first, robbing him of a single. It was one, two, three, after that till the ninth.

Grady, first man up in the ninth, struck out; Buckley went out O'Connor to Thornton, Sharkey struck out but Flaherty missed the ball which went into the crowd and Sharkey landed on second. Allen beat out an infield single, Vaughn hit a long fly to deep center, which LeDuc after a long run just got his hands on but could not hold. Sharkey and Allen scored on the hit. Then Whittaker showed he was still in the game and finished up by making Regnier fan. Murray opened up for Winchester with a fine single, stole second, and went to third on a poor throw by Vaughn. O'Connor struck out, Thornton flied to Regnier. On an attempted squeeze play Murray was an easy out to catcher as the batter failed to hit. Winchester scored one in the third. Flaherty reached first, being hit with a pitched ball. Whittaker beat out a hit to Sharkey and Murray scored Flaherty with a single. Kenney scored in the third by reaching first on a single. He stole second and on an attempt to catch him at second he stole third, and scored on a bad throw by Jenkins. Foley scored one in the seventh on a base on balls, a belder's choice and a fine single by Whittaker. O'Connor scored Winchester's last run on a base on balls a steal and a two base hit by Thornton. The features were the aggressive playing of the visitors and the fine pitching of Sharkey, a clever south paw. For Winchester, Whittaker pitched his usual heady game, having 13 strike outs, and only five hits. Foley's fielding and throwing was of major league class. Thus ended a most successful season, Winchester winning sixteen out of twenty-three games against the best teams in the State.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A public spirited gentleman suggests that a fund of $150 or even less be raised with the object in view of the establishment of a "Queen Town of Middlesex County Prizes," for an essay contest, to be participated in by all pupils of the Winchester public schools. The Spectator is of the opinion that such an essay competition would be beneficial to the town in a great many ways. Among the benefits would be the touring of the eyes of non-residents on Winchester. Of course the best essays would be immortalized in the STAR and The Spectator suggests that the whole accumulation of them be bound and placed in the town library.

A friend of The Spectator's tells him the old, old story of a maid-of-all-work in the service of a certain family, the members whereof are not on the most amicable terms, who recently tendered her resignation, greatly to the distress of the lady of the house, who was loth to part with so excellent a servant. "So you are going to leave us?" asked the mistress, sadly. "What is the trouble, Mary? Have we not always treated you like one of the family?" "Yes, mum," said Mary, "an' I've stood it as long as I'm going to."

An insurance man gives The Spectator to understand that one reason for the greater insurance losses in this country than abroad is that abroad they obey the laws here everybody is utterly indifferent. A whole lot of truth in this statement.

A gentleman who has recently returned from the West says it is no uncommon practice for the farmer out there to smoke the leaves of the tomato and potato plants as substitutes for tobacco. The smoking of these leaves in moderation is harmless, although they contain a narcotic poison. After exhaustion and terrible headaches are caused by over indulgence in the tomato and potato leaves. Insanity and suicide are caused by the immoderate use of weeds. The Spectator has known men who smoked rhubarb, beet and even garden sage leaves. These, however, are the least harmful substitutes for tobacco.

Up to within very recently The Spectator has used a revolving fan for cooling the air of the room in which he was engaged in his literary work. After reading a lengthy report submitted to the societe de Biologie relative to the bacteriological effect of these fans upon the internal atmosphere The Spectator decided to discard the use thereof. An analysis of the air before the fan was working showed 12,500 bacteria per cubic yard. After working the fan for one hour 23,000 bacteria, and after two hours, 45,000 bacteria were found. In every instance, in fact, the number of bacteria to the cubic yard was doubled or even quadrupled.

A gentleman says that a way to make a woman interested in a letter is to write something and then scratch it out, so it will take her two days to guess what it was.

A passenger on a tram from Boston tells The Spectator that in the car were two babies—a girl and a boy. The girl baby was crying continuously on the trip to Winchester, but the boy was well behaved. A cross looking man frequently said, pointing to the girl, "That is a girl." Then, after a while, he would point to the well behaved boy-baby, and say "That baby is a boy."

There is a woman here in Winchester who only rarely talks. There is also here in Winchester a man who is very quiet, and has almost nothing to say. If these two should marry The Spectator believes their children would never cry.

"You have not listened to my side of the story yet," protested a Winchester man to a friend the other day. "Well, I will reverse the side I have already heard, and that will do just as well," replied the man.

One thing the STAR reporter overlooks very much is to leave a man give him an item, and then hunt him up afterward, and say, "I'll put it in the present."

The Spectator recently perused Woods Hutchinson's great work on "Preventable Diseases," wherein he explains how simple it is to fight some of the great diseases afflicting the human race. He believes that colds should be called "colds" rather than colds. We have them in winter rather than in summer because we are so much more shut in to the attack of the bacilli and because we live so much less naturally. Some rules are given which any Winchesterites should follow who desires to "revel in colds."

Keep your windows shut.

Avoid draughts as if they were a pestilence.

Take no exercise between meals.

Bathe seldom and in warm water.

Wear heavy flannels, chest protectors, abdominal bandages and electric insoles.

Never let anything keep you away from church, the theatre, or parties in winter.

Never go out of doors when it's windy, rainy, or wet underfoot or cold, or hot, or looks as if it was going to be any of these.

The Spectator.

THE PROTECTING GLORY OF THE SUMMITS.

[illegible]
Where heaven's dome [illegible]
Even there, he feels the alone,
The very solitude grows sacred.

The world's protecting majesty of the [illegible]-capped summits, known in—Hampshire's heights or grandeur, as the Presidential Range, enclose a Glen of beauty, that awakens memories of sweet song and story, from poets' pen.

No jewel of glowing loveliness could be set with more exquisite sparkle of emerald, by the hand Divine, than that vale of peace nestled within the gateway of the Notch at Crawfords.

The evening scene held gleams of beauty that touched the soul. The sun had dropped into the west, leaving hints of golden and crimson glory, that sent their shafts of after glow far beyond and above, the majesty of towering heights.

The curtain of twilight fell about us, in a peace like that of Olivet. The stars came out.

We were "lost in with God, and His towering summits.

One needs to be there to seek to find the jewels that fall from the hand that holds the stars in their courses.

Sleep came not willingly to those who watched the changes of that night of beauty.

It seemed a waste of time to shut ones eyes upon the surrounding glory.

Quiet reigned about us. The links of the years slipped away. Glimpses of scenes long past, came trooping back, and the voices of loved ones far away, seemed near.

It was evening in the years long gone, just when mother came, "to tuck us in."

"Mother, come back from the echoless shore, Hush me to sleep again, just as of yore."

* * * * * * *

At midnight the scene was greatly changed.—

The waning moon, just in the zenith, seemed to be chasing the white, scudding clouds that almost covered the line, and crowded about it, like white lambs on a blue pasture.

Soon a bank of dark clouds appeared and mounted far above the pall that covered the sides of the entire range. The wind rose to a gale. Visions of peace fled as if in fright.

Nothing was the same as in the evening's loveliness save the quiet, lonely majesty of the summits. Unchanging as the rocks they stood! The moon had itself beneath the pall of cloud; faster blew the whistling winds.

The dawn seemed unwilling to break through the upheaval of the night's conflict. Gray streaks broke over the east.

The banking clouds broke away. The conquering morning came dim and dark. The wind seemed to die away before the light as the conquered flee before the victors.

The mists hung low, and rain fell, drenching the face of the Glen, in a copious bath for the new day.

The dull, gray world had awakened, and the majesty of the towering summits held their unchanging watch over all. May the strength of the hills, abide with all who love the grandeur of earth's spots of beauty.

CLYDE A. THOMPSON.

Clyde Adelbert Thompson, son of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Thompson of Forest street, died on the 21st inst. at the Westboro Sanitorium. He was 48 years of age and unmarried. Mr. Thompson went to Panama a year ago last winter and the change in climate seriously affected his health. He returned the following June and had been at Westboro for about a year.

Mr. Thompson was well known among many of the younger men of the town, having made his home here for many years. Besides his mother he leaves two brothers, Charles G. of this town and Robert B. of Minneapolis and one sister Mrs. William W. Howe of Winchester.

The funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from the residence of Rev. D. Augustine Newton of Reading officiating. The remains were taken to the Colegrove Crematory, Rockville, Conn., for interment.

The fire department was called out last Friday afternoon in response to an alarm from Box 54 at the corner of Wildwood and Fletcher streets. What caused the box to operate is a mystery, as no one was seen near it nor were the wires disturbed so far as is known. The box rang the first round of the alarm and struck for several minutes before completing the three other rounds, causing considerable excitement, many persons imagining it to be a two alarm fire.

"It does not seem to have crossed the vision of the suffragist that there may be female professional politicians. That there will arise not only two leaders, but many, dividing the allegiance of women on various questions of reform, organization, opposition to the republican party, the democratic party, the labor party, and all other parties; that there will be a movement for this and an opposition to that, and an indefinite multiplication and subdivision of faction—all this the suffragist will not believe. She says she believes in the Essentional Unity of Women." And this is pith of facts" Elizabeth M. Gosse.

FOOT BALL SEASON OPENS.

Dashing around the end in his effort to bring his team a score that would have meant victory for it, C. E. Dean, the little quarterback of the Woburn High team met a serious injury in the game with Milton High at Milton last Friday. While Dean was running at top speed, Gustelsen, Milton's right end, managed to worm his way through the interference and he brought Dean to the ground with a thud, after a beautiful tackle.

The tackle was so severe that Dean was unable to rise. He had suffered a fracture of the femur bone. He was carried to Dr. C. A. Roe's office, who put the injured member in a splint and had the boy sent to the Choate Hospital, Woburn, in an automobile. He will be unable to play again this season.

While Woburn High's players were bemoaning the loss of Dean, for the little fellow was truly a most promising player, English High suffered the loss of a likely looking candidate when C. R. Beauyis had his shoulder blade fractured, caused by a poor fall on the ball in preliminary practice. These mark the first serious injuries of the school season in this section.

HURT AT STATION.

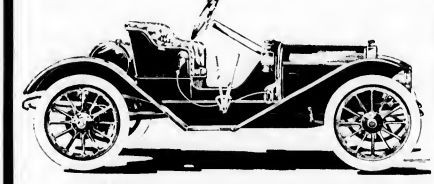

A man was slightly hurt at the centre railroad station on Monday evening just before the heavy thunder storm broke. The victim was Raphael Picorello of Salem street, Boston. According to reports he was on the second section of the tram arriving from Boston at about five o'clock, standing in the baggage car. Busy talking with a friend he did not notice that the tram had started from the station until it was under way, and he attempted to leave it by jumping through the open door.

The speed of the train was greater than he had thought and he was thrown heavily, badly twisting his ankle. Dr. Harold A. Gale was a passenger on the tram and he attended the man until Dr. A. A. Brown was called, who dressed his injury and sent him in a carriage to his friend's house on Swanton street where he was going.

For quick delivery on return from your vacation, mail your baggage checks to Kelley & Hawes Co., or they will call for same at your residence. tf

BOWLING BEGINS MONDAY.

Eighty Men Will Compete This Season at Calumet Club—A Promising Season on the Alleys.

The largest bowling tournament in its history will open at the Calumet Club on Monday. No less than sixteen teams have entered, which with five men on each team, will employ eighty men. Two hundred and forty games will be rolled, as arranged by the schedule sent out yesterday. Mr. George S. Littlefield, chairman of the bowling committee has been actively at work preparing this schedule, and no games are to be postponed this year except in case of town meetings. The games will last until the twenty-third of January, two matches being rolled almost every evening except Saturdays.

EDWIN GINN IN AUTO SMASH-UP.

[illegible] Mrs. Edwin Ginn and son of Lake Mason Street, [illegible] experienced an extensive automobile [illegible] tour in Europe. They arrived [illegible] safely before the end of the week for Lake Constance, where they will go to Berne, where Mr. Ginn will attend the forthcoming International Peace Congress. On their way to Paris from Basle they had a remarkably narrow escape. They were motoring at a good speed [illegible] the automobile was dragged to a near-by village, some primitive conveyance was found, and the whole party proceeded to Clermont, where, hours afterwards, they took a train to Paris. The accident was caused by the feeble lights at the level crossing.

LIGHTNING SET BAD FIRE.

One of the worst thunder storms of the year struck Winchester Monday evening at 8.15, interrupting the telephone and electric service, causing many bad washouts and starting a serious fire in the double house on Vine street occupied by Charles H. Dunning and H. Leslie Platt.

The day was one of heat and humidity, and late in the afternoon the storm approached with unusual rapidity from the northwest. The violence of the rain and lightning was exceptional during the storm. Shortly after the storm broke a bolt of lightning struck the residence on Vine street, entering the ell near the main house. In the house were Mr. Dunning, his mother and the maid, Mrs. Edwin Robinson, Miss Alice Robinson and Mr. Dwight Robinson. The Robinsons were occupying the Platt home during their absence at the shore.

Mr. Dunning immediately starts to ascertain the damage done, and found the corner of the bath room in flames. He tried to telephone the fire station, but the lightning had killed the phone. The maid then ran to Box 21 to pull in the alarm. Mr. George Cummings tried to pull the box too later, but this too would not work owing to the storm. Mr. Cummings then ran to the central station.

Meanwhile other Hargrove had noticed the smoke from the square and ran to the house. He telephoned the fire station from the residence of Mr. Frank Rowe, attorney. Others who saw the fire and the attempt to pull the box noticed the firemen at about the same time. From reports it appears that the fire was burning twenty minutes before the alarm reached the fire house. Added to the delay was a train on the crossing, which held up hose 3 and the steamer for about three minutes.

When the firemen arrived they found the interior of the top of the ell a seething mass of flames. Four lines of hose were put on and one of the best stops in the history of the department was made. Chief DeCourcey directed the firemen and had the fire out in an hour. The interior of the ell was badly gutted and the water damage was heavy, although considering the size of the fire it is remarkable that the damage was not greater.

The house is owned by Miss Anna P. Clark and the damage is said to be between one and two thousand dollars. Both of the tenants were insured.

The rain washed out many places about town. Mt. Vernon street at the corner of Stevens street was somewhat washed out and in fact almost all of the side hill streets suffered. The rain burned out a number of electric light wires and parts of the town were temporarily in darkness for a short time. Numerous trees were caused in shade trees by the wires. The telephones also suffered somewhat.

SOLVING THE PROBLEM OF TANNERY NUISANCES.

It begins to look as though a means had been found for taking care of the waste from the tanneries which will prevent the offensive odors which have been the source of so much trouble, says the Woburn Times. It is suggested that the waste material as it comes from the tanneries instead of being allowed to pass into the sewers be collected and stored in large pressure mixing tanks and then pumped out of the city and mixed. This method it is understood is to be adopted in Winchester, and it may also be the best in the tanneries in Woburn.

SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS.

Entered at the postoffice at Winchester a second-class matter.

Formerly a bride knew how to keep house. Now she is lucky if she knows how to keep a cook.

The Republican State Convention will be held in Boston, October 4, and Samuel J. Elder, Esquire, will fill the important office of Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

The Reading Chronicle says: "After this year the Wakefield-Reading Association will receive a substantial sum from the state, which recognizes the value to the community of the agricultural show." Why not; the state is now voting money for anything that comes along.

The new primary law proved successful in Winchester and also in every part of the state where there were contests. The experimental stage has now passed and perhaps with some minor changes in the law, the new caucus system will become as firmly established as the Australian ballot.

Don't scold the suffragettes. They are doing their duty as they see it, says the Charlestown Enterprise. Their purpose is good, although their methods may at times be crude. If men made better use of the voting power, the women who want votes would have less convincing arguments.

The incoming Legislature should amend the new primary law to the extent of eliminating that feature which compels voters to declare which political party they are to vote in. To a great extent it nullifies the secrecy of the Australian ballot and places a political tag on a voter. There should be but one ballot and no declaration.

So many persons are killed these days by automobiles that are going at a moderate rate of speed, that one is constrained to ask how fast a moderate rate is considered to be. There was a time, not so long ago, when there were frequent arrests for the fast driving of horses. Nothing is heard about the speedy horse these days.

The next move in the game of reciprocity will have to come from Canada. Many people are wondering if President Taft will now go down as Laurier did. It is fast dawning upon the average voter that Senator Lodge was right when he said reciprocity would not cheapen the necessaries of life in this country. However taking the duty off hides did not lessen the prices for shoes.

For the convenience of the voters, the town should be divided into precincts. There should be two additional voting places, one at Wedgemere and the other at the Highlands, the Town Hall to be used as at present. Winchester is now so large that there should be better opportunities for the citizens to vote than at present exists, wherein all are forced to go to the Town Hall. During stormy weather it is a hardship in many cases for voters to go long distances to the polls and as a consequence many do not vote.

Winchester has voted in favor of Mr. Prime for Representative to the lower branch of the Legislature, while wards three and six of Medford have selected Mr. Fay. The latter, having secured a majority of forty-eight votes in the district, is the nominee. The situation at the present time is, to say the least, peculiar, and time alone can tell what the outcome will be. Mr. Prime, being the choice of the Winchester primary by a vote of two to one, is undecided whether he will take out nomination papers or not, and will not give his decision for a few days. The a'bput breaking off of the agreement that existed so long between Medford and Winchester Republicans and the promise by the former of a three year term to Winchester is not looked upon with sincerity by the mass of Republican voters of the town. Under the new primary system promises even when made by such men of prominence and integrity as those of Medford, are not sure of fulfillment, and for this reason solely the STAR has strongly opposed giving Mr. Fay a third term.

FOOT BALL.

The High School foot ball team played its first game of the season at Waltham on Wednesday afternoon, being defeated 35-0. The visitors were greatly out weighed and played a rather loose game.

After the first few minutes of play, Waltham, by Winchester's weak defensive playing, crossed the line for the first touchdown. After the second kick-off, Fagan fumbled the ball and Moody, Waltham's star fullback, picked the ball up on the five yard line and ran one hundred and five yards for a touchdown, making some remarkable dodges.

Soon after this Neeley in endeavoring to tackle Cobb, Waltham's giant captain, fractured a large bone in his wrist. He will probably be out of the game for several weeks.

Three times Winchester held the home team for downs within the latter's five yard line but nevertheless it was at frequent intervals that Waltham crossed the line for touchdowns.

The summary:

WALTHAM H. S.	WINCHESTER H. S.
Johnstone (Barstow, Marshall Stone) le	re Cutting
Cobb (Cotton) lt	rt Chapin (Strawbridge
Johnson (H. Bailey, Butler) lg	rg Ball
Jones (Eaton) c	c Emery

Score—Waltham High 35, Winchester High 0. Touchdowns, Pendlebury 2, Moody, Fagan, Cunningham, Cobb. Goals from touchdowns, Richardson 5. Umpire, Christie. Referee, Ingalls. Head linesman, Handrahan. Field judge, Fraim. Time two 10 and two 12 minute periods.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Today is the Middlesex County W. C. T. U. convention in Bedford. In the evening Miss Flora Strout is to give a lecture on Japan and the temperance question, illustrating it with stereopticon pictures. The Winchester Union is well represented at the convention.

On Monday the Woburn Union celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary and the Winchester Union assisted in the celebration by sending representatives. The Winchester Union is about ten years older than Woburn's organization and took a warm interest in the younger sister at the time of its first appearance. Very few Unions in the country are older than Winchester.

The Maine question has been put but it looks now as if we must wait until the yeas and nays are ordered. It is still impossible to tell absolutely which side was victorious. One thing, however, may be said: Such a campaign of education as was waged by the temperance forces is well worth while even if apparently unsuccessful. Local option may be more effective and certainly even those who favored the repeal of the law may not vote for license in their own section.

There has been a slight change in the date of the National W. C. T. U. convention, the opening session being a day later. It will be from October 28 to November 2, and will be held in Milwaukee, famous for its beer.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. Woodbury of Allston has leased the vacant house on Lehmon street recently occupied by Mr. White.

It looks now as if Wm. Callahan is to be the only Winchester candidate for representative in the coming election. Mr. Callahan withheld filing his papers as a non-partisan candidate and would have supported Mr. Prime in the event of his being nominated as the Republican candidate.

Mrs. D. W. Hawes went to South Paris, Me., Wednesday for several weeks.

Mr. Charles E. Corey of the Parkway sailed from New York Wednesday for Europe.

Mrs. Forbes D. Smith of Wilson street is spending a month with relatives at Prince Edward Island.

Wm. Homer Colgate is spending the week end with relatives in New York.

James S. Murray son of Mayor and Mrs. Hugh D. Murray of Woburn was married at Cambridge to Miss Elsie Dickie daughter of Melville Dickie of that city Wednesday. They will live on Maxwell road, Winchester.

Mr. D. N. Skillings has been visiting friends in Vermont during the week.

Patrick Gilroy of 696 Main street and Susan McElhaney of 24 Hill street were married last evening.

SUFFRAGE LEAGUE.

The annual meeting of the Winchester Equal Suffrage League will be held Wednesday afternoon at Miss Murdock's on Church street. It will begin at 3.30. Election of officers for the new year and discussions of how best to carry on the work makes the business important. Tea will be served and Miss Elizabeth Kneeland, a member of the league, will sing several California suffrage songs.

THEN AND NOW.

When we were a young man employed on the Boston Traveller, the six cylinder printing machine that printed two pages at the speed of 6000 impressions an hour, seemed to us one of the wonders of the age. Through the courtesy of Mr. Lally of the business staff of the Boston Post we were this week shown through the tiers of presses that are required to get out the editions of that paper. The wonders of our boyhood days were changed to amazement when we saw the present day machines that are capable of an output of 70,000 complete Posts an hour. The largest press in the world is installed in the Post plant, and this is supplemented by many other fast going presses. They were printing the colored supplements for next Sunday's issue when we were there, and the many colored pages were printed at one impression faster than it was possible to count them. This supplement practically requires the use of one press for a week. This gives an idea of the many papers printed for the Sunday issue.

The press rooms of the Post are in tiers going down some thirty feet below the Washington street tunnel of the Elevated railroad. This was necessary because no other method could be devised on the restricted area on which the Post building stands. To build these many subcellars was an engineering feat as nothing of the kind had ever been attempted before. Powerful fans give a constant supply of fresh air.

This wonderful printing plant is worth inspecting. To give an adequate description of it would require many columns of space in the STAR.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a recent meeting of the class of 1914, Richard Neeley was elected secretary and Mildred Lee treasurer.

Henry Harris, manager of the foot ball team, has appointed George Saltmarsh for assistant manager.

The girl's athletic association has elected the following officers: president, Esther Parshley; vice president, Emmee Grover; treasurer, Helen Rowe, and secretary, Ruth Roberts. Esther Parshey has also been elected captain of the basket ball team and Lucy Stears, manager.

The foot ball team expected a one-sided game at Waltham and there is no harm done because there was a large score. It was good practice for the team and they now know their weak points and are working hard to overcome them for the game with Watertown to-morrow afternoon. This game is at 3.00 p. m., and it is hoped a large number will attend and give the team a rousing start for their first regular game.

The following officers have been elected by the freshman class: president, Ruth Elder; vice-president, Hart Furbish, secretary, Rachael Metcalf and treasurer Phillips Heath. Blair Cobb was elected football captain and Warren Johnston basket ball captain.

THE W. H. S. TEAM NEED BLANKETS.

The necessity of blankets for the players of the High School foot ball team was most apparent on Wednesday last when the school played Waltham High. The boys between periods sat upon their benches without sufficient covering after their hard scrimmages.

The school Athletic Association is anxious to procure suitable blankets immediately and one friend of the team has voluntarily offered five dollars to head a subscription toward defraying the expense.

These blankets will remain the property of the association for use in subsequent seasons.

The boys will appreciate any donations sent them and trust they may have the satisfaction of ordering their blankets before the next game.

Persons interested are asked to communicate with Henry Harris, 4 Hillside avenue, whose telephone number is Win. 51 W. Mr. Harris is manager of the football team.

GLOBE THEATRE.

After an absence of several years Billy B. Van, best remembered here as the star of "Little Nemo," will return to this theatre next week in his new musical comedy production, "A Lucky Hoodoo." It is doubtful if there is another comedian visiting here who is as popular as Billy B. Van.

Mr. Van has, without doubt, the best production, supporting company, costumes, electrical effects, songs and other details in his career. The Beaumont sisters, Rome Jester, Clemons and Dean, English dancers, and Clemons is the best eccentric dancer that has ever visited this country. Pinard and Nanny, with their musical act, Jack McIntyer, J. Hooker Wright, Jerome Brunet and others are numbered in the cast. There are twenty-one musical numbers. There will be the usual matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The afternoon services begin again Sunday. The hour will be 5 p. m. Beginning in November, there will be an organ Recital preceding this service, every second Sunday of the month, and the service will be choral.

There will be a Parish Meeting, to elect a warden, Monday evening, Oct. 2 at the church. The meeting at the Vestry will immediately follow.

The Woman's Guild will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday, Oct. 3 at 2.3. p. m. at the Parish House.

Newsy Paragraphs.

A whist party in aid of the building fund for the new rectory of St. Mary's parish was held Monday evening in the old parish house at the corner of Washington and Eaton streets. Prizes were awarded the winners as follows: Ladies, Miss Annie Walsh first, Miss Elizabeth Cullen second, Miss Mary Jones third, Miss Delia McCue consolation. Gentlemen, Edward Boyle first, Henry Haley second, Luke Glendon third, John Maguire consolation.

A meeting of the men of St. Mary's parish to arrange for the parade on Columbus day was held Monday evening in the chapel. The gathering was addressed by Rev. Walter J. Roche. Another meeting will be held next Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Jenkins have taken apartments at Burton Halls, Cambridge.

The Ladie's Western Missionary Society will meet in the vestries of the Congregational Church on Thursday, Oct. 5, at 10 o'clock. Lunch and business meeting at the usual time. As this is the first meeting after the vacation, it is hoped that a large number will be present.

Hall'o'een post cards, place cards, etc. Wilson the Stationer.

The Rev. Henry E. Hodge delivered an address Wednesday at the 145th annual meeting of the Warren Association of Baptist Churches of Rhode Island.

Just arrived from Holland, a lot of tine bulbs for your garden or house. The kinds I use for forcing. Ewell's Greenhouses, Lincoln street.

Mr. Bliss Knapp, who is to lecture in Winchester on the evening of Tuesday, October 17, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientists, is a Harvard man. He is a son of the late Ira O. Knapp, for many years one of the Directors of the Mother Church in Boston. His whole training qualifies him to interest and instruct a general audience desirous of knowing something of an authentic nature concerning one of the greatest religious and therapeutic movements the world has ever known. Mr. Knapp will deal with his subject in such a manner as to make it intelligible to non-Scientists. The lecture will be given in the Christian Science Church on Mount Vernon street, opposite the Town Hall. There will be no special invitations, but citizens in general will be cordially welcomed.

See the contractor's and jobbers directory in another column. The firms in this directory will lighten your housekeeping burdens.

A reunion of Stewards, Ushers and Pageant workers in the World in Boston is to be held October 4th, Wednesday evening in People's Temple, corner of Columbus avenue and Berkeley street, Boston. The program will open at 7.15 with three-quarters of an hour given to singing the pageant music. Mr. Cutter will lead and some of the soloists will assist. Dr. Haggard will preside and brief addresses will be made by Rev. D. Brewer Eddy and others. Tickets for those who wish to attend, can be had Sunday at the churches.

At the Winchester Country Club a ladies' medal handicap was played on Wednesday afternoon, being postponed from Tuesday on account of the rain. Three scores were recorded as follows:

Miss P. Russell	104	12	92
Mrs. F. L. Hunt	115	14	101
Mrs. C. F. Edgett	103	10	93

Mrs. James Winn and Mrs. George Lochman have gone to North Woodstock, N. H., for a few weeks.

Miss Grace Lawrence and her sister, Mrs. Amy Wyman, have sold their homestead on Forest street to Mr. Chase of Medford who has moved in and will occupy as a home.

Miss Lahan announces her Fall Opening at Boston Millinery Shop, Stoneham, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 5th, 6th and 7th. A cordial invitation is extended to all to call and inspect the display, including New York models and copies of imported hats. tfx

Members of the Winchester Branch of the Needlework Guild are asked to have their two new articles in readiness for the November meeting which will be held early in the month this year. Any one desiring to become a member may do so by contributing two new articles or wearing apparel or household linen. Last year two hundred articles were distributed by the Winchester Branch.

For blankets and comforters, flannelette robes and skirts call on Franklin P. Barnes & Co.

A party of young men and women were the guests of J. Frank Davis at a bowling party in Woburn Wednesday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Katherine Lehan and Miss Delahanty.

The school committee has granted the request for the use of the High school building for a social center this season, and there will be a meeting in the High school library this evening to consider plans for the work of the coming year.

Supervising Deputy Grand Regent Willie of Roxbury will be the guest of Aberjona Council of R. Royal Arcanum, at its meeting to-night Tuesday evening.

The first drill of the members of Winchester Council 216, Knights of Columbus for the Columbus day parade, will be held next Tuesday evening. The council is preparing to offer a team in the Knights of Columbus bowling league in competition with neighboring councils.

NATIONAL THEATRE.

Great crowds still continue to rush to the new National Theatre. This new Boston playhouse, the largest vaudeville theatre in the world, has been declared by the press and the people to be a tremendous success. In the past two weeks the theatre has been full at every performance. The National Theatre is located at 537 Tremont street, near the corner of Berkeley street, and very convenient to out of town patrons. Another big show has been booked for next week. The National Boston consolidated modern minstrels will be retained for another week by popular demand. Hughie Dougherty, Lew Benedict, Bill Stone, Thomas Clifford and Bob Evans are fast becoming great local favorites. New songs, and jokes that have the up-to-date label on them, will be heard. A burlesque on some well known show will also be given.

The old time burlesque on big successes have not been seen in Boston for many years and their revival at the National is rapidly becoming a great feature of the big show. Hughie Dougherty and Lew Benedict, both masters in the playing of burlesque after pieces, are big screams in their line. A number of great vaudeville features will also be seen. Cotter and Boulden, the girl and the fellow who dance, will present a big laughing musical and dancing sketch, while the "Cycling Brunettes" will be seen in a sensational bicycle act. Other big features are on the bill. The reserved seat plan at the National has become very popular.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The first musical comedy production of the season at the Castle Square will be made next Monday. George Cohan's "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway" having been selected by Mr. Craig. Combining many varieties of dramatic entertainment in a single play, it promises with its music and spectacle, its comedy and chorus to be an exceptional attraction.

Cities all over the country have been loud in praise of this piece, and one of them has said of the characters: "From first to last they are at bottom cleerly recognizable figures that seemingly have just turned the corner. They have character, and the more when clever players bring them to life."

And clever players will bring them to life at the Castle Square. The cast will comprise the full strength of Mr. Craig's company, and to it will be added a large chorus. The orchestra and musical direction will be in charge of Joseph Marr.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

That the famous Irish Players at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, have scored a phenomenal success as evidenced at every performance when the seating capacity of this beautiful playhouse is severely tested. Not only has the theatre-going public raved over the remarkable genius displayed by this wonderfully clever organization, but the conservative critics of the entire Boston press unanimously declared them to be the one be great dramatic novelty of the decade.

The engagement of the Irish Players is limited and lovers of the real art of acting would do well to put the Plymouth Theatre on their list for the engagement of this organization at the Plymouth Theatre, which is the way is one of the most perfect theatres in Boston, make a special feature of caring for mail orders.

MIDDLESEX, ss.
PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of Irving S. Tanner, late of Winchester in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Fannie L. Tanner of Winchester, in said County, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on her official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the eighteenth day of October, A. D. 1911, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said executor is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested or by causing a copy thereof to be published in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTIRE, Esq., First Judge of said Court, this twenty-seventh day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

MIDDLESEX, ss. September 26, A. D. 1911

FOURTH DISTRICT COURT OF EASTERN MIDDLESEX.

At a Court begun and holden at Woburn in said County, on the twenty-sixth day of September in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, Parker & Lane Co., plaintiff, Melvin A. Fogg, defendant. This is an action of contract to recover the sum of forty 25/100 dollars, alleged to be due the plaintiff from the defendant, on the twenty fifth day of August, A. D. 1911, as set forth by the plaintiff's writ of that date.

And it appearing to the Court by the suggestion of the plaintiff, and on inspection of the officer's return of the plaintiff's writ, that the defendant at the time of the service of said writ had no last and usual place of abode, agent or attorney in this Commonwealth known to the plaintiff or the said officer, and that no personal notice of said writ has been made upon the defendant, it is ordered by the Court here, that the plaintiff give notice of the pendency of this action by causing an attested copy of this order to be published in the Winchester STAR, a newspaper printed in said Winchester once a week, three weeks successively, and that this action be continued to the twenty-eighth day of October next, or until notice shall be given to the defendant, agreeably to this order.

STATE POLITICS

Defeat of Reciprocity as Affecting the State Campaign

DEMOCRATS HOLD BARBECUE

Republicans Will Make Active State Canvass—Many Speakers Will Be Heard—Industrial Heads Fear the Threats of Tariff Revision

The defeat of the reciprocity agreement by the Canadians was such a genuine surprise that politicians have hardly recovered yet, from their astonishment. The people of Massachusetts have been told by Democrats for many years that our neighbors across the border were ready to approve a treaty whenever it was presented to them, but that idea has been completely demolished by the events of the past week. Just what effect the rejection of the agreement by Canada will have upon the state campaign is just now the subject of much discussion. It seems to be a very general view that nothing contributed quite so much to rejection of the agreement as the statements made by Speaker Champ Clark in the special session of congress favoring annexation. That statement was used by Canadians in opposition to the ratification of the agreement, and it is understood to have been agreed in Canada that it was most potent in stirring up opposition to it. Such a statement coming from the speaker of the lower house of congress had the force of an official of the nation. It was so accepted by the Canadian opponents of reciprocity. The Democratic party is therefore blamed as being responsible for the defeat of the agreement, through the Democratic speaker of the national house, and there is a general suspicion that while Democrats in congress voted for reciprocity they were anxious to have it defeated by the Canadians and wanted to [illegible] that defeat.

Governor Foss Was Mistaken

Governor Foss has [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Massachusetts before Mr. Foss became active in politics.

Certainly Governor Foss is not well pleased with the result of the Canadian election. The Boston Globe quotes him as acknowledging to friends who called on him the day after that election, that the reciprocity issue had been wiped off both the Democrat and Republican slates. It described the governor as betraying unmistakable signs of his regret at the outcome. Those close to him are said to acknowledge that they have been robbed of a valuable campaign issue.

Democrats Have a Barbecue

The Democrats opened the campaign last Saturday with a barbecue at Caledonian grove. In his speech Governor Foss decided that the Democrats in the state did not care whether the issues should be national or local.

He declared that the defeat of reciprocity in Canada could not be laid to the door of the Democratic party, forgetting the part played by Speaker Champ Clark, who injected the annexation bogey into the Canadian campaign.

Then he tried to convince his hearers that if there was any fault on the part of the United States it was the fault of the Republican party, in that it did not first revise the tariff and then follow with reciprocity.

In this Mr. Foss does not agree with many of his friends, who are convinced that reciprocity would suffer the same fate in Canada regardless of whether the American tariff was high or low, but that its chances would have been much less if it had been low, because there would have been less reason for Canadians to desire it.

At all events, both Republicans and Democrats who look at the question [illegible]

[illegible] Be Hot

[illegible]

The Republican state convention will be held on Oct. 4. The Democrats will hold theirs on the 5th, and will thus have the last word in platform making and speaking. However, there is no particular value in that. Republicans intend to make a big campaign, and to leave no stone unturned to secure the election of governor. They will have prominent speakers from various parts of the country, and it will be a thoroughly wide awake, stumping campaign on their part.

There are only two states in the union which hold a complete election, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The rest of the country will be much interested in the result of the election in these two states.

Business and Industry Timid

It is plainly to be seen that business and industrial enterprises are not being pushed as vigorously as they would be if the tariff question were not under discussion and liable to call for a change by a congress which is not over favorable to New England. Those who have studied the situation say that the present uncertainty in the [illegible] as well as the stock market [illegible] the troubled state of mind of the entire business and manufacturing community, and that if this uncertainty were removed there would be a quick return of normal conditions, full employment of operatives in the mills and factories. The situation would be greatly helped, they believe, by some indications that the tariff attack upon New England is resented by the voters here. The defeat of Mr. Foss would be such a sign, and convince manufacturers that New England industries are not to be sacrificed without a protest from the people of New England themselves. Republicans believe it would have a sobering and a restraining effect upon southern Democratic congressmen, show that the north will not tolerate a sectional tariff, and convince the Democratic house that the pushing of such measures in the coming session will endanger their chances of winning the presidential election.

It is plain to be seen that Governor Foss intends to claim credit for everything in sight. He is even trying to prove that he instigated the suit against the United Shoe Machinery company, although the attorney general's department of the United States had been probing the acts of the corporation for months before the governor alluded to it. In fact, the story is told that Mr. Foss heard the federal grand jury was going to act and took that opportunity to put [illegible] [illegible] expense [illegible] of Mr. Foss.

WHAT PAPER-BAG COOKERY IS

Paper Bag Cookery, which has become so popular in Europe and has now been introduced in America, originated with the famous culinary expert, Nicholas Soyer, late chef of Brooks's Club, London.

Soyer's experiments covered a long period. He soon became convinced that no method of cooking was so economical or so efficient in retaining the natural juices and flavors of the food; but it was impossible to find a bag which did not make the food taste. This difficulty was finally overcome by having a bag made for the purpose.

The Union Cookery Bag, made especially for Soyer cooking in America, by The Union Bag and Paper Company, satisfies every requirement.

Paper Bag Cookery does away with pots and pans. With rare exceptions, the food is prepared and put directly into the bag, without any other dish or receptacle. This is only one of many advantages of paper-bag cookery, however. It is very economical, less time being required to cook any given dish by the Soyer method than in any other way. Food cooked in paper bags is wonderfully delicious. Not a particle of the natural juices is lost, as in all other methods. It does away with all cooking odors. It is absolutely clean. There is no shrinkage or waste.

It does not require a great deal of imagination to see in Paper-Bag Cookery the cookery of the future.

REGULAR MEETING

First Monday Evening of Each Month, 7 to 9.

If a holiday the following evening

"Thousands are hacking at the branches to one who is striking at the root." Whenever an ordinary mortgage is placed on the home it is hacking at the branches. When the mortgage is to the Winchester Co-operative Bank it is striking at the root: it is bound to be paid. Whenever you adopt the ordinary method of saving you are hacking at the branches, and it becomes a special effort. When you adopt the Winchester Co-operative Bank method you strike at the root. It is regular and systematic.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

It is splendid to learn how nobly the Press of California is leading its support to Amendment No. 5 to the California Constitution, enfranchising women. Among those going their aid is "The San Francisco Call" which has a very stirring editorial in a recent issue, pledging this paper its support. The whole article is most worthy, but there is only room here for some extracts, beginning with the opening paragraphs:

"Whatever strength it has, whatever influence upon the citizenship of California, whatever ability to exalt truth and right and justice, The Call pledges to the support of senate constitutional amendment No. 5—the amendment whose fate in November means the entire assessment and emancipation of the women of California.

"This pledge is no concession, no yielding to popular sentiment. It is given as a matter of duty, of right, of equity. The Call will seek no credit for doing the [illegible] honest news paper. It will [illegible] and it shall [illegible] stands for—[illegible] that is [illegible] is the cause is paramount to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

COOKING REVOLUTIONIZED

A WORD ABOUT PAPER BAG COOKERY

THE SOYER METHOD IS NOT AN EXPERIMENT, BUT A PROVED SUCCESS

In England the Method Has Had an Immense Vogue.

All over England it has been tested, and has proved a triumphant success. Already it has had the endorsement of epicures, of experts in cookery, and of the leading chefs in London.

The success of this system of cookery, as of all others, depends entirely upon the care with which it is carried on. Union Cookery Bags replace pots and pans in cooking and save time and labor, but they do not replace the care and rudimentary knowledge which is always necessary to success in cooking.

THE BAG

Do not attempt to cook in any bags other than Union Cookery Bags, the only authorized American Bags for Soyer Cookery. Ordinary bags are worse than useless.

ADVANTAGES OF THE SOYER METHOD

The advantages of the method there are no disadvantages—make it a boon alike to rich and poor, to those who cook themselves and those who enjoy the cooking of others, and for these reasons:

1. It makes every dish more savory and nutritious.
2. It is economical: the food weighing practically the same when drawn from, as when put in the oven.
3. It is labor-saving: no cleaning of pots or pans.
4. It is hygienic: no germs harbored in cooking utensils.
5. No smell of cooking.
